The annual celebration of the fifth of November by Col. Saunderson Lodge No. 321, Downer's Corners, was well attended last evening, although there was not as large a number present as last year. After the sumptuous supper, which was served by the lady friends of the members of above lodge, a good programme was presented.

Among those on the platform besides Chairman Ritchie, W.M., were the Revs. C. H. Coon, of Mark street church, and A. H. Brace, of Park street Baptist church.

The programme was as follows:—

Whistling solo, "The Cake Walk"—Mr. W. Kitney.

Rev. C. H. Coon next addressed the gathering and expressed his pleasure at being present, and how much he enjoyed the appearances of the well laden tables. He said he was there to become acquainted with the Orangemen and he esteemed it an honour and a privilege to be present. He always enjoyed the privilege of speaking to a company of men and women who were thoughtful, and he felt he was not mistaken when he said he was speaking to such a company, who were trying to take a step upwards in this life. If he could say a word that will help to lift some one to a better understanding of this life, he would be well repaid. He felt himself honoured when called upon to say a word to, or preach to any society. He was devoutedly grateful for one thing and that was that the Orange Order has given the Word of God the place of honour in lodges and in all of the public ceremonies. Not only must the Order set itself to honour the Bible with a place on the table of the lodge rooms and in their processions, but also in their private lives.

He had known of a lodge of Orangemen which had uplifted the community where he once preached. On the other hand he had known of a lodge of the same Order which injured the community. It was not the fault of the Order but of those who managed the affairs.

Miss Verda Watt then recited "I Will Paint You a Sign," after which Mr. Walter Kitney delighted the audience by a tin whistle solo which was enjoyed very much. So much so, that he was called upon to reply to an encore. Miss Mina Waddell recited "The Twelfth of July," and the Rev. Bro. Brace then gave a stirring address on the Gun Powder Plot. Although the assembly was there to keep the anniversary of the gunpowder plot, he said it should dispel the idea of enmity towards the Roman Catholic brethren, but on the contrary, Orangemen take an oath to succor anyone of their fellow beings who might be in trouble. Any Orangeman who would turn away from any Roman Catholic in distress ought to be spurned and despised by the brethren of his lodge.

King James lived in dangerous times, and he had to deal with three strange factions—the Puritan party, the High Church party, and the Roman Catholic party. Elizabeth managed them pretty well, but James did not. The Puritan party was a class of Christians beautiful in their life but James could not tolerate them. They could not down the surplice, nor the ritual of the church; they could not worship without imprisonment, so they emigrated to the new world. The speaker then went on to give the history of the Gunpowder Plot, and appealed to the Orange Order to vote solid.

The speaker in closing urged upon the Orangemen to stand by their obligations for twelve months in the Year.

Mr. Kitney was again called upon for a solo, after which Mr. N. A. Howard-Moore addressed the gathering. The concert closed with the usual votes of thanks and the singing of God Save the King.

The burning of Guy Fawkes in effigy concluded the celebration which was the usual success that attends the social gatherings at L.O.L. No. 321.

OBITUARY

MARGARET MAY CONWAY

The sympathy of their many friends will be extended to Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Conway, in the death of their infant daughter, Margaret May, aged fourteen months, who passed away this morning. The cause of death was pneumonia, and the illness was of about a week's duration. The funeral which will be private, takes place from the family residence, 395 Downie street, at 3 o'clock, p.m. on Friday.

Miss Anderson, of 213 London street, has resumed her millinery, and will be pleased to welcome both new and old customers.

BACK TO PRIMITIVE CONDITIONS

The Suggested Remedy For The Increasing Prevailant To Baldness is to go Without Hats Again

THE SCALP A HOT HOUSE

There is every reason to believe that primitive man had a thick and abundant head of hair and that this natural clothing of the scalp is diminishing among civilized peoples, and will end by disappearing altogether, which would certainly not be advantageous from an aesthetic point of view. The cause of this disappearance of the hair, according to the doctors, must be sought in the very conditions of civilization and in the customs it has introduced. One of the customs especially hurtful to the hair is the hat, and, above all, the masculine hat; so we see men's hair suffers more than women's.

The hat produces baldness by two different methods. First, by creating about the head an atmospher which prevents the penetration of the rays of light that are so fatal to bacteria; the hat makes for the microbes a sort of improvised hot bed, which is extremely favourable to their development, and it is known that microbes play an important part in the production of baldness. It it had been desirable to foster the existence of microbes capable of living upon the scalp or in the hair, a more favourable means for their protection and multiplication than the hat, could not have been found. Again, the hat, holding its place upon the head solely by pressure, exerts a second pernicious influence upon the scalp; it compresses the arteries and the veins; it impedes the circulation of the blood and consequently the nutrition of the organs which produce the hair. It is therefore doubly desirable that the reign of the hat should cease, in the case of men — for with women the hat is so light a thing that it can exert only a trifling proportion of the ravages it it is responsible for in men—and that this garment should be renounced or replaced by some less injurious article. As a matter of fact men would be very healthy with bare heads. The hair would be strengthened and would serve as a hat; it would only be necessary to protect the head against the rays of the sun in summer to avoid sun stroke. It is true that the public imagines it would catch cold more easily, but this is a mistake, a draught alone is not enough to give a cold; a microbe is absolutely necessary. With lighter, well ventilated hats, that will not compress the blood vessels in the scalp, with more cleanliness in our barbershops and with the intelligent use of Herpicide or some other dandruff germ destroyer there is no reason why modern man should be far behind his primitive ancestors in the matter of natural head covering.

GOOD POTATO CROP NOT UNIVERSAL

And Prospects Are Potatoes Will Rise In Price

Squire Patrick Potato does not intend to allow himself to be disposed of at ordinary average prices while his fellow-products of the farm and dairy are soaring away up in the air. Already the potato kings in Toronto are demanding from 85 to 90 cents a bag wholesale for the Irishman's favourite "fruit," and they promise that it will be higher before the winter is over.

A bag of potatoes contains a bushel and a half—if it is full measure. The price at present is ten or fifteen cents more than was asked at the same time last year; and those who are old enough to remember say that the "Murphies" have been "given away" at odd seasons during the last thirty or forty years as low as twenty cents a bag. Five years ago, however, when the Ontario dealers shipped a lot of them to the other side of the border, the local consumer was compelled sometimes to pay as much as $1.50 per bag for them.

In Ontario this year the potato crop has been especially good. But it is a well-known fact that this Province does not produce all the potatoes that are consumed here. In past years New Brunswick has supplied Ontario with a good many potatoes, but we cannot expect many from that source this year, owing to the prevalence of rot in that Province.

That is one of the causes to which is attributed the rising price of this much-used product. — Toronto Star.

Tully's Hair Tonic

and DANDRUFF CURE makes the hair grow July 24th, 1907

About the month of September, 1906, my hair began to come out in large spots, leaving the scalp perfectly bare on the right side of the head, also my beard on the left side. About the 15th of December I showed it to J. D. Tully, Druggist; he said that he had a preparation that would restore the hair. I could scarcely credit his statement, but decided to try it, and in three weeks using the hair commenced to grow. Since that time I have lost nearly all my old hair which has been entirely replaced with new hair, and the beard also. I consider this by all means the best hair grower on the market, as I had previously tried other preparations without any effect. Any one wishing to ask me about it will find me at my home, 265 McDonnel Street, Peterborough, or at R. R. Crossing, G.T.R., Charlotte St.

KETCHECUM PARTY'S GOOD LUCK

Had Secured Six Deer up to Saturday Night Last

A visitor from the north country, in the city yesterday, brought news of the great luck which is attending the Ketchecum Lake party, of Peterborough, in their annual deer hunt. Up to Saturday night the party had secured six deer and were more than satisfied with their good luck. The party, according to yesterday"s visitor, was having the best outing in the history of the club, Although the weather of the last few days will cast somewhat of a damper on the proceedings. To-day the party will be joined by Messrs. W. G. Morrow, W. Irwin and P. Campbell.

THIS RECIPE SAID TO RELIEVE MANY

Should Mix This Simple, Helpful Recipe At Home And Try It, Anyway

Get from the prescription pharmacy the following:

Fluid Extract Dandelion, one-half ounce; Compound Kargon, one ounce; Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla, three ounces.

Shake well in a bottle and take a teaspoonful dose after each meal and at bedtime.

The above is considered by an eminent authority as the finest prescription ever written to relieve Backache Kidney Trouble, Weak Bladder and all forms of urinary troubles. This mixture acts promptly on the eliminative tissues of the Kidneys, enabling them to filter and strain the uric acid and other waste matter from the blood which causes Rheumatism.

Some persons who suffer with these afflictions may not feel inclined to place much confidence in this simple mixture, yet those who have tried it say the results are simply surprisprising, the relief being effected without the slightest injury to the stomach or other organs.

Mix some and give it a trial. It certainly comes highly recommended. It is the prescription of an eminent authority, whose entire reputation, it is said, was established by it. 8

Think It Over

The men who desire something new, to exactly suit their own personal individuality must have them Tailor-made.

Few men desire clothes after the same model. They want each suit to be different from its predecessor.

There has not been in recent years a season in which the tailor has gone further in advance of the Ready-made manufacturer than he will this season.

Let us show you the styles and what is being worn in Imported Tweed Suits and Overcoats this season.

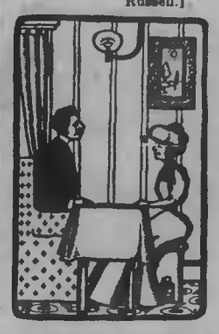
The Thoughtful Wife Who Tried to Give Henry a Restful Vacation.

[Copyright, 1902, 1903, by Robert Howard Russell.]



HATED TO PLAY DOMINOES.

Once there was a great big Burly who had a Wife about the size of a Grasshopper. Usually she wore a gray Tailor-Made that looked as if it would have to be let out if she gained another pound.

Any one, to look at Jessaline, would have said that she was rather frail and Weakly, while the he-end of the Sketch looked husky enough to pull a Dray.

At any rate, the cute and dainty little Jessaline, with a Waist Measurement of 11 inches, was all hooked up with the human Mastodon who went by the name of Henry and looked the Part.

Now it happened that Hen and Jess lived in a nice little Town where there were a great many lovely Old Families and a great deal of Wealth, but it was pervaded at all Hours by a Cemetery Calm. The Social Gayeties of the Place revolved slowly around a Missionary Society. Any one desiring to mix a Cocktail had to pull down all the Blinds and disconnect the Telephone, and also it was advisable to wear Masks at a Poker Party.

Jessaline would often become restless and champ at the Bit. She had attended a Select School for Girls, at which she had learned how to turn Handsprings and do other Parlor Didoes. No wonder that she hated to play Dominoes all Evening and then turn out the Lights at 9:30 P. M.

Now it chanced that Jessaline had a Chum. They had eaten Olives out of the same Bottle while attending the Select School for Girls. Chum had gone against the Matrimonial Game, the same as Jessaline, only, instead of landing in Sleepy Hollow, she was up in the City, taking in the Big Show.

She wrote to Jessaline, urging her to come up and put in a busy Week. After working on the Handwriting for several Days, Jessaline succeeded in reading the whole Letter, and she began to tease Henry to knock off for a Week and take her up to the hoop-la Metropolis and let her burn a few Holes in the Track.

Large Bodies move slowly, and several Days elapsed before Henry came to her Way of Thinking, although it was a Pipe from the beginning that she would bring him around.

Jessaline got busy and put six Women to work building a new Evening Gown for her. It was a Pale-Blue Cerise, with Battenberg Insertion, yoked with Mayonnaise and Valenciennes, the Flounces being gathered in with Passementerie and the Bodice handpainted. When Henry got a Flash at the Bill he allowed that, instead of taking a Vacation, it would be better for him to stay at Home and work about twice as hard. But winsome Wifey had everything packed, so she took him in Tow and they boarded the Flyer.

"Ain't this Grand?" asked Jessaline, as they sat in the palatial Parlor-Car and watched the Scenery spin by.

"AIN'T THIS GRAND?"

"We have a whole Week in which to rest up and nobody to keep Tab on what we do and then report us to the Methodist Minister. I'm sure that you will like Clara. She is a Holy Terror. She was engaged nineteen times before she finally hooked up, and since she got Married People come for miles to get her to act as Chaperon."

"What is the Programme?" asked Henry, who was a mite Leery.

"There'll be something doing every Minute, all right, all right," said the Child-Wife. "Ask no Questions, but follow Her's Bright Eyes. I haven't had a touch of Real Life since I crawled down the Lightning-Rod at the Select School for Girls."

At that time Henry did not realize that a bright young Thing with a Boarding-School Education can give the stalwart Business Man any kind of a Handicap and then leave him somewhere back of the Flag.

Clara met them at the Train with a Buzz-Wagon. She had framed up a List of Engagements that made the Roosevelt Itinerary look like Open Time. Clara had arranged to give them a little of Everything except Sleep. Jessaline was tickled nearly to Death. She was waltzing all over the Track, waiting for the word "Go!"

The Getaway was a Dinner of 17 Courses, at which Jessaline tackled everything without losing any part of the Conversation. After that they went to the Opera, which was a little too high for Henry, but Jessaline threw a Conniption Fit every time Signor Dagolini climbed up and hit a Top Note. They went back to the Apartment and ate Stuff out of a Chafing Dish until 3 a. m. When they turned in, Henry was on the point of Passing Away, but Jessaline was just beginning to warm up and be kittenish.

"We shall have Oodles of Fun tomorrow," she said. "First we have a Breakfast at the French Restaurant, then a swell Luncheon at the Club, then a Musicale, then a Dinner at the biggest Hotel on Earth, and then a Show, and then we are all going out Slumming."

"I drop out," said Henry. "One day has put me to the Bad."

"Don't be a Quitter," said Jessaline. "Stick to me and I'll give you the Time of your Life."

Next Day she took him over the Jumps, and he followed with his Tongue hanging out. He did not like to admit that he could not keep up with a 90-pound Canary who was somewhat of an Invalid. But when he sat and watched her eating her fourth Hearty Meal and chatting gayly, he tried to figure out how any one with a Waist Measurement of 11 inches could manage it, but the Problem was too much for him.

The third day of Rest included the usual number of Eats, and wound up with one of those Dancing-Parties that last until the Germans become peevish and refuse to play any more. Henry was off in a Corner eating Soda-Mint Tablets and holding on to a Chair to keep from falling off. Jessaline was right out in the center of the Mix-Up, looking as fresh as a Dollar Bunch of Russian Violets. After every Dance she would tear out and get a few Glasses of Knock-Out Punch and eat a couple of Sandwiches, after which she would be ready to do some more two-stepping. When the Orchestra finally struck and she had to pull out, she found Henry in a Comatose Condition leaning against the Hat-Rack. She aroused him and told him the Glad News that they were to get a very Early Start and go out to a nice Road-House and have something to Eat. Whereupon Henry fell in a Heap and asked to be counted out.

HENRY HOLDING ON.

All the way Home in the Carriage she toasted him and charged him with a lack of Appreciation.

"You act like a Dummy," said the indignant Jessaline. "Why don't you cut in and have a Good Time, the same as I do? I don't want People to think that I married a Rube."

"I can lift 1200 pounds in Harness and I can play 72 Holes of Golf without turning a Hair," said the fallen Giant, "but when it comes to eating little Birds and taking a new kind of Salad every twenty minutes and holding animated Conversation with Perfect Strangers, I am not in your Class. Send for a Trained Nurse. In a Week or so, I shall be able to Travel and get back to Hard Work and rest up. In the mean time, go it alone."

So Jessaline put the Weakling on the Shelf and went out and had a Happy Week.

The Soft Thing, and Some of the Things That Were Done to Him.

[Copyright, 1902, 1903, by Robert Howard Russell.]

THE JOYOUS MITT.

Once upon a time there was a Tapioca.

A Relative had died and left him a large Bale of the Carnegie Library compound. As soon as it was noised around that the Mark was actually carrying around Money in his Clothes, every Short-Card Man in the Business began to break through the Crowd, saying, "I saw him first."

In the Twinkling of an Eye the Legatee was transformed from an ordinary, Hand-me-down Plug to One of our Prominent Citizens.

Many who had been unable to place him while he was feeding at a $4 Oatmeal Resort on a Side Street now dashed madly across the Car-Tracks to give him the Joyous Mitt and ask him to come up to the House some Evening.

And he, like every other Proud Mortal who is being pelted with Bouquets, fancied that his Popularity was based upon his own Sterling Qualities and did not arise from the Fact that he was known up at the Bank.

Those who doctored up the Bricks for him did not take the Trouble to put any Gold-Plating on the Outside. They nailed his Currency and then promised to deliver the Goods by Messenger Boy, so as to save him Trouble.

He learned that a great many Exclusive Organizations wanted to take in a few Members who were Socially Prominent. Every time that he was handed the Social Prominence Gag he fell and signed an Application Blank.

Also he was Pie for the Dignified Gentlemen representing the Eastern Publishing House. Long ago this species of the Hold-Up Man was known as a Book-Agent, but in these latter Days he is a Special Envoy who brings Glad Tidings of Great Joy to the superior Intellectual Classes who are known to be there with the Coin.

Every Hypnotic Salesman who cornered the Mark sang the old Solo about giving Special Terms to a few Book-Lovers in order to derive a certain Prestige from the use of their Names.

Take a Man who never has studied any Volume except the Winter Book and tell him that he is a Bibliophile, and he will swell a few Inches whether he knows the Meaning of the Word or not.

In a short time the Prominent Citizen had a Library that was greatly admired by all who visited his Apartments, and the Books were in first-class Condition. He never took any of them down for fear that he could not put them back in the Right Place.

THE BULLKON PROSPECTUS.

After about 3 Months he became an Art Critic and a sure-enough Connoisseur. He knew it because a great many Dealers took him into the Back Room and told him so.

Then they would throw the Light on a Creation that had been in the Salon, or else tenderly remove the Cotton Batting from a Bronze that could not be broken with a Maul. He would try to convince himself that there was a certain Difference between these Masterpieces and the Junk that he saw in the 99-cent Stores. He had to see a Difference or else he could not have got away with the Connoisseur Bluffs.

So he became a well-known Collector. Many Friends told him he had Exquisite Taste, and he began to believe it himself, so he attended Exhibitions and began to roast the Moderns.

Whereas he had been known in the Old Days as a Parlor Blacksmith, he now discovered that he was a Strong Card at Dinner-Parties, especially if he stood for the Check. He got many a Laugh out of the antique Wheezes that he had cribbed from the Joke Book, and when he arose to spring the prehistoric Toast everybody applauded before he said a Word, because that was the safest time to Applaud.

Among other startling Discoveries made by the Popular Leader of the Smart Set was one concerning his Business Sagacity. He received long, type-written Letters from the Pneumatic Brothers, representing the Smoke Syndicate, offering to let him in on the Ground Floor provided he would rush Check by Return Mail, otherwise it would be Too Late.

It appeared from these Letters that the Syndicate had acquired all the Claims on the East Slope of the Bullkon Range and were within 30 feet of the well-known Mine that was turning out $8000 a Minute. Already three Shafts and the Original Capital had been sunk, and the Ore was found to contain German Silver, Brass, Gold Fillings, Celluloid, Borax, and Pepsin, all in Paying Quantities.

The Exact amount of the Coup

pany had just completed his third Dream, and estimated that the Lodes somewhere in the Vicinity contained $40,000,000 worth of Something, and now it was merely necessary to go ahead and find it. The Stock offered at 8 cents a Share would be advanced to $1.14 on January 1st.

Accompanying the Confidential Letter was a Half-Tone Picture of the Mountain, merely as an Evidence of Good Faith.

EVIDENCE OF GOOD FAITH.

The Mark had read somewhere that any one who comes into Property is not considered a True Sport until he takes a Flyer at the Mining Game.

He bought a few Bundles of Stock, the Par Value of which made Senator Clark, of Montana, look like a Piker, and although his Cautious Friends warned him to hold out his Money and loan it to them, he persisted in his Wild Speculations.

He put in more than $450, and at the end of the Fifth Year received $1.87 in Premiums, and expects to be in the Charley Gates Class if he lives until 1950.

In the mean time he is working at his other Trades of Prominent Clubman, Social Leader, and Art Critic.

FROM 'BUS TO PRAIRIE.

London 'Bus Driver Gets Better Pay in Edmonton.

To sum up, the man without means who would be successful on the prairie must be physically strong and prepared to rough it to an extent unknown to the ordinary workman in England. He should be single, or, at any rate, should not have his wife and family with him. At Edmonton such a man a few weeks out from England, and working on a farm, was enthusiastic on the subject of the change he had made. For fifteen years he had driven a London 'bus for 15 hours a day. "And you can't play bridge on that," he remarked. He arrived in Edmonton with something under ten pounds, and spent most of it on a tent and the few "fixings" with which he started. He was now earning 30 dollars a month with his lodgings and keep, and was looking forward hopefully to take up his quarter section of 160 acres in a year or so. He knew little of farm work, but was willing to learn, turning his hand meantime to anything required of him by his employer. He is the sort of man to get on in Canada, and I believe he will.—London Daily Mail.

Essences Sold to Indians.

A request that additional provincial police be sent into his diocese was recently made by Right Rev. G. Holmes, Bishop of Moosonee. He particularly desired that officers be provided for the more rigid enforcement of the liquor license law and regulations in reference to sanitation.

Bishop Holmes' headquarters are at Chapleau, a divisional point on the Canadian Pacific Railway in the district of Algoma. His diocese extends as far north as the Arctic Circle, and includes Objibway and Cree Indians and Eskimos among its aboriginal inhabitants. The Bishop finds that an increasing quantity of intoxicants is being sold among these people, and would like to see steps taken to prevent this violation of the law. Not only are the Indians supplied with the ordinary liquors, but they are provided with essences of various kinds containing alcohol.

The growth of the town of Chapleau makes it necessary that some attention be paid to the question of sanitation. Otherwise, Bishop Reeve fears an epidemic may follow. The difficulty has arisen simply because the people have not realized the growth of the town and the danger. It is probable that action will be taken in regard to Bishop Holmes' request.

It is a pleasant, safe and effectual medicine for Coughs and Colds, Hoarseness, Sore Throat, Pain in the Chest, Asthma, Bronchitis, Croup, Whooping Cough, Quinsy and all troubles of the Throat and Lungs.

Be sure and do not accept a substitute for Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup. The genuine is put up in a yellow wrapper, three pine trees the trade mark, and the price 25 cents.

Miss C. M. Woodcock, Kinmount, Ont., writes: "For some time I suffered from a lingering cough. I was afraid it would turn to consumption, and, as I had tried many remedies and found no cure I asked my father to get me a bottle of Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup. When I had taken that bottle I was so much better I got three more, and I am now completely cured."

HEATERS!

Right Time to Buy Them and Special Inducement This Week

You may wait for cold weather to buy a heater if you've a mind to, but if you'll be advised by those who have to deal most with the selling of stoves, you will select a heater now and have it put in place and ready before the rush that invariably comes with a cold snap.

There is absolutely nothing gained in waiting—not even a saving in cost, as the prices will certainly be kept at normal when the demand is at its height, and then you'll be expected to take your turn in having it delivered and set up—a delay of two or three days perhaps.

We recommend these stoves with confidence:—

SOME ROYAL LETTERS

QUEEN VICTORIA'S CORRESPONDENCE TELLS STORY OF REIGN.

Most Remarkable Series of State Documents—Her Late Majesty's Home Life—The Crown Hurt Her—Tribute to Wellington—Grief at Death of Prince Consort Pathetically Told.

The letters of Queen Victoria, recently published, are exciting much interest. On June 19, 1837, when Princess Victoria, she wrote to her uncle, informing him of the imminence of the death of William IV. In speaking of her expected accession, she said:

"I look forward to the event, which, it seems, is likely to occur soon, with calmness and quietness. I am not alarmed at it, and yet I do not suppose myself quite equal at all. I trust, however, that with good-will, honesty, and courage I shall not, at all events, fail." This letter concluded with the hope that "the All Powerful Being, who has so long watched over my destinies, will guide and support me in whatever situation and station it may please Him to place me."

The Coronation.

There are some naive remarks in a long description of the coronation, which the Queen wrote in her private journal:

"Millions of my subjects showed good humor and excessive loyalty, and really I cannot say how proud I feel to be Queen of such a nation. . . . When my good Lord Melbourne knelt down and kissed my hand he pressed my hand and I grasped his with my heart. . . . The archbishop had most awkwardly put the ring on the wrong finger, and I had the greatest difficulty to take it off again, which at last I did with great pain. . . . The crown hurt me a good deal."

In a letter to her uncle after her visit to Spithead, the Queen made the following reference to the British navy: "I think it is in these immense wooden walls that our real greatness lies."

Death of Wellington.

And in another to the same correspondent ten years later she thus spoke of the Duke of Wellington:

"I am sure you will mourn with us over the loss we and this whole nation have experienced in the death of the dear and great old Duke of Wellington. He was the pride and the bon genie, as it were, of this country. He was the greatest man this country ever produced, and the most devoted and loyal subject, and the staunchest supporter the crown ever had. He was to us a true, kind friend and a most valuable adviser. To think that all this is gone, that this great and immortal man belongs now to history and no longer to the present, is a truth which we cannot realize."

There are many letters referring to the Crimean war. One speaks of the "dreadful, incalculable consequences of war weighing upon my heart." Another quotes Shakespeare's words, "Beware of entrance to a quarrel; but being in bear't that the opposed may beware of thee," as being deeply engraved on the hearts of all Englishmen.

Her Great Bereavement.

The book ends with the death of the Prince Consort. The Queen pours out her soul to her second father, Leopold I., in her anguish as she has done in her joy:

"Osborne, Dec. 20, 1861.

"My own dearest, kindest father, for as such have I ever loved you. The poor fatherless baby of eight months is now the utterly broken-hearted and crushed widow of forty-two. My life as a happy one is ended. The world is gone for me. If I must live on—and I will do nothing to make me worse than I am—it is henceforth for our poor fatherless children, for my unhappy country which has lost all in losing him, and in only doing what I know and feel he would wish, for he is near me, his spirit will guide and inspire me. But, oh, to be cut off in the prime of life, to see our pure, happy, quiet, domestic life, which enabled me to bear my much-disliked position, cut off at forty-two, when I had hoped with such instinctive certainty that God never would part us and would let us grow old together.

"Although he always talked of the shortness of life, it is too awful, too cruel, and yet it must be for his good his happiness. His purity was too great, his aspiration too high, for this poor, miserable world. His great soul is now only enjoying that for which

"Boy Wanted."

She was a dainty damsel, from the country probably, and was evidently waiting for a tram. She stood close by the window of a chemist's shop at the lower end of Market street, Manchester, England, glancing timidly about her. The attention she attracted was quite flattering. Several youths in particular gazed, at her slily and smiled a knowing smile as they passed on. The young lady accepted this publicity with the utmost demureness and never took the trouble to glance in the window, where, just over her shoulder, appeared a notice—"Boy wanted."

SECRET WRITING.

How Letters May Be Made Safe From Prying Eyes.

Even with the most unromantic of us occasions sometimes arise when we should like to make some memorandum or write some letter which cannot be read except by those we wish to do so. Here is a simple method:

Soak a sheet of note paper in cold water and lay it perfectly flat upon a pane of glass. Place above it another sheet, dry this time, and on the upper sheet write your message with a fairly hard pencil. You now destroy the dry paper and allow all the moisture to evaporate from the wet piece. Don't hold it to the fire, but let it dry naturally. If you then examine it closely you will see not the faintest trace of writing, but if you moisten the paper once more and hold it up to the light you can read quite plainly all you wrote. It will show up like the watermark on a postage stamp. This method, by the way, is sometimes adopted by convicts. They use their gruel cans instead of glass and a sharp piece of wood for a pencil.

Another way is less dirty and even more effective. Lay several sheets of paper on a flat surface and write upon the top one. Then remove the bottom sheet, on which no impression appears. If you hold this in the vapor of iodine, however, the writing will turn brown and be quite legible. The explanation is plain. The note paper contains starch, which on being pressed turns to hydramide, a substance which is acted on by iodine in the manner described.—Answers.

THE PURSER'S JOKE.

Why Religious Services Were Not Held on That Trip.

On most of the big ocean steamers a minister is usually found among the passengers, and invariably he is called upon on Sunday to conduct religious service in the main dining saloon. Occasionally the man of the cloth seeks the purser and asks if he may conduct a service on the Sabbath. A case of this sort happened recently on one of the Red D steamers on the run from New York to La Guayra. A young minister who three days before the steamer sailed had taken orders from a seminary, and a day later a wife asked the purser if he might conduct religious service on the following day, which was Sunday. The purser replied that the dining saloon was at his disposal and that the passengers would be informed. "At what hour shall the service begin?" asked the young minister. The purser rubbed his brow a moment and replied that he could begin at "nine bells." The minister and his bride appeared in the dining saloon at 9 o'clock in the morning and waited four hours for the congregation, which did not come. On the following day he listened again for "nine bells," but heard them not.

She Said the Wrong Thing.

"I shall never forget the breakfast I gave to a pretty girl when I first knew her," the short man began. "It would make your mouth water to hear what it was—grape fruit to begin with, the most delicate of breakfast food with cream, a choice broiled chicken—it was a late breakfast—the finest of fruit, coffee. I can't remember the things I ordered for her at that breakfast, and what do you think she said when she finished? She said: "You needn't have gone to so much trouble. I don't care for anything but a couple of eggs for my breakfast and a piece of toast."

"It was the wrong thing to say, I will admit," sighed his wife. "I was that girl, and I have been living ever since on a couple of eggs for my breakfast and a piece of toast."

HAD SWIM FOR LIBERTY

SHANGHAIED SAILOR'S ADVENTURE IN SOUTH AMERICA.

Drugged and Carried on Board Ship—Kept Prisoner and Made to Work—Escaped at Falmouth—Constructed Raft With Top of Table—Rescued by French Seamen — How Skippers Are Duped.

A splendid and successful swim for liberty has revealed a story of the shanghaiing of sailors, a practice which was once rife in British ports and is now occasionally heard of at foreign ports. A case of several men having been shanghaied in a South American port has had a somewhat remarkable sequel at Falmouth. During the darkness of the night the watch on the French bark Fidart, riding at anchor in Falmouth roadstead, heard a cry of distress, and, looking over the bulwarks, could distinguish a man clinging to a rudely constructed raft. A boatswain's chair was lowered, and the man was rescued. He proved to be a Russian sailor, of handsome features and fine physique.

His name was Andre Gedart, and when he had recovered from his exhaustion he told a strange story. Three months ago he was at a lodging-house at Rosario, South America, awaiting a berth on a ship. One morning he awoke to find himself and a number of other men from the boarding-house on a ship, which was now well out at sea, on a voyage to England. It was evident that he and his companions had been drugged at the lodging-house and carried on board during a state of unconsciousness. They were compelled to work, and after a three months' voyage the vessel called at Falmouth for orders. Gedart demanded his wages, and the captain produced an account showing that he was in debt for his food, as he had not signed on. He had no legal remedy, but he demanded to be put ashore. The captain declined to do this until the voyage had been completed. Gedart resolved to get ashore somehow, and under cover of darkness, he secured the top of a table and three lifebuoys, of which he constructed a raft. To this he tied a few belongings, and, throwing it overboard, he jumped after it. He drifted about in the roadstead for four hours, and finding that the current was carrying him out to sea he got rid of the lifebuoys, and, supporting himself by the table-top, swam towards the light of a bark. Chilled and exhausted though he was, he managed to keep himself afloat until his cries were heard on the French bark. Next morning Gedart was sent ashore in a boat, and when landed had hardly a rag on. His pitiful plight excited the compassion of the sailors' missionary, who secured him a second-hand Norfolk suit and a pair of boots, attired in which he presented quite a distinguished appearance. An effort is being made to induce the Shipwrecked Mariners' Society to take up his case. The other men who had been shanghaied remained on board the vessel, the name of which is in possession of the authorities. The evil practice of "shanghaiing" sailors—that is drugging them in lodging-houses, and taking them on ships while in an unconscious condition—is fairly common in some South American ports. When there is a difficulty in securing a crew the lodging-house keeper is bribed to "shanghai" a number of men, and after being drugged they are carried on board. But the skipper is duped, too, sometimes. Stories are told of dummies being carried on board in the darkness, and in one case a corpse with a pipe stuck in his mouth.

Penny In the Slot Milk.

Penny-in-the-slot machines for the delivery of new milk are to be seen at the Grosvenor Dairy Co.'s shops in London.

From the door of each of these establishments protrude a brass spout and a handle. There is also the customary slot and a notice stating that only pennies can be used. All that purchasers have to do is to put in their pennies, turn the handle, and hold their jugs to receive the half-pint of milk which is thus released from a twenty-quart tank. If they need a pint of milk the performance must be gone through a second time.

GIRLS SOLD BY AUCTION.

Shocking Conduct of British Columbia Indians on the Coast.

The sale of two Indian girls by auction is graphically described in a letter, written by John Ross, a former Peterboro boy, from Port Essington, B. C. He says:

"Two Indian girls, pretty little squaws, not yet fourteen years old, were sold to the highest bidders in the open market at Alert Bay, in the cool grey dawn of a recent Thursday morning. For dramatic ferocity and cold greed, this beastly tragedy of slavery and lust has probably not been equalled for the last twenty years in any one of the dozens of native villages which line the coast.

"Two weeks ago the tribesmen from twelve villages, as far north as Rivers Inlet, arrived at Alert Bay. They brought pockets bulging with money. The fishing season had been fairly good, and the price of ten cents for each sockeye was a record, and the Indians all had money. They were in fine fettle for the celebration.

"One thousand dollars cash was paid for the girl who was first sold. Greedy and suspicious, the Indian vendor caried his armful of greenbacks to the home of a white trader, that the money might be counted to see that no cheat was practiced.

"Rosa, a dark-eyed and slight girl from Rivers Inlet, was the second put up to barter. For her there was given seven hundred blankets, approximately worth $700. Rosa heard the clatter of the dilapidated drum which brought the Indians to the slave market at dawn, but it never entered her unsuspecting head that she was the victim. The story is told with the exactness of fearful truth. The little girl left her tent with other young women and wandered soon to the group where the auction was taking place.

"Idly and wonderingly she actually looked on and listened to the cold-hearted tribesmen with the practiced sagacity of trained cattle buyers advancing the price of herself, body and soul, from $500 to nearly half as much again, payable in dirty blankets. When the bidding was ended the girl was carried—surprised and heartbroken—to the tent of the man who now owned her.

"The picture of this deal in humanity is not overdrawn, and is not particularly unique in the history of the coast. A girl named Rebecca, now at Alert Bay, has been sold for a wife on three different occasions. She is not yet 20 years old. She has been the mother of five children, all of whom died in early infancy. These girls are not consulted in any way before they are sold. They have absolutely no choice in the matter. Their fathers or their nearest relatives sell them to the men who pay the most for them. Then the vendor in turn is rich, and at a potlach may be counted a big man."

Shaved Back the Tide.

"Bletherin Bobbie, a Dumfarlin' cairter," went down to Charlestown one day for a load of sand, but to his dismay found it was high water and none could be got. After pouring out the vials of his wrath on the harbor master for allowing the tide to rise he went home with his empty cart. Coming back next day when it happened to be low water, he exclaimed: "Aye, this is something like the thing. The best o' folks nane the waur o' bein' spoken to."

Fortunate.

"I thought," said the author as he took back the manuscript, "that the story would just about do for you."

"Yes," rejoined the editor, "that's just about what it would do if we printed it, but fortunately I happened to read it myself, so I am returning it to you for fear of accidents. People are so careless."

Starting Him in Business.

Bride's Father (to his prospective son-in-law, a young lawyer)—I am not going to give my daughter a cash dowry, but I have some doubtful claims for $10,000 that I will make over to you, and you can sue on them.

Suffered From Heart and Nerve Troubles FOR THE Last Ten Years.

The heart has supplied to it two sets of nerves, one set which quickens, the other which slows its action. The proper action of these nerves, so important to the well-being of the heart, depends upon the general condition of the nervous system. If there be nerve derangement of any kind it is bound to produce all the various phenomena of heart derangement.

Knowing the intricate structure of the heart, and being aware how diseases of the nerves affect the heart, we have combined in Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills a treatment that will cure all forms of nervous disorders as well as act on the heart itself, and in this is the secret of their success in curing so many cases of heart trouble which have defied all other treatment.

Mrs. John Riley, Deare, Ont., writes: "I have been a great sufferer from heart and nerve troubles for the last ten years. After trying many remedies and doctoring for two years, without the least benefit, I decided to give Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills a trial. I am thankful to say that, after using nine boxes, I am entirely cured, and would recommend them to all sufferers."

Price 50c. per box or three for $1.25, at all dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

SOME ROYAL LETTERS

QUEEN VICTORIA'S CORRESPONDENCE TELLS STORY OF REIGN.

Most Remarkable Series of State Documents—Her Late Majesty's Home Life—The Crown Hurt Her—Tribute to Wellington—Grief at Death of Prince Consort Pathetically Told.

The letters of Queen Victoria, recently published, are exciting much interest. On June 19, 1837, when Princess Victoria, she wrote to her uncle, informing him of the imminence of the death of William IV. In speaking of her expected accession, she said:

"I look forward to the event, which, it seems, is likely to occur soon, with calmness and quietness. I am not alarmed at it, and yet I do not suppose myself quite equal at all. I trust, however, that with good-will, honesty, and courage I shall not, at all events, fail." This letter concluded with the hope that "the All Powerful Being, who has so long watched over my destinies, will guide and support me in whatever situation and station it may please Him to place me."

The Coronation.

There are some naive remarks in a long description of the coronation, which the Queen wrote in her private journal:

"Millions of my subjects showed good humor and excessive loyalty, and really I cannot say how proud I feel to be Queen of such a nation. . . . When my good Lord Melbourne knelt down and kissed my hand he pressed my hand and I grasped his with my heart. . . . The archbishop had most awkwardly put the ring on the wrong finger, and I had the greatest difficulty to take it off again, which at last I did with great pain. . . . The crown hurt me a good deal."

In a letter to her uncle after her visit to Spithead, the Queen made the following reference to the British navy: "I think it is in these immense wooden walls that our real greatness lies."

Death of Wellington.

And in another to the same correspondent ten years later she thus spoke of the Duke of Wellington:

"I am sure you will mourn with us over the loss we and this whole nation have experienced in the death of the dear and great old Duke of Wellington. He was the pride and the bon genie, as it were, of this country. He was the greatest man this country ever produced, and the most devoted and loyal subject, and the staunchest supporter the crown ever had. He was to us a true, kind friend and a most valuable adviser. To think that all this is gone, that this great and immortal man belongs now to history and no longer to the present, is a truth which we cannot realize."

There are many letters referring to the Crimean war. One speaks of the "dreadful, incalculable consequences of war weighing upon my heart." Another quotes Shakespeare's words, "Beware of entrance to a quarrel; but being in bear't that the opposed may beware of thee," as being deeply engraved on the hearts of all Englishmen.

Her Great Bereavement.

The book ends with the death of the Prince Consort. The Queen pours out her soul to her second father, Leopold I., in her anguish as she has done in her joy:

"Osborne, Dec. 20, 1861.

"My own dearest, kindest father, for as such have I ever loved you. The poor fatherless baby of eight months is now the utterly broken-hearted and crushed widow of forty-two. My life as a happy one is ended. The world is gone for me. If I must live on—and I will do nothing to make me worse than I am—it is henceforth for our poor fatherless children, for my unhappy country which has lost all in losing him, and in only doing what I know and feel he would wish, for he is near me, his spirit will guide and inspire me. But, oh, to be cut off in the prime of life, to see our pure, happy, quiet, domestic life, which enabled me to bear my much-disliked position, cut off at forty-two, when I had hoped with such instinctive certainty that God never would part us and would let us grow old together.

"Although he always talked of the shortness of life, it is too awful, too cruel, and yet it must be for his good his happiness. His purity was too great, his aspiration too high, for this poor, miserable world. His great soul is now only enjoying that for which it was worthy, and I will not envy him, only pray that mine may be perfected by it, and fit to be with him eternally, for which blessed moment I earnestly long."

"Boy Wanted."

She was a dainty damsel, from the country probably, and was evidently waiting for a tram. She stood close by the window of a chemist's shop at the lower end of Market street, Manchester, England, glancing timidly about her. The attention she attracted was quite flattering. Several youths in particular gazed at her slily and smiled a knowing smile as they passed on. The young lady accepted this publicity with the utmost demureness and never took the trouble to glance in the window, where, just over her shoulder, appeared a notice—"Boy wanted."

SECRET WRITING.

How Letters May Be Made Safe From Prying Eyes.

Even with the most unromantic of us occasions sometimes arise when we should like to make some memorandum or write some letter which cannot be read except by those we wish to do so. Here is a simple method:

Soak a sheet of note paper in cold water and lay it perfectly flat upon a pane of glass. Place above it another sheet, dry this time, and on the upper sheet write your message with a fairly hard pencil. You now destroy the dry paper and allow all the moisture to evaporate from the wet piece. Don't hold it to the fire, but let it dry naturally. If you then examine it closely you will see not the faintest trace of writing, but if you moisten the paper once more and hold it up to the light you can read quite plainly all you wrote. It will show up like the watermark on a postage stamp. This method, by the way, is sometimes adopted by convicts. They use their gruel cans instead of glass and a sharp piece of wood for a pencil.

Another way is less dirty and even more effective. Lay several sheets of paper on a flat surface and write upon the top one. Then remove the bottom sheet, on which no impression appears. If you hold this in the vapor of iodine, however, the writing will turn brown and be quite legible. The explanation is plain. The note paper contains starch, which on being pressed turns to hydramide, a substance which is acted on by iodine in the manner described.—Answers.

THE PURSER'S JOKE.

Why Religious Services Were Not Held on That Trip.

On most of the big ocean steamers a minister is usually found among the passengers, and invariably he is called upon on Sunday to conduct religious service in the main dining saloon. Occasionally the man of the cloth seeks the purser and asks if he may conduct a service on the Sabbath. A case of this sort happened recently on one of the Red D steamers on the run from New York to La Guayra. A young minister who three days before the steamer sailed had taken orders from a seminary, and a day later a wife asked the purser if he might conduct religious service on the following day, which was Sunday. The purser replied that the dining saloon was at his disposal and that the passengers would be informed. "At what hour shall the service begin?" asked the young minister. The purser rubbed his brow a moment and replied that he could begin at "nine bells." The minister and his bride appeared in the dining saloon at 9 o'clock in the morning and waited four hours for the congregation, which did not come. On the following day he listened again for "nine bells," but heard them not.

She Said the Wrong Thing.

"I shall never forget the breakfast I gave to a pretty girl when I first knew her," the short man began. "It would make your mouth water to hear what it was—grape fruit to begin with, the most delicate of breakfast food with cream, a choice broiled chicken—it was a late breakfast—the finest of fruit, coffee. I can't remember the things I ordered for her at that breakfast, and what do you think she said when she finished? She said: 'You needn't have gone to so much trouble. I don't care for anything but a couple of eggs for my breakfast and a piece of toast.'"

"It was the wrong thing to say, I will admit," sighed his wife. "I was that girl, and I have been living ever since on a couple of eggs for my breakfast and a piece of toast."

HAD SWIM FOR LIBERTY

SHANGHAIED SAILOR'S ADVENTURE IN SOUTH AMERICA.

Drugged and Carried on Board Ship—Kept Prisoner and Made to Work—Escaped at Falmouth—Constructed Raft With Top of Table—Rescued by French Seamen — How Skippers Are Duped.

A splendid and successful swim for liberty has revealed a story of the shanghaiing of sailors, a practice which was once rife in British ports and is now occasionally heard of at foreign ports. A case of several men having been shanghaied in a South American port has had a somewhat remarkable sequel at Falmouth. During the darkness of the night the watch on the French bark Fidart, riding at anchor in Falmouth roadstead, heard a cry of distress, and, looking over the bulwarks, could distinguish a man clinging to a rudely constructed raft. A boatswain's chair was lowered, and the man was rescued. He proved to be a Russian sailor, of handsome features and fine physique.

His name was Andre Gedart, and when he had recovered from his exhaustion he told a strange story. Three months ago he was at a lodging-house at Rosario, South America, awaiting a berth on a ship. One morning he awoke to find himself and a number of other men from the boarding-house on a ship, which was now well out at sea, on a voyage to England. It was evident that he and his companions had been drugged at the lodging-house and carried on board during a state of unconsciousness. They were compelled to work, and after a three months' voyage the vessel called at Falmouth for orders. Gedart demanded his wages, and the captain produced an account showing that he was in debt for his food, as he had not signed on. He had no legal remedy, but he demanded to be put ashore. The captain declined to do this until the voyage had been completed. Gedart resolved to get ashore somehow, and under cover of darkness, he secured the top of a table and three lifebuoys, of which he constructed a raft. To this he tied a few belongings, and, throwing it overboard, he jumped after it. He drifted about in the roadstead for four hours, and finding that the current was carrying him out to sea he got rid of the lifebuoys, and, supporting himself by the table-top, swam towards the light of a bark. Chilled and exhausted though he was, he managed to keep himself afloat until his cries were heard on the French bark. Next morning Gedart was sent ashore in a boat, and when landed had hardly a rag on. His pitiful plight excited the compassion of the sailors' missionary, who secured him a second-hand Norfolk suit and a pair of boots, attired in which he presented quite a distinguished appearance. An effort is being made to induce the Shipwrecked Mariners' Society to take up his case. The other men who had been shanghaied remained on board the vessel, the name of which is in possession of the authorities. The evil practice of "shanghaiing" sailors—that is drugging them in lodging-houses, and taking them on ships while in an unconscious condition—is fairly common in some South American ports. When there is a difficulty in securing a crew the lodging-house keeper is bribed to "shanghai" a number of men, and after being drugged they are carried on board. But the skipper is duped, too, sometimes. Stories are told of dummies being carried on board in the darkness, and in one case a corpse with a pipe stuck in his mouth.

Penny In the Slot Milk.

Penny-in-the-slot machines for the delivery of new milk are to be seen at the Grosvenor Dairy Co.'s shops in London.

From the door of each of these establishments protrude a brass spout and a handle. There is also the customary slot and a notice stating that only pennies can be used. All that purchasers have to do is to put in their pennies, turn the handle, and hold their jugs to receive the half-pint of milk which is thus released from a twenty-quart tank. If they need a pint of milk the performance must be gone through a second time.

GIRLS SOLD BY AUCTION.

Shocking Conduct of British Columbia Indians on the Coast.

The sale of two Indian girls by auction is graphically described in a letter, written by John Ross, a former Peterboro boy, from Port Essington, B. C. He says:

"Two Indian girls, pretty little squaws, not yet fourteen years old, were sold to the highest bidders in the open market at Alert Bay, in the cool grey dawn of a recent Thursday morning. For dramatic ferocity and cold greed, this beastly tragedy of slavery and lust has probably not been equalled for the last twenty years in any one of the dozens of native villages which line the coast.

"Two masks on the tribesmen [illegible] twelve villages, as far north as Rivers Inlet, arrived at Alert Bay. They brought pockets bulging with money. The fishing season had been fairly good, and the price of ten cents for each sockeye was a record, and the Indians all had money. They were in fine fettle for the celebration.

"One thousand dollars cash was paid for the girl who was first sold. Greedy and suspicious, the Indian vendor carried his armful of greenbacks to the home of a white trader, that the money might be counted to see that no cheat was practiced.

"Rosa, a dark-eyed and slight girl from Rivers Inlet, was the second put up to barter. For her there was given seven hundred blankets, approximately worth $700. Rosa heard the clatter of the dilapidated drum which brought the Indians to the slave market at dawn, but it never entered her unsuspecting head that she was the victim. The story is told with the exactness of fearful truth. The little girl left her tent with other young women and wandered soon to the group where the auction was taking place.

"Idly and wonderingly she actually looked on and listened to the cold-hearted tribesmen with the practiced sagacity of trained cattle buyers advancing the price of herself, body and soul, from $500 to nearly half as much again, payable in dirty blankets. When the bidding was ended the girl was carried—surprised and heartbroken—to the tent of the man who now owned her.

"The picture of this deal in humanity is not overdrawn, and is not particularly unique in the history of the coast. A girl named Rebecca, now at Alert Bay, has been sold for a wife on three different occasions. She is not yet 20 years old. She has been the mother of five children, all of whom died in early infancy. These girls are not consulted in any way before they are sold. They have absolutely no choice in the matter. Their fathers or their nearest relatives sell them to the men who pay the most for them. Then the vendor in turn is rich, and at a potlach may be counted a big man."

Shoved Back the Tide.

"Bletherin Bobbie, a Dumfarlin carter," went down to Charlestown one day for a load of sand, but to his dismay found it was high water and none could be got. After pouring out the vials of his wrath on the harbor master for allowing the tide to rise he went home with his empty cart. Coming back next day when it happened to be low water, he exclaimed: "Aye, this is something like the thing. The best o' folks hane the wuur o' bein' spoken to."

Fortunate.

"I thought," said the author as he took back the manuscript, "that the story would just about do for you."

"Yes," rejoined the editor, "that's just about what it would do if we printed it, but fortunately I happened to read it myself, so I am returning it to you for fear of accidents. People are so careless."

Starting Him in Business.

Suffered From Heart and Nerve Troubles
FOR THE Last Ten Years.

The heart has supplied to it two sets of nerves, one set which quickens, the other which slows it's action. The proper action of these nerves, so important to the well-being of the heart, depends upon the general condition of the nervous system. If there be nerve derangement of any kind it is bound to produce all the various phenomena of heart derangement.

Knowing the intricate structure of the heart, and being aware how diseases of the nerves affect the heart, we have combined in Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills a treatment that will cure all forms of nervous disorders as well as act on the heart itself, and in this is the secret of their success in curing so many cases of heart trouble which have defied all other treatment.

Mrs. John Riley, Deaux, Ont., writes: "I have been a great sufferer from heart and nerve troubles for the last ten years. After trying many remedies and doctoring for two years, without the least benefit, I decided to give Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills a trial. I am thankful to say that, after using nine boxes, I am entirely cured, and would recommend them to all sufferers."

Price 50c. per box or three for $1.25, at all dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

One ounce Fluid Extract Dandelion;
One ounce Compound Salatone;
Four ounces Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla;

Mixed and taken in teaspoonful doses after each meal and at bedtime, is pronounced by a prominent physician to be the best mixture for the cure of the kidney, bladder, and all urinary troubles.

This says the doctor, is the most simple though remarkable prescription ever written to cleanse the system of impurities and waste matter. It acts as a powerful tonic to the kidneys, forcing them to filter out the acids and poisons, overcoming rheumatism, lame back, sciatica and other afflictions arising from sour, impure blood.

The ingredients can be procured at any good drug store, and being purely vegetable and entirely harmless, can easily be mixed at home.

If you have a suffering friend show this to him, as he will undoubtedly be pleased to learn of so simple and highly recommended a remedy.

WHERE THE CURFEW RINGS.

Beautiful Old Abbey of Croyland Which Dates From 1247.

Not content with what he has done in the way of structural restoration for the beautiful old abbey of Croyland, in Lincolnshire, England, Rev. A. H. Morris, the rector, has now arranged for the ringing of Curfew each evening. So at 8 o'clock the sound of the bell travels pleasantly across the Wash and the wide Fens, a musical reminder of brave old days and present-day faith in them.

Recent rectors have done much for the wondrous old pile. The north wall and the chancel have been rebuilt and the tower satisfactorily underpinned to save it from falling.

OLD ABBEY OF CROYLAND.

All that is left of the great nave is the magnificent west front, and much care and watchfulness has been required to keep this standing. The north aisle, which dates from 1247, is used as the parish church.

It was under the high altar that Hereward, the last of the English, was buried. Charles Kingsley, like a true native, always loved the Fens, and made a grand historical romance of this same Hereward.

Nowadays the Fens are covered with rich cornfields and smiling pastures, but the same enthusiasm for the Fens prevails with the dwellers there today. Nowhere in Europe are there finer churches. The beautiful and majestic fanes of Lincoln, Ely, and Peterborough cannot be equalled anywhere, while dotted along the flat country are scores of village churches which are poems in stones.

NOTED BANDIT CAPTURED.

A romantic story of how a notorious dacoit, who had been terrorizing the villagers of Purneah for many years, was at last brought to bay, has been told in the Calcutta High Court. The hero, one Dodla Dosad, had long baffled the police. His abode was in the jungles on the Nepaul frontier, every nook and corner of which was known to him, and he periodically invaded British territory, returning to his dominions a richer man than when he emerged, and leaving behind him a trail of pillage and murder. He had not always got off scot free, for the authorities had captured him several times, and he had escaped from prison on more than one occasion. At one stage in his career he appeared as an approver in several dacoity cases, and after he had given evidence in one of these counsel remarked that he had merited hanging a couple of dozen times on his own confession. On one occasion, after he had paid the penalty for a dacoity, the police adopted the principle of "Set a thief to catch a thief," and appointed him a constable in the force. In November last he was dismissed from his post on suspicion of complicity in a murder, and he once more returned to his solitary habitation, and continued his depredation in the villages of Purneah. The police could do nothing; but a constabe was deputed to the nearest village to put the inhabitants through a course of archery. When they were sufficiently skilled in this ancient art they set out to hunt their foe. After an exhaustive search they came across the bandit in the dry bed of a river, and a fierce fight ensued. The constable who had acted as archery instructor was shot through the thigh, and another man was badly wounded, but eventually Dodla Dosad was overpowered and captured. He was taken, bound hand and foot, to Forbesgunge and placed on trial before the Sessions Judge of Purneah, who sentenced him to death. The condemned bandit appealed to the High Court, but the judges there confirmed the sentence and brought his career to a close.

Wild Irishman's Story.

A strange story comes from Queen's County, Ireland. Recently Michael Murphy, a blacksmith, went to dig potatoes at Oakvale, accompanied by his nephew. After working a short time the man complained of a pain, and sent the boy to Stradbally to fetch his wife, who was to bring him some holy water. When the wife arrived, with a neighbor, her husband had disappeared. He was not again seen until seven days later, when he entered a house about a mile from the place where he disappeared. He was exhausted, and totally unable to speak, his appearance being unkempt and wild. His recovery is doubtful. He is believed to have been concealed during the week in the dense shrub which covers the high hills near Stradbally, and to have subsisted on nuts and berries.

TENANTS MUST MARRY.

No Small Holdings For Bachelors at Moulton.

A remarkable feature in connection with the extension of the small holdings movement in Lincolnshire is an agreement adopted at Moulton, near Spalding, where the tenants on taking up land have to bind themselves to marriage within "a reasonable time."

The clerk of Moulton Parish Council stated recently that the project is one associated with the name of Earl Carrington, and that a corn farm of 750 acres is to be cut up into small holdings. Thirteen houses will be provided, and it is these that the Parish Council require shall be occupied either by married couples or by tenants who intend to marry.

There has been a large number of applications for the holdings, and although possession has not yet been given, the tenants have been chosen. Six of them are eligible bachelors, who under the arrangement come to will have to provide themselves with wives shortly.

Of the six selected bachelor tenants some are already engaged to be married, but special interest is being taken with regard to two of those still free. They are currently reported to be searching diligently for suitable partners.

At London Zoo.

The London Zoo is at present rejoicing in the possession of three vastly entertaining young reptiles. They are interesting from many points of view. One is that they are the lineal descendants of the horrific national dragon of China. As a matter of zoological fact, they are a kind of Chinese alligator, which, again, is strange in itself, because up to as recently as 1871 no alligators were supposed to come out of China. The Zoological officials think that the most interesting thing about the new arrivals is that they now prove to sightseers that alligators do come out of China. It was in 1870 that Swinhoe first established the existence of a saurian in the Yang-tsze-kiang; but it was not until eight years later that M. Fauvel, a French official of the Chinese customs, published an account of the alligator closely allied to the Mississippi alligator, although much smaller in size. The alligators at the Zoo are barely two feet in length, but they make up for this by the dimensions of their amiable smile. Other interesting "latest arrivals" are two rare specimens of the monkey tribe. One is the red-faced Ouakari, an entirely arboreal monkey, which hails from the region of the Amazon; and the other is a red-eared Guenon, whose particular beauty lies in the fact that it has a red spot on the tip of its nose.

A Curious Coincidence.

Perhaps one of the most curious coincidences in connection with the running down of a lightship happened a few years ago. A lightship was towed down to a far distant part of the English coast in order to replace one that was to be brought into dock for its periodical overhaul. On the tug arriving with the new lightship at the spot where the old one should have been every one was astonished to find no lightship there at all. Curiously enough, after having been several years upon the spot the vessel had actually been run down and sunk on the very night previous to the day upon which the new lightship arrived to take her place.

Sprung From the Soil.

The man's shirt front was far from spotless, and his waistcoat and coat were covered with grime and grease, but a large buttonhole bouquet was placed on the lapel of his coat.

"What do you think of this?" he said to a casual acquaintance, pointing to the bouquet. "Where do you think I got it?"

"Don't know," admitted the other. "Perhaps it grew there."

Evolution.

The idea of evolution—that is to say, of the origin of existing species from pre-existing ones as against the doctrine of the special creation of each species—is as old as the fourth century B. C., when it was advanced by the Greeks.

Greek Peasant Babies.

The baby welcomed to the heart of a Greek peasant home is washed in lukewarm wine and myrtle leaves, then its cunning little body carefully covered with a layer of salt.

Legal Right to Pick Cigar.

According to Connecticut law, when you go into a cigar store and ask for a cigar the dealer must place a number of the cigars of the kind you want on the counter to enable you to select the particular one you wish to buy.

Energy.

Aubrey de Vere, an Irish poet and gentleman, mentions in his "Recollections" that when ten years old he had a tutor who constantly inculcated in him rectitude, purpose and energy.

The tutor's praise of energy was expressed by the saying:

"There are three letters of more value than all the rest in the alphabet—namely, N R G."

LONDON'S NEW LORD MAYOR.

Sir John Bell Elected With Quaint Old Ceremonial.

With quaint old ceremonial redolent of the centuries, the election of Sir John Bell as Lord Mayor of London took place at the Guildhall. At the close of the usual service at the church of St. Lawrence Jewry—which lord mayors-elect have attended on this occasion for 500 years past—Sir John submitted himself to the ordeal of election at the hustings. It is not so great an ordeal now, perhaps, as it was in the "good old days," but the liverymen of the city still insist upon their right to nominate the new lord mayor in this traditional fashion. Sir John Bell, on his return to the Guildhall after the service, took his place upon the hustings strewn with sweet herbs—a precaution adopted of old for the preservation of the health of the civic dignitaries—in the presence of the common people. The liverymen of the city companies assembled in proper order outside the Guildhall, and followed the mayoral procession into the building, there to make their choice of a chief magistrate. After the Common Crier had demanded "Silence" and the removal of all headgear, he uttered the solemn warning: "All ye that are not liverymen depart this hall on pain of imprisonment." Thereupon the lord mayor and aldermen who had passed the chair retired so that the liverymen might perform their duty without restraint. When the name of Sir John Charles Bell, alderman and haberdasher, was put to the assembly, a host of hands were raised, accompanied by cries of "All! All!" Various questions were put by a Mr. Newby, which created much laughter. The name of Alderman Truscott was selected as the second to be voted upon, and, votes being taken, Alderman Bell was declared duly elected for the ensuing year. Returning thanks for his election, Sir John Bell said he had been 25 years a member of the Common Council and 13 years an alderman, and he promised to justify his election by upholding the dignity of the office and the prestige of the city. On the motion of Sir Edward Clark, K. C., a vote of thanks was accorded to Sir William Treloar for his services during the year, and Sir William briefly replied. Prior to this ceremony Mr. Alderman Burnett and Mr. C. C. Wakefield were admitted to the office of sheriffs of the City of London for the ensuing year, and invested with the insignia of the office.

SIR JOHN BELL.

Sir John's Career.

The new lord mayor was knighted in Coronation year, during his term as sheriff. His civic career opened in 1882, when he was elected a member of the Common Council, and he became an alderman of the Coleman street ward in 1894. Sir John, who was born 63 years ago, was educated at Brompton Grammar School. He was articled to an accountant, but afterwards became connected with the Wenlock Brewery, of which he is now chairman and joint managing director. He holds high Masonic rank, and is on the Court of Haberdashers', Fanmakers', and Glovers' companies, besides being a member of the Innholders', Loriners' and the Spectacle Makers' companies. His town address is in Portland place and country seat at Stoke Poges.

Got Swell Tip.

As a rule, stewards and stewardesses on board ocean liners make a handsome sum out of tips received from first-class passengers. Millionaires, titled folk, and other "likely ones" are carefully noted and diligently cared for. Occasionally there are disappointments. A fashionable dame and her two daughters furnished one recently on board a well-known liner. The dame gave the stewardess a broad hint that great would be the reward of attention commensurate with her importance. The stewardess rose to the occasion so enthusiastically as to excite the envy of other passengers. At last came the critical day when money has to talk. The lady, before leaving her cabin, expressed to the stewardess her high appreciation of her efforts to please. The daughters, too, were delighted with her service, and then, as "mamma" turned to the gangway, there was slipped into the stewardess's palm a shilling—threepenny piece!

Queen Victoria's Marked Poem.

Here is a funny story told of a happening at the English court during the reign of Queen Victoria. Sir Theodore Martin had been requested by Victoria to read aloud from "The Ring and the Book." Sir Theodore was courtier enough to make a cautious study beforehand of the poem, and he placed marginal notes as danger signals against passages of doubtful propriety.

The marked copy chanced to come into the hands of a rather thoughtless court lady. "I have so enjoyed this wonderful work," she said to a friend, "and it has been such an advantage to read it after the Queen, for she has placed marks against the most beautiful parts, and, oh, what exquisite taste the dear Queen has!" she added, pointing to the danger signals of Sir Theodore Martin

ENGLISH VILLAGE LIFE.

Archbishop Draws Depressing Picture of Rural Morals.

The Archbishop of Canterbury at his primary visitation in Ashford Parish Church recently, said few things had struck him more in reading the returns of the clergy than the melancholy account which, from some of the smaller parishes especially, had been frankly and honestly given of the condition of morality in some of their homes. It would be hard, indeed, to lay the responsibility for evils, which, as some had pointed out, clearly and markedly existed generations back—to throw responsibility for these things upon the men of to-day, as though they were neglectful in a sense that had brought about harm. But, on the other hand, no one could look without dismay upon accounts such as were given from some of the most rural parishes, especially as to the pre-nuptial wrongdoing, and as to the popular opinion which found expression or did not find expression thereupon.

Speaking of the monopoly of the parish priest's position, the Primate remarked: I have found men on the other side of the Atlantic at first simply incredulous when I told them that by the law of the land every man holding the position of a parish priest has a monopoly to the extent that no other man in holy orders can officiate in his church without his consent. A man to whom I spoke said, in words that seemed to me significant, "Well, that must prod the sluggard pretty smartly" in the sense that it must keep others out of his church and lay a responsibility upon the parish priest of a tremendous kind for the adequate discharge of functions that ought to be performed. That depressing picture on which I have just touched of the moral condition of many of our parishes does present a mighty difficulty which has got to be faced. A great stone has to be rolled away if we are to discharge aright the tasks which are laid upon us.

King Honors Diplomat.

The King has conferred the Grand Cross of the Order of the Bath upon Sir Arthur Nicolson, British ambassador at St. Petersburg, in recognition of his services in connection with the negotiations for the Anglo-Russian convention. Sir Arthur entered the Foreign Office service 37 years ago. In 1884 and 1885 he was Charge d'Affaires at Athens, and on becoming a Secretary of Legation in the latter year was transferred to Teheran. Afterwards he was sent as consul-general to Hungary, and in 1893 became secretary of embassy, and was sent to Constantinople. In 1901 he was raised to the rank of ambassador, and went to Madrid, and in 1906 he succeeded Sir Charles Hardinge as ambassador at St. Petersburg, and still retains that post.

HAD LONG CHASE.

Faithless Wife Captured After Pursuit of Fifteen Hundred Miles.

Ann Harbor, Mich., Nov. 7.—Chas. Wixman Hermit, a justice of the peace from Raymond, Alberta, chased his faithless wife and her paramour fifteen hundred miles across country, and arrested them here yesterday. The man in the case is John Cooper, a land agent. Although Hermit arrived here several hours behind the couple, he was enabled to make the capture because his wife tarried too long over a visit to relatives in Ferrisburg.

Hermit claims that while he was in Oregon on a business trip Cooper became infatuated with Mrs. Hermit and enticed her to elope with him. Hermit, notified by his friends of her desertion, started out on the trail of the pair. He followed them through a score of cities in the middle west, but Cooper and his companion always managed to keep a few miles ahead.

The couple were arraigned in the police court, and both gave bail for their appearance in court next week.

ABBE SCORES JUDGE.

And Is Ordered Out of Court Room at Montreal.

Montreal, Nov. 7.—"Leave the court room." This order was given by Justice St. Pierre to a priest named Abbe Luche, who persisted in interrupting the judge while he was charging the jury in the Supreme Court yesterday. The incident occurred in the libel suit which ex-Ald St. Denis instituted against the Citizens' League. Abbe Luche interrupted several times, and was ordered by the court crier to be quiet, but paid no attention. When he said Judge St. Pierre was not telling the truth his lordship ordered the priest to leave the room, which the priest did.

Ald. St. Denis sued the league for $10,000 damages, and Abbe Luche became connected with the case through an open letter he had written to the league, saying Ald St. Denis was a man devoid of principle. The jury awarded Ald. St. Denis $100 damages.

BIG FUTURE FOR CANADA.

Lord Strathcona Says Dominion Will Always Be Loyal.

London, Nov. 7.—Lord Strathcona, interviewed by The Tribune, reiterates his prophecy that before the end of the century Canada will be the dominant state and the food market of the Empire. He thinks there is not the remotest chance of the Dominion ever becoming a republic. There is no visible reason why in the future the vast population should not remain loyal to the crown.

Married on Deathbed.

Marshall, Mich., Nov. 7.—One week ago William Anderson, 27 years old, one of the most popular in the young set of Marshall's social and business life, was banquetted and toasted in honor of his approaching marriage. The banquet was on the eve of his departure to Northeast, Pa., to marry Miss Esther Schooler. Now Anderson is dead.

A few days before leaving for the home of his fiance Anderson suffered a slight attack of erysipelas. The day he arrived there he was taken seriously ill and a physician was called from Buffalo. When the hour set for the marriage ceremony approached the dying young man and the weeping girl wished that the words be spoken that would make them man and wife. They propped Anderson up in bed and the knot was tied. The news of his death is a shock to the town.

Walked Into the River.

Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., Nov. 7—Tuesday night an unknown Frenchman, name not obtainable, walked into the tail race, near the ship canal, and was drowned. He had just arrived on the Algoma Central train from a lumber camp up the line, and, stepping off the train on the wrong side, walked into the water. The current was rather strong, and although an effort has been made to recover the body, it has not yet been successful. It is claimed that the victim was demented, and may have walked into the water intentionally.

Japanese From Honolulu.

Ottawa, Nov. 7.—The Federal Government has received no advice as yet confirming the press despatches from Honolulu, stating that United States Senator Chillingworth and others are arranging to send to British Columbia in the near future several shiploads of Japanese, aggregating three or four thousand. If the despatches are correct, and an attempt is made to land these Japanese at Vancouver, it is not improbable that they will be turned back, in view of the fact that they will not have passports from the Japanese Government. The emigration law of Japan provides that passports obtained under false pretences as to destination are illegal, and if, as is suspected, the Japanese coming to Canada from Honolulu are brought there first with the intention of sending them thence to Canada, the Japanese consul will be asked to so inform the Mikado's Government and co-operate with the Canadian Government in putting a stop to this method of circumventing Japan's understanding with this country relative to the restriction of immigration to the Dominion.

Opening of British Parliament.

London, Nov. 7.—Although a royal proclamation is made, announcing that Parliament is further prorogued from Nov. 16 to Dec. 26, there will be another proclamation issued before the latter date.

Parliament is not expected to reassemble until Jan. 28.

Barge Onondaga Foundered.

Kingston, Nov. 7.—The barge Onondaga, with coal from Sodus, in tow of the steamer Glengarry, foundered in Lake Ontario during the gale of Monday night. The crew were saved. The barge was an old one.

DR. CHASE'S OINTMENT.

THE BEST OF PROOF

That Hyomei Will Cure All Forms Of Catarrhal Diseases

Testimonials could be printed by thethousands, many of them from Peterborough and nearby towns, that Hyomei is an absolute cure for al catarrhal troubles, but the best proof of its unusual curative powers is the guarantee that Wm. Madill gives with every outfit that he sells, "Money back if Hyomei does not do all that is claimed for it."

Hyomei is not a secret remedy. Its formula is given freely to physicians who want to know what they use when the prescribe Hyomei. It is guaranteed under the Pure Food and Drug Law, by serial No. 1418.

By breathing Hyomei, the healing medication goes directly to every nook and corner of the air passages where the catarrhal germs may lurk, and disinfects and heals. To be convinced of this you have only to give it a trial, remembering that if it does not cure, Wm. Madill will refund your money.

The complete Hyomei outfit costs but $1.00, and in most cases is sufficient to cure the disease, making it not only a scientific treatment, but one that is highly economical. Get an outfit to-dayfrom Wm. Madill if you have any catarrh.

Dakota Divorce Didn't Go.

Walkerton, Nov. 7.—The Switzer bigamy case was tried before Judge Barrett yesterday. From the evidence it was adduced that Switzer had violated the marriage laws of the country, but unintentionally. The judge therefore let him off on suspended sentence, under bail, to appear at any time within 12 months for sentence.

In 1894 Switzer was married in Manitoba to Ida Jane Jaldro. Growing tired of Ida Jane, he bethought himself of another former sweetheart, Marie Harris. He therefore concocted various schemes to get rid of Ida Jane and in 1906 was divorced from her in Dakota. A short while afterwards he was married to Marie Harris..

Kick for Trouser Pockets.

Kingston, Nov. 7.—Penitentiary guards have gone to Ottawa to lay grievances before the civil service commission. They want higher salaries, better uniforms with trouser pockets and the prison barber shop reopened.

The guards also want vacancies filled at once. The staff is constantly under strength and extra duty imposed. The prison, they hold, is being run too economically and at their expense and suffering.

Killed In a Cellar.

Penetanguishene, Nov. 7.—A man named David Douglas, hostler at the Georgian Bay Hotel, was instantly killed last evening by an electric light in the cellar of the Georgian Bay House. The light is at the end of a long wire that can be carried to all parts of the cellar. Douglas went into the cellar for a bag of potatoes, and carried the light some distance before he got the shock. His right hand was badly burned.

Poor Apple Crop In States.

New York, Nov. 7.—The apple crop of the United States for 1907, as estimated by The American Agriculturist in its report to appear on Nov. 19, is scant 24,000,000 barrels, materially short of last year, or a failure even more marked when compared with 1906 and 1905. What is of greatest importance is the shortage in such commercial orchard sections as Western New York, nearly all of Michigan and the entire southwest. There is what may be set down as an absolute failure in Kansas, Missouri and Nebraska.

New York State has a good many apples, but they will be needed, and for that matter the total is only about one-fourth to one-third of a full yield. Pennsylvania has fairly abundant totals. New England has rather more apples than last year, due solely to the fact that Maine surprised its best friends by finally bringing to maturity a good crop.

Empress Augusta Will Go.

Berlin, Nov. 7.—Empress Augusta Victoria, according to semi-official information obtained here, changed her mind, on the pressing request of King Edward and Queen Alexandra, and decided late last night to accompany Emperor William on his approaching visit to England.

It was announced on Tuesday that the Empress was not going to England with her husband, because her little daughter, Princess Victoria Louise, is suffering from chickenpox and Her Majesty considered it advisable to remain and take care of the child.

Last Look at the Dead.

Brandon, Nov. 7.—Fully 10,000 citizens of Brandon visited the City Hall yesterday between 12 and 3 o'clock to pay their last respects to the late Hon. S. W. McInnis.

The remains were taken back to the family residence at 3 o'clock, where they will remain until nine o'clock this morning, when the funeral will be held to St. Matthew's Church. The body will be sent to Winnipeg on a special train, where interment will take place. All the Cabinet Ministers will attend.

Fifty Miles of Steel Laid.

Ottawa, Nov. 7.—About fifty miles of rails have now been laid on the national transcontinental railway on the Quebec section, and grading is well advanced for a long distance on the various divisions now under contract. It is thought that by next fall about 400 miles of road will be graded, and that the track will be laid on a large portion of it.

Tenders for a greater portion of the remaining thousand miles between Winnipeg and Moncton will be called for next spring.

There is a scarcity of corporation laborers here. The minimum wage is $1.75 per day, and the best men are being snapped up by private firms.

Fire Chief Re-Arrested.

Sault Ste. Marie, Nov. 7.—The chief of the Blind River Fire Department has been re-arrested on the old charge of having set fire to buildings in that town.

POORHOUSE REFORM NEEDED.

Grand Jury Find "Dark Hole" In House of Refuge.

The Inspector of Hospitals of Ontario has been instructed to inquire into the report of a Grand Jury which recently visited the House of Refuge at Markdale.

The jury mentioned "a dark hole or room in the basement, without proper ventilation, into which the manager forcibly places any inmates who disobey orders.

"The practice of enforcing the attendance of every inmate to worship in the chapel at the dictation of the manager, who has his own peculiar creed to maintain, and who is often the only preacher available, should be abolished by the manager.

"The bedrooms are locked early in the morning, so that the inmates have no access to them, and have to lounge around on hard board benches.

"The true object of the establishment, the comfort and happiness of the inmates, has been lost sight of in an effort to make a good financial showing.

"The inmates have not been supplied either with butter or sugar, which we consider two of the necessaries of life, and which, naturally, would be much missed by these aged people. We also find that, instead of receiving good, fresh milk for their porridge, skim milk only is furnished them, though several cows are kept on the premises, and butter and cream are otherwise disposed of.

"We find, too, that the vegetables grown on the premises are being sold, instead of being used in the house for the inmates, as they should be.

"In justice to Mr. Harness, the manager, we wish to state that he is practising much of the unwise economy complained of under the instruction of a committee of the County Council."

PLAYED PRACTICAL JOKE.

Competitors For Limerick Prizes Hoaxed at St. Kitts.

Some practical joker put up a cruel hoax on a lot of people at St. Catharines recently, and now he is being sought with axes by the outraged victims. A series of telegrams were delivered to various persons around town, notifying them that they had won the leading prizes in the Lipton Limerick contest. The telegrams were on the regular forms of the telegraph companies, and looked genuine enough, being signed by Septimus Lipton. Nobody thought of questioning the genuineness of the messages, and they brought joy to a lot of hearts.

The victims had been selected with an eye to the artistic, being pretty well spread throughout the leading mercantile houses of the city. The joker apparently knew just where the telegrams would do most good.

Everybody was congratulating the lucky ones who had managed to bag $100 and $50 prizes, and it was decidedly amusing in the light of after events to listen to the confident air with which the fortunate "winners" recited the particular lines they believed had won the money.

The happy delusion didn't last long. The first rift occurred when two mutual friends produced separate telegrams to show that they had both won the second prize of $50. After looking mystified for a moment or two they began to ask questions. The cat was soon out of the bag. The telegraph companies pronounced the telegrams bogus. This report spread faster than did the first good news, and very quickly joy and gladness were turned to grief and lamentation, not unmixed with a little sheepishness.

Drinking In Montreal.

The annual report of the Chief of Police was published recently. That the liquor habit has a very strong hold on many is shown by the fact that last year men arrested for this offence numbered 2,234. The number of women arrested for the same cause, though much less, still footed up to 349. The total offences of all kinds among men for which arrests were made numbered 7,110. The women arrested for various causes numbered 1,247. Continuing, the report says it is absolutely necessary that the entire force should be strengthened. The police and detectives recovered stolen property last year to the sum of $67,330.48.

Not a Sparrow Falleth.

An amusing incident occurred in one of the city churches on a recent Sunday morning, say The Brantford Courier. In some manner an English sparrow got into the edifice. It flitted about here and there, over the heads of the congregation and the singers in the choir gallery, causing considerable dodging and amusement. Just as the first hymn was drawing to a close it lit on the head of one of the male members of the choir, who captured the songster and liberated it through a window. The choir a few minutes later rendered an anthem, beginning "Not a sparrow falleth," and a broad smile passed over the audience and caused not a few audible titters. The anthem certainly proved quite appropriate.

Railroad Bonds Stolen.

New York, Nov. 7.—The theft of $14,000 worth of railroad bonds was announced yesterday at the offices of Washerman Bros., brokers. The stolen securities included eight $1,000 Erie first consolidated general lien 4's, due in 1996, and six $1,000 Oregon Short Line Railroad Co. refunding 4's, due in 1929. The particulars of the theft was not made public except that the bonds were stolen from one of the firm's customers.

Curls Forbidden.

The bewitching curl and coquettish ringlet, are to disappear from the heads of the nurses at the Lewisham Infirmary. A visit from a lady inspector has resulted in the London County Council authorities gravely complaining of the untidiness of the nurses' hair, and, in consequence, the matron has had to issue an order on the subject.

DOMINION PARK SWEPT BY A FIRE

Montreal's Coney Island Was Partly Wiped Out.

STARTED IN SCENIC RAILWAY

Easterly Wind Sent Flames Rapidly Through Flimsy Buildings — Loss is Covered by Insurance—Resort Was Closed for Season — Sudbury Threatened by Fire—Planing Mill Was Destroyed.

Montreal, Nov. 7.—The Dominion Park, Montreal's well-known pleasure resort, on the bank of the St. Lawrence, just east of the city, was practically wiped out by fire yesterday morning.

The blaze started in the scenic railway building and an easterly wind carried the flames through the flimsy buildings to the west side.

The property is insured for $200,000, but the loss will likely exceed that amount. The resort was closed for the season some weeks ago, and only a watchman and a few carpenters were about the premises.

Dangerous Fire at Sudbury.

Sudbury, Nov. 7.—Fire, which for a time threatened to wipe out the northern part of the town, last night destroyed the Evans' planing mill and lumber yard.

EXPLOSION IN HOTEL.

Several Persons Severely Burned at Kinmount by Gas Generator.

Kinmount, Nov. 7.—The gas generator in the basement of the Northern Hotel exploded Tuesday night, tearing a large hole in the floor of the hall and barroom over the machine, shattering glass in the windows and breaking some of the dishes in the dining-room.

No one was seriously injured, though the proprietor, J. Simpson, W. Watson and R. Allen received severe burns on the face and hands, and a number of guests had a narrow escape.

The accident was apparently due to employes filling the machine with carbide while it was working, using a lantern near it. The damage will be in the neighborhood of $500.

Two Seamen Sentenced.

Montreal, Nov. 7.—Two seamen received severe lessons yesterday. Andrew Brown, fireman on the steamship Victorian, accused of disobeying the engineer of the vessel, was sentenced by Judge Lafontaine to five weeks in jail. John Lewis, sailor on the Parkwood, arrested by Special Agent Rupert, was sentenced to ten weeks in jail, six weeks for an assault upon the first mate and four weeks for refusing to obey orders.

School Girl Suicides.

St. John, N. B., Nov. 7.—Late last night Rebecca Scott, a 10-year-old girl, who drank carbolic acid in the morning, was in a precarious condition in the hospital.

She had been playing truant and when found she would have to return to school, became desperate, ran to the kitchen, where she seized a bottle of carbolic acid and drank it, crying, "I will end it all."

Five Men Killed.

Steubenville, Ohio, Nov. 7.—By the explosion last night of a donkey engine boiler at the Labelle Iron Works here five men were killed, three perhaps fatally injured and a portion of the open hearth plant, directly opposite the explosion, was wrecked.

Want Saloonkeeper's Life.

Buffalo, Nov. 7.—Alexander Young, a saloonkeeper of Ebenezer, was shot yesterday and probably fatally injured while standing at a window of his dance hall conversing with two friends. This is the third attempt within 14 months to kill him.

WOMAN SWINDLES A BANKE

Mr. Collard of St. Catharines Victim of Impudent Fraud.

GAVE AN ADVENTURESS $200

Plausible Stranger Told Hard Luck Tale—Passed Forged Note Purporting to Be Signed by Citizen—Claimed to Know Victim's Son—Got Clear Away—Telegram From Falls Adds to Mystery.

St. Catharines, Nov. 7.—For the second time within two weeks St. Catharines has been visited by a swindler, who succeeded in getting away with a quantity of real cash. On Tuesday L. H. Collard, private banker and broker, fell a victim to an unknown woman to the extent of $200. A peculiar circumstance is that yesterday Mr. Collard received a telegram from Niagara Falls, as follows:

"L. H. Collard, broker, Ontario street. Will express $200 to you from Toronto, where I am going, or will call week from Monday. Made a little mistake. (Signed) Lillian Hamilton."

As Mr. Collard was returning to the bank from luncheon he was accosted by a nice looking woman dressed in black clothes, with a feather in her hat. She called him by name and expressed surprise that he did not remember her, saying that she remembered him well. She said she was married in St. Thomas' church and afterwards, with her husband, went to Paris, France, where, in an auto accident, her husband was thrown out and had his neck broken, dying from injuries. She said she and her child were guests at the Welland House and that she met some people there every day whom she knew years ago in St. Thomas, and that she was slightly related to the Merritt family in this city.

Continuing, she told Collard that she had owned two houses in Port Colborne, but that she recently sold one and was now about to sell the other. She was, she said, negotiating for the purchase of property in the city and was short of a little money. She asked Mr. Collard if he would let her have a couple of hundred dollars, further disarming whatever suspicion he might have had by telling him that his son William, who is manager of the Imperial Bank at Ridgeway, had told her if she ever wanted any money accommodation to call on his father.

"Whom would you like as endorser?" asked the woman.

"Whom can you give me?" asked Mr. Collard.

"Oh, anybody; I could get Mr. Fairfield or Mr. Poole," was the reply.

Collard replied, "Either of them will do."

The woman left the bank and came back with one of Mr. Collard's private bank notes filled out for $200, signed Lillian Hamilton, and endorsed by Ben. C. Fairfield. She received the money without further question and left the bank. Collard suspected nothing till he saw Fairfield two hours later, when the signature was denied. The facts were then reported to the police, but nothing in the shape of a clue was received till Collard got the mysterious telegram about 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon.

SAVED FROM JAWS OF THE GALLOWS

Sentence on Parry Sound Murderer Is Commuted.

CAPELLI IS NOT TO HANG

Hears of Reprieve on Eve of Execution—Has Twice Stood In Shadow of Death—Fell Down and Kissed the Floor of His Cell When Told—He Is Condemned to Spend Rest of His Life In Prison.

Parry Sound, Nov. 7.—Already three times reprieved, Frank Capelli last night, in the very shadow of the gallows, received glad tidings from Ottawa that saves him from the hangman's noose, but condemns him to life imprisonment. To-day, for the second time, Radcliffe will leave Parry Sound with his "job" undone.

When Capelli heard the news his usual stolid and indifferent manner gave way to a complete breakdown. With tears streaming from his eyes he dropped to his knees and kissed the floor of his cell.

The message was received at about 6 o'clock last evening from the private secretary of the Governor-General, informing Sheriff Armstrong that His Excellency had been pleased to commute the sentence of death to one of imprisonment for life.

The story of the crime and of the efforts of the prisoner's counsel to save his life may be briefly summarized. The murder occurred in the house of Michael McCormack on the Burpee road, last winter, and resulted from a real or supposed attempt on the part of the prisoner to commit a criminal assault on Mrs. McCormack, and Dow lost his life in an effort to restrain the Italian. In the melee four other men were also stabbed by him.

The prisoner was tried in June and sentenced to hang on Aug. 1, but on the eve of the execution an application was made for a reprieve, which was granted. Subsequently another reprieve was granted to Oct. 7, and later another to Nov. 7, and in the meantime an appeal to the Court of Appeal by his counsel, Robinette & Godfrey of Toronto, was heard and refused, the court intimating that the matter of the appeal should have gone to the Minister of Justice.

On Tuesday Mr. Godfrey went to Ottawa in Capelli's behalf.

The gallows, which had been twice erected, will be pulled down to-day, and Hangman Radcliffe will leave for his home the second time without his services having been further required than to superintend the erection of the instrument of death and to interview the prisoner in preparation therefor.

Sundridge, Nov. 7.—Charles Graham and Bert Organ admitted having illegally trapped four beaver before Magistrate Gibbon yesterday. Deputy Game Warden Blea apprehended the men and confiscated three skins and a Winchester rifle, which are now in charge of Chief Game Warden Tinsley at the Parliament Buildings. The men were fined $40 and costs or three months, and $40 and costs and one month, respectively. They elected to go to jail. It is stated that the men were sent up to Ontario to trap by a man in Sydney, C. B., who supplied them with an outfit. The skins will be sold and the proceeds turned over to the Provincial Treasury.

Accident Near Crookston.

Belleville, Nov. 7.—O. Howard, a young man residing near Crookston, Ont., was accidentally shot in the leg Tuesday afternoon while hunting near Millbridge, north of this town. The unfortunate young man was in company with a party of deer hunters, who were examining their rifles before entering the woods, when in some unaccountable way one of the guns was discharged, the ball entering Mr. Howard's leg below the knee, shattering the bone and tearing the flesh terribly. He was taken to Belleville Hospital on the morning train, where it is feared it will be necessary to amputate the leg at the knee.

Shooting Accident Near Welland.

Welland, Nov. 7.—The postmaster and a prominent merchant of Ridgeway were shooting quail in Waimfleet marsh. Mr. Halivan's gun was cocked and exploded. When he fell the charge hit Mr. Hibbert in the face and shoulder. One grain pierced his eye. The doctors fear blindness as the other eye is sightless.

B., and had been acting in a strange manner for part of the journey.

ACTOR WILL STAND TRIAL.

Hitchcock Surrenders After Hiding For a Week In New York.

New York, Nov. 7.—Raymond Hitchcock, the actor, who disappeared several days ago, after he had been indicted on charges preferred by several young girls, appeared at the Criminal Court building yesterday and went to the office of the district attorney.

Hitchcock was arraigned upon only one of the six indictments against him, to which he pleaded not guilty. Bail was furnished by Martin Engel. He was paroled in custody of his counsel upon the other five indictments.

Counsel for Hitchcock said the actor had not been out of New York since his disappearance was reported, but had been suffering from nervous prostration. Yesterday, he said, was the first day he had really been able to go out of doors.

While Hitchcock was in court, his wife remained in the district attorney's office, weeping and in a semi-hysterical condition.

Hitchcock looked pale and haggard, and showed signs of illness. To his friends he said he had decided to face his accusers and try to win back the confidence of his friends and the public.

"I am innocent," he said, "and the only way for me to prove it is to stand trial. I am prepared to fight it out now, and I'll go through with it."

Hitchcock talked with Assistant District Attorney Garvan, who has had charge of his case.

Accompanied by his wife and counsel, Hitchcock was taken to the Court of General Sessions, where bail was fixed at $7,500.

After committing the outrage and confessing, he ran away. He is thought to be in Ayr.

British Strike Averted.

London, Nov. 7.—Rich. Bell, M. P., announced last night that the railroad dispute has been settled.

This averts a theatened strike, which, if it had been called, would have paralyzed railway traffic throughout the British Isles.

The details of the settlement had not been given out up to a late hour last night.

Anarchists Punished.

Rome, Nov. 7.—Six of the anarchists who attacked Cardinal Merry del Val, Papal Secretary of State, at Marino, in August, have been sentenced to terms of imprisonment varying from four to two months, and to pay a fine of $10 each. One of the accused was acquitted.

The opening address, in connection with the newly-formed Peterborough Canadian Club, will be given on Friday evening, Dec. 13th. The speaker for the occasion has been secured, and will be Professor Shortt, professor of Political science, in Queen's University, Kingston.

The secretary of the Club has been in communication with Prof. Shortt, and received his reply yesterday, in which he agreed to come in December. His address will be entitled, "Problems of Immigration," upon which question he is well versed. Prof. Shortt is an accomplished speaker, and the officers and executive of the Canadian Club are to be congratulated upon securing his services for the initial meeting of the newly-formed organisation.

MYSTERIOUS CASE IS REPORTED FROM TOWNSHIP OF ELDON

Man Was Killed Some Weeks Ago In an Automobile Accident—No Particulars Could be Learned Of His Death

VERDICT BROUGHT IN

Coroner's Inquest Has Investigated The Case—Conflicting Stories Are Told of The Accident

Some weeks ago rumours of a fatality in Eldron township, as a result of an automobile accident, were rife in town, but, strange to say, it was found impossible to glean any particulars. No record of the affair appeared in the Toronto or local press, and the incident passed from the public mind. Apparently an accident did take place, and an inquest was pressed for. After all night session Coroner Wood's jury at Kirkfield returned a verdict at 7 o'clock yesterday morning:

"That George McKelvey came to his death on Sept. 22, 1907, on the Portage road, by having four of his ribs broken, penetrating his lung. What caused the broken ribs we have no direct evidence to show. We find that no blame can be attached to the automobile or the occupants, and that due precaution was taken to warn him of his danger."

The automobile in question was that of William Mackenzie, of Toronto, and the occupants at the time included Mrs. William Mackenzie.

McKelvey, who was 70 years of age, was driving a load of logs on the road, about 2 or 3 o'clock in the afternoon, when the auto came up behind him. As to what happened there is a difference of opinion. McKelvey's daughters say they heard no horn. Mr. Mackenzie stated that the horn was blown, and that the old man heard it, and suddenly started back. The logs rolled off and the horses ran away. McKelvey died about three hours after his injuries.

County Crown Attorney Davis, town, conducted the case for the crown, and Alexander MacGregor, of Toronto was solicitor for the widow. —Lindsay Post.

MERRY BURGLAR STILL AT LARGE

Daring Buckhorn Burglar Has Alluded The Police—Rumours of His Appearance From Several Quarters

The daring burglar who held up the general store and post office has not been brought to bay as yet. The residents of Buckhorn and surrounding districts are still very nervous about leaving their homes after nightfall. The male population are all lying in wait for the nervy stranger's return, and he is guaranteed a warm reception. Several rumours are afloat as to the hiding place of the burglar. One Peterborough gentleman claims to have seen the intruder in Lindsay, but according to the time the burglary took place to that of his appearance in Lindsay he must have used an air-ship in his flight. The police are still marching for him and it is hoped that his arrest will be soon heard of.

WEDDING BELLS

SHORT-NEISH

Examiner Special.

Keene, Nov. 7.—The wedding was celebrated in Keene Wednesday evening at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Neish, of Miss Margaret Neish and Mr. Richard Short. The ceremony was performed by Rev. D D McDonald in the presence of about sixty guests. The bride was charmingly attired in a gown of cream voile. The bridesmaid was Miss Jennie Conrie, cousin of the bride, who wore cream chiffon trimmed with satin ribbon over lace. Mr. Harry Short supported the groom. The bride was the recipient of numerous handsome and costly presents. The happy couple will reside near Keene.

Director Of This District

Mr. George A. Gillespie has been re-elected director of the Peterborough district to represent the dairymen at the Dairy Conventions. This is Mr. Gillespie's second term as such, and his re-election is an indication of his interest in the affairs of the dairymen of this district. His election was unanimous yesterday at the special dairy meeting in the Court House, and Mr. Gillespie will again look after the Peterborough district. Mr. "Dan" Derbyshire spoke in eulogistic terms of the director's ability as a representative to the Eastern Dairymen's Association. He was the best man, Mr. Derbyshire believed, that the district could appoint, as he was energetic, industrious and capable in looking after the best interests of the dairymen of his district.

Mr. Gillespie's re-appointment will no doubt, meet with universal favour among the men interested in dairy matters.

ANNUAL CONVENTION TO BE HELD

Eastern Dairymen's Association Will Meet In Picton in January

At the meeting of the dairymen of this district yesterday afternoon to hear the addresses of the visiting speakers, Mr. D. Derbyshire urged all the men to make arrangements for attending the 31st annual meeting of the Eastern Dairymen's Association. This year the meeting will be held at Picton during the three days, January 8th, 9th and 10th, 1908. He pointed out the many benefits that were to be obtained by attending the meetings as practical matters were discussed which pertain to all branches of the dairy business. Special train arrangements will be made and a great crowd is expected for the coming convention.

MAN GOES TO JAIL IN DESPAIR

Englishman Out of Work and Without Money—Fears Canadian Winter

Out of work and without money, Charles Young, a strong, fine looking Englishman, applied this morning to Chief Russel for a birth in Castle Nesbitt for the winter. Mr. Young is painter by trade but never found employment in this country at his usual occupation. He came here in the spring and has had hard luck ever since. He has worked in the Canadian General and American Cereal Company's works of this city, but of late has been unable to find work of any description. The unfortunate fellow told the Examiner representative to-day that there were lots of others in the same plight, as he was, and unless something was done they would have to take the course he had chosen in preference to starving all winter.

A NORTH END HOLD UP

Water Street Woman Accosted Last Night On Way To Her Home

EXCITEMENT IN NORTH END

The residents of the north end have been greatly excited over the hold-up of Mrs. Sophie, of Water street, on her way home last night. It was a lucky thing for Mrs. Sophie that she retained her presence of mind and showed courage, or perhaps something of a more serious nature might have happened.

The lady was walking north on Water street, when she noticed a man approaching her. She did not pay any attention to him until he stopped when he came in front of her and asked her where she was going. Before Mrs. Sophie could reply he put his arm around her, apparently searching for a side satchel. The young lady lost no time and pushed the nervy stranger away from her and made quickly for her home on Water street. The police were notified this morning and are looking for the culprit. Mrs. Sophie had a good look at the man and is positive that she will be able to identify him.

W. C. T. U. MEETING ON SUNDAY

Promoters Making Final Arrangements For the Orginization

The women of the city interested in the establishment of a branch of the Women's Christian Temperance Union in Peterborough are reminded that the meeting for this purpose will be held in the Conservatory of Music Hall on Sunday afternoon. The promoters of the scheme are working hard to make the organization a success, and expect that Miss Belle Kearney of Mississippi, the eloquent speaker, who has been met with favour at the Cornwall convention, will be here.

An interested worker in the city has handed in the following for publication, taken from the Cleveland Expositor:

"The Lehigh Valley Railroad has served notice on its employees that they must be total abstainers from alcoholic drinks, or leave the service of the company; and it is quite likely that all the other lines in the United States will adopt the same rule. It is only cumulative evidence that there are enough sober men in the world to do the world's work. The conviction is gaining weight everywhere that the temperance question is not simply moral, but economic, and corporations are now one with the church in the effort to suppress this great national vice."

FELL HELPLESS INTO THE DITCH

Man Paralyzed by Drink Was in Bad Predicament Last Night

Lying helpless in a drain, containing six inches of mud and water, and with a cold rain beating down on him an unknown man was picked up by several well-known citizens last night at 11.30, at the corner of Murray and George streets, near the Y.M.C.A. The man who discovered him thought for a moment that he had come across the central figure in a tragedy. The man was stretched out full length on his face with his arms spread out. Fortunately his face was not in the water or he would have undoubtedly been drowned where he lay. An investigation showed that the stranger was not dead, but totally paralyzed by drink, so much so that he was unable to do anything to get himself out of his predicament. In falling he had badly cut his face and hands, and his blood was turning the water of the ditch crimson. The men who found him succeeded in getting the unfortunate man on his feet and started him for home. Had it not been for their arrival, he would have lain there until the morning as the hour was late and passers-by few.

BUFFALO PARTY FOR THE CHASE

Passed Through the City Last Night and Go North To-day

A jolly party of 14 hunters from Buffalo, including Mr. Beak, president of the Buck Brewing Co., and Dr. Clarke, were guests at the Snowden House last night for supper. They were on their way up the lakes to the north of the county where they will hunt the deer until the close of the season.

Owing to the lift lock being temporarily out of commission the steamer Stoney Lake could come no further than the lift lock. The party is expected to return at the close of the season.

Two Big Bears Driven From Their Dens And Captured

Tedford Party Successful—Peterborough Boys Have Luck Around Coon Lake in Burleigh

TWO DEER THE SECOND DAY

Among the first stories of the hunt in the sylvan forests of the north comes that report of one party killing two bears and two deer in the first two days of the chase. The bears were caught in their den near Coon Lake, Burleigh township, roared out and shot. The party is known as the Tedford party of Burleigh Falls and includes the Woods brothers who reside near Jackson Park, Peterborough.

On Friday Mr. Wm. Tedford ran across the winter quarters of the bears. The alarm was sounded, both were driven from their dens and dispatched with two rifle shots. The animals are large specimens and their skins will be worth considerable money.

On Saturday the party was again successful. Two large bucks fell a prey to the hunters and there is great rejoicing in their camp.

The bear and deer are reported to be more plentiful than expected in the north and the hunters will probably have some interesting stories to tell on their return.

MRS. COOLIDGE LOSES CASE

Mrs. Alice Coolidge of North Monaghan, who was injured in a street car accident in Toronto some time ago, and who entered an action for damages against the Toronto Railway Company, has finally lost her case. It has been heard four times in the courts, and a little while ago the Divisional Court awarded Mrs. Collidge $640. The Street Railway Company appealed against the judgment and has won out as the following letter received by Mrs. Coolidge from her solicitors will show:

"The Court of Appeal gave judgment in your case to-day. We regret to say that it was adverse to you. The court allows the defendant's appeal from the Divisional Court, and dismisses your action with costs. Kelly and Fasonbridge, Toronto."

Mrs. Collidge had received $200, which was expended in paying her lawyers and settling her hospital expenses, etc.

CHILDREN ROBBED ON A STREET CAR

A bold robbery in daylight and on one of the city street cars was committed yesterday about midday. Two little children, a boy and a girl, were taking their father's luncheon to him and took the street car which brought them down George street. The girl, after paying the conductor the fare, accidentally dropped her pocketbook, which fell between her seat and the one behind. Another girl who was seated behind the two picked up the purse and rapidly disappeared with it. So far as is known it was not recovered by the children.

AN EXAMPLE OF INVARIABLE EXPERIENCE

A Peterborough gentleman, whose word is as good as his bond, and whose judgment is as good as his word, returned to the city from the north country this morning. In referring to his driving experiences, he said he passed over good highways through the townships of Harvey, Emilsmore and Smith, but when he "struck the city streets"—a shrug of disgust eloquently completed the sentence. If the city authorities, after spending between $15,000 and $20,000 per year on our streets, are not properly ashamed of themselves in permitting back townships to surpass them in the matter of good highways, the outlook for a perpetuation of bumpy and boggy streets, is good.

MAY INVITE OTHER CLERGYMEN

New Law in United States Churches Whereby Rectors May Invite Others To Preach

The "Canadian Churchman" reports in its recent issue the introduction and passing of a Canon in the Protestant Episcopal Church of America, which makes it lawful for a Rector to invite a minister of a denomination to his pulpit. The church paper referred to, makes the following reference:—

A remarkable canon was passed at the recent convention of the Episcopal Church of the United States, which gives authority to the bishops of the Church to "give permission to Christian men who are not ministers of this Church to make addresses in the church on special occasions." By this action, one of the ancient rules of the Anglican Church has been set aside aside by the largest branch of our communion. It would appear that the intention of the canon is not to encourage but rather discourage frequent invitations to men of other communions, but it recognises the necessity, we might almost say, of extending Christian fellowship and courtesy on certain peculiar occasions. We have never felt that anything is to be gained by a free and easy exchange of pulpits, but occasions do arise when we are all conscious that it is natural and fitting that we should be able to invite a clergyman of another church to speak to us. The action of the American Church places this whole matter upon an entirely new footing. It is, of course, quite competent for any branch of the Anglican Communion to retain the old canon in force, but since such an important national Church has decided to modify the rule we may no longer look upon those who advocate such action in this or any other church as necessarily disloyal. We have seldom heard of so radical a change being brought about with so little public discussion. We had no idea that such a step was contemplated.

EXAMINER ROAD RACE PRIZES WILL BE PRESENTED THIS EVENING

To-night at the Grand Opera House, the musical comedy "The Mayor of Laughland," will be presented by the same management that produced "The Ginger Bread Man," one of the hits of the season. The Examiner road race prizes will be presented also by Mr. H. R. H. Kenner, of the Collegiate Institute staff. All those who entered the races, whether they obtained prizes or not, have been invited by Messrs. J. J. Turner & Sons, to occupy the box seats, and there will therefore be some of the best athletes in the city and county present. The tickets are awaiting the contestants at the Examiner office. Many have already received them, and the rest may do so on application at the office before 7.30 o'clock this evening. "The Mayor of Laughland" is a splendid musical show, and worth while seeing.

TAX-PAYERS CROWD COUNCIL CHAMBER TO HEAR THE APPEALS

First Meeting of Court of Revision Last Night Was a Record Breaker in Point Of Attendance—Forty Appeals Considered By Board

ASSESSMENT IS TOO HIGH

Canadian General Electric Company Complain That Their Assessment Has Been Increased 90 1-2 Per Cent Since Last Year

When the Court of Revision began its first session of the year last night in the Council Chamber that hall was crowded with indignant taxpayers ready to fight against their own assessments and to listen to the arguments put up by their neighbours, who were in the same position as themselves. The corridors outside the shut was also crowded at one stage of the proceedings, so much so that when the newspaper men arrived they had to get in through the police court room. The main feature of the appeals was that the assessment had increased so much over last year. The Canadian General Electric Company complained that the assessment on part of its property had increased 90 1-2 per cent. over last year, and there were other complaints of increases of 50 and 40 per cent. Several of the parties were represented by solicitors, and their arguments were applauded by the crowd which stamped its feet and gave other signs of approval when a good point was made. The appeals were taken up alphabetically and the court managed to wrestle through the "a's" and "b's" and get into the "c's" last night, when some forty appeals were considered. In only a couple of cases was there any judgment arrived at. The court simply heard the appeals and laid the matter over. The G. N. W. Telegraph Company had an assessment on its poles and street plant of $500 struck off, and its taxes for last year on the same basis remitted, but this was about the only decision arrived at last night.

The Court of Revision this year consists of Messrs. Wm. Lanxford, R. A. Morrow and A. E. Dixon, and there were present in addition to the members of the Board, the two assessors, Messrs. McGrath and McKee, the City Solicitor who acted for the city in the matter, and the City Clerk.

The court will meet again to-night at 7.30 o'clock when an effort will be made to get through the "c's," "d's," "e's" and "f's."

W. Ackerman asked that his lot be assessed the same as last year, $1,400 instead of $1,500. He had paid income tax illegally last year on $600 assessment.—Reserved.

The Best Stove and Hardware Company complained that its store on Hunter street had been assessed five years ago at $4,000, last year at $5,000, and this year at $7,000. Five years ago rent was $550, now it is $600. The free city postal delivery had decreased the value of the property.—Judgment reserved.

B. F. Ackerman complained of over assessment at 222 Dalhousie street. The assessment had been increased $1,570, and he could not understand it, as there were no improvements. He would be very glad to sell it at the assessed value if leaving the city.—Judgment reserved.

Aggatt and Stelker, over-charged on land; no one appeared for appellant.

G. H. Armstrong, re assessment for dog.—Appeal allowed.

THE WEATHER.

There has been quite a variety of weather during the last few days, and much of it not of a very agreeable character, but a change to better conditions now appears likely. The highest temperature yesterday was 42 degrees; lowest 30 degrees; rainfall, .53 of an inch. The gale which set in from the north-west last night brought the first snow of any account this season. Last year the first snow came on Oct. 30th, when 2 inches fell, which however all disappeared the following day. The snow ploughs were first brought into use on Dec. 3rd, and the first sleighing to be had was on Dec. 5th. By Dec. 17th, sufficient snow had fallen and remained on the ground to make good sleighing, which continued without serious interruption all winter.

THE NATIONAL HOTEL CHANGES HANDS

Mr. W. Young Kingleysides Representing Investment Company Closed The Deal To-day

CAPTAIN LUMB IS MANAGER

The National Hotel was to-day practically taken over by the North America Investment Company, of Toronto, as a result of negotiations which have been maturing for some weeks past. Mr. W. Young Kingleysides, general manager of the company was in the city looking after its interests and was instrumental in bringing the deal to a satisfactory issue.

Captain Lumb who for the past seven months has been manager of the Anglo-American Hotel, Belleville, will arrive in the city on Wednesday, Nov. 15th, and assume charge of the National. The intention of the company is to make radical improvements to the present building following the general plans of the best hotels in the larger cities.

The option that the company has received on the lot south of the Customs House is, it is understood, quite favourable and it is expected that it will be secured for the erection of an addition to the present building.

THE GREAT KNOX SALE AT TURNBULL'S

Hamilton's Loss Peterborough's Gain —Stock of the John Knox Co., Hamilton, Offered by Turnbull Co. At Startling Sacrifices

The great Knox sale begins at Messrs. Turnbull Company's store to-morrow morning. From a glance at the extensive offerings published, and the remarkable prices quoted, buyers from every section of the city are expected to crowd to the opening day of this sale. The high-class character of the goods, and their general seasonableness, will be an additional incentive to ladies to avail themselves of this rare opportunity.

It seems that the John Knox Co., Limited, of Hamilton, who carried a very extensive stock of such goods, as Madras muslins, dress sateens, muslins, ginhams, curtain nets, vestings, flannels, flannelettes, wrappers, ets, blankets, sheetings, towelings, linens, underwear, etc., retired from business a short time ago. A large proportion of the stock has been purchased by the Messrs. Turnbull Co. at discounts ranging from 15 to 50 per cent below regular prices. This fortunate purchase by a local firm gives Peterborough shoppers the benefit of what is claimed to be "unheard of prices," and certainly demonstrates the alertness of our local merchants in watching the markets for the plums that occasionally are ready to drop into their hands.

This great Knox sale is to run a season of fourteen days, and in many cases the prices only average about half price and, in some cases less. A novel feature will be the Hour Sales in connection with this event. The ladies will do well to watch the dates and hours of the special offerings, and secure their share of the best that is going. No weather conditions should prevent the attendance of all who want to save money.

WELCOME THE COMING; SPEED THE PARTING

The injunction, "welcome the coming; speed the parting guest," applies only in spirit to the change in relations of Mr. Fessenden and Mr. Kenner to the Collegiate Institute. The change would be the more momentous if Mr. Fessenden's retirement from the principalship involved the loss of his valuable services to the school. Seventeen years ago the Examiner had the pleasure of welcoming Mr. Fessenden to Peterborough, and, from knowledge of his previous pedagogic record, of forecasting the success he has so signally achieved. To begin with, he is a scholar as well as student, and in the field of mathematics and physics has, perhaps, few superiors, and still fewer equals. As a teacher and a disciplinarian, he possessed and possesses the highest qualities. These, combined with devotion to his work, interest in the progress of his pupils, and a general quiet enthusiasm, have made his work in the Peterborough Collegiate Institute telling, both in actual educative results and in the reputation of the school as a seat of learning. Those who know Mr. Fessenden and his work, and the stress it involves, are not surprised that, after so many years of faithful and assiduous service, he should feel the necessity of a measure of relief from the exacting duties of principal. It is to be hoped that the chair of Senior Mathematics in the Institute will long continue to be occupied by Mr. Fessenden.

In selecting his successor, the Board of Education seems to have been influenced by the consideration of the fairness of promoting a member of the staff, who has long given not only splendid service in his department, but has actively, intelligently and, even, enthusiastically identified himself with the interests, at large, of the Institute. Mr. Kenner, who has for 14 years discharged with conspicuous effectiveness, the duties of classical master, is, by virtue of his record, indicated as the natural successor to the principalship, which the Board of Education has unanimously offered him. Mr. Kenner has not only "made good," in his purely professional capacity, but he has always compelled the respect, to almost the point of affection, of his classes, is also popular with all the pupils, and has been, and is, persona grata to his staff associates. Mr. Kenner's relations, and as a citizen, have been marked by a keen and intelligent interest in general movements directed to intellectual improvement and culture, and he has also lent his to the advance of moral interests. In these days of conglomerate aestheticism and athleticism, Mr. Kenner's interest in manly sports is quite complementary to his interest in other spheres, which have enlisted his sympathies and activities. We are preparing a fine building for Collegiate Institute purposes. Its most important equipment is a good principal and faculty, which we have now available in Mr. Kenner and the staff associated with him. It is hoped that Mr. Kenner will find himself able to accept the position offered him with so much justification of confidence by the Board of Education, and with so evident promise of success.

YOUTHFUL CRIME

The fact of the extensive prevalence of youthful crime, suggests anything but a hopeful outlook for the future of the country. Eleven per cent. of the inmates of the penitentiaries of Canada are under twenty years of age, many of them in their 'teens. This simple fact is less appalling than the conditions it indicates. We all know, by observation, that the youth of the country have developed characteristics which suggest a great lowering of the standards of morality, and lack of sense of the obligations and responsibilities of life. The whole world is so greatly given to the pursuit of pleasure, so absorbed in the search of amusement and excitement, that there is no time nor place left for the more serious considerations which should influence our lives. This conduces to selfishness, and that tends to a course of self-pleasing action, without reference to the good or rights of our neighbours. When children see their parents possessing low ideals, with pleasure and amusement largely displacing the serious affairs of life, it cannot be expected that they will develop strong moral natures, or come to have lofty ambitions, or a high sense of moral responsibility. When we see, not only society in general, but the church, whose normal function is to form the morals of the community, join in various ways, in the search for amusement, the results are not surprising. These forms of amusement may be harmless, in themselves, but their tendency is to beget a restless spirit, and develop a practical indifference to greater things. The secular machinery of the church in these days is largely moved by the idea of amusement, feasts, concerts, plays, etc. These entertainments are innocent in themselves, but by the emphasis placed upon them, they become, to a deplorable extent, an end rather than a means. These are only general indications of the conditions that tend to, and doubtless do, paralyse higher ambitions. When we add, the prevalent lack of reverence in the young of the day, with its inevitable evil consequences, we may seriously question whether the influence of our schools, the training in our homes, the teaching from the pulpit, are along the right lines, or are faithfully executed and performed. For everything there is a cause. It is for moral reformers to discover the cause. In the case of moral maladies, as in that of physical ills, with the cause of the trouble once discovered, the cure is easy. Remove the causes, the effects cease.

EDITORIAL NOTES

One of the appellants against the high assessment, is Justus Dunn. Justus is "done" but he considers not in the right way.

The Canadian postoffice service is exceedingly extensive, and, of course, correspondingly expensive. From Gaspe to Dawson City is a far cry. Now, arrangements have been made for a mail service in the far north.

Reports state that the apple crop of the United States is twenty-four million bushels short of last year's, and much further below the crops of 1905 and 1906. In consequence there will be a brisk demand for such Canadian apples as are not sent to the British market or needed at home.

Premier Whitney denies that Dr. Beattie Nesbitt has resigned the registrarship. As a matter of fact, Premier Whitney's private opinion is, the Toronto Star suggests, that the moon may be inconstant, the stars may wobble, the sun may disappear for days at a time, but Dr. Beattie Nesbitt is fixed.

"Some Liberals," says the Toronto News, "may sneer at Mr. Bourassa, but if Parliament had his courage there would not now be a school question and a land question in the new provinces." The News is slightly out in its topography. The "school question" and the "land question" are in the News' sanctum.

The Court of Revision has "heaps of trouble" ahead. Last night they considered about forty appeals against the assessment under the letters "A" and "B," the appeals being taken up alphabitically. All the appeals are almost all against too high assessment, and many of them are well founded. There have been increases of from 40 and 50 to 90 per cent., without, it is said, any improvements to warrant in some cases, the practical doubling of the assessed value. The court reserved decision in all the cases heard. The members should not have much difficulty in making up their minds for it is the general complaint and opinion that the assessment all over the city is higher than the interests of the city demands.

Our amiable contemporary, the Review, declares that the election card of the Liberal candidate in East Northumberland, which bore the Royal Standrad and Union Jack, with the legend, "won with honour, to be maintained with honour," showed "crass ignorance," and asks, "where, O where were they won?"—like the British constitution, by the development of the conditions, rights and privileges they stand for. In the same column our wise and critical contemporary, which cannot understand a figurative reference, makes the statement that Mr. Bourassa "succeeded in pulling down the victor's majority by 400." "Where, O where," was it pulled down? Hon. Mr. Tungeon was elected by acclamation in 1905. When did it come about that the part was greater than the whole?

ELECTRIC WIRE CUT THROUGH POST

Electric Display at Corner of Charlotte And Rubidge Streets

At six o'clock last night an electrical display was presented at the corner of Rubidge and Charlotte streets, by a loose live wire. The wind blew it against one of the posts and as a result the latter was cut clean in two about two feet from the top. The greenish blue flashes as a contact was made, when the wind blew it, were very weird, and attracted the attention of pedestrians who were struggling homeward in the rain.

TAX PAYERS CROWD COUNCIL CHAMBERS TO HEAR THE APPEALS

south George, east Brook, lot 1. E. A. Peck appeared for appellant. He argued that the law was changed in 1904, and in 1905 two assessors, McKee and McGrath, assessed the ward and gave general satisfaction. In 1906, Messrs. McGrath and Kincaid assessed corresponding with the previous year and there had been few appeals. This year there were many appeals, and the court should look at last year's assessment to ascertain proper value. If the assessment was right now, the two previous assessments were wrong. No improvements had been made, only repairs.—Judgment reserved.

F. Birdsall; E. A. Peck appeared, and made same argument as in previous case. Judgment reserved.

Patrick Bolton, park lot 4 on west side of Park street over assessed. The assessment of the property was $3,720, and he had offered to sell it for less. The land was not worth more than $300 an acre, according to Mr. Bolton, and the lot should not be divided in assessment, as the tenant had no land. Two or two and a half acres were used as a sand pit, and should come under the heading of damaged land.—Judgment reserved.

Jas. Booth, over-charged on land. No one appeared.

Hotel Assessed too High

Mrs. Mary Bowman appealed assessment of C.P.R. Hotel on the ground that it was too high. This year it was $9,000, and last year $8,175.—Judgment reserved.

Bradburn Estate, over-charged on land. No one appeared.

Dr. F J Bradd, over charged on land. No one appeared.

W. Bradshaw, over charged, pt. lot 7, south Hunter, west George. Mr. Bradshaw said that the assessment had been increased over last year and there were no improvements.—Judgment reserved.

R C Braund, complained of being over charged for the property on which his store is located, at the corner of Albert and Park streets, and other lots in the neighbourhood, on Albert street and Lafeyette avenue.—Judgment reserved.

R Brou, over charged on land. No one appeared.

John Britton, over charged on land. No one appeared.

Martha Britton, over charged on land. No one appeared.

Andrew Brown, over charled on land. Mr. Brown was not present and the appeal was left until the next sitting.

C N Brown, south Simcoe and east George, pt. 1 and 2. Mr. Brown complained that the assessment was too high. The assessment last year was $2,750 and this year $3,300.

Joseph Brown, wrongly omitted and over assessed. Joseph Brown to be assessed as owner instead of M. J. Brown.—Confirmed as to value.

H R Buckley, 485 Sherbrooke street, complained of being over charged. His property is assessed for $1,850 and he stated that he paid $1,800 for it a year and ten months ago. The only improvement had been the putting in of a bath room for which the contract was $100. Mr. Buckley claimed that other lots on the street were not assessed as high. — Judgment reserved.

Geo Benton, Jr., claimed over assessment on 224, 226 and 228 Rubidge street, which were assessed respectively, $1,400, $1,400 and $1,580. He stated that there had been no improvements and the assessment had been increased over last year. He could not say the assessed value was more than actual value. He did not remember what the insurance was.—Judgment reserved.

W Bunton complained that he was assessed too high on 334 George street, G.T.R. ticket office. It had been increased from $2,200 last year to $2,550, and there had not been that increase in value.

Mr. McKee, the assessor, said that he had taken as a basis what the building would cost, less 10 per cent. on present prices. He said that values and rents were increasing and the cost of building material was greater than two years ago.

City Solicitor Hall asked that Mr. Bunton's business assessment should be increased to 50 per cent. of value of land instead of 25 per cent.

Mr. O'Connell's Argument.

Mr. D. O'Connell who appeared for appellant, submitted that the increase was an important matter. People had a right to expect that the assessor in making an increase would do it on some intelligent principle. The onus of showing why the increase had been made was on the assessor. The only reason given was that the assessor had an idea in his mind that rents had gone up and population increased. The tenant over-burdened with increased rent must also pay increased taxes. The increase in rent was not a proper guide.

The City Solicitor remarked that the increase in rents showed that the land was more valuable to the owner. The increase in population meant increased value in the centre of the city.

Judgment reserved.

Daniel Burke complained of over assessment on property at 97 Homewood avenue. It was assessed for $1,800 and he had paid $1,750 for it two years ago.—Judgment was reserved.

Clara Cairns and Mary Cairns complained fo being overcharged on property at 35, 41 and 43 Patterson street. Geo. F. Cairns appeared for appellants and stated that last year the assessment had been increased 30 per cent. and this year about 40 per cent., while there had been no improvements.—Judgment reserved.

Bradburn Estate. It was claimed that License Inspector Stewart's office should be exempt from taxation, and also that property south Charlotte, east George had been assessed at $75 per foot; $65 had been asked for it and it could not be sold at that price.

T Kinnear complained that the assessment on new warehouse building at corner of Dalhousie and George street was too high. It was assessed at $3,420 for land and $5,500 for building.—Judgment reserved.

W D Campbell claimed that the assessment on property at 77 Gilmour street had been increased $1,250 in five years. Out of proportion to increase in value.—Judgment reserved.

Increased Over 90 Per Cent.

Canadian General Electric Company —Mr. E. G. Patterson appeared for appellants, and stated that the assessment on lots 6 to 13 and 17 to 19, inclusive, plan 30, had been increased from $8,350 last year to $15,540 this year, an increase of 90 1-2 per cent. Nothing had been spent on the property.

Mr. Patterson also complained that the present assessment of $28,520 on lots 10 and 11, Wolfe and Townsend streets, was too high. They had been purchased for $10,000 and assessed at $15,000, but this had been reduced to $13,000 several years ago in an appeal.—Judgment reserved.

C. Clancy appealed on the ground that he was over-charged on land at 64 Aylmer street. Judgment was reserved.

C. H. Clementi protested that the assessment on his property at 360 Charlotte street had been increased about 50 per cent. over assessment of last year. He was assessed this year at $5,300, and he wished to God that someone would give him that for it. They could have it, he said.—Judgment reserved.

B. Cooney said that he had been over-charged on land at 24 Stewart street. The increase was $400. Judgment was reserved.

W. Cowle complained of the assessment of his property at 269-271 Reid street, which is assessed at $1,450 and $1,400 respectively. Last year they were taxed at $1,050 each. He did not believe that he could get the assessed value for the property. — Judgment reserved.

J. J. Cunningham protested that he was over-charged on land at 104 Lock street. There had been an increase of $670, and no improvements had been made.—Judgment reserved.

Roger Devlin, complaining of overassessment on pt. lot 4, plan 41, Wescott street, said that he was assessed at $380, and he had paid $250 for it three years ago.—Judgment reserved.

Justus Dunn said that his property south Charlotte west George, pt. 2, assessment had been increased from $5,900 to $7,530 since last year.—Judgment reserved.

R. Millow said that assessment on lot 1 on the north side of Parnell street had been increased from $100 to $200.—Judgment reserved.

Great North Western Telegraph Company complained that the assessment of $500 on poles and street plant was illegal according to sec. 14, sub. sec. 8 of the Assessment Act. The assessment was struck off. The same complaint was made for 1907, and the taxes were remitted.

Jno. Watson complained of being wrongly assessed. M. W. Brown appeared, and asked that he be assessed as owner of the part he is assessed for as tenant, change made from tenant to freeholder. Judgment reserved as to value.

Eczema's Itch Is Never Ending

EXCEPT BY ACTIVE AND PERSISTENT TREATMENT WITH THE GREAT ECZEMA CURE.

When left to itself, eczema runs on indefinitely, causing keen distress from itching and covering the body with sores that refuse to heal.

Even with careful treatment, eczema is obstinate in yielding to curative measures, but the regular and persistant use of Dr. Chase's Ointment is the most certain means known of overcoming this torturing disease.

Internal treatments for eczema have long since been discarded, except the use of medicines to regulate the bowels and enrich the blood, while local applications are used to relieve the itching and heal the sores.

It is the remarkable success of Dr. Chase's Ointment in the cure of eczema which has given it world-wide recognition as the standard ointment for itching skin diseases.

Mrs. Robert Clendenning, Welland Station, Ont., writes:—

"For three years my dauthter, Fanny, was afflicted with eczema in an intense and persistent form, and for nine days she was totally blind. The burning, itching and disfigurement were horrible, her entire face being completely raw for months, and the distress so great that she could not sleep.

"The best efforts of two eminent physicians failed to even mitigate her awful suffering. One day when I was low-spirited over my daughter's condition Dr. Chase's Ointment was recommended to me and to our surprise Fanny was helped with the first box and she has since been entirely cured by this treatment.

"Her face is now as smooth as a baby's and she is in splendid health. The credit for this cure is entirely due to Dr. Chase's Ointment, and I cheerfully give you permission to state my daughter's case, hoping that it will lead many others to secure the same good results."

There are a score of ways in which Dr. Chase's Ointment, with its extraordinary soothing, healing properties, is useful in every home; 60 cents a box, at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto.

THE GOOD OLD FASHIONED DAYS

Powdered Wigs Formed an Important Adjunct to a Gentleman's Apparel

It is safe to say that the majority of bald men of to-day would gladly revive the old, dignified custom if they could. But they can do the next best thing to it; that is, hold on to what hair they have.

In cases where the hair root or hair bulb has not been completely destroyed by parasites that infest it, Newbro's Herpicide will do wonders in the way of encouraging a new growth of hair. Destroy the cause, you remove the effect. That is the successful mission of Herpicide. Sold by leading druggists. Send 10c in stamps for sample to the Herpicide Company, Detroit, Mich. Orangeville Post Make Some Remarks Which Apply to Peterboro'

The Orangeville Post makes the following sensible remarks: "A generous reward will be given to anyone who will suggest a scheme by which the school children can be prevented from calling at the post office more than once a day on their way to and from school. Not only do they crowd into the office at noon, presumably without instructions from their parents, but they call morning, noon and night, to the distraction, not only of the mail clerks, but of the general public, whom they annoy and delay beyond all reason. The post office clerks should demand a written order for mail from all children under a certain age. In this they would be justified, as the nuisance is almost intolerable, when added to the infliction of part misses who flock to the office about three times each day to meet and flirt with young fellows."

An Unhappy Comparison.

A country minister had just received his first call to the charge of a small church, and his wife, of course, was highly excited—go much so that she was obliged to tell everybody of the good news.

One day she met a farmer's wife and began the conversation.

"Do you know, Mrs. Close," she said, "my husband has just secured the incumbency of a church, and I can't tell you how delighted I am. I"—

"Yes," replied the sympathetic old lady, "I quite understand your feelings. I felt just that way when our pig took the gold medal at the cattle show."

Very Plain.

Two country women, mother and daughter, were at the circus for the first time. They were greatly taken with the menagerie. At last they came to the hippopotamus and stood for several minutes transfixed in silent wonder. Then the mother turned to her daughter and said slowly and solemnly: "Mary, Ain't he plain?"

CAN TURN PORKCHOP INTO GROUSE

Accomplishments of Intelligent Chinaman Saved Him From Imprisonment

Ah Lee is a Chinese cook in one of teh Vancouver hotels. Recently the manager of the hotel was summoned to the police court on a charge of serving grouse out of season. The chief witness against the manager was the game warden, who alleged that he had eaten grouse and nothing else in the dining room on October 13th. He knew the taste of grouse. It could never be counterfeited by duck or chicken, or by any other bird, wild or tame. Grouse was grouse, and the game warden had eaten grouse out of season, though it had been concealed on the hotel menu under the title of "salmi of game." Then Ah Lee took the stand, and proved that he could turn lean pork or any other kind of flesh into grouse at a moment's notice. It was all in the sauce. The case was dismissed. Yet some people would exclude talented men like Ah Lee from this country. Some people allege that the Chinese are sadly inferior to the people of Canada. Asiatics are pronounced common and unintellectual. How can that be? Open the gates. Pull down the fences. Let the whole Chinese Empire come in, if so be that a tough piece of round steak can be turned into the daintiest of game, if our Oriental brothers can make grouse out of hash.

OBJECT TO OPENING LETTERS

Jews Will Not Open Letters on Saturday But Will Read Them If Opened

A short time ago a reference was made to an odd custom of the Jews which has been noticed by some of the people of this city. That was the refusal to start and maintain a fire in their stoves on their Sabbath, which is our Saturday. One family in particular was mentioned as they had asked men to go in and start their fire and then got others to put on fuel. This custom appears strange to Canadians, however sacred it may be to the Jews. However, another notion of theirs which is equally as queer is their refusal to open letters on Saturday, although they will read them once they are opened.

In reference to this a gentleman living near one of the Jewish families in the city stated that he is often asked to open a letter on a Saturday for one of the Jews who apparently remain steadfast in their objections to opening it, although they have no compunction about reading it

PETERBORO' LADY AND STATUARY

Miss Katherine E. Wallis Doing Brilliant Work in Sculpture

Within a few days two excellent specimens of sculpture in marble by Katherine E. Wallis, of Peterborough, will be placed on exhibition in the provincial museum—one represents Mercury, in the attitude of twanging a string of the lyre, which he is fabled to have invented, and listening with pleasure to the sound, and the other, a Swiss peasant. Miss Wallis has spent some years in the ateliers Florence, Berlin, Vienna, Rome and Paris, and her work has received warm commendation from art critics in Paris.

It has been suggested that some of our wealthy citizens in emulation of the examples set in such matters, both in Europe and the United States, would do well to purchase one or both of these specimens of native art and present them to the museum for permanent exhibition.—Toronto World.

MR. HARRY COWIE THE NEW OBSERVER

Will Look After the Weather Man in Porterville in Future

The following from the Porterville Enterprise referring to the appointment of Mr. Harry Cowie, son of Mr. Wm. Cowie, this city, as "observer," will be of interest to many of his Peterborough friends:—

To Gerald R. Lumley belongs the credit for the establishment in Porterville of the only complete government outfit for receiving, recording and displaying the weather reports sent out by the national observers, in this section. The outfit includes the rain gauges, registering thermometers and display flags, and at his own expense Mr. Lumley had the outfit installed on the roof of the Enterprise building, with stairs leading up to it. For several years he attended to keeping the records, but last winter when he left for England, he appointed Harry Cowie as assistant. Upon his recent return he resigned the position, and Mr. Cowie has been appointed as observer.

The work of the government in sending out the daily reports has been somewhat hampered by the strike of the telegraph operators, and while reports are being received, there is not as yet any regularity about them. When received they will be displayed on the front window of the Enterprise office as formerly, and the proper flag hoisted. Mr. Cowie is the foreman of the Enterprise shop, and we feel we will prove a worthy successor of Mr. Lumley.

Mr. Wm. Miller and family are this week moving into their new house on High street.

Keene also has its pedestrians, of which it has just reason to be proud. On Monday afternoon Messrs A. St. A. Smith, manager of the Bank of Toronto, and A. B. Fee, accountant, walked from Keene to Hastings in two hours and fifty-nine minutes. The distance is said to be about 15 miles and the road is a particularly hilly one, in fact there is very little level road on the whole stretch, also on Monday the road was in bad condition consequent upon Saturday's heavy rain. With training Messrs. Smith and Fee think that they could do the distance in a little better time still.

WHY YANKEES ARE COMING.

Americans Find Farming More Profitable in Canada.

William Redwood writes from Canada to The Western Daily Press, Bristol, England: Reference has been made to the large number of people coming into Canada from the States. This movement, we are told, does not find its motive in any political or religious condition; neither is it because the American farmer has failed on the broad acres of the States.

On the contrary, the American farmer has prospered, and in many instances has become rich. Agricultural pursuits in the United States have been satisfactory and remunerative. The farmers who come into Canada from the United States are, as a class, very well-to-do. They have money. They have made money and they want to make more money.

The majority of them went into their homesteads when land was cheap—from $10 to $25 per acre. They have made money by farming. Moreover, the land that cost from $10 to $20 to $25 per acre will now sell for $40, $100 or $150. The shrewd American farmer sees three things: He sees that it is hard to make six per cent. net on his land at present market values. He sees that there is no reasonable prospect of the price of his land advancing materially in the next decade. It has reached the limit, and he realizes that he must go to a new country to secure farms for his sons. He can not do it in the home state. With the money obtained from the sale of 160 acres in the States the farmer can go into Western Canada and buy 640 acres, or even more, and his Canadian land yields more in crops per acre than the farm in the States. It is no uncommon thing for an American to pay for his Canadian farm and its improvements out of the first crop, and besides, the value per acre of his larger Canadian farm is increasing and will continue to increase just as his American farm did in the past decade. In other words, the American farmer can exchange each acre of his land in the States for from four to ten acres of more productive and more profitable land in Canada, and at the same time reap the rich harvest of the inevitable rise in the value of the land. Thus he can secure a large Canadian farm for himself and one for each of his sons with the money derived from the sale of the home farm.

LIE IN ANGLICAN CHURCH.

Franciscans Desire to Remove Bodies of Deceased Brethren.

Considerable discussion is being indulged in over the attempt of the Franciscan fathers to obtain the bodies of their departed brethren, especially the saintly Brother Didace, from the crypt of the Anglican Church of St. James, Three Rivers, Que.

The opinions among the congregation of that church are divided on the subject. Some of the members favor allowing the Franciscans to take up the bodies on the terms which they propose, that is, to restore the church to the state in which it now is, and pay any damages that may be considered reasonable. Others again, object that their church should not be invaded by the adherents of any other creed, as the church was granted to the Anglican rector by King George.

Various comment is also indulged in as to the reasons set up by C. G. Ogden, who represents the church before the court in the matter. The fact that the church was given to the Anglican Church by direct grant is invoked against the interference of the court. The opinion expressed by many is that the grant from the King does not exclude the church from the jurisdiction of the courts of the land which are established to administer the King's laws in this portion of his Empire.

Some years ago, an attempt was made by the Franciscans and some of their friends to purchase the church property. A price was offered and some of the congregation considered it sufficiently high, but others thought that if the Franciscans wanted the church they should be prepared to pay more, and the deal was never put through. The renewal of the interest in the matter has caused many visits to be made to the crypt of late, to view the place where the bodies lie. There is a conflict of opinion on the identity of the parties who were buried there. The Franciscans state that so far as they know nobody was ever buried there since the church was forfeited by the crown from their community, while on the other hand it is said that during the first years of British occupation some Anglicans were buried in the crypt.

PLANT CUDDLES.

Flowers That Possess Eyes, Though They May Not See.

The night hath a thousand eyes, but a nasturtium leaf has more. Holding up his hand in front of a desert shrub, an experimenter has taken a microphotograph showing half a dozen distinct images of his fingers formed by the eyes of the plant. Many common garden and wild flowers—the nasturtium, begonia, clover, wood sorrel and bluebell among others—possess eyes situated on their leaves. They are minute protuberances filled with a transparent gummy matter which focuses the rays of light on to a sensitive patch of tissue at the back of it in a similar manner to that in which the eyes of an animal do their work. A common nasturtium plant has thousands of such eyelets on its leaves, forming thousands of minute images of the objects around them. But, though a plant may have eyes, it does not follow that it sees. It is not yet known if the sense impressions are telegraphed to some central nerve exchange corresponding to the brain of the animal. In addition to these light sense organs many plants possess a touch of sensitiveness and a response to electric stimuli that show further resemblance to the animal world, while ferns, mosses and seaweeds in an early stage of their existence are capable of actually swimming through water.

The Lady in the Moon.

An amateur astronomer writes of the "lady in the moon:" "It is a very beautiful face seen in profile and uplifted, as though in proud disdain of things terrestrial. The curve of the throat is exquisite, and indeed the entire outline is marvelously lifelike. The moon lady may best be observed through a small opera glass when our satellite is at half. At that time the tip of the chin about touches the terminator—that is, the dividing line between the light and dark portions of the lunar surface. Most people can recognise the man in the moon. Well, the hair of the lady, in which I can always fancy I see a spray of orange blossom, forms the man's left eye, the nose and mouth his nose, and the chin and throat the man's mouth."

ANIMAL INTELLIGENCE.

The Difference Between Instinct and Reasoning Power.

Most animals have little self consciousness, and their reasoning powers at best are of a low order, but in kind at least the powers are not different from reason in man. A horse reaches over the fence to be company to another. This is instinct. When it lets down the bars with its teeth, that is reason. When a dog finds its way home at night by the sense of smell, this may be instinct; when he drags a stranger to his wounded master, that is reason. When a jack rabbit leaps over a bush to escape a dog or runs in a circle before a coyote, or when it lies flat in the grass as a round ball of gray, indistinguishable from grass, this is instinct. But the same animal is capable of reason—that is, of a distinct choice among lines of action. Not long ago a rabbit came bounding across the university campus at Palo Alto. As it passed a corner it suddenly faced two hunting dogs running side by side toward it. It had the choice of turning back, its first instinct, but a dangerous one; of leaping over the dogs or of lying on the ground. It chose none of these, and its choice was instantaneous. It ceased leaping, ran low and went between the dogs just as they were in the act of seizing it, and the surprise of the dogs as they stopped and tried to hurry around was the same feeling that a man would have in like circumstances.—"Evolution and Animal Life."

AN ALBINO MOOSE.

Freak Falls Victim to Guns of New Brunswick Hunters.

An Albino moose, the first one shot in years, was killed recently by T. U. Maxon and J. Dudley Dow, sportsmen of Podiok, York County, on the headwaters of Little Podiok. The moose was only a fair-sized one, his antlers measuring about 45 inches. It was reported by a party of local sportsmen that they had seen either the same or another white moose last year about this time, probably the same one, as a white moose is rare.

A Prayer for Rain.

The minister was having Sunday dinner with one of his parishioners. Suddenly the eight-year-old daughter of the house spoke up.

"Oh, Dr. Still, will you please say the prayer for rain to-night, so it will pour to-morrow?" she urged.

"Why, dear?" asked the clergyman.

"'Cause I have a dandy new umbrella and mackintosh," replied the eternal womanly.

Smoke Clouds.

Smoking a pipe of medium size, says a statistician, a man blows out of his mouth every time he fills the bowl 700 smoke clouds. If he smokes four pipes a day for twenty years he blows 20,440,000 smoke clouds.

Harrier Club Hold a Successful Annual Meeting

Many Well Known Athletes Present Last Night—Interest in Running Increasing Here

THE OFFICERS ELECTED

The fame which has surrounded local runners during the past few weeks has had the effect of arousing great enthusiasm among the members of the M.C.A. Harrier Club, and, their annual meeting last night was a great success. Peterborough men have come to the front in the running department in such a short time that many are taking a great interest in sprinting and particularly in the long distance events. The meeting last night at the Y.M.C.A. was a particularly enthusiastic one, being attended by some of the prominent athletic men of the city.

The Harrier Club this year has apparently been instilled with new life owing to the achievements of Fred Simpson, the Indian runner, and the last men in the Examiner road race. The members of the club who are running will still keep in training during the autumn and winter, and in all probability will have another opportunity to display their speed and endurance in a short time.

An Autumn Meeting

The question of having an autumn met this year in Peterborough was discussed and there is a possibility that the scheme will be carried out. The runners themselves are much interested in the proposal and would like to meet some of the I.C.A.C. or West End Y.M.C.A. men of Toronto. Two weeks was mentioned as the probable date of the meet, but arrangements have to be made to obtain a building in which to hold the events.

The Brock street rink was spoken of as a suitable place for the meet, and a committee was appointed to interview all parties interested to try and secure it.

Among those present were Messrs. J.J. Howden, E M Best, E S Clarry, C G Graham, J D Clarke, C E Slocon, Dick Baker, R P Best, Fred Simpson, Peter Wallace, C James and others.

The Officers

The first business taken up was the election of officers for the coming season and Messrs. E. S. Clatry and Dick Baker were appointed as a nominating committee to prepare a list of officers. This included the following, their report being adopted:

Hon. President—Hon. J. R. Stratton.

Hon. First Vice-Pressident—H. R. H. Kenner.

Hon. Second Vice-President—R. A. Morrow.

President—E. M. Best.

First Vice-President — J. J. Howden.

Second Vice-President — E. S. Clarry.

Third Vice-President — V. Eastwood.

Secretary—R. M. Glover.

Treasurer—C. G. Graham.

Manager—Dick Baker.

Captain—Ray P. Best.

Executive Committee — W. E. Wesson, F. A. Clarke, E. A. Wilson, E. Bruce and E. A. Poe.

The meeting decided that the fees for senior members of the club be placed at fifty cents each, and for the juniors (under 18 years) 25 cents. Before the meeting closed last night there were a dozen members paid their fees and became active members of the Harrier Club of 1907-08.

Messrs. E. S. Clarry, C. G. Graham and E. M. Best were appointed a committee to make arrangements for the securing of the Brock [illegible] for the athletic meet in two weeks' time.

Simpson Honoured

Before the meeting closed, Messrs. E. S. Clarry and J. J. Howden spoke in eulogistic terms of the performance of Fred Simpson, the Mississauga Indian, in the Hamilton Herald race. They considered that his achievement there was remarkable, and a hearty vote of thanks was tendered him for the honours he had brought to Peterborough and to the Y.M.C.A. Harriers' Club.

READING OF AD. WAS MISLEADING

In yesterday's issue in connection with Richard Hall and Son's advertisement, an error appeared. The ad. should have read, "better qualities cannot be had at the regular price of these linoleums." The word "can" was substituted erroneously for "cannot," as might have been understood by the context.

Old Fire Hall Transformed Into Offices For Officials

Mr. J. W. Green, Tax Collector, In New Apartments—The Work Accomplished by Mr. Thomas Irwin

OFFICES ARE NOW READY

The improvements that have been going on in the city hall, in connection with the installation of new offices, and the transformation of the old fire hall, are now at an end. The work of Mr. Thomas Irwin, the contractor, has been satisfactorily accomplished and the offices are now ready for occupancy.

The interior wood work of the new offices is beautiful. The whole interior decorative work is finished to resemble quartered oak, and reflects great credit upon the artisans who did the work, Messrs. Sharp and Manning, who did the painting, and Mr. John Watson, who did the graining. It would take an expert to detect the difference between the imitation oak panels and (wainscoting and the real article.

The interior of the city building, where formerly the local fire brigade stored their ladders, hose, engine, etc., has been so changed and utilized, under the supervision of Mr. Irwin, that not a foot of space is wasted, in fact between two of the city office of the city engineer and the plumbing inspector, one wall is so fixed, that a single telephone by way of an arched pigeon hole does duty for two departments of the city service. Mr. Green, the city tax collector, was yesterday busily engaged in getting his department settled up and in working order. His office, as now located will save many a citizen from using strong language whilst, as in the past, having to climb stairs to pay over his hard earned dollars for nothing more tangible than a rubber stamped certificate of payment.

Sanitary Inspector Geo. Ball has a comfortable and nicely decorated office overlooking Simcoe street. The newly changed building contains one room of interest to future generations, viz., the "paper room," where 21 nicely finished, commodious and well planned cupboards have been built to contain bound volumes of the local newspapers. Two modern lavateries fitted up in the latest style, are to be found on the ground floor.

Between the police station and the other recently completed offices, is a room kept for tools and supplies of the city, but mainly such as are used by employees of the city engineer. Speaking of the city engineer, it might be noted that Mr. Hay has now ready for him a "dark room" to be used in making photographs blue prints of photographs of his plans.

Mr. Thompson the plumbing inspector, has a neat little office easily accessible to those wanting his services.

The only link between present conditions and absolute completion of the building is the knocking out of part of a brick wall, for a door between City Treasurer Frank Adams' office and the rest of the building. This will be done to-day. Messrs. MacGregor & Reid, the George street plumbers, were yesterday busily engaged, with a large staff of men to wiring up the building for electric lights. Mr. Adam Hall has already furnished a well done job of steam heating the whole premises.

Whilst the exterior of the City Buildings is admittedly not up to or in accordance with the prosperity and advancement of Peterborough, in appearance, the interior arrangements and officers are adequate and convenient for both city officials and the public.

A DEBATE FOR THE CITY YOUTHS

A Country or a City Girl For a Wife, To Be Discussed

The regular meeting of the C.O.C.F. will be held to-morrow evening in the S.O.E. Hall, Hunter street. A very interesting debate entitled "Resolved, That a young lady from the country should be more preferable for a wife than a young lady from the city." This query will be answered to the benefit of the young men.

How can you Test the Blood

Paleness of the lips, gums and the insides of the eye-lids tell of weak, watery blood, while other indications are languid, worn out and despondent feelings, headaches, nervous troubles and weakness of the bodily organs. To say that the blood is thin and weak is to say that it lacks iron and the other elements of which Dr. Chase's Nerve Food is composed. There is no greater blood builder.

Cheese Factories Should Receive Greatest Care

Key Note of Speeches at Dairymen's Meeting Yesterday Afternoon---How To Make The Cow Pay During The Winter---Employ The Best Labour At The Factory

A thoroughly representative meeting of the dairymen of this district, was that which assembled yesterday afternoon in th ecounty council chambers, to listen to addresses by gentlemen prominently connected with the Eastern Dairymen's Association. Mr. D. Derbyshire, ex-M. P., of Brockville Mr. George H. Barr, official referee of butter and cheese, Montreal, Mr. George G. Publow, Chief Dairy Instructor, Kingston; Mr. Henry Glendenning, Manilla; Mr Ward, local instructor; and Mr. Geo. A. Gillespie, director of this district. The large attendance was appreciated by the visiting speakers, and is also a testimony that the dairymen of this district are becoming more interested in the work of improving improving the conditions that now exist.

Mr. Gillespie opened the meeting, expressing his pleasure that such a large number were present. On his motion, which was heartily endorsed by everyone, Mr. Derbyshire was appointed chairman.

Mr. Derbyshire's Remarks

As an introduction to the afternoon's programme Mr. Derbyshire expressed his appreciation of the honour of being called upon to provide at such a large meeting of well known dairymen of this district. He was delighted with the advancement that was apparent in the county of Peterborough and the same was noticeable all along the line. Although the season may result in a shortage, still the farmers are receiving better prices, which meet the difference. The past year had demonstrated the advisability of every farmer having a silo, so that when a pinch is felt in the supply of feed for cows the farmers can fall back on the silo. Mr. Derbyshire said he noticed that when corn was cultivated it grew far better than that which received no attention. eH advised the farmers that when they experienced a meagre season they should make every preparation for future years. It was a pity, he said, to have no milk, as was the case last spring, when the best prices were being paid. Probably the best preparation they could make was to erect a silo, and to keep it well stored.

Mr. Gillespie's Election

Mr. Derbyshire called for the election of a director to represent this district in the Eastern Dairymen's Association. Mr. George A. Gillespie, who held the position last year, was again chosen unanimously. Mr. Derbyshire paid a warm tribute to Mr. Gillespie's ability and energy, and said that an excellent choice had been made. He then called upon Mr. Ward to give a report of his work as instructor for this district during the past summer.

Mr. Ward reviewed the climatic conditions, stating that some bad spells had been experienced. His statement was as follows:

No. of factories under his charge, 37.

No. of patrons connected with these factories, 1796.

No. of patrons met and conversed with, 387.

No. of factories visited, 391.

This last includes 37 day visits, where a day or part of a day was spent. He also tested one sample of milk for adulteration. Mr. Ward suggested that all the factories pay for their milk according to the quality. Eleven factories of the district now pursue this policy. Proprietors and cheese makers are subject to it mostly on account of the increased labour. Mr. Ward maintained that it would pay the patrons if they would secure a helper who could attend to this work. Mr. Ward said that the best of relations existed between himself and the patrons. He believed that an honest effort was being made to improve the conditions about the factories. Some of them were supplied with cheap labour, which resulted in an inferior quality of cheese being manufactured.

Cheapness Predominates

Mr. Barr was the next speaker introduced. He opened his address by referring to one of Mr. Ward's remarks, namely, "Why are the factories making so many second grade cheese?" The first reason he advanced was that the whole trend of the dairy business to-day is towards cheapness. The "get rich quick" tendency, he said, will undoubtedly bring disaster sooner or later. The farmers want the cheese made as cheaply as possible, and as a result they are getting poor cheese made. The standpoint to look at it from is what will the dairy business be twenty years from to-day? The farmers have fine residences, lawns, barns and equipment, but are neglecting the factories, which are one of the greatest sources of revenue. If unskilled men are employed at low rates the cheese is bound to be of second rate quality, and the reputation of Canadian cheese will be affected, which would be disastrous to the trade. It therefore remains with the patrons to maintain the general reputation.

The best plan, Mr. Barr said, is to secure a good man and pay him well, and fine cheese may then be expected. An intelligent, businesslike maker influences his whole section. If the conditions about the factory are kept scrupulously clean the patrons will be led to do likewise. If a lawn, flower garden and trees are kept in good condition the patrons will be influenced to beautify their own premises.

Mr. Publow's Address

Mr. Publow, the next speaker, gave a most instructive and interesting address. The farmers should have the greatest interest in the factories. They keep the cows, thus providing the milk, and when it goes to the factory they should be confident that it was then in charge of a capable man, that the manufactured cheese should bring the best returns on the market. When one or two patrons send in milk that is not in good condition, the buyer of the poorer grade cheese will be sure to report it as such when the same factory may be turning out the best quality at other times.

The patron should send the milk in a good condition that the maker can do his best with it. He should be able to tell the quality of it, and if he cannot he should not be retained. The milk should be kept clean and cool, and under unusual climatic conditions special care should be given it.

Cool Curing

The speaker said that it was more from the fact that farmers have not the best appliances, rather than that they did not know how to handle it. He was pleased to note the icehouses in connection with stands. The milk crop to speak in that way, is an important one and should receive careful attention. Wheat and other farm products are given particular care, and milk should not be neglected. The farmers should have a good place where milk can be quickly cooled and sheltered from rain and sun. Mr. Publow said that the maker should refuse every can of milk which he believes cannot make the best returns to the farmer. The cheese was excellent until the end of June, when the hot weather was experienced. Milk should be cooled to at least sixty degrees. When cooling rooms are provided the milk is good all through the season. Many of the cheese-makers appear dissatisfied with their occupation, when such a condition should not exist. The men who produce the milk are the greatest factors in the quality, and if milk is not good the maker cannot achieve proper results. He and the instructors of the district should be qualified men, and if not should not be employed.

Mr. Publow paid particular attention to the cooling rooms, where the temperature can be maintained at regular height during all the seasons of the year.

Continuing, he said that the cost to the maker of hauling the milk is too much in some cases, and he knew men who had worked all season and had but little to show for it from causes of this nature. Employ only the bright and intelligent makers who turn out the best cheese, and try to keep the grounds and buildings in a neat and clean condition, Mr. Publow advised. It is a great difficulty to get good men to go into the making of cheese, and therefore the conditions for them should be made better so as to attract the best men, and in this way get good makers, and as a result the progress of the Canadian manufacturer will be assured.

To a query from the audience, Mr. Publow said that the principal fault with Peterborough cheese was the coarseness of the texture.

The Dairy Cow

Mr. Glendenning was the next speaker and dealt with the dairy cow.

"We must have the best cows, the best feed for them, the best factory, the best maker and then the best price will be realized," he said. He dealt chiefly with the most desirable cow and from a chart promoted a discussion as to the qualities most looked for. He also brought up the question of how to produce milk cheaply for butter in winter. First he said there should be a silage and second the farmer should grow alfalfa hay. This hay can be stored in a barn at a cost of $2.50 a ton as against $24.00 a ton for bran. He next detailed the proper way to cultivate alfalfa hay.

How to Make Money

An ordinary cow, said Mr. Glendenning, will not consume more than 11-2 tons of alfalfa during the six winter months, and showed how money can be saved by the following diet :—

1 1-2 tons alfalfa hay	$ 3 75
3 tons of silage	7 00
2 tons of roots	4 00
	$14 75

This is the maximum cost for one cow during the six months. One cow, Mr. Glendenning said, should produce 125 lbs. of butter during the same time, which would return at least $37.50, leaving a gain of $22.75. This he said, is not only a possibility, but is in actual use.

The meeting was adjourned after a vote of thanks had been passed to the County for the use of the room, and also to the visiting speakers. It closed with the singing of the National Anthem.

Tully's Hair Tonic

and DANDRUFF CURE makes the hair grow July 24th, 1907

About the month of September, 1906, my hair began to come out in large spots, leaving the scalp perfectly bare on the right side of the head, also my beard on the left side. About the 15th of December I showed it to J. D. Tully, Druggist; he said that he had a preparation that would restore the hair. I could scarcely credit his statement, but decided to try it, and in three weeks using the hair commenced to grow. Since that time I have lost nearly all my old hair which has been entirely replaced with new hair, and the beard also. I consider this by all means the best hair grower on the market, as I had previously tried other preparations without any effect. Any one wishing to ask me about it will find me at my house, 265 McDonnel Street, Peterborough, or at R. R. Crossing, G.T.R., Charlotte St.

NEW STEAMER GOES DOWN RIVER

Trip to Buckhorn of the Bessie Butler is Postponed

The new Government steamer, the "Bessie Butler," did not go to Buckhorn to-day as intended, on account of the disagreeable weather. She had intended making her first voyage north this morning, but for the above reason it has been postponed.

Instead, she went for a spin down the Otonabee a few miles, passing through the Peterborough look about 9.30 o'clock.

ACRES OF DUCKS IN PIGEON LAKE

Mr. George Cochrane Sees Hundreds Of Them on The Water

Mr. George Cochrane, High County Constable, returned last night from a two-day trip in Harvey township, in the vicinity of Pigeon Lake, and gives some interesting information about the game in that vicinity. On Pigeon Lake towards its centre, he saw acres of wild ducks that could not be reached with a gun. They remained out from shore the greater part of the time, and it was only by decoys that they could be secured at all. One hunter was successful in bringing down a few but for the want of a canoe it was impossible to get them.

Mr. Cochrane reports that the deer are not very plentiful around Pigeon Lake, but nevertheless, Mr. Nicholls, one of the settlers, was successful in securing a couple,

FINGERS AMPUTATED BY ACCIDENT

Joseph O'Toole Had Two Fingers Cut Off While at Work in Electric Company's Works

A very painful accident occurred this morning about 8.30 at the Canadian General Electric Works of this city. The victim was Mr. Joseph O'Toole, an employee of the Transformer Department. It appears he was engaged in cutting sheet iron for transformers, and while his left hand was underneath the knife he accidentally pressed his foot, cutting off two fingers above the second joint. Dr. Young was telephoned for and did everything in his power to ease the pain until the Dan Spence ambulance arrived and Mr. O'Toole was taken to the Nicholls Hospital, where the fingers were dressed.

CONCERT COMPANY IS BEING FORMED

A Number of the Leading Male Talent Of This City Form Concert Company

A number of vocalists, readers and comedians of this city have at last, it is stated, got together in the form of a company. The names of the members and officers of this club have not been given out yet, but it is understood that they include some of the best of Peterborough's entertainers. The object of the club is to give concerts in the city and in the surrounding towns and villages. There are several of these clubs in Toronto, Montreal and Ottawa. In fact, every large city contains a few. Some of them have sent graduates to the professional stage, and in a city like Peterborough there is no reason why there cannot be produced a club that will compare favourably with any of the rest.

Varicose Ulcers Cured

Mrs. Elisabeth Campbell, of 20 Sheridan avenue, Toronto, states, — "About eight years ago I hurt my leg near the ankle, and the result was what doctors called varicose sores. I was treated in two Toronto hospitals and sent away without being cured. From the very first Dr. Chase's Ointment helped me, and by persistent use it has entirely cured me."

The Examiner

Another Boy won a Two Dollar Cash Prize Saturday by hustling with the Daily Examiner and increasing his number of customers in a week's time by 15.

Dominique Barnett had 3 customers on Monday, and on Saturday had 18, getting the prize.

Newsboys

do not find it hard to sell THE EXAMINER and have entered the Competition in earnest. Five or six boys are in the running this week for the Prize to be given Saturday, and the boy that wins will not have many ahead of the next one, so all should hustle a little harder.

A number of the boys are quietly securing two and three new customers each week, which, when totalled at the end of the competition, will be sure to get them one of the Prizes; of which there are 18, ranging from $25.00 for First Prize down to One Dollar, and 18 different boys will have to win. The amount you win depends entirely upon yourself.

Make up your mind that if you now sell the DAILY EXAMINER, you will sell more of them, and that if you do not now, that you will commence at once.

The selling of the Examiner alone is a good money maker for a boy, and the Competition is an opportunity for rewarding your industry.

McKenzie To Referee Saturday's Big Battle

Officials Have Been Agreed Upon---Hughie Hayes Of Hamilton Will Umpire---One Of The Best Games Ever Seen Here is Promised---Both Teams In Good Shape

All doubts as to whether or not Westmount would be here on Saturday for the final game in the senior series of the O.R.F.U. was set at rest last night when Secretary McDonough received a telegram from the Easterners to the effect that they would be here on Saturday all right, and suggesting Phil. McKenzie of Montreal as referee. This was satisfactory to the locals, who selected Hughie Hayes, of Hamilton as umpire. With two such officials, the game should be one of the cleanest and best contests ever seen here. Westmount is very confident of winning here. Their team is a strong one and has had the advantage of being coached and trained by some of the best rugby authorities in the east, and they will not go down to defeat without a hard struggle for the honours.

The game will be played at Riverside Park and will be called at 2.30 o'clock sharp. Peterborough are in good shape, having benefitted by their games with Victorias and the succeeding practices and they will play the game of their lives on Saturday. No one who enjoys a game of rugby can afford to miss this struggle, and the gate should be the largest in the history of the Club. It will be appreciated by the management who, in the case of a win, will have to face the expense of sending a team to Ottawa next Saturday to play for the Dominion honours, a chance which has never come to Peterborough before.

HAMMOND'S WALKING RECORD

Correspondent Gives Some Information About The Event

A correspondent to the sporting editor of the Examiner gives the following information about long distance walking, telling of a feat which Hammond the celebrated Englishman, has performed:—

How does the performance of Hartley compare with that of the Englishman, Hammond, who on June 22, at the instance of the Surrey Walking Club, made an attack on the London to Brighton and back record of 20 hours and 32 minutes? Hammond kept up a clip of about six miles per hour, made no halt at Brighton, but simply rounded the official timekeeper. He finished strong and well. Hammond's time for 100 miles, was 17 hours, 25 minutes and 22 seconds.

SPORTING NEWS AND VIEWS

The Street Railway Company will soon have to move away from Toronto if the people keep up the Belt Line walk. Nearly everybody in Toronto has tried it now, but Mayor Coatsworth and Joe Hay, and the latter will take it on soon when he has got the O.R.F.U. off his hands.

• • • •

If the locals defeat Westmount on Saturday they will in all probability play Ottawa College for the Dominion honours, and, as has been intimated more than once in these columns, the club is very badly equipped in the matter of uniforms. If the ladies of the city could devise a way by which money could be raised to provide the team with suitable sweaters and stockings for the trip to Ottawa, they would earn the affection and gratitude of the entire Rugby community. At present the garb of the club looks like the costumes of a fancy dress ball, all the colours of the rainbow, and it would be a poor advertisement for Peterborough to send out a team to play for the Dominion championship dressed in such a manner. Clothes do not make a man, nor uniforms players, but sweaters and stockings of uniform design and colour would greatly improve the appearance of the fourteen.

• • • •

Rugby enthusiasts are hoping for better weather before Saturday. The brand to-day would hardly be suitable for the final game, but the Petes have played in worse than this, and got away with it, too.

• • • •

Westmount has two teams playing away from home on Saturday, and the championship in both cases depends upon the results of the games. The rugby team is playing at Peterborough for the senior championship of the O.R.F.U., and the association football team meets Ottawa in the capital city for the soccer championship of Eastern Canada.

• • • •

The greatest joke of the season in athletic circles has just been perpetrated by the Amateur Athletic Federation of Canada, which has suspended Tom Longboat. The federation is composed of the representatives of a few eastern professional hockey and lacrosse teams, and the ruling will not affect the great Indian in the least, inasmuch as the only events he will be barred from participating in will be the annual games of the professional hockey and lacrosse leagues.

• • • •

The Stratford Hockey Club will hold its annual meeting this week. For a while it looked as if the Classic City would have no hockey team, but the prospects have brightened during the past week and the game will flourish there again this winter.

Almost the first question a doctor puts to his patient is in reference to the action of the bowels. By keeping the bowels regular you avoid the serious derangements of the kidneys and liver, and can defy colds and contagious diseases. BATTLE WITH THE WAVES.

Yachtsmen's Exciting Ordeal Off the Coast of Wales.

An exciting rescue of yachtsmen from their craft was recently witnessed off the coast of Rhyl. From eight o'clock in the morning the front was thronged with people who watched the fight of the lifeboat against a very heavy sea to reach the yacht which was flying signals of distress five miles out to sea. The mast of the vessel could be plainly seen through glasses, and the progress of the lifeboat against the gale and tide was followed with the greatest interest from the shore and the end of the pier. The boat succeeded in bringing to shore the crew of the yacht, and they told a distressing story. The vessel proved to be the Ruby, of the Tramere and Burbo Sailing Clubs, and on board were the owner and one man. The vessel is a five-tonner, and she left the River Allt for her winter quarters in the Conway. Some difficulty was experienced on the voyage, but eventually the men found themselves about five miles off Rhyl. In consequence of their situation it was decided to drop anchor, and signals of distress were hoisted. The look-out of the Rhyl lifeboat in the evening reported a yacht off the coast, but no signal was made out. The wind freshened considerably during the night, and a gale blew. The men on the yacht then attempted to signal by means of petroleum, but could not get "a flare." During the night their distress signal was blown away, and at daybreak they rigged up a distress flag made from a towel. This was seen at about 7.30 by the coxswain of the lifeboat. He promptly summoned the crew, and the firing of the rockets brought a large crowd to the beach. The boat was launched by means of drag ropes, the visitors and residents lending a hand. The wind was dead against the boat, and the huge breakers made progress very slow. For two hours the men pulled at their oars in the teeth of the wind and against the spring tide. It was not until 10.30 that they were able to reach the yacht. The two men on board were taken off, and the lifeboat was turned towards the shore. The yacht, which was at anchor, had to be left and she could be seen from the beach rocking in the rough sea, the waves breaking over her. On reaching the shore the crew of the lifeboat and the rescued men met with a hearty reception. The rescued men were taken to the lifeboat house and given a change of clothing.

250,000 PRISONERS.

Gaoler at London Police Court Has Wonderful Record.

Assistant Gaoler James Bristowe of Clerkenwell Police Court has now retired after completing 26 years of service in the Metropolitan Police. Magistrates whose work lies principally in that court have found him of incalculable assistance. Deprived of the aid of his wonderful memory for prisoners, the work of the bench will be much more difficult now he has gone. Bristowe has created a wonderful record, for it is estimated that no fewer than a quarter of a million wrongdoers have passed through his hands during his long service. Among the most notable cases that he recalls—and his memory is a storehouse of curious and notorious crimes—are some that must still linger in the recollections of newspaper readers. There was Galley, the Kings Cross butcher, who died to death his landlord and landlady about eight years ago, and no doubt Sarti will not be forgotten—the man who was responsible for the big robbery of thousands of pounds' worth of silver ingots from the Midland Railway station. He eventually poisoned himself after undergoing penal servitude. Then there were Mrs. Each and Mrs. Walters, the baby farmers, the last women to suffer the extreme penalty of the law in London; and Bridgeman, who murdered his mother-in-law four years ago. "Chicago May" and the miss. "Mr. Nobody of Nowhere," are, of course, quite fresh in the public memory. "Chicago May" was, perhaps, the most picturesque prisoner with whom Bristowe has dealt.

Lumbering Of The Towering Timbers Of British Columbia

Apparent Inexhaustible Forests On The Pacific Coast—The Beauty Of The Timber Lands

THE HAUNTS OF THE BEAR

Giant Trunks Of The Tall Pines Scrape The Hubs of Vehicles—Must All Go Some Day

From the East Kootenay to Peace River, and from Vancouver Island to beyond the Skeena, they come in hundreds to the office of the Commissioner of Public Works at Victoria—applications for timber licenses. The Victoria official newspaper has columns in the stereotyped form re "permission to cut and carry away timber," till one wonders at the apparently inexhaustible forest which contains such myriad limits in its area.

Of all parts of the province, probably Vancouver Island is the scene of most activity in the business of securing timber lands. Many a day this summer fast going autos can be seen whirling along the splendid roads that stretch from Victoria up to the north and interior of the island. In these high-priced cars sit keen-faced millmen from the republic to the south. They want saw-logs, of which their native States of Washington, Oregon, etc., are getting pretty well depleted.

In Timber Lands

As the chauffeur sits with eyes glivetted on the road, where some dexterity is required to manoeuvre the fast-going machine among the great tree trunks, stumps and windfalls that abut upon the highway, his patrons are busy sizing up the timber with envious eyes. Frequently the roadway skirts swampy country (the roadbed ever the same, sandy soil and gravel, an ideal one for all weathers), where dense thickets would obscure a deer 20 yards away. These are the bottoms where great cedars predominate, towering about the jungle of brush and alders which grow with tropical luxuriance in the damp, black loam, rich from ages of decayed vegetable matter. Away from road or trail, travelling through such woods is a wearisome process, what with clambering over huge wind-fallen giants, and gingerly walking along prone trunks that have been arrested in their fall, criss-crossed many feet from the ground. These swamps are the favourite haunts of bear, and the venerable cedars growing therein are the joy of the shingle-bolt man, who, by the way, is too busy to be interested in the flora, fauna and natural history of the woods.

The Big Trees

Timber varies with the soil. On the edge of a big beaver meadow one finds cedar, spruce, balsam, and a small, stray white pine occasionally, to say nothing of alder and soft maple; while further on, when the road rises to the dry ridges, the great, staple timber of the Coast is seen—Douglas fir. And what trees! "British Columbia toothpicks"—irreverent epithet, originating doubtless with some jealous visitor. Big trees! Why, they are all big, only some are colossal—that is the only word to do justice to those straight, towering shafts of timber. One famous limit far above tide water, at the foot of the interior mountains, is traversed by the stage road, which winds through hundreds of acres of superb firs, whose giant trunks, in places, almost scrape the hubs of passing vehicles. A cool twilight pervades this place, even in the brightest of days, for mountains at the sides and the vast canopy of boughs one hundred feet overhead, permit only stray shafts of sunshine to penetrate the shadowy aisles of the wood. Through this grand, park-like forest, the traveller can see far back, for no underbrush grows there—nothing but a vista of smooth, grey trunks, whose green tops are sometimes two hundred feet above the soft floor of the woods, where thick masses spread like a velvet carpet, set off by ferns, banks of tall bracken smothering old logs and beds of delicate maidenhair.

Fire the Destroyer

And this glorious forest must all go some day. The large lumber interests which own it know the value of each acre, and as soon as railway communication is established with salt water, the hum of a sawmill will echo through the woods, and trainloads of lumber will roll down grade to the Coast.

With all the activity of the lumbermen, and the inroads they are making on accessible timber, fire is the greatest destroyer of forests. In spite of laws against, and watchfulness to prevent it, large areas are yearly swept over by the devouring element. Not that the trees are actually burned up in many cases, for the fire runs through the underbrush and dead stuff, settling on old logs and dried out rampikes, which usually contain considerable pitch. In the case of the green timber, the flames skim up the trunk, licking up moss and trickles of gum, and apparently, beyond blackening the trunk, doing no harm. But a severe scorching is nevertheless very injuries, and the lumber sawn from such trees is inferior.

In Winter Seasons

To strangers who have beheld the British Columbia woods during the rainy season, the idea of fire running riot amongst such vegitation seems almost impossible. Well! A winter with many days of faden skies, when the moisture-laden clouds drop earthward in a steady, hopeless drizzle; a time when the evergreen and everpresent "salall" bush sheds showers on the hardy venturer into the sylvan depths, and when the whole woods are soaking and dripping. But a little fine weather and the forest is soon dried out, till when August is reached, nearly everything is combustible and a prey to the carelessly smothered fire which camper and prospector too often leave smoldering behind them, and which frequently terminate in a brown cloud of smoke, with its aftermath of blackened country.

Licenses Cost Little

But to refar to the first part of this effusion, anent the timber licenses. All unoccupied Government timber lands are subject to lease by any individual, though not by corporations directly. The annual fee payable for logging privileges on 640 acres—that is the right to cut all the timber on a section being the relatively modest sum of $1.10. Given every access to tide water, combined with a fair average berth of timber, and the fortunate securer of such a license stands to make a good thing, either by "hand logging" on his own account or by disposing of his lease to one of the large milling concerns, who are always ready to buy up such propositions. Needless to say, the timber lease that has up till now, escaped the eagle eye of the cruisers, is rara avis.

Timber Cruisers

Of professional timber cruisers in British Columbia there is a plenty—lean, tough-muscled men who read the forest like a book, and who would smile at the idea of getting lost in the sea of trackless timber. With forty pounds hanging from the peak straps on their shoulders, and a compass in their pocket, they are ready to hike anywhere—through swamp, along broken coast line over the crags and bluffs of the numerous mountain divides, crawling through mazes of logs and up-turned roots, following deer trails where cougars crouch for their prey, they plod along, scanning the ground for corner stakes and boundaries, the while they swiftly estimate the fir and cedar.

Sometimes the cruisers go on their own account, frequently in the interests of the big milling companies, who are adding daily to their vast holdings in British Columbia. In the latter case the cruisers go to inspect leases for sale, for, with the snapping up of limits everywhere, much indiscriminate staking is done, and many a Government license is found to embrace an area far up a mountain side, where the fir, sparse, wind-shaken and stunted, is anything but desirable. Such leases are frequently taken up on the chance—nowadays when almost anything is saleable — of "catching a sucker" before next year's payment becomes due.

Getting Scarce

"Timber is getting scarce!" It seems incredible to the traveller, who sees bush, bush and more bush reaching out everywhere. Nevertheless, the "big sticks," right handy to the water are getting exhausted, and stuff that would have been culled a very few years ago is now skidded out for the boom.

But to an easterner there still seems to be a prodical disregard for wood all along the coast, and many an Ontarion sighs when he thinks of the hard cash he could realise were it only possible to magically transfer those same left-over and cast-aside logs "back east," where sawlogs are sawlogs, and in a similar case to the well-known one of the (pardon the chestnut) Saxon and Hibernian. The former, seeing Pat driving a fat steer to Limerick market, inquired "how much he would get for the animal." "Fifteen pounds," was the answer. "Why!" said the Englishmen, "if you had him in Liverpool you would get twenty pounds for him." "Yes," exclaimed Pat, "and if I had the lakes of Killarney at the gates of hell, I could get a shilling a glass for them."

Coals to Newcastle

Imagine any lumber dealer from a foreign country endeavouring to find in British Columbia a market for his goods. This actually happened a short time ago at Victoria, when a Russian had come for the purpose of inquiring into the chances of selling Siberian timber out here. We think he abandoned the idea, although his firm makes extensive shipments of telegraph poles, etc., to Mexico. At any way the Russian may have been only one hundred and fifty years or so too early, for Rudyard Kipling, in a fantastic "glimpse into the future" story reckons on Siberia as the lumber producer for the brotherhood of nations that will then be living on this Utopian globe. But those times are apparently a long way off, and the Pacific coast holds the palm yet.

With British Columbia timber limits it is much the same story as it was in regard to Northwest lands. The Americans are getting in on the ground floor, and while English capital lags behind in the time-honoured, conservative way, the shrewd Yankee is getting a huge slice of what is today the finest timber country in the world.

Not Much Chance For Local Option In Apsley

Supporters of Movement Working Hard to Get Required Number Of Names—Villagers Are All Hunting Deer These Days

A MINING PROPOSITION

Examiner Special.

Apsley, Nov. 8. — Rain, mud and bad roads.

Not so many hunting parties passed through the village as in former years.

Mr. Chas. V. Bell, is on a visit to friends in Lakefield this week.

The Apsley cheese factory closed down last week after a successful season.

Partridge are very scarce this fall, the cold wet spring having destroyed the eggs or young birds.

Wolves have been heard howling several times lately to the west of our village.

Hallowe'en was very quiet here. The small boys were in evidence but confined themselves to harmless noises and pranks.

W. Gray of Lakefield, who lately discovered what is reported to be a valuable mine, near the village, is at present engaged in extending the shaft and expects a couple of experienced American capitalists in a few days when, if they are satisfied with the outlook, work of development on an extensive scale will be proceeded with.

The Peterborough Lumber Company's camps at Jack's Lake, are now in full swing with some 40 men each. E. G. Whigg has charge of one and Joe Watson of the other.

Lillicrap and Tate have started a camp in Amstruther about 3 miles north of the village, with Trick Simpson in charge of the 30-odd men now at work.

Thanksgiving day was not observed here. No church service, stores open, and pig-killing seeming to occupy the attention of most people.

All the young men not engaged in the lumber camps are off deer hunting, some 25 licenses having been issued from the clerk's office. So far not many deer have been killed although they are said to be plentiful, but the heavy rains of the last few days have prevented dogs running or going into the woods.

Our old friend, Joe Yelland, of Peterborough, is down at Jack's Lake, with several men repairing the dam at the outlet into Jack's Creek. As all the timber required has to be teamed from here to the lake over a bad road, and then taken on a punt or towed for a distance of six miles down the lake, Joe has no light task, especially with the stormy weather of the past few weeks.

The supporters of local option have had quite a little difficulty in secur-

SAYS THIS IS BEST

A leading health journal in answering the question, "What is the best prescription to clean and purify the blood?" prints in a recent issue the following:

Fluid Extract Dandelion one ounce;

Compound Salatone, one ounce;

Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla, four ounces.

Shake well and use in teaspoonful doses after each meal and at bedtime.

A well-known physician states that these are harmless vegetable ingredients, which can be obtained from any good prescription pharmacy.

This mixture will clean the blood of all impurities. In just a few days the skin begins to clear of sores, boils and pimples. It puts vigor and energy into run-down debilitated men and women. For many years Sarsaparilla alone has been considered a good blood medicine. But while it built up and made new blood, the impurities remained within and the good accomplished was only temporary. Sarsaparilla, however, when used in combination with Compound Salatone and Extract Dandelion, works wonders. This combination puts the kidneys to work to filter and sift out the waste matter, uric acid, and other impurities that cause disease. It makes new blood and relieves rheumatism and lame back and bladder troubles.

A STORY OF LOVE AND ADVENTURE

"How the devil came you here?"

"Evidently by way of M. Ferou's house," M. Etienne answered. Mayenne still stared in thick amazement; after a moment my master added: "I must in justice say that M. Ferou is not aware that I am using this passage; he is, with madame his wife, supping with the Archbishop of Lyons."

M. Etienne leaned his shoulder against the wall, smiling pleasantly and waiting for the duke to make the next move. Mayenne kept a nonplussed silence. The situation was indeed somewhat awkward. He could not come forward without encountering an agile opponent, whose exceeding skill with the sword was probably known to him. He could not turn tail, had his dignity allowed the course, without exposing himself to be spitted. He was in the predicament of the goat on the bridge. Yet was he gaping at us less in fear, I think, than in bewilderment. This Ferou, as I learned later, was one of his right-hand men, years-long supporter. Mayenne had as soon expected to meet a lion in the tunnel as to meet a foe. He cried out again upon us, with an instinctive certainty that a great prince's question must be answered.

"How came you here?"

"I don't ask," said M. Etienne, "how it happens that M. le Duc is walking this rathole. Nor do I feel disposed to make any explanation to him."

"Very well, then," said Mayenne; "our swords, if you are ready, will make adequate explanation."

"Now, that is gallant of you," returned M. Etienne, "as it is evident that the closeness of these walls will inconvenience Your Grace more than it will me."

The walls of the passage were roughly laid, Mayenne perched his lantern on a projecting stone.

"On guard, sir," he answered.

The silence was profound. Mayenne had no companion following him. He was alone with his sword. He was not head of the state, but only a man with a sword, standing opposite another man with a sword. Nor was he in the pink of form. Though he gave the effect, from his clear color and proud hearing, perhaps aside from his masterful energy, of tremendous force and strength, his body was in truth a poor machine, his great corpulence making him clumsy and scant of breath. He must have known, as he eyed his supple antagonist, what the end would be. Yet he merely said:

"On guard, monsieur."

M. Etienne did not raise his weapon. I retreated a pace that I might not be in the way of his jump should Mayenne spring on him. M. Etienne said slowly:

"M. de Mayenne, this encounter was none of my contriving. Nor have I any wish to cross swords with you. Family quarrels are to be deprecated. Since I still intend to become your cousin, I must respectfully beg to be released from the obligation of fighting you."

A man knowing himself overmatched cannot refuse combat. He may, even as Mayenne had done, think himself compelled to offer it. But if he insists on forcing battle with a reluctant adversary, he must be a hothead indeed. And Mayenne was no hothead. He stood hesitant, feeling that he was made ridiculous in accepting the clemency and should be still more ridiculous to refuse it. He half lifted his sword, only to lower it again, till at last his good sense came to his relief in a laugh.

"M. de Mar, it appears that, after all, some explanations are necessary. You think that in declining to fight you put me in your debt. Possibly you are right. But if you expect that in gratitude I shall hand over Lorance de Montluc, you were never more mistaken. Never, while I live, shall she marry into the king's camp. Now, monsieur, that we understand each other, I abide by your decision whether we fight or not.

For answer M. Etienne put up his blade. The Duke of Mayenne, saluting with his, did the like.

"Mar," he said, "you stood off from us, like a coquetting girl, for three years. At length, last May, you refused point-blank to join us. I do not often ask a man twice, but I ask you. Will you join the League to-night and marry Lorance to-morrow?"

No man could have spoken with a franker grace, I believed then, I believe now, he meant it. M. Etienne believed he meant it.

"Monsieur," he answered, "I have shilly-shallied long; but I am planted squarely at last with my father on the king's side. You put your interesting nephew into my father's house to kill him; I shall not sign myself with the League."

"In that case," returned Mayenne, "perhaps we might each continue on his way."

"With all my heart, monsieur."

Each drew back against the wall to let the other pass, with a wary eye for daggers. Then M. Etienne, laughing a little, but watching Mayenne like a lynx, started to go by. The duke, seeing the look, suddenly raised his hands over his head, holding them there while both of us squeezed past him.

"Cousin Charles," said M. Etienne, "I see that when I have married Lorance you and I shall get on capitally. Till then, God have you ever in guard."

"I thank you, monsieur. You make me immortal."

"I have no need to make you witty. M. de Mayenne, when you have submitted to the king, as you will one of these days, I shall have as delightful a kinsman as heart of man could wish. You and I will yet drink a loving cup together. Till that happy hour I am your good enemy. Fare you well, monsieur."

He bowed; the duke, half laughing despite a considerable ire, returned the obeisance with all pomp. M. Etienne took me by the arm and departed. Mayenne stood still for a space; then we heard his retreating footsteps, and the glimmer of his light slowly faded away.

"It wasn't necessary to tell him the door is bolted," M. Etienne muttered.

We hurried along now without precaution, knowing that the floor which had supported Mayenne would support us. The consequence was that we stumbled abruptly against a step and fell with a force like to break our kneecaps. I picked myself up at once and ran headlong up the stairs, to hit my crown on the ceiling and reel back on M. Etienne, sweeping him off his feet, so that we rolled in a struggling heap on the stones of the passage.

"I went to my post and he began singing."

And for the minute the place was no longer dark; I saw more lightning than ever flashed in the Rue Coupe-jarrets.

"Are you hurt, Felix?" cried M. Etienne, the first to disentangle himself.

"No," I said, groaning; "but I banged my head. She did not say it was a trap-door."

We ascended the stairs a second time—this time most cautiously on our hands and knees. Above us at the end we could feel, with upleaping of spirit, a wooden ceiling.

"Ah, I have the cord!" he exclaimed.

The next instant we heard a faint but most comforting tinkle somewhere above us. Before we had time to wonder whether any marked it but us we heard steps overhead, and a noise as of a chest being pulled about, and then the trap lifted. We climbed out into a silk-mercer's shop.

"Faith, my man," said M. Etienne to the little bourgeois who had opened to us, "I am glad to see you appear so promptly."

He looked at us, somewhat troubled or alarmed.

"You must have met"——he suggested with hesitancy.

"Yes," said M. Etienne; "but he did not object. We are, of course, of the initiated."

"Of course, of course," the little fellow assented, with a funny assumption of knowing all about it. "Not every one has the secret of the passage. Well, I can call myself a lucky man. 'Tis mighty few mercers have a duke in their shop as often as I."

We looked curiously about us. The shop was low and dim, with piles of stuff in rolls on the shelves, and other stuffs lying loose on the counter before us, as if the man had just been measuring them—gorgeous brocades and satins. Above us a bell on the rafter still quivered.

"Yes, that is the bell of the trap," the proprietor said, following our glance. "Customers do not know where it rings from. And if I am not at liberty to open I drop my brass yardstick on the floor. But they told you that, doubtless, monsieur?" he added, regarding M. Etienne again a little uneasily.

"They told me something else I had near forgotten," M. Etienne answered, and, drawing a crown in the air, gave the password, "For the Cause."

"For the King," the shopkeeper made instant rejoinder, drawing in the air in his turn a letter C and the numeral X.

M. Etienne laid a gold piece on the counter, and if the shopkeeper had felt any doubts of this well-dressed gallant who wore no hat they vanished in its radiance.

"And now, my friend, let us out into the street and forget our faces."

The man took up his candle to light us to the door.

"Perhaps it would not trouble monsieur to say a word for me over there?" he suggested, pointing in the direction of the tunnel. "M. le Duc has every confidence in me. Still, it would do no harm if monsieur should mention how quickly I let him out."

"When I see him I will surely mention it," M. Etienne promised him. "Continue to be vigilant to-night, my friend. There is another man to come."

Followed by the little bourgeois's thanks and adieus, we walked out into the sweet open air. As soon as his door was shut again we took to our heels, nor stopped running till we had put half a dozen streets between us and the mouth of the tunnel. Then we walked along in breathless silence.

Presently M. Etienne cried out:

"Death of my life! Had I fought there in the burrow I should have changed the history of France!"

CHAPTER XXI.

The street before us was as orderly as the aisle of Notre Dame. Few wayfarers passed us; those there were talked together as placidly as if love-trysts and melees existed not, and tunnels and countersigns were but the smoke of a dream. It was a street of shops all shuttered, while above the burghers' families went respectably to bed.

"This is the Rue de la Ferronnerie," my master said, pausing a moment to take his bearings. "See under the lantern, the sign of the Pierced Heart. The little shop is in the Rue de la Soierie. We are close by the Halles—we must have come half a mile underground. Well, we'll swing about in a circle to get home. For this night I've had enough of the Hotel de Lorraine."

And I. But I held my tongue about it, as became me.

"They were wider awake than I thought—those Lorrainers. Pardieu! Felix, you and I came closer quarters with death than is entirely amusing."

"If that door had not opened"——I shuddered.

"A new saint in the calendar—la Sainte Ferou! But what a madcap of a saint, then! My faith, she must have led them a dance when Francis I. was king!

"Nathless it galls me," he went on, half to himself, "to know that I was lost by my own folly, save by pure chance. I underrated the enemy—worst mistake in the book of strategy. I came near flinging away two lives and making a most unsightly mess under a lady's window."

"Monsieur made somewhat of a mess as it was."

"Aye. I would I knew whether I killed Brie. We'll go round in the morning and find out."

"I am thankful that monsieur does not mean to go to-night."

"Not to-night, Felix! I've had enough. No; we'll get home without passing near the Hotel de Lorraine, if we go outside the walls to do it. To-night I draw my sword no more."

To this day I have no quite clear idea of how we went. A strange city at night—Paris of all cities—is a labyrinth. I know that after a time we came out in some meadows along the river bank, traversed them and plunged once more into narrow, high-walled streets. It was very late, and lights were few. We had started in clear starlight, but now a rack of clouds hid even their pale shine.

"The snake-hole over again," said M. Etienne. "But we are almost at our own gates."

But, as in the snake-hole, came light. Turning a sharp corner we ran straight into a gentleman and his porte-flambeau, swinging along at as smart a pace as we.

"A thousand pardons," M. Etienne cried to his encounterer, the possessor of years and gravity but of no great size, whom he had almost knocked down. "I heard you, but knew not you were so close. We were speeding to get home."

The personage was also of a portliness, and the collision had knocked the wind out of him. He leaned panting against the wall. As he scanned M. Etienne's open countenance and princely dress his alarm vanished.

"It is unseemly to go about on a night like this without a lantern," he said with asperity. "The municipality should forbid it. I shall certainly bring the matter up at the next sitting."

"Monsieur is a member of the Parliament?" M. Etienne asked with immense respect.

"I have that honor, monsieur," the little man replied, delighted to impress us, as he himself was impressed, by the sense of his importance.

"Oh," said M. Etienne with increasing politeness, "perhaps monsieur had a hand in a certain decree of the 28th of June?"

The little man began to look uneasy.

"There was, as monsieur says, a measure passed that day," he stammered.

"A rebellious and contumacious decree," M. Etienne rejoined, "most offensive to the general-duke." Whereupon he fingered his sword.

"Monsieur," the little deputy cried, "we meant no offense to his Grace, or to any true Frenchman. We but desire peace after all these years of blood. We were informed that his Grace was angry; yet we believed that even he will come to see the matter in a different light"——

"You have acted in a manner insulting to his Grace of Mayenne," M. Etienne repeated inexorably, and he glanced up the street and down the street to make sure the coast was clear. The wretched little deputy's teeth chattered.

The linkman had retreated to the other side of the way, where he seemed on the point of fleeing, leaving his master to his fate. I thought it would be a shame if the badgered deputy had to stumble home in the dark, so I growled out to the fellow:

"Stir one step at your peril!"

I was afraid he would drop the flambeau and run, but he did not; he only sank back against the wall, eying my sword with exceeding deference. He knew not that there was but a foot of blade in the scabbard.

The burgher looked up the street and down the street, after M. Etienne's example, but there was no help to be seen or heard. He turned to his tormentor with a valor of a mouse at bay.

"Monsieur, beware what you do. I am Pierre Marceau!"

"Oh, you are Pierre Marceau? And can M. Pierre Marceau explain how he happened to be faring forth from his dwelling at this unholy hour?"

"I am not faring forth; I am faring home. I—we had a little con—that is, not to say a conference, but merely a little discussion on matters of no importance"——

"I have the pleasure," interrupted M. Etienne sternly, "of knowing where M. Marceau lives. M. Marceau's errand in this direction is not accounted for."

"But I was going home—on my sacred honor I was! Ask Jacques, else. But as we went down the Rue de l'Eveque we saw two men in front of us. As they reached the wall by M. de Mirabeau's garden a gang of footpads fell on them. The two drew blades and defended themselves, but the ruffians were a dozen—a score. We ran for our lives."

M. Etienne wheeled round to me.

"Felix, here is work for us. As I was saying, M. Marceau, your decree is most offensive to the general-duke, and therefore, since he is my particular enemy, most pleasing to me. A beautiful night, is it not, sir? I wish you a delightful walk home." He seized me by the hand and we dashed up the street.

At the corner the noise of a fray came faintly but plainly to our ears. M. le Comte without hesitation plunged down a lane in the direction of the sound. "I said I wanted no more fighting to-night, but two against a mob! We know how it feels."

The clash of steel on steel grew ever louder, and as we wheeled around a jutting garden wall we came full upon the combatants.

"A rescue, a rescue!" cried M. Etienne. "Shout, Felix! Montjoie St. Denis! A rescue, a rescue!"

We charged down the street, drawing our swords and shouting at the top of our lungs.

It was too dark to see much save a mass of struggling figures, with every now and then, as the steel hit, a point of light flashing out, to fade and appear again like a brilliant glowworm. We could scarce tell which were the attackers, which the two comrades we had come to save.

But if we could not make them out, neither could they us. We shouted as boldly as if we had been a company, and in the clatter of their heels on the stones they could not count our feet. They knew not how many followers the darkness held. The group parted. Two men remained in hot combat close under the left wall. Across the way one sturdy fighter held off two, while a sixth man, crying on his mates to follow, fled down the lane.

M. Etienne knew now what he was about, and at once took sides with the solitary fencer. The combat being made equal, I started in pursuit of the flying figure. I had run but a few yards, however, when I tripped and fell prostrate over the body of a man. I was up in a moment, feeling him to find out if he were dead; my hands over his heart dipped into a pool of something wet and warm like new milk. I wiped them on his sleeve as best I could, and hastily groped about for his sword. He did not need it now, and I did.

W. H. HILL, Esq., Manager Central Ontario
SUN LIFE OF CANADA,
Peterborough, Ont.

Dear Sir,—I have much pleasure in acknowledging the receipt of the cheque for $1,244, being the amount paid me on the maturity of my endowment policy, 35,390, in your Company, which matured on the 1st inst.

I find I have received almost 4 per cent. compound interest on every dollar paid in to the Company, and in addition have had free insurance for the past fifteen years.

Such a result speaks volumes for the management of your Company, and far exceeds my expectations, and I would be ungrateful indeed were I not to acknowledge it.

I was also offered a paid-up policy of $2,076, or an annuity for life of $111.55, both of which I consider excellent.

I thank you very much indeed and wish your Company the continued success and confidence it so richly deserves.

Yours very truly,

(Signed) REV. H. C. GARBUTT

ENGLAND

In the burial ground attached to the Parish Church of St. Pancras, London, there lay until recently the bodies of two Roman Catholic bishops whose names recall a stirring period of English history. One was Bonaventure Gifford, Bishop of Madaura, and the other Benjamin Petre, Bishop of Prusha. By permission of the Home Office, their bodies have been exhumed and buried again at the chapel of St. Edmund's College, Old Hall, Ware. The removal of the bodies took plae quite privately, and the re-interment took place at night. The two bishops were the second and third Vicars-Apostolic appointed by the Holy See to take charge of the London district, one of the four districts into which England was divided by Pope Innocent XI. in 1688, an arrangement which existed down to the restoration of the Papal Hierarchy in England and Wales by Pius IX. in 1850. Other Vicars-Apostolic were buried in the Roman Catholic Church at Moorfields, and when the church was demolished their bodies were removed to the chapel of St. Edmund. Since then Mgr. Ward has been endeavouring to obtain permission of the Home Office to move the bodies of the two bishops buried at St. Pancras, so that all the English Vicars-Apostolic shall rest in the same place. St. Edmund's claims the honour, because it is the oldest diocesan Catholic college in England.

A gallant attempt to rescue a drowning man was made at Southsea by Lieut. Arthur Bromley, of the King's yacht, Victoria and Albert, and a coastguardsman named Richardson. Driven by the fierce gale, heavy seas were rolling on the Southsea beach, and a labourer named Smith, employed on the work of reconstructing Southsea Parade Pier, was blown into the water, while at the same time part of the staging was washed away. Lieut. Bromley, who happened to be one of the spectators, partially undressed and sprang into the water. The tide was then at its height and the sea consequently at its greatest fury. The officer was in the greatest danger, since large baulks of timber washed from the structure were being dashed in every direction. Finding that the chances of a single-handed rescue were small, the lieutenant shouted for assistance. Richardson, who belongs to the adjoining station, heard the cries, and without hesitation went off the pier head without stopping to remove his heavy oilskins. He had been standing by with a lifebuoy just before and the two men succeeded in getting a rope around Smith's body. So rough was the sea, however, that this expedient did not answer, and the unfortunate man was torn away from his would-be rescuers and drowned. The officer and the coastguardsman got back to the beach with the greatest difficulty, and had to be pulled ashore by means of ropes.

The famous Tower Bridge, London, is at present being painted by a staff of 100 men. Nearly every man employed risks his life daily in some corner or other of the structure. They hang on with one hand, standing on a two-inch ledge, with the river running swift below them. They walk on two planks at a height of 200 feet above the stream. They climb like cats from girder to girder on the spans, hauling and rigging a heavy plank without a thought of danger. The old sailors who act as gatesmen on the bridge declare that they have never seen anything like it. Every man on the job rigs his own cord or scaffold, and every man must be prepared to work on the most difficult part of the job. You can choose any one of the seventy men and tell him to go up the flagstaff on the top and he will do it. When they painted the flagstaff, which sways in the wind over 200 feet above the river, the men could have removed it and painted it on the ground. The men who did the job preferred to climb the pole, and sitting in the bight of a bowline, painted it from the top. It was easier and quicker. The following figures give some idea of the work: Men working day and night, 100; paint, tons, 60; poles, 700; brushes 3000; cost of gilding, $2,000; total cost, 30,000. The work will require six months to complete.

SCOTLAND

The Glasgow steamer Hyndford arrived at Greenock a few days ago, with a cargo of sugar from Java. Over two years ago she left the Clyde on her maiden voyage, and since that time she has been all round the world. Her experiences have been of a most exciting nature, as for over a month she was adrift in the vicinity of the Straits of Magellan while on a voyage from Buenos Ayres to a Pacific port. She passed safely through the Straits on 10th September of last year, but lost her propeller in a strong north-west gale. The vessel then drifted toward what is one of the most dangerous coasts in the world, and while she was in this plight a small boat with five men was sent off in an endeavour to reach the nearest port for assistance. Neither boat nor men have since been heard of. Four days later land was sighted, and as the Hyndford drifted about hither and thither, she had many narrow escapes from destruction. On one occasion such sails as could be set were bent so as to send the ship sternwise, and in this way she was able to clear the rocks. Afterwards the Hidefenso Rocks loomed ahead, and as fog came down, the crew practically gave themselves up as lost. Strange to say, however, the Hyndford did not strike, although she got in among the surf, and when day broke the roar of the breakers had ceased. It was then seen she had again cleared the rocks, having miraculously drifted between them. Ultimately Captain Horne managed to bring his vessel to port at Stanley, in the Falkland Islands, and with the aid of an old propeller he was able to sail her to Monte Video.

As a result of the unfavourable nature of the summer, the return of visitors to the birthplace of Burns at Alloway shows a considerable decrease as compared with last year's record figures. The number of persons who paid the twopence charged for admission to the cottage for the year ending Sept. 30, was 53,418, as compared with 56,968 for the previous year. Six years ago the greatest number of visitors was under 34,000. The busiest week was the Glasgow Fair Week, when 8,166 persons passed the turnstiles, as compared with 9,181 in 1906. The largest number of visitors in one day was 2,310 on the Monday of Glasgow Fair. The number of visitors to the monument for the year was 58,665, as compared with 63,011 for the previous year. During the Fair week 9,368 paid for admission as against 10,689 in 1906. The largest number of visitors in one day was 2,826 on Glasgow Fair Monday. A feature of the year at both the cottage and monument was the large number of American visitors.

A group that attracted great attention on the landing stage at Liverpool recently was that of a number of Scottish shepherds bound for far-off Patagonia. They sailed by the Pacific liner Oravia, bound for Punta Arenas, Straits of Magellan, which is the most southern town in the world. These sturdy men are going to tend the flocks of Britishers who settled in Patagonian colonies many years ago, when the country was the happy hunting grounds of Indian tribes. The shepherds, to whom the bustle of the landing stage was a striking contrast from the solitudes of their native hills and glens, were all men in the prime of life and have been selected for their experience in the tending and management of flocks. They were dressed in the rough tweeds of the Western Highlands. As the steamer was leaving the satge, the shepherds grouped themselves on deck, and lustily sang "For Auld Lang Syne," the crowds on the stage joining in with great vigour until the familiar strains were lost in the distance.

IRELAND

A sad fatality has occurred on the railway line near Beragh, not many miles from Omagh, Co. Tyrone. The body of a young man was found lying on the line, the skull being smashed and the right arm cut off at the shoulder. Charles McElkinney, aged 22, was in the habit of walking along the line on his way home, and it is surmised that he had sat down on the track and attempted to light his pipe, as a few matches were found in the vicinity, and the marks on his heels were quite distinct. The night mail from Derry to Belfast is supposed to have caught him, his head being dashed against each of nine succeeding sleepers, and his brains scattered along the track. His teeth and portions of skull and bones were found for a distance of 30 yards, although his body was left at the ninth sleeper, at which point his arm had been cut off at the shoulder. At 6 o'clock on the following morning James Boyle noticed what he thought was a sheep on the line, owing to the clothes having been partially torn off the body by the train. On finding that it was a man's body he communicated with the police. It appears that Boyle, who found the body at what is known as a half-mile post, was previously in the habit of walking along the line, but a year ago he saw what seemed to be a railway porter, attired in a uniform of a bygone age, standing with a red flag, and he took to the fields, and never since ventured on the railway after dark. It was at this exact spot that he found the body.

At a recent meeting of a Donegal asylum committee it transpired that an inmate of the asylum had, while confined there, been dealing in sheep for the last six years, had taken land for grazing them, and now owned a number of sheep kept on the said land. It was further reported that the asylum attendants had taken land from this inmate had grazed sheep thereon belonging to themselves, and that at frequent intervals during the past six years the inmate had been allowed out of the asylum to transact business at fair, in charge of attendants who were, it is alleged, interested with him in sheep dealing. On one occasion the inmate received a telegram regarding a sale of sheep, and at another time was paid in the asylum grounds by a man to whom he sold sheep. The assistant medical superintendent was instructed to make inquiries into the alleged actions of the attendants. The committee recommended the governors to see that the inmate's sheep-dealing profits were applied towards the obliteration of the account for his maintenance.

While two fishermen were drafting for eels a considerable distance from the shore at Toomebridge, on Lough Neagh, they found in the net the head of a large elk in a good state of preservations. The horns were very long and branchy, and measured seven feet from tip to tip. The skull was almost intact, as were also the teeth. The fishermen, unaware of the value of their find, parted with the head for something like a couple of pounds to an unknown gentleman on landing. They were subsequently offered sums of from five to twenty pounds for the specimen from local gentlemen, and are making efforts to regain it. It appears that many years ago three large elks inhabited a wood convenient to Cookstown. On the wood being cut down they took flight, and were overcome by the waves. Recently a head similar to the one now discovered was taken from the water by a fisherman.

Matthew Mills, an aged "newsboy," of Keady, Armagh, has just received information that he has inherited a fortune of $75,000 through his brother and sister being burned to death in Melbourne. For nearly 20 years Mills, who is 70 years old, has earned his living by selling newspapers, and though frail, is still cheery. His brother and sister have frequently forwarded his passage money and pressed him to join them in Melbourne. He started several times, but never got farther than Armagh town, being quite happy and contented in his work. He intends to prove his identity and get the legacy, but declares that he will come back to his paper selling. He will not think of dropping his avocation, no matter what fortune he gets.

CAUGHT BY THE GRI... RELEASED BY FOG

La Grippe is Epidemic Catarrh.

THE disease now known as 'grip' used to be called 'influenza.'

It very closely resembles a cold, but is more tenacious in its hold upon the system and produces more profound disturbances.

Grip is in reality epidemic catarrh. When it once begins it spreads over the country very rapidly.

People do not catch the grip from each other, but each one catches it from the atmosphere.

"Most Effective Medicine Ever Tried for La Grippe."

Robt. L. Madison, A. M., Principal of Cullowhee High School, Painter, N. C., is chairman of the Jackson County Board of Education.

He is a writer of occasional verse and has contributed to a number of leading papers and magazines,—religious, educational and secular.

In speaking of Peruna, Mr. Madison says:

"I am hardly ever without Peruna in my home. It is the most effective medicine that I have ever tried for la grippe.

"It also cured my wife of nasal catarrh. Her condition at one time was such that she could not at night breathe through her nostrils.

"In consequence, an inflamed condition of the throat was brought about, getting worse and worse and yielding to no remedy until Peruna was tried."

Healthy Mucous Membranes.

Those who are fortunate enough to have perfectly healthy mucous membranes ordinarily do not catch the grip.

The mucous membranes lining the nose, throat and lungs, when in a normal state, are an effectual barrier against the invasion of grip.

But, if there happens to be the slightest catarrhal derangement of the mucous membranes, then the victim becomes an easier prey to the grip.

This in part explains why some people get the grip, while others do not.

The rational thing to do is to keep the system free from catarrh. In attempting to do this most people have found Peruna to be invaluable.

Systemic Catarrh, the Result of La Grippe. Pe-ru-na Receives Credit for Present Good Health.

Mrs. Jennie W. Gilmore, Box 44, White Oak, Ind. Ter., formerly Housekeeper for Indiana Reform School for Boys, writes:

"Six years ago I had la grippe, which was followed by systemic catarrh.

"The only thing I used was Peruna and Manalin, and I have been in better health the last three years than for years before.

"I give Peruna all the credit for my good health."

The Medical Profession Recognizes The Grip as Epidemic Catarrh.

During an epidemic of grip Peruna should be used. The doses recommended on the bottle are sufficient.

After the grip has once been acquired, Dr. Hartman recommends the use of Peruna in teaspoonful doses every hour during the acute stage, after which the directions on the bottle should be followed.

Experience has shown that the people who use Peruna as a remedy for grip generally recover sooner and are less liable to the distressing and long-continued after-effects of the grip.

When Peruna has not been used during the course of the grip and the patient finds himself suffering from the after-effects of this disease, a course of Peruna should be resorted to.

Suffered Twelve Years From After-Effects of La Grippe.

Mr. Victor Patneaude, 338 Madison St., Topeka, Kan., member of Knights and Ladies of Security, writes:

"Twelve years ago I had a severe attack of la grippe and I never really recovered my health and strength—but grew weaker every year, until I was unable to work.

"Two years ago I began using Peruna and it built up my strength so that in a couple of months I was able to go to work again.

"This winter I had another attack of la grippe, but Peruna soon drove it out of my system. My wife and I consider Peruna a household remedy."

Pneumonia Followed La Grippe.

Mr. T. Barnecott, West Aylmer, Ontario, Can., writes:

"Last winter I was ill with pneumonia after having la grippe. I took Peruna for two months, when I became quite well, and I can say that any one can be cured by it in a reasonable time at little expense."

Pe-ru-na—A Tonic After La Grippe.

Mrs. Chas. E. Wells, Sr., Delaware, Ohio, writes: "After a severe attack of la grippe, I took Peruna and found it a very good tonic."

Mrs. Jane Gift, Athens, Ohio, writes: "Six years ago I had la grippe very bad. I read a testimonial of a woman who had been cured of grip by Peruna. My husband bought me a bottle of Peruna. I was soon able to do my work. I continued using it until I was cured."

HEATERS!

Right Time to Buy Them and Special Inducement This Week

You may wait for cold weather to buy a heater if you've a mind to, but if you'll be advised by those who have to deal most with the selling of stoves, you will select a heater now and have it put in place and ready before the rush that invariably comes with a cold snap.

There is absolutely nothing gained in waiting—not even a saving in cost, as the prices will certainly be kept at normal when the demand is at its height, and then you'll be expected to take your turn in having it delivered and set up—a delay of two or three days perhaps.

We recommend these stoves with confidence:—

"I would ask you to marry me," Graham said bluntly, "but I can't."

Her eyes dilated, but she was quick of wit and action, and her reply came without a moment's hesitation.

"Indeed? Your attitude presupposes that I would accept you—if your systematic and well ordered mind had decided upon the asking," ironically.

"Yes, I think you would," he replied reflectively.

Angry spots blazed on Miss Fenton's cheeks. "This is—a little too much—from even you." She gripped the arm of her chair and leaned forward, her blazing eyes looking closely into his. "I have never been able to decide just what manner of man you are. Your reticence, your phlegmatic temperament and your crudeness are so foreign to me that they are an unreadable text. I've thought at times that they might cloak either a vast amount of intelligence and capability—or the lack of it. A large man like you only has to be reticent to make the world think he is a force to be considered—if he cared to exert himself. I have wondered at times if your reticence masked a lack—of original thought. But under no circumstances had I imagined it hid—colossal conceit."

Graham's powerful hands, without a trace of the nerve tension in her own, took from her the Japanese fan that she was unconsciously tearing in shreds.

"I am not conceited, but I do think that you would marry me—if I could ask you," this in the fashion of a man of little worldly polish. He failed to soften and explain his statement by adding that the desire of his heart was to make her his wife.

She, judging without this inner knowledge, fought as a woman will—fought to keep it from being known that she had given her love unasked.

"I will admit I see no foundation for your conceit." The ache in her heart goaded her to merciless cruelty. "How or why should you think that a woman of the world like myself, who has been accustomed to comfort, if not to luxury, should care to marry a young physician without as yet a practice? Perhaps, my friend, you took stock of your attractions. They are impressive, I'll admit. Your broad shoulders and physique in general might also be counted assets, but not sufficient to balance the conceit that could imagine I would be content to wear homemade gowns in order to admire them a lifetime—I, who love pretty things, who like everything as dainty as this," taking her chain of pearl beads and holding them before him, letting them slip between her well manicured fingers. She lied bravely, stifling the memory of the little joyful plans that had for several weeks flitted through her mind—plans for making a home on his small income when he should ask her to be his wife.

Graham, his face pale, spoke slowly. "Unlike myself, you are never at loss for words, but I think you have said more than your world would consider courteous," he said tersely.

Her high strung temperament had reached a point where she gave her nerves free rein. "As for caring"—she leaned back in her chair and laughed recklessly—"of course your conceit prevents your discovering that I had been amusing myself. The summer was long and dull. You were the most available man and interesting because you were—less readable than the others. One looks with interest at—an unread book. With such explanation I hope your sorrow that you could not decide to ask me to marry you will not prove crushing." She rose, with a little ironical smile that intimated that she was waiting for him to say goodby.

Graham towered above her as he rose. "Marion, I'm crude, as you say, and I am going to tell you that I absolutely disbelieve you. You care—as much as I do. I'll admit that you started out with the intention of amusing yourself and that I met you halfway, thinking that you might interest yourself and me at the same time. I had no idea that either of us would learn to care. But we have—both of us—and yet there is a barrier preventing my asking you to marry me—a wall between—and I don't know that I'll ever be able to get over it."

She smiled whimsically with the sudden change of mood characteristic of her.

"Tell me about it. I'm full of curiosity. Is it much of a wall, and what kind?"

"I'm not at liberty to tell, but it's a rather hard one to scale."

"Glass on top?" laughter coming back to her face.

"Figuratively speaking, lots of it. Are you a child or a woman, Marion, that you jump from one mood to another this way?"

"More of a barometer, I suppose. But I'm intensely interested in that wall. It sounds mediaeval. Couldn't you produce a rope ladder as a fitting accompaniment, or are such heroic measures for scaling obstacles only seen on the stage? I never saw one in real life."

"Girl, there is a serious side to you somewhere, but it's very elusive. It's the serious side I want to talk to now. I don't know that I can ever even make an attempt to scale that wall. If I felt I could do so honorably I would try it with my bare hands." His face lit with an emotion she had never before seen in it. "You will call it conceit, but it is—that I care so much that I don't want you to wait for me if I never get the chance to try to climb the wall to reach you."

She put her hand on his impulsively. "But you want to come?" she asked.

"More than anything on earth," he said, and his face grew whiter.

"Considering the wall—I think you had better go now." She followed him to the door and held out her hand. "I am glad you care," she said simply.

When she heard the hall door close behind him she sat down on the couch and stared absently at the torn fan lying on the chair near. She picked it up and tore it slowly and systematically into strips.

"I am glad—be—cares," she said mechanically.

* * * * * * *

In the two years that passed she saw Graham occasionally on the street and nodded to him in passing. Their few mutual friends seldom mentioned him, and she heard only enough to know that he was rapidly succeeding in his profession.

When the servant brought her his card one afternoon she waited until the girl had left the room, then read it over and over. Suddenly she threw it on her dressing table, drew a long breath and went downstairs composedly.

"You are quite a novelty," she said when he rose to meet her.

"I've climbed that wall," he said bluntly, without any prelude.

"Er—what wall?" She raised her eyebrows, with a slightly puzzled frown.

He put a hand on each of her shoulders and held her facing him.

"Be honest," he said, still holding her.

She hesitated a minute.

"Well, then—how?" she said finally.

He sat down on the couch and drew her beside him. "Before my father died three years ago he told me that he had been speculating and that he had, along with his own, lost $5,000 that he held in trust for my little cousin Elizabeth. The girl was then eighteen, and I promised that I would make the amount good before her twenty-first birthday. I had just graduated from the medical college, and for fear I would not be able to save that amount from my first three years' practice he persuaded Elizabeth that he would die happier if he knew we would marry some time."

Miss Fenton's quick smile flashed to her eyes.

"The glass on top of the wall," she murmured.

Graham possessed himself of her hands.

"Exactly so. The top of the wall was reached yesterday—when I turned over $5,000 to Elizabeth on her twenty-first birthday. As for the glass—the child removed it herself and used it to puncture that colossal conceit you once attributed to me. She confessed tearfully that she was head over heels in love with young Freddie Dempster. So I've come, girl! What are you going to do to me?" he asked eagerly.

She saw him, as of old, utterly unable to find the words to express his feelings.

"I think perhaps I'd better try to—restore that colossal conceit," she said, but her eyes reflected the light in his.

Making a Bargain.

A great tenor had been singing for some hours into a phonograph.

"The phonograph," he said, "is a wonderful thing. It almost realizes the wish of the Scottish poet, the wish that we might see ourselves as others see us. We can now, at least, hear ourselves. When I was in the army, before I realized the capabilities of my voice, I played the flute. A phonograph salesman brought a phonograph to my quarters and tried to sell it to me. I was undecided. Finally the man took out a blank cylinder.

"'See,' he said, rather reluctantly, 'here is a blank cylinder. You may make a record on it, then we will run it off and you shall hear yourself. It's a costly favor I am doing you, but it will show you what a fine instrument this is.'

"I was delighted.

"'I'll get my flute,' I said. 'I'll play a flute solo.'

"Well, I played my best into the machine. It seemed to me that I had never combined before such feeling with such accuracy. I was more than pleased with myself. Then the man put in the cylinder, and the music began to issue forth. I frowned.

"'Is that me?' I said.

"'Yes, sir,' said the man.

"'Really me, just as I played?'

"'Precisely, sir, precisely. And now,' said he, 'do you want to buy the phonograph?'

"'No,' said I. 'I want to sell the flute.'"—London Mail.

Englishmen Are Reckless.

Policemen claim that their most strenuous exertions are directed toward saving the lives of Englishmen, says the New York Press.

"They are so reckless," said one officer. "People coming here from other parts of the world show some respect for automobiles, wagons and street cars. An Englishman doesn't. If he takes a notion to cross the street he tries to cross, no matter how many vehicles and cars may be moving down on him from every direction. He seems to expect traffic to stand still for him. Because it doesn't he seems really surprised and angry.

"Once a Britisher that I had rescued from sudden death explained the reason for that attitude of his countrymen. He says that at home pedestrians really do have as much right to the streets as vehicles and that it is the duty of the drivers to avoid running them down. In every other country the foot passenger has to dodge for his life the same as here, so for that reason the Englishman alone plunges ahead without caution."

NO HONING - NO GRINDING

Steel is iron free from dirt, air or foreign substance fused with carbon. Carbon gives toughness, strength, keenness and life.

Thirty year's study of the razor situation has shown a way to add the highest per cent of carbon to a Carbo Magnetic razor blade through a secret process of ELECTRIC TEMPERING giving it a uniform diamond like hardness—something absolutely impossible with fire tempered razors, and they are Hamburg ground.

Handling the Separator.

The dairy problems of greatest immediate interest in the state of Missouri are connected with the hand separator. Among the problems one of the greatest naturally is the education of the separator owners to the point where the machine and the cream will be properly handled. This is a serious one. Of the 25,000 separators in Missouri at least 20,000 are in the hands of farmers who do not know the first principle about handling cream. The grading of cream, when fairly and honestly done, will do much to bring about this education, said C. H. Eckles before the National Association of Dairy Instructors.

Ripening the Cream.

In order to secure uniform results the buttermaker should see that his cream runs practically uniform from day to day in butter fat and develops about the same amount of acid for each churning. The degrees to which the ripening should be developed will depend largely on the demands of the local market where the butter is sold.

Double Sash Ribbon.

A yard of sash ribbon of handsome quality may be quickly converted into a party or corset bag. Heavy black satin ribbon brocaded in white or lilac flowers in width about two inches makes the nicest kind of a spectacle case, while a wider ribbon in fancy colors will form an oblong fan bag equally acceptable to a younger friend.

PANDORA RANGE

Pandora Ventilated Oven is a Real Success

That the Pandora oven is ventilated in reality you can prove for your own satisfaction beyond a shadow of a doubt. Just moisten your finger and place it in close proximity to the three small vents between oven and fire-pot doors. You can then feel quite distinctly the current of air being drawn towards and through the vents. Try this little experiment on your neighbor's Pandora.

So scientifically perfect is the Pandora system of ventilation that the air in the oven is constantly being renewed with fresh air and the cooking fumes carried out through another set of vents in back end of oven and from there to smoke pipe.

The arrows in illustration show how the fresh air is distributed throughout the oven and the way the odors escape from the oven.

No indiscriminate mixing and re-mixing of cooking odors in the Pandora oven, consequently there is positively no chance for one article to be tainted with the flavor of another. Rather, the delicious natural flavor of every article is retained to the fullest extent.

The Pandora ventilated oven is a real success. When you open the door, the oven never smells close and stuffy, as do the great majority of range ovens.

Food cooked in the Pandora is more healthful, as well as more appetizing and satisfying.

If your local dealer cannot give you complete information about the Pandora, write direct for FREE BOOKLET.

Dr. Symonds Sermon On Subject of Honest Doubters

Man Morally Imperfect Not Denied The Name Of Christian ---Christianits, He Says, Is Not Intended To Remove All Difficulties From Our Path

The Fatherhood of God, and the Brotherhood of Man, were questions dealt with by Rev. Dr. Symonds, in a recent sermon in Montreal, where it has aroused considerable interest. The Star, in reporting the sermon, which is the second of a series, addressed to the honest doubter, says:

For the second of his sermons addressed to Honest Doubters, at Christ Church Cathedral Sunday evening, Rev. Dr. Symonds chose three texts, St. John viii, 12, St. John x, 10, St. Matthew, 22, 35.

During the course of his sermon he propounded the question, "Suppose a man to say, 'I find it intellectually impossible to believe in the Fatherhood of God; I believe, however, in the Brotherhood of Man.' What then? Am I to say to him 'You are not a Christian?'"

"Many people, perhaps, most people," said Rev. Dr. Symonds, in answering this question, would say, 'Unless you assent to the articles of the Nicene Creed, or some other system of Christian dogma, you are not a Christian.' I cannot agree with that. I would say to such a one in so far as you strive to act up to any one cardinal point in the teaching of Christ, so far you are a follower of Christ. You are not a perfect Christian, it may be, but then, who is? Now, this which sounds strange and dangerous to some people is simply the attitude of Christ. He was continually denouncing the Pharisees and scribes, who were theologically sound, because they neither loved God nor man. But we find him highly commending the Roman centurions, poor heathen women, Samaritan heretics and the like, when they displayed the right spirit in any one point. Jesus rebuked His disciples, when they forbade man to do good works, because he could not follow them. It was this attitude of Jesus, which more than any other, provoked the authorities of the day to opposition.

"The germ of Christianity, then, out of which the mighty tree has sprung, contains these three things; 1. The love of God; 2, The love of man, and faith, (i.e., living trust and confidence, in Christ as the manifestation of God, and as Him who brings light and eternal life to the world.

"But I must repeat, that a man who cannot even accept these three things in their entirety, is not forthwith to be denied the title of Christian. A man who is morally imperfect is not of necessity denied the name of Christian. If he were, where would the Christians be? Where, then, one who is intellectually imperfect? It is here, it seems to me, the church has gone astray, just as the Jewish people of our Lord's day, went astray. It has admitted men and women whose ideals of life are low, and it has cast off men whose ideals of life are high. This utterly un-Christian way of looking at things springs out of that fundamental fallacy so eloquently expounded by Rev. Dr. McPhail.

"There are many religions in the world, but they are not all of equal value. The religion of the Western World is Christianity. But there are many people who are perplexed and doubtful in their minds about some of the doctrines of Christianity.

"This evening we are not going to endeavour to defend all that goes by the name of Christianity, but, rather to examine the root, from which all the theologies, all the worships, and all the churches, have sprung.

"First, Christianity is first a teaching about God. It says that God is our Father. But though that is very simple, yet it is not altogether easy. I cannot remove all the difficulties connected with this. I do not think that Christianity itself was intended to remove all difficulties from our path. We are by our Heavenly Father put in the world as to a school. Life is probation. Just as the earthly father puts the earthly son to school, so the heavenly. The earthly father does not remove all difficulties from the path of the earthly son. If he cannot do a problem in mathematics, even though punishment awaits the failure, he does not solve it for him. The boy must learn that through much tribulation he at last is prepared for the realities of a world of business. And for some at any rate it is good that through much tribulation they enter the Kingdom of Heaven.

"Second. Christianity is not a doctrine about man. It is the doctrine of the brotherhood of man Ah, yes, you say, here is something I can understand with all my heart. Yes, but remember, it was Christianity that brought to light that doctrine. And remember in the next place that its only enduring basis is the doctrine of God's Fatherhood. It is that which holds the human race in one. It was that doctrine which first carried in its train the doctrine of human brotherhood. You may not always be conscious of this. You may hold human brotherhood and reject divine Fatherhood, but still you cannot get away from the fact that it is not from agnosticism or any other 'ism' that you derived your doctrine of brotherhood, but from Christianity.

"Third, there is at least one other thing essential to a complete Christianity. It is not all embraced in the love of God and the love of man. The position of Christ Himself is an essential point; Christ occupies to Christianity a different relation from that which Mohammed occupies to Mohammedanism. Mohammed is the prophet of God. Christ is the manifestation and God. Mohammed claims to bring a message from God. Jesus Christ presents Himself as the Son of God, an impression which implies an authority quite other than that of the prophet. 'That is why I chose for one of my texts the words, "I am the Light of the World."

"The most noted living theologian of to-day, a man of the most honest and open mind, which he combines with a rare depth of religious feeling and enthusiasm — the German Harnach—writes thus: 'This Jesus, who preached humility, and the knowledge of self, nevertheless named Himself, and [illegible] as the Son of God, He is certain that He knows the Father and that He is to bring this knowledge to all men. Among all the works of God this is the greatest; it is the aim and end of all creation. Again and again, in the history of mankind men of God have come forward in the sure consciousness of possessing a divine message, of being compelled, whether they will or not, to deliver it. But the message has always happened to be imperfect and very often the prophet did not stand the test of being himself an example of his message. But in this case the message brought was one of the profoundest and most comprehensive character; it went to the very root of mankind, and although set in the framework of the Jewish nation it addressed itself to the whole of humanity — the message from God the Father. Defective, it is not; antiquated, it is not, and in life and strength it still triumphs to-day over all the. He who delivered it as has yet yielded His place to no man, and to human life He still to-day gives a meaning and an aim, He, the Son of God."

ing a sufficient number of names to the petition for presentation to the council, in fact the required 25 per cent of voters has not been obtained, and the chances of its being adopted are not very bright.

The Orangemen of Apsley and their friends celebrated the 5th of November by an oyster supper in the Orange Hall; although the roads and the weather were against them there a large crowd and an enjoyable evening was spent.

Mr. and Mrs. Thos. Levvir lost their infant son last week, after a few hours' illness. They have the sympathy of their many friends and acquaintances.

Is it not about time that the trustees of S. S. No. 1, Anstruther, were thinking of moving the school down to the village for the winter. The school is over a mile up north, and there are only two or three children to attend who reside anyway near it, while some 25 or 30 children have to trude for a mile or more through mud or snow, or remain at home all fall and winter? Why don't the parents wake up and compel the removal of the school to its proper position?

"HE'S A CLEAN-CUT LOOKING FELLOW"

THIS remark is often made concerning the young man wearing one of our HANDSOME SUITS.

The young man of to-day demands the very newest fashion—the very latest innovations. No stabby Coats, no narrow lapels, no bag-hanging Garments for him this season. We select certain lines of Suits from Tailoring Houses that are specialists in Young Men's Clothes, whose styles are patterned after what one sees on the College campus—dashingly daring but not too extreme.

Suits at $12, $15 and $18

OUR OVERCOATS too, are extremely stylish and yet moderately priced. Don't fail to see what we can do for you. We have many new customers daily. Why? Because we have the Best Goods at the price.

TWO PAILS OF WATER DROP ON THE HEAD OF A MONEY COLLECTOR

The trials of a collector are many and, sometimes, very unpleasant. Recently a young collector for a local firm, on his rounds of the city, met with an experience which did not appeal to him, and which was not very easy on the new suit of clothes he had just donned on the morning of the day of which he speaks about. A woman owed the firm some money for fuel, and the young man, early one morning, went out to collect it. That day happened, unfortunately for the young man, to be wash day, so that there were several pails of water handy, and within reach of the mistress of the household. First, he received the full benefit of one pail, which was quickly followed by another. With a badly damaged suit of clothes, as well as damaged feelings, the youth took his departure.

SOME REMINISCENCES OF AN ALERT OCTOGENARIAN PIONEER OF PERCY TOWNSHIP

Mrs. Andrew Huyck of Hastings Tells of The Parentage Of Hon. G. P. Graham

WHO HIS FATHER WAS

How He Came To Enter The Ministry of The Methodist Church

A day or two ago, the Examiner had an interesting conversation with Mrs. Andrew Huyck, of Hastings, who was paying a visit to the city. Mrs. Huyck is one of the pioneers of Percy township, where she settled, with her husband, in 1842, and though she has reached the venerable age of 84 years, many of them difficult with the hardships and hard toil of pioneer life, she is, physically as robust as an octogenerian oak, and as alert in intellect, as young in spirit, as many a modern woman of half her age—like Moses, at his end, "her sight is not dimmed nor her natural force abated."

Mrs. Huyck is a keen politician, and a "Grit," of the deepest dye. She took an intense interest in the East Northumberland bye-election, whose loss to the Liberals was pronounced to be "too bad." Talking of this brought up the visit to the riding of Hon. G. P. Graham, Minister of Railways and Canals—"Why, I knew his father well. We only lived half a mile from Andrew Graham. George's grandfather. He lived in the 'Backwoods of Percy,' in the 10th concession. He came with his family from Murray township, 67 years ago. The family originally came from Ireland. George's father, William Henry, was converted when he was about 25 or 28 years of age. I think the revival meetings were held in Flemming's log school house, which was on a corner of our farm, either there or in a log school house about two miles away on the Trent; that was in the 13th concession."

"Wasn't that a good distance to go?"

"Bless your heart, no! We'd hitch the oxen to the sleigh and away we'd skim over the crooked roads, and through the 'woods to the 'meetin'' We'd put straw in the bottom of the sleigh, piled in as many as it would hold, all sitting on the straw, without seats, with quilts over us to keep us warm. I tell you those were happy days—going to these meetings. Everybody worked hard, had good health, and was contented. It was like living, compared to these times. Then we'd—O, yes; George Graham's father was converted at one of these meetings, which were conducted by N. A. Howard, an Episcopal Methodist preacher — that was before they joined the union—and a grand man he was.

"Well, William eHary, when he was converted, felt he was called to the ministry. Brother Howard gave him a license as 'exhorter,' or 'local preacher.' He hadn't much education, but he was an 'awful smart man' and a good speaker. All the education he got then was got in the log school house on our place."

"What was it?"

"Why, it wasn't much to look at. The slanting desks ran around the outside walls, with the seats made of slabs, flat side up, and with legs put into holes bored in the slabs. The scholars' backs were to each other and to the teacher. The teacher, William Henry, went to ————, and then there were Mary Stanburg and John Quinn.

"He preached in Percy and other places. He wasn't very well educated in the start, but he was ambitious, and studied hard—why, his hair was white with hard study before he was forty. But he was smart, and got on, and did lots of good. He came to be president of the Episcopal Conference, and was chairman of the district after the union. He was a smart man, and a good man, too, and a fine preacher, and I guess his son George takes after him in being a good speaker, as well as being good, or he wouldn't get so high up in the world.

"Yes; I knew George Graham's father well, and hope his son will be as good a man as his father was."

THE WEATHER.

Although the weather is not unpleasant to-day, another change appears to be coming, accompanied by less pleasant features. Yesterday's highest temperature was 40 degrees; lowest 30 degrees. There was a very heavy, white frost again this morning.

KNOBS DISCOVERED ON SATURN'S RING

A bulletin from the observatory at Harvard College was recently received by Dr. Neal, the secretary of the Peterborough branch of the Royal Astronomical Society, regarding knobs on the rings of Saturn. The college has received a telegram from Prof. W. W. Campbell, a director of the Lick Observatory, to the effect that bright, prominent knobs had been discovered during the last week in October on Saturn. There were four of them, two on the east and two on the west side. The knobs have been attracting great attention from astronomers.

CELEBRATION AT HALL'S BRIDGE

Anniversary of the Gun Powder Plot Loyally Celebrated Last Night

The anniversary of the Gunpowder Plot was duly observed by the Wesley L.O.L., No. 419, at Hall's Bridge last night in the Orange Hall, which was tastefully decorated for the occasion. Worshipful Master Stephen Harrison took the chair. The Northey family sang the "Maple Leaf," followed by an address by the County Master Bro. Armstrong, of Peterborough on the history leading up to the event. The closing address was given by Rev. Mr. Brace outlining the plan of campaign pursued by Rome, and her ambition for political supremacy. The duty of the hour was pressed upon the Orange Brotherhood to be faithful to their principles and to their God. The thanks the meeting were tendered to the visiting brethren.

COMING PASTOR OF ST. PAUL'S CHURCH

The Rev. Robert Pogue, whose portrait appears above, is soon to become the new pastor of St. Paul's Presbyterian Church. At the congregational meeting a short time ago he was given a unanimous call, which will be considered on Monday morning by the Presbytery of Peterborough. Rev. Mr. Pogue has been the associate pastor of Bethany Tabernacle, Philadelphia, but he is a Canadian in nationality, which makes him particularly acceptable to the congregation of St. Paul's. He was born in County Monaghan, Ireland, thirty-seven years ago and came to Canada at the age of seventeen years, entering upon his theological course in Knox College. The circumstances by which the congregation of St. Paul's was permitted to hear Rev. Mr. Pogue were purely accidental. Rev. Dr. Talling, who has occupied the pulpit here for some time, when in Toronto some time ago, was speaking with Rev. Mr. Eesler, pastor of Cook's Church, concerning the vacancy here. Mr. Eesler informed him that Mr. Pogue was to preach there. The committee appointed by the Session of St. Paul's, consisting of Messrs. Hall, Shook and Madill, accompanied by others, went to Toronto to hear him preach. Upon their invitation he came to St. Paul's, which resulted in his being accepted by the congregation.

ONLY ONE PERMIT ISSUED

Approach of Winter Puts an End to The Building Activity

With the near approach of winter there is a falling off in the number of building permits issued at the city clerk's office. During the past week there has only been one given out and the estimated value mentioned is small. The honour of taking out the only permit during the week goes to the estate of A. McDonald, who have received permission to build a lumber shed on George street. The cost is estimated at $75.

ELEVATOR WAS BURNED

Examiner Special

Duluth, Minn., Nov. 9.—Fire, which started in the Great Northern Elevator at Superior, Wis., about 9 o'clock last night was still burning at an early hour to-day. After having destroyed the elevator, three flour mills, forty homes and 700,000 bushels of grain, two scows, a derrick and two tugs were also destroyed. The loss is estimated at three million dollars. One man who entered the plant of the Duluth Superior Storage, to rescue a tool chest, was not seen again and it is thought he perished in the flames.

ITEMS REGARDING THE NORMALS

The new course of study for the Ontario Normal Schools will be made public shortly.

Further attention will be given the academic side, as it is said that, so far, the course has been largely professional, without sufficient instruction for scholarship.

Rural adjoining schools in adjoining county or counties will affiliate with the Normal schools for observation.

Every Normal school master must devote one week a year to any inspection of these rural schools, accompanying the public school inspector for the purpose.

KING EDWARD VII.

Born in Buckingham Palace, November 9th., 1841, and Succeeded to the Throne January 7th, 1901. He has Reigned Over Six Years.

ARRIVED FROM NORTH ONTARIO

Mr. D'Eyncourt Stone, arrived in the city to-day after two weeks' shooting in Northern Ontario. He was located at Lake Pinage, north of Manitoulin and reports having had two weeks splendid sport with rod and gun. Mr. Stone says that there are many deer being brought out of the district north of the C.P.R., and quite a number of hunters are on the trail.

DEER HUNTER ACCIDENTALLY MEETS DEATH IN THE FOREST

Millbrook, November 9. — The people of this village were very much shocked last night upon receiving a telephone message from Minden, announcing the accidental fatal shooting of Mr. David Milligan, a resident of Millbrook. Mr. Milligan was one of a party of thirteen hunters, who went deer hunting some days ago, in the vicinity of Minden. The only particulars of the sad affair that have so for been received were those contained in a telephone message from Mr. John McBride, one of the party, to Mr. Harry Nattrass, of this village, informing him of the accident. Mr. Milligan was a short distance away from the rest of the party at the time, when his rifle accidentally discharged, the ball entering his head, and killing him instantly. The remains are expected to arrive on the noon train to-day.

Mr. Milligan was a man who was highly respected in Millbrook and vicinity, and leaves a widow and a small family to mourn his untimely death. His wife was a Miss Kelly of Cavan. A significant fact in connection with the accident, is that just previous to going on his hunting expedition, he insured his life in the C. O. F. for $1,000.

Further particulars were received by the Examiner to-day from Mr. Thomas Wilson, a Warsaw commercial traveller, who came down from Lindsay today with Mr. McBride. He learned that the dead man was no more than ten yards from the camp, on a high bluff, when the fatal ball left the rifle. He was in the act of starting off the hounds with the rest of the party, except one man, waiting at a distance on the runway.

The only person who saw anything of the fatality was the man who was left in camp. He heard the shot, and on looking upwards to the bluff, above the camp, saw Milligan fall backward a dead man.

No person knows exactly how the fatality occurred. The ball entered the head at the side of the nose, and came out through the top of his skull. The remains of the hunter were taken through Peterborough to Millbrook to-day.

WESTMOUNT FULL BACK MAKES A SUCCESSFUL TACKLE ON C. P. R. TRAIN

The Westmount Rugby Club, that played here this afternoon, almost lost Cornell, their full-back, at Smith's Falls, where the train was going through that town at 3 o'clock this morning. Practically none of the men were sleeping, but were, as is generally the case when a sporting aggregation is on a trip, doing their best to keep each other awake. When the train pulled into Smith's Falls, Cornell left the car for a stroll and a smoke on the platform. He walked up and down, and when the train started was almost twenty-five yards from the rear coach, which was a special for the team. It quickly got up speed and Cornell sprinted as when in rugby an opponent is nearing the goal line on the run. He made a flying tackle, although clad only in his pjamas, landing on the lower step, and saved the team from a loss. He just managed to catch the railing, amid the shouts of several of several of his team mates. Cornell plays on full-back, and is expected to be on the line-up this afternoon.

HALF A MILLION DOLLARS WORTH OF CHEESE SOLD ON THE PETERBOROUGH BOARD

Recapitulation Of The Season's Work Shows These Immense Figures—A Great Industry

SOME COMPARISONS MADE

The Situation as Seen in Manchester, England—Changes in The Prices

The past Wednesday morning saw the last sale of cheese on the Peterborough Board. The season has ended, and in many respects a review of the dairy industry presents many interesting phases, setting forth the great value the cheese markets of the old world have become to the benefit of the farmers in Canada. The season of 1907 has been universally looked upon as one not conducive towards the best results, so far as dairy products are concerned. It is an undisputed fact that this year the industry was not as valuable to the farmer as last on account of the backward season towards the beginning of the season.

But there are few outside the dairy circles who have any idea of the value of the cheese industry in Peterborough County alone. Of course, this county has for many years been recognized as one of the leading in the dairy industry, and when it is considered that over $420,000 worth of cheese, or close on half a million, was sold on the Peterborough Board, it dawns upon one the immense proportions the industry has reached in Canada.

A Comparison

The above mentioned amount was exceeded last year by about $40,000, due to the better season and better prices. The season of 1906 was ushered in under more favourable circumstances than the present. The weather during the opening months was more conducive to a large supply of milk, and therefore accounts for the slight falling off this year.

At the Peterborough Board this year the total number of boxes boarded was 40,791, which was over 4,000 less than last season. Considering the average weight of a cheese at 85 pounds, there were in the neighbourhood of 3,839,807 pounds made in this district, or about 1,733 tons—about 200 less than last year.

The Prices

The opening price of the season was 11 1-2c per lb., which was 1-8 a cent less than in the initial price of 1906. As the season advanced towards the middle of the summer the price rose slightly, but again dropped in July, when 10 3-4c was paid on the board. The lowest price last year was 10 11-16c, or 2-16c higher than the lowest of the present season.

Towards the conclusion the prices took a run up and reached 12 13-16c at a couple of sales, which was the highest paid this year. Last season the top price was 13 1-8c. At the last board meeting 12 3-16c was secured, which again is lower than a year ago by 5-16c. The prices, however, have on the whole been satisfactory, and it is gratifying to know that the farmers in Peterborough county alone were instrumental in bringing almost half a million dollars across the ocean to be distributed here. This one fact serves as an ample illustration of the great and undisputable importance of the dairy industry in the Province, and of the value of the farmers to the community.

The cheese factory, though small in appearance as it stands by the country roadside, is an asset to the community, the value of which can scarcely be calculated.

Peterboro' Board

There is possibly no board in the province with a reputation surpassing that which the local board can boast of. It is composed of intelligent salesmen and live buyers. The prices are usually among the highest paid in the country, so that the factory patrons have every reason to

AN INCREASED MAIL SERVICE

Mr. R. R. Hall, M. P., for West Peterborough, has received word from the Deputy Post Master General, advising him that the mail service from Buckhorn to Rockcroft and Catchecomah has been changed from a weekly to a semi-weekly service. This increase in the mail was made, of course, pursuant to an application from Mr. Hall.

RUGBY GAME BY BULLETIN ON PAGE 14

The Examiner to-day arranged a special messenger service between the office and Riverside Park to give to its readers the report of the Westmount-Peterborough rugby game up to 4:30 o'clock. The special bulletins will be seen on the sporting page of to-days issue.

BUILDING NEW BUCKHORN DAM

Work There is Rapidly Being Pushed To Completion

Work on the new dam at Buckhorn has been progressing during the past three months at a most rapid rate under the supervision of Mr. Ed. Conroy and his foreman. Mr Geo. Fitzgerald, who arrived home last night from a hunting trip, and who remained in Buckhorn a few hours while on his way home, states that in three months as much work has been accomplished as many gangs of men of the same size would do in twelve months.

He says that nine piers have been finished with the sluices between them, all done in concrete, and done well, too. It was one of the most complete jobs Mr. Fitzgerald had seen. About two-thirds of the work has been finished this autumn, but Mr. Conroy does not expect to carry the work on all winter. The remainder will therefore be completed next spring, when the new bridge will be begun.

MAY BE DEPUTY BAND MASTER

Mr. Will Ford, an employee of Mr. Adam Hall, and a prominent bandsman of the local corps of the Salvation Army, will, it is reported, be appointed deputy bandmaster Tuesday evening. He has been asked to accept that honour by those in authority, but preferred to have the sanction of his comrades. Mr. Ford is a good musician, and if he accepts the position, will be of service to the bandmaster, Mr. J. M. Greene.

BACK FROM THE NORTH WEST

Mr. George Soucee has returned from the Northwest, where he has been residing since last spring. Mr. Soucee was situated near Rosthern, south of Prince Albert. He was at the market this morning renewing old acquaintances and giving his version of the prospects and situation in the west.

AN IMPOSSIBLE COMBINATION

There has been hardly anything more absurd in the actions of the city authorities than the proposition that the Children's Aid Society should surrender its new quarters for the purposes of a House of Refuge for indigent old men, or share its quarters with them—about as compatible a combination as a rugby game, as an adjunct to a five o'clock tea. It is of a piece, however, in the way of absurdity, with the neglect of duty and business principles which led to the failure to co-operate with the county in connection with the building and use of a House of Refuge. Due to lack of foresight, the indigent old men of the city are practically thrown on the streets. Confronted with this condition of things, the city authorities try to shelter themselves from their want of foresight by seeking the use of the Children's Shelter for use as an Old Man's Shelter, to which, of course, the officials very properly object. Milton tells us that "crabbed age and youth cannot live together." The presence and association with children of tender years, who have been rescued from undesirable surroundings, of old men of possibly petulant temper and undesirable habits, would to some extent be to expose the children to largely similar conditions from which, for their own good, they have been removed, and in this way the aim and object of the Society would be defeated. To do the right thing at the right time seems to be a hard lesson for representative and administrative bodies to learn.

AN ABATTOIR.

In another column on this page is an article consisting of a letter to the Guelph Mercury, concerning the proposition to establish a public abattoir in that city. The article is well worth reading, not only because it is pertenent to a proposition pending in Peterborough, but because it emphasises the importance of providing sanitary meats for public consumption in the interests of the public health. We are aiming to provide a pure milk supply and a complementary action would be the establishment of a public abattoir not for merely economic reasons but because such an establishment would make possible effective inspection which is the essence of any attempt at providing unobjectionable meats, or for that matter milk or other foods. A public abattoir and the attendant inspection, will contribute to the improvement, or prevent the impairment of our meat supply and work hardship to nobody except those who might desire to profit by killing animals for food purposes which may be diseased or otherwise unfit for conversion into food.

CANADIAN MUNICIPALITIES.

A report just issued gives some interesting statistics on population, assessed values, taxation and debts of municipalities in the Province of Ontario. According to this report the population, 2,145,771, is an increase of 40,511 over 1905 and a decrease of 41,176 from 1901, when the last census was taken. The rural population is 1,052,844; urban 507,205; cities 581,722. The population of the cities during the year has increased 23,734. In the rural districts there was a decrease of 8,174. The urban, or town, population shows an increase for the year of 247,511. This indicates that the shifting of the population is from the country to the town and city.

The total assessed valuation for the province is $1,105,502,692 and the taxes imposed upon this valuation for all purposes, including schools, were $18,013,945, or at the rate of 16.3 mills on the dollar, or $8.41 per capita. The rate in the rural districts is 10.9 mills, or $6.07 per head; in the town, 12.5 mills, or $8.18 per head, in the city, 22.6 mills, or $12.85 per head. The per capita tax is $4.67 higher in the city than in the town and $6.78 higher per head than in the rural districts. Ontario has eighteen cities, with a population ranging from 10,000 to 253,720. The assessed valuation for taxable purposes of the cities is $330,518,694. Upon this a tax of $14,142,322 was levied during the year 1906. The bonded indebtedness of the eighteen cities is $51,188,027, or $88 per head.

GOD SAVE THE KING

Sixty-six years ago to-day, King Edward Seventh first saw the light at Buckingham Palace. In the dreams that come to every mother, Queen Victoria must have seen his future, seen her first born in the place to which he was born; and the bright pictures she conjured up at that time, could not have out-shone the realization of to-day. Great as was Queen Victoria as a monarch, her illustrious son is the worthy successor of his illustrious mother. He learned his lessons at her knees, and in after years, in the splendid example of her long and glorious reign, and well he learned them. Though only on the throne a short seven years, he has shown an ability in governing, which marks his reign, in its beneficent effects, in its noble influence, both at home and abroad, in its respect-winning, and affection-compelling, character, as simply a continuation of the reign which blessed Britain and the Empire for the long span of three score years and three. When we recall the years of Queen Victoria's reign, whose character has projected itself into the years beyond the limit of her life, into the reign of her son, we need not look further for warrant for loyally, and even jubilantly, remembering the birthday of King Edward, though we might find ampler reason in the wisdom, prudence, tact and steadiness of high purpose which the King has shown, and still shows, in the discharge of his high trust. Under his reign, and largely due to his influence, Great Britain and the Empire have grown in all the elements that make for the happiness of the people, and the growth of the Empire, as an irresistible influence for international peace, world-wide development of the conditions that tend to the advancement of mankind, in the arts of civilization and promoting the good of the race. Long may King Edward VII. live to reign as wisely as he has done, and to justify the petition—

GOD SAVE THE KING.

HOW IS THE MONEY SPENT?

The enormous increase in this year's assessment naturally suggests the idea of increased taxation, and that suggests inquiry as to what the city fathers have done with the increased revenue collected from the people from year to year. In 1903, they collected in taxes $94,192.24; in 1904, about four and a half thousand was added, making the total of the tax bill for that year $108,607.54; in 1905, about $6,000 was added, swelling the tax levy of that year to $114,601.27. In 1906, another leap of $11,000 span took place, the taxpayers being called upon to contribute $125,742.68. In 1907, there was another $11,000 jump, bringing the amount of taxes paid and to be paid this year up to the highly respectable, if somewhat awesome, figure of $136,411.26, representing an increase of taxation in four years of $42,192.24, or an average of about ten thousand dollars per year. The question naturally occurring to the ratepayers is —what have we to show for this large increase of taxation and expenditure? It is recognized that the city has grown, and that expenses must necessarily increase. But the question is, has the increase been too great in proportion? It might seem that extensive construction of permanent improvements, such as pavements, sewers, etc., might account for a large part of the increased expenditure. But, as a matter of fact, it does not. These things are built on credit—paid for in instalments, and only make a comparatively small addition to the annual expenditure. The ratepayers are fully justified, as many of them are doing, in demanding an accounting. In these days of digging up financial transactions and letting light in upon the channels through which what is naturally trust money flows, it would not be a half bad idea for the aldermen to furnish some satisfactory explanation of the great increase of taxation. It is not for a moment hinted that there has been anything morally improper in the handling of the people's money—but inefficiency in administration may have as undesirable results as wrongful diversion of monies. Such an explanation would be welcome to the ratepayers some time before the annual municipal elections. The people furnish the money and have a right to some intelligible explanation of its disposition. Will the aldermen explain?

HON. GEORGE P. GRAHAM.

Queen's University the other day conferred one of its coveted distinctions on the Hon. George P. Graham, the new Minister of Railways and Canals in the Dominion Government; and in so doing took a course which has found concurrence in public opinion. Queen's shows always a catholic spirit in conferring its distinctions without regard to denominational or partisan bias; we doubt if it has made any recent bestowal of honours more calculated to be generally acceptable than that above alluded to. Mr. Graham is a man of high character, as befits his ancestry and upbringing as the son of a worthy Methodist minister. As a speaker he brings to his addresses a frankness of appeal, a sense of the humourous, a felicity of expression, and an understanding of "the man on the street," not often found in combination. These qualities manifested themselves to a noticeable extent during Mr. Graham's occupancy of the position of leader of the Opposition in the Ontario Legislature. His long connection with journalism, like Mr. Fielding's, or like the late Thomas White's, has given him versatility and quickness, yet with these qualities under the control of a firm and quiet judgment. A tireless worker, clean in public and private life, his many friends confidently predict he will reflect no discredit on the distinction bestowed upon him by Queen's University, and that he will be found in the ranks of those who are anxious to promote the things that are best in the national life of Canada. —Dominion Presbyterian.

ABATTOIR AND MEAT INSPECTION

The following letter, contributed to the Guelph Mercury by the Medical Health Officer of that city, will, mutatis mutandis, apply to a Peterborough proposition which will soon again, perhaps, engage public attention. It furnishes information that will be read with interest:

Sir,—In reply to the letter of An Observer in last evening's issue of your paper, somewhat mildly condemning the scheme announced by the Board of Health for a system of meat inspection in our city, I wish to point out that he does not appear to have grasped the main point of the subject. There is not the least intention of shutting out any one from doing business on our market. We only say that the animal must be inspected before and after killing, and there seems to be no other practical way of accomplishing this object but by compelling all the animals to be killed in one central place. The fee for killing will be very low, as the profit of the abattoir will chiefly be made from offal and refuse which is to a large extent wasted at the present time. Instead of curtailing our market, it will probably have the opposite effect, as man who do not now possess the facilities for killing animals can, by the payment of a small fee, have the animal killed, and dressed, and all ready for the market. Undoubtedly this will be done if, as Observer fears, the price of meat is raised to an undue figure. So far as the farmer is concerned, if he at all resembles the individual who only a few days ago attempted to sell on our market the carcass of an animal that was choked to death, it may not be an unmixed evil to entirely exclude them: at all events, the trade in dressed meats, by the farmer, even dressed hogs, is so small that it need not be considered.

I quite agree with Observer when he says it is a big question. It is the most important question which has been brought before our citizens for many years, but if hundreds of small towns and cities in Europe and in Scotland can grapple successfully with the question, surely we can also.

Instead of being in advance of the times, we are forty years behind the countries I have mentioned. In the city of Montreal, which is not always held up as an example of progressiveness, for years past every animal killed for food had to be slaughtered in one of two private abattoirs at a fixed and moderate charge. Under the Dominion inspection law, which came into force on October 1, these abattoirs were in charge of inspectors belonging to the Health Department of the city. Since that date the Dominion Government inspectors have complete control. This is exactly the same system which the Board of Health seeks to have established in Guelph. If Montreal can do it, Guelph can do it. The tendency of the Dominion Act will be to cause all doubtful animals to be slaughtered where there is no inspector. I agree with "Observer" that the farmer may object to selling his animals subject to inspection. I have no doubt that some farmers object to inspection of fruit, wheat, butter, and cheese, but the result of inspection of cheese has been to raise the standard, and in the end the producer has benefited by it.

At the present time all the large pork packing establishments in the country are buying hogs subject to inspection, and although the farmer may not like it, he has to accept conditions as they are.

And now a few words regarding the proceedings of the City Council last evening: Ald. Humphries is reported to have said "that the M. H. O. was busy with the work that it was the Council's place to do." Surely the energetic alderman will admit that anything that appertains to the public health is part of the duties of the M.H.O. and Board of Health. The inspection of meat is purely a health measure, and it is treated as such by our statutes, which give almost unlimited powers to the health authorities regarding it. Even in the event of the establishment of a public or any other kind of an abattoir, it must still be under the control of the Board of Health, and the inspection must be satisfactory to them.

I might say that the question of a public abattoir was discussed by the Board of Health and advocated in my annual report long before Mr. Humphries entered public life. We are very anxious that Ald. Humphries shall get his committee to work, as it is quite possible that working on lines entirely different from ours, they may reach more valuable conclusions than we have, and the results of the labours of these two committees must be of great service to the city. If Ald. Humphries is earnest in his expressed desireas for a system of meat inspection, he should hold up both hands for the present scheme, as it combines simplicity in operation, effectiveness in inspection, moderate charges to the butcher, and a new industry in the city.

Thanking you for your space, I am,
Yours truly,

BEER* BENEFITS THE WHOLE BODY
(NO OTHER FOOD-BEVERAGE DOES THAT MUCH)
NOT six people in a thousand (and those six have either diabetes or gouty tendencies) can get anything but real good from the use of good beer with their meals. Because that kind of beer (and no other kind is brewed in Ontario) benefits the whole body of the normal adult,—enriches the blood, vitalizes the stomach, makes kidneys and liver active, builds flesh and betters nerves.
Beer Is Not A Mere Tonic
Good beer, drank with meals and at bedtime, is not merely a tonic—for a tonic simply gets one part of the system to work better for a while, by stimulating its activity, while beer, rightly used, does the whole system permanent good.
Beer Builds Up Thin Folks
That is why good beer is such a notable flesh-builder, and why it is so effective in changing the too-white blood of aenemic people into the red, strong, healthy blood of the vigorous. It has qualities that are very valuable to women, especially. It is distinctly NOT an intoxicant, nor a hurtful stimulant. Ask your doctor if beer wouldn't be good for you as an item of daily diet.
* BEER is a term which covers lager, ales, porter and stout; and, in the practice of Ontario brewers, implies beverages made under most hygienic conditions from Ontario barley (the best in the world) malt, hops, and pure water. 365

EAGLE LAKE HUNTER RETURNS

Mr. Geo. A. Fitzgerald Returns From Eagle Lake, Reports Successful Hunt —Rainy Weather

The first member of the Eagle Lake Hunt Club to return was Mr. George Fitzgerald, the local carriage manufacturer and former captain of the club. Mr. Fitzgerald returned last night, after a splendid hunt, the weather being the only thing complained of. The party only had three hunts during the time away. The first time they brought in two deer, the second time four and the third and last hunt three deer, making in all nine deer to be brought back to Peterborough. The party will return next Saturday and it is probable that a few more deers will be added to those now hung up. Mr. Fitzgerald is an old hunter and is one of the best shots in Peterborough. He stated to-day that he went back when he was sixteen years of age and has gone back every year since which number twenty-eight.

Beef extracts contain only the flavor and stimulating elements of beef—the nutritive values are lost in the making. Baron Liebig, the inventor of beef extracts, admitted that. He said "It is but a condiment and stimulant, containing no matter capable of sustaining life."

BOVRIL does contain the nourishment and life-sustaining elements of beef as well as its rich flavor.

Some Advances

Since last year the factories have greatly improved. Mr. N. G. Somerville, the Government instructor, spent considerable time in the district during the early portion of the year, and many advances have been made along cold storage and cow testing association lines in connection with the factories.

Altogether the year has been a highly gratifying one when the character of the season is taken into consideration, and one that the farmers of the community, as well as the buyers, have every reason to be congratulated upon.

An Improvement.

An idea of the value and appreciation of Canadian cheese in England may be obtained from the report of Mr. P. B. McNamara, of Manchester, in the weekly magazine he edits. His report is as follows:

Cheese

I am indebted to one of the largest produce firms in this city for the following report:

"We are pleased to state that the improvement in Canadian cheese this year has been well maintained, and on of the great difficulties we had to contend with last year, which was the shipping of cheese in the green state, has been noticeable by its absence this year. The goods have come forward not only in good condition, but the averaging of same has been fairly well effected.

"We are now nearing the close of one of the most exceptional seasons we have had. The make opened up at the early part of the season very fate, and we are going to close the season with a great shortage of cheese on that of last year. Our home make has been exceptionally large, which has filled up the shortage in Canadians, and all through the season domestic has been placed on our market within a few shillings of Canadian prices, thus causing a good healthy home demand. It is only within the last two weeks that there has been any noticeable falling off in the make. This week there is a great shortage, and it has droppen off fully 30 per cent. of what it was a month ago.

"The Canadian season, from a financial point of view, has been disappointing, owing to the great speculation of a few who have tried to corner the market, and have evidently realized their object to a great extent. The result of this has caused prices to advance very rapidly during the last two or three weeks. What the future result of this manipulation will be we cannot say, but certainly it is not conducive to a healthy tone of trade from our point of view. There is every prospect of a huge make from New Zealand and Australia; we ourselves having in sight our first consignment, which is quite a month earlier than usual.

"We are looking forward next year to a better Canadian trade, and if only this system of manipulation could be kept out of your market we should have a much healthier tone, and one that would be beneficial to every one on both sides."

Pains in the Back Over the Kidneys

TELL OF DISEASED KIDNEYS AND THE PROVEN CURE FOR THIS DREADFULLY PAINFUL AILMENT IS

DR. CHASE'S KIDNEY-LIVER PILLS

When kidney disease does not arise from exposure to a draft or chilling of the body it is usually developed gradually as a result of liver and bowel disorders.

It is because of the intimate and dependent relations of the liver, kidneys and bowels, that Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills cure diseases of the Kidneys when mere kidney medicines fail.

By quickening the action of the liver and bowels this treatment immediately lessens the work of the kidneys, and at the same time restores their natural vigour. In this way the most serious and complicated diseases of the kidneys are thoroughly cured.

Miss Della McDermott, 373 Main street, Moncton, N.B., writes: "For some time my mother could not walk across the floor, or stoop over because the pains in her back just over the kidneys were so severe. She had severe headaches, backache, spells of blindness and dizziness, and tried many remedies without obtaining any relief. The doctors of our town said that the trouble was due to the turn of life.

"A lady friend advised mother to try Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, and by the time she had used two boxes of this great medicine she was perfectly cured and the old trouble has never returned."

Mr. J. Edwards of Colborne, Ont., and who is employed by the Kennedy and Davis Milling Company, Lindsay, Ont., states: "I have been taking Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills for some time and can positively say they are the best medicine I have ever used. I was troubled very much with my kidneys, and had dreadful pains in my back, which increased by leaning over.

"I can testify to the exceptional merits of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, because they have cured me, and shall gladly recommend them to anyone inquiring about them.

Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills regulate the action of the liver, kidneys and bowels. One pill a dose; 25 cents a box, at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto.

An Authority Gives Advice to Prevent Catarrah of all Kinds authority and should be heeded by all who are subject to rheumatism, kidney and bladder troubles, and especially catarrh. While the latter is considered by most sufferers an incurable disease, there are few men or women who will fail to experience great relief from the following simple home prescription, and if taken in time it will prevent an attack of catarrh during the entire season.

Here is the prescription which any one can mix: Fluid Extract Dandelion, one-half ounce; Compound Kargon, one ounce; Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla, three ounces. Shake well in a bottle and use in teaspoon-doses after each meal and again at bedtime.

These are mostly vegetable ingredients and can be obtained from any good prescription pharmacy at small cost.

The Compound Kargon in this prescription acts directly upon the eliminative tissues of the kidneys to make them filter and strain from the the blood the poisons that produce all forms of catarrhal affections. Relief is often felt even after the first few doses, and it is seldom that the sufferer ever experiences a return attack within the year.

This prescription makes a splendid remedy for all forms of blood disorders and such symptoms as lame back, bladder weaknesses, and rheumatism pains are entirely dispelled.

As this valuable, though simple, recipe comes from a thoroughly reliable source, it should be heeded by every afflicted reader.—1.

INDIAN WAS MURDERED.

Alleged That Wife and Son Beat Him Unmercifully.

Hagersville, Nov. 9.—Particulars of a tragedy, which occurred in Tuscarora, Six Nation Reserve, about three miles north of here, have just been received, and will, in all probability, result in the arrest of two parties on the serious charge of murder.

Richard Battice, an aged Indian, sold a load of hay in Hagersville on Saturday last, and upon returning home became involved in a quarrel with his wife and stepson, named Fred Scott, or Fred. Taylor. They beat the old man unmercifully, breaking his arm and shoulder, blackening both eyes and fracturing the base of the skull, it is alleged.

Dr. Maw of Caledonia was called on Monday and dressed the injured man's wounds, but Battice's condition was so serious Thursday that Dr. Quance of Hagersville was called in consultation. Battice's death took place yesterday morning. The County Crown Attorney of Brant County has ordered a thorough investigation, and it is expected the arrest of the suspected parties will follow.

New National Park.

Ottawa, Nov. 9.—By an Order-in-Council, which appears in The Canada Gazette to-day, a new forest park, to be known as the Jasper Forest Park of Canada, is established.

It will comprise an area of about 33 miles by 52 in Northern Alberta, east of the British Columbia boundary, on the height of land between the tributaries of the Athabaska, McLeod, Pembina, North Saskatchewan and Brazeau Rivers. An area of 105 square miles is subtracted by Order-in-Council from the Yoho Park Reserve in British Columbia.

D. A. G. Glionna and J. F. M. Stewart of Toronto have been appointed commissioners to administrate oaths under the naturalisation act.

Railway Strike Threatened.

Peoria, Ill., Nov. 9.—A poll of the firemen and engineers on the Missouri Pacific Railroad, who are members of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen, has begun on a proposal to strike. The controversy is over the right of the Firemen's Union to exercise jurisdiction over engineers who are members of the brotherhood.

A vote to strike will be followed by a general walkout on all the Gould lines, including the Missouri Pacific, Texas Pacific, International and Great Northern, Wabash, Wheeling & Lake Erie, Pittsburg Terminal and the Denver & Rio Grande.

Petawawa a Grand Camp.

Ottawa, Nov. 9.—Dr. Hodgetts, the Provincial Health Officer, has submitted his report concerning the sanitary conditions at Petawawa camp.

He states that the water supply is perfect. He speaks in highest terms of its purity and arrangements for distribution. The location of the camp in general he also characterizes as excellent.

The enquiry was instituted to ascertain the cause of the numerous typhoid cases, which developed among certain corps, particularly the detachment from Pembroke.

Dr. Hodgetts is still at work upon this phase of the enquiry, and will report shortly.

Mr. Belcourt's Successor.

Ottawa, Nov. 9.—The candidates for the representation of Ottawa, in the place of Mr. Belcourt, who goes to the Senate, are Mr. Auguste Lemieux and Mr. Emmanuel Tasse. There is likely to be a tussle over this, although Mr. Lemieux is the favorite with the Liberal leaders in the association.

First Diabolo Victim.

San Sebastian, Spain, Nov. 9.—The first death as the result of diabolo is reported from Pampeluna. A boy, who was playing the game, threw the spool very high. He misjudged its position as it fell, and it struck him on the temple, inflicting an injury which caused death.

KING'S BIRTHDAY HONORS.

Sir Charles Tupper Gets a Privy Councillorship.

London, Nov. 9.—The Government having decided not to recommend any appointment to the House of Lords during the agitation against the Upper House, the list of honors on the occasion of King Edward's birthday to-day is a comparatively short one.

Sir Charles Tupper, the ex-Premier of Canada, appears first on the list of the new privy councillors.

To membership of the Imperial privy council attaches very considerable dignity and honor. The appointment, in some respects, is a more enviable one than admission to the sacred circle of the peerage, since it cannot be obtained by other than distinguished service to the state or the Empire in some one or other of the many capacities in which it may be given. The members range down from the first prince of the blood royal to private gentlemen possessing no title except the dignified one of "right honorable," which is conferred by membership itself. Privy councillors who are commoners, take precedence immediately after the knights of the garter. The duties of the privy council are more nominal than real, only a few members specially summoned attending the ordinary meetings. General gatherings are rare, being limited to such occasions as the accession of a new sovereign. Membership is for life.

Sir Charles Moss.

London, Nov. 9.—(C. A. P.)—Hon. Charles Moss, Chief Justice of Toronto, has been created a knight bachelor. He is now entitled to the distinction Sir Charles Moss.

Robert Miller Coulter, Deputy Postmaster-General, is given a C. M. G.

WORST OF PUBLIC ENEMIES.

Whitelaw Reid on Man Who Disturbs Anglo-American Unity.

Nottingham, England, Nov. 9.—Whitelaw Reid, the American ambassador, delivered a speech on Anglo-American trade relations at a dinner given here Thursday night by the Nottingham Chamber of Commerce, of which he was a guest.

Referring to the amount of trade carried on between the United States and Great Britain, Mr. Reid said:

"Neither of us is trading with the other out of benevolence or philanthropy; we are doing it on both sides mainly because we think we are thus getting the most for our money.

"This being the case, should not he who for spleen or petty political demagogism utters a word or does an act to interrupt the present friendly relations between such customers be characterized as one of the most disagreeable, as well as one of the most pernicious, of the public enemies?"

TAMPERING WITH JURY.

Judge Issues Stern Warning In Court at Winnipeg.

Winnipeg, Nov. 9.—The remarks of Judge Perdue, when court opened yesterday morning, forecasts this sensational situation. Before the commencement of business Judge Perdue gave a very solemn warning against any attempt to tamper with or influence members of the petit jury.

"I have a word or two to say to all members of the petit jury," said Judge Perdue solemnly. "Yesterday a witness in the witness-box admitted the writing of a letter to a friend, in which he requested friends to temper with the jury. That is practically what it came to, to see members of the jury and influence them. It has also been intimated to me that there is considerable activity in another case that may come at this Assizes. I want all members of the petit jury to report to me. You can report privately to me any influence made to tamper with you in regard to any case pending at the Assizes, and if you do I will see that steps are taken to deal with that person, no matter who it is, whether a lawyer or a layman. I would ask you particularly to report to me any attempt of that kind that has been made.

"This is a thing that cannot be tolerated. It is the worst kind of contempt of court interfering directly with justice."

EMPRESS IS PRAISED.

Germans Appreciate Sacrifice Made In Going to England.

Berlin, Nov. 9.—The Kaiserin was lauded as a heroine last night by those conversant with the present status of international politics. She showed that the Empress must place consideration for the welfare of her people above the love for kin and those dearest to her, for the whole city declares that the Kaiserin changed her decision not to go to England only for political reasons.

When it became apparent that her remaining at home on account of the illness of her niece might be construed, as has been done by several London papers, as an act of disrespect toward the British court, at the Foreign Office one could see dismay and disappointment on every face. When it was announced Wednesday that the Kaiser would be obliged to go to England alone and the Holland visit had been abandoned it was thought the visit to England would be a fiasco, as has been feared by pessimists. Powerful influences were therefore brought to bear on the Empress to reconsider her resolution. Great is the joy among the political leaders at the confirmation of the report that the Kaiserin will accompany her husband after all and help to encourage more friendly relations between the two nations.

Emperor Off For England.

Berlin, Nov. 9.—Emperor William and the Empress departed shortly before midnight for Flushing, where they will embark for England. The Emperor looked well and chatted cheerfully with Prince Von Buelow, the Imperial Chancellor, and Prince Oscar, his young son. The public is demonstrating enormous interest in this visit.

The railroad station was thronged with cheering crowds, among the people being several members of the Cabinet, prominent military officers and other officials.

A Splendid Essay By A Capable Essayist

Miss Powers Delighted T.A.S. Literary Society With Paper Or Duty—A Musical Programme

AN ENJOYABLE EVENING

The reputation which the Ladies' Literary Society of St. Peter's T. A. S. has sustained for presenting programmes of unusual interest was ably held up at its regular meeting in the Assembly Hall last evening, when a musical programme of rare merit and an essay of a high degree of literary excellence were presented to the large and enthusiastic audience present.

Miss Mary Powers was the essayist of the evening and delighted the audience by her lucid exposition of this very interesting subject, "Duty."

Miss Powers introduced her subject by a beautiful quotation from Wordsworth, wherein he addresses "Duty" as the offspring of the voice of God beckoning us to the spirit of self-sacrifice.

"Duty" was then very clearly defined by the essayist as the obligation incumbent upon us in regard to God, to our neighbour and to ourselves; the discharge of which may be said to be the discharge of duty and the accomplishment of which brings contentment to the yearning heart of man.

These obligations were shown to arise from many sources, namely, from the duties incumbent upon us by the natural law imprinted by the author of all good upon the soul of every human being, by the divine law manifested in the old law, by the patriarchs and prophets and in the new law by Christ Himself, by the ecclesiastical law or the law of the church and by the law or obligation which we have to discharge towards the government of our country.

To exemplify the fact that duty is seldom accomplished without some inconvenience, some self-conquest, some sacrifice more or less painful to human nature and that success is achieved only by heroic efforts imbued with a strong sense of duty. The writer gave many examples from early church history, of noble souls who never swerved from the path of duty, though their fidelity it entailed the greatest sacrifice, even that of life itself. Never for a moment would they hesitate between compliance with the unjust requirements of unscrupulous tyrants and the voice of conscience. The world honours such noble champions as these while God rewards them with crowns immortal.

Striking examples of brave warriors whose unwavering fidelity to their country's cause rendered them famous throughout all ages, were also given. Among those mentioned was Lord Nelson, the hero of Trafalgar, who fearlessly exposed himself to death for his country's sake. Love of country in him was invested with the sacred obligation of duty and from the faithful discharge of this he never deviated for a moment throughout his eventful career. This was shown in his last naval battle, when he hoisted the oft-quoted signal, "This day England expects every man to do his duty," and nothing more was needed.

Continuing, the writer referred in glowing terms to Daniel O'Connell, the friend and liberator of the Irish nation, who, in the agitation for the restoration of his country's independence, evinced the highest moral courage in the discharge of what he correctly deemed duty.

The duties of parents towards their children, and children towards their parents were also briefly touched upon.

Concluding, the writer emphasized the fact that our first and most important duty was that of homage to our creator as children of our holy mother the church. In fulfilling our obligations towards God and our neighbour; we also include the performance of that which relates to self, thereby accomplishing the end of eternal wisdom. "Seek ye first the kingdom of God and His justice and all other things will be added unto you."

The musical part of the programme, which preceded the essay, was especially bright and attractive. To select the meritorious selections would be to name the whole programme, in the selection of which excellent judgment was shown.

The enthusiastic audience was most cordial in its reception of the talented performers and they received merited and hearty encores.

The following was the musical programme, introduced by Miss K. McGrath, who occupied the chair for the evening:

Instrumental duet—Misses Fraser and Wilson.
Vocal solo—Miss Nellie Hallihan.
Recitation—Miss Kathleen O'Brien.
Instrumental duet—Misses Hurley and M. Connors.
Recitation—Miss Bernadette Galvin.

The accompanist of the evening was Miss Lilian Fife.

The singing of the National Anthem brought the meeting to a close.

The next meeting of the society will be held on Friday evening, November 22nd, when a paper will be read by Miss Maloney.

BABY BORN IN BURNING HOUSE

The Stork Arrives Under Most Peculiar Circumstances

In the midst of smoke and fire and the excitement attending the extinguishing of flames which threatened to eat up the house, a little baby made its entrance into the world last night.

Mrs. William Everton, of St. Albans avenue Wychwood, was under the influence off chloroform when an overheated stove, lighted in preparation for the new baby, set fire to the kitchen below. Dr. Corrifan, of Wychwood, was in attendance, and in spite of the flames cooly continued his labours. In the meantime the neighbours had rushed to fight the fire. They were ignorant of what was transpiring upstairs, and in the midst of their endeavours the babe arrived. Dr. Corrigan carried it to his office, two doors away, and returned to Mrs. Everton. When the news spread abroad the neighbours made eager and anxious enquiries, to be met with the quiet and assuring words, "Both are doing well." Dr. Corrigan was heartily congratulated on the way in which he pursued his delicate task to its successful conclusion.—Toronto Star.

PETERBORO' WOMAN DIES IN FAR OFF NEW ZEALAND

Mrs. Slater Sanderson One Time Resident Here Passes Away

In far off New Zealand a death occurred recently which will be regretted by many former Peterborough friends of the deceased, Mrs. W Slater Sanderson. Mr. and Mrs. Sanderson were once residents of this city and they were well and favourably known here. The Winnipeg Tribune of a recent date gives the following account of Mrs. Sanderson's demise:—

The sad news reached Winnipeg on Saturday from Wellington, New Zealand, of the death of Mrs. W. Slater Sanderson. The late Mrs. Sanderson was well and favourably known in Winnipeg, and geseral regret will be expressed at her death. Mrs. Sanderson, with her two little daughters, Eugenie and Marguerite, visited her sister, Mrs. W J Hay and Mrs. George H. McDougall, some two years ago, after which she left for the east, where she spent two months with her mother, Mrs. G. Girouard. About a year ago, Mrs. Sanderson left for New Zealand. Much sympathy is felt for the family, as this is the second bereavement in two weeks, Mrs. Hay's daughter, Edna, a promising young girl, having died about two weeks ago. Mrs. Sanderson leaves a husband and two daughters to mourn her loss.

That tired feeling will disappear your appetite will improve; your digestion will be perfect, if you will take Miller's Compound Iron Pills. Sold by Wm. Mudill.

RELATIONS NOT OF THE BEST

Brewers and Hotelmen in Some Parts Of The Province Not on Best Of Terms

SOME REASONS ARE GIVEN

To say that relations are somewhat strained between the hotelmen of the province and the brewers is not deviating from the truth. The trouble originated when the brewers put up the price of all malted goods about nine per cent. a few days ago, and, were it not that, as one hotelman put it, "we are at the mercy of the brewers," there would be further trouble.

As it is, a deputation of local hotelmen waited on the brewers yesterday, and requested that the price of malted liquors be put back to what it was originally. The brewers refused to give an answer offhand and told the deputation that they would take the matter into consideration, and let them know in the course of a few days.

Not Entitled to an Increase

The hotelmen pointed out to the brewers with figures that they were in no way entitled to increase the price. "There is no justification for it at all," was the way one man put it," and it looks as if you were trying to get all you can out of us." The brewers replied that the high price of malted goods and barley necessitated the increase, but that nevertheless they would consider the question of going back to the old scale.

"If the brewers refuse, we can't do a thing," said a hotelman, in speaking of the matter this morning. "They practically have a combine to which belongs every brewer in the Province. They all agreed to put up the price, and if they refuse to lower it, what can we do?"

No Possibility of Independent Action

"How about the hotelmen starting a brewery of their own?" the reporter asked.

"That's all talk," he answered. "We have never seriously thought of going into the brewery business ourselves. In fact, we can't for the simple reason that if we did we couldn't get any malt. The brewers have that cornered good and fast."

In the meantime the brewers are not worrying. They heard what the deputation had to say, and will take their own time about giving an answer.—Toronto Star.

On inquiry of the Calcutt Brewing Company it is learned that they have not advanced prices to hotelmen.

M. C. TOOLEY RETURNS FROM HUNT

Snowden Party Have Successful Hunt—Mr. M. C. Tooley Returns Last Night

Mr. M. C. Tooley, of the Snowden deer hunting party, returned last night after a five weeks hunt around Gold Lake. Mr. Tooley appears to have had a good time while away, according to the accounts he gave the Examiner, the weather was bad for hunting; the party only had about three days good hunt in the five weeks he spent in the camp. Mr Tooley speaks very highly of Ald. Stewart of Toronto, who was a new member of the party. The gentleman is a good hunter and a crack shot, and made many an evening lively with his funny stories. The party had shot seven deer when Mr. Tooley left. One of these was eaten before his departure. The fishing was splendid, and the party lived entirely on fish and venison while in the woods. The deer hunting appears to be very good, according to Mr. Tooley's story, and every party seems to be pulling down a few of the fleet footers. Gus Cochrane's party, which went up last Saturday night are having their expectations fulfilled. This party is camped along Sucker Lake. The rest of the Snowden party will return on Wednesday next.

A FARMER'S TRIALS

Weak and Worn out Through Over work and Long Hours

The farmer's life is always a hard one, but if he is weak or suffering it is almost unbearable. The hours are long and the work so hard that none but the strongest can stand it. An illustration of the effect of hard work on the system is given by Mr. Geo. Huntaberg, a farmer of Spry, Ont. He says:—"I have lived nearly all my life in the Bruce peninsula. I am a farmer and have always had my share of hard work and like a good many other men I thought there was no wearout to my system. In this I was mistaken for about a year and a half ago I began to go gradually down hill. I would tire at the least exertion, my appetite failed me; I had a severe pain in my side and around my heart. The doctor told me I was suffering from pernicious anaemia; that I was almost bloodless. I doctored for six months but instead of improving I grew so weak that I could hardly move without assistance. I lost flesh till I was almost a skeleton. A friend from Stokes Bay told me of the great benefit she had derived from the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and advised me to try them. My sister-in-law had also received great benefit from their use so I decided to give them a trial. After using the pills about a month I began to gain strength and from that on I improved rapidly. New blood seemed to course through my veins, my appetite improved; the pain left my side and heart and I gained in weight. After using about a dozen boxes of the pills I was again enjoying the best of health. I have nothing but praise for Dr. Williams' Pink Pills as they cured me after medical treatment had failed—I really believe they saved my life."

Good blood is the secret of health. Keep the blood pure and such diseases as anaemia, rheumatism, sciatica, indigestion, heart palpitation, eczema and the secret ills of women will not exist. The most perfect blood tonic and nerve restorer in the world is Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. RESTARAUNT WINDOW BROKEN

Three Respectable Men Deliberately Push Sign Through John Caradimo's Window

John Caradimo, proprietor of the restaurant on Charlotte street, adjoining Demetre Bros., is lying in wait for the three men who deliberately pushed a sign through his window. Mr. Caradimo says that last night about 10.30 o'clock, while he was in his pantry at the back of the restaurant, he heard the side window crash. He ran outside and found his sign leaning through the window. Three respectably dressed fellows were moving west on Charlotte street at a rapid rate and would not come back in answer to his calls. A guest who was having lunch at the time saw the window broken. The men were not drunk, and it was done out of pure mischief. Mr. Caradimo is very indignant over this, and promises to make it hot for somebody.

THE SIGNALLING CLASS INSPECTED

Captain Munn and Sergt. Major McGowan Here Last Night

The members of the 57th Regiment Signalling Class were inspected at the Armouries last night by Capt. Munn and Sergt.-Major McGowan of Kingston, and came through the ordeal with flying colours. Some ten members of the class were present and they did clever work.

At the conclusion of the inspection the inspecting officers complimented the members of the class upon their excellent work and efficiency, stating that the signalling had been smartly and accurately done and that the class was making commendable progress.

The Kingston officers made a very favourable impression upon the local wig-waggers. Both are smart, and soldierly in appearance, and know their work and how it should be taught.

TRAVELLERS MAKE THEIR HOME IN PETERBOROUGH

Striking Proof of The Centralization Of Business in This City—Many Represent Outside Firms

HAVE SOME LONG RUNS

The fact that there are 111 commercial travellers, who make their home in Peterborough, is an interesting piece of information, which is comparatively unknown to many citizens, and which will likely cause some surprise. However, the assessment report shows that this is the case, and that there are really over a hundred knights of the grip who reside in the city. This surprisingly large number should be very gratifying to those who have the interests of the city at heart, inasmuch as it goes to show that a large amount of business is being centralized in Peterborough, and that this city is being made the distributing point for a large number of firms who do business in this district. Geographically, Peterborough is well situated being in the centre of the eastern part of Ontario, surrounded by a large number of busy towns, whose merchants are all prospering, and who are easily reached by representatives living in Peterborough.

A large proportion of these travellers represent Peterborough manufactories and wholesale houses. The wholesale groceries in this city employ at least a dozen, while others represent the American Cereal Company, the Peterborough Cereal Company, J. J. Turner & Sons, B. F. Ackerman & Son, and other industries of the city. All the bagmen however are not the agents of local firms. There are two travellers for Western Ontario furniture factories living here and several representatives of Toronto and Montreal drygoods houses. Other local men travel for candy and biscuit manufacturers, whose factories are situated in different parts of Canada. Other men, again, are the representatives of tobacco firms.

Some of these grip men cover large districts, only getting home to their families once or twice a month, not that often in the case of some of them. Others, on the other hand, manage to get home every week. One local gentleman is not so lucky. He is the representative of a well-known London, England, drygoods house who spends five out of every six months on the road and who gets home twice a year for a month at a time. He is an exception to the rule, however, as the majority manage to get home much more often than that.

The presence of so many travellers in Peterborough is considered as an indication of the fact that the city is recognized as a good business centre by the enterprising Canadian firms, and a desirable place of residence by the commercial men themselves.

Tully's Hair Tonic

and DANDRUFF CURE makes the hair grow July 24th, 1907

About the month of September, 1906, my hair began to come out in large spots, leaving the scalp perfectly bare on the right side of the head, also my beard on the left side. About the 15th of December I showed it to J. D. Tully, Druggist; he said that he had a preparation that would restore the hair. I could scarcely credit his statements, but decided to try it, and in three weeks using the hair commenced to grow. Since that time I have lost nearly all my old hair which has been entirely replaced with new hair, and the beard also. I consider this by all means the best hair grower on the market, as I had previously tried other preparations without any effect. Any one wishing to ask me about it will find me at my home, 225 McDonnel Street, Peterborough, or at R. R. Crossing, G.T.R., Charlotte St.

A WARNING TO MOTHERS

There are unscrupulous dealers who for the sake of trifling gain are willing to sacrifice the health—perhaps the lives of little ones. This is proved by the fact that there are a number of imitations of Baby's Own Tablets offered. The mother can protect her child by seeing that the full name, Baby's Own Tablets, and four-leaf clover with a child's head on each leaf, is found on the outside wrapper on each box. Do not take anything else as you may endanger your child's life. If you cannot get the genuine Tablets from your dealer send 25 cents to the Dr. Williams Medicine Company, Brockville, Ont., and get a box by mail post paid.

Enjoyable House Warming At King Edward School

City Teachers And Members Of The Board Of Education Met Last Night Under The Auspices Of The Teachers' Association

THE INSPECTOR WELCOMED

The Teachers' Association scored a distinct success last night, when the members united for a social evening in the new King Edward school. They were joined by their friends and the members of the Board of Education, with their wives, and this event, the first on record in educational circles in the city, will be long remembered by those who had the pleasure of being present. A noticeable feature was the friendship and good will that was evident among the teachers of the different schools, the Collegiate Institute, Public and Separate Schools being well represented.

Aside from the fact that the teachers were given an opportunity of uniting socially, Mr. A. Mowat successor to Mr. D. Walker, as inspector of the Public schools, was formally introduced to the assembly, and particularly to those who will be under his direction in scholastic affairs.

King Edward School

The new school most suitably served the purpose for a social gathering, and the freshness of the interior and the appropriate fittings, were enhanced by the electric lights. The King Edward school won many admirers, especially among those who visited it for the first time. The Kindergarten room, off the wide hall on the ground floor, was utilised as an assembly hall, and a short programme opened the evening's entertainment.

The Addresses

Mr. J. E. Hodgson, president of the Association, presided as chairman. In a brief, introductory speech he stated that the evening was intended to bring the teachers together, and develop their social inclinations, and strengthen mutual friendship. This has been neglected in the past, but this initial effort, he hoped, would be successful. A new home is generally initiated by a house warming, and Mr. Hodgson suggested that the new school be given a good one. He was pleased that the teachers would meet Mr. Mowat, and also be introduced to the members of the Board of Education. In this way, he remarked, the educational system in the city would be strengthened, if possible, and at least the teachers and trustees would be personally acquainted.

Mr. Robert Fair, chairman of the Board of Education, was called upon to address the gathering. He extended a warm welcome to Mr. Mowat, spoke of the favourable recommendation that had been made of him, and expressed the belief that his work in Peterborough would be attended with success. Mr. Fair also referred to the new building, which, he said, was a credit to the city, and one that the citizens should be justly proud of.

Mrs. McFadden and Miss McCollum rendered a piano duet that was greatly appreciated.

Mr. Hodgson then introduced Mr. Mowat, first reading a letter from Mr. D. Walker, former inspector, expressing his regret at not being able to be present.

Mr. Mowat's Remarks

Mr. Mowat extended his gratitude to the executive of the association that their social had been arranged for a date that permitted him to attend it. He was glad to have the opportunity of meeting the members of the city's teaching staffs, and the Board of Education. His remarks dealt with the importance of the teaching profession in relation to every walk in life. A characteristic that is noticeable to-day, he said, is the great desire to educate the masses. There are five social influences, namely, the home, the church, the school, the government and business. The teachers, he continued, do not seem to realize the importance of the part they play in all these branches. Their influence will be evidenced in everyone, for as children are taught, so they mature, and their early training will materially affect their after life.

A trained intellect, Mr. Mowat said, is required everywhere, and the teachers are most responsible in seeing that the children receive good training. Thus the profession is one to be proud of, as on it depends in a large measure, the advancement of the country. He then referred to Mr. Walker's good work in the city, and stated that he would endeavour to take it up where his predecessor had dropped it, and it was his aim to continue it to a success. He realized that there is much work to be done in fulfilling his duties, especially in such an educational centre as is Peterborough. The Board had done well in providing for the boys and girls of the city, and it would be his uppermost thought to do everything with the same end in view.

He asked the teachers to lend him their hearty co-operation, and he was assured that their relations would always be friendly and cordial.

Music and Refreshments

During the evening an orchestra composed of Messrs Howarth, Hughes and Nicholl, violin, cornet, and piano, respectively, entertained the gathering with excellent music. The programme in the hands of these artists is sufficient comment. It was as follows:

Old Faithful, March.
Royal Chef, Selection.
Casino Tunze, Waltz.
Great Divide, March.
You and I, Waltz.
Light Cavalry, Overture.
Rialto, Medley.
American Home Songs, Medley.

The music sounded particularly fine in the new building, which has acoustic properties. The guests promenaded throughout the building to the sweet strains of the music, and had a very enjoyable time. Refreshments were served by Hooper, completing an evening in which the Association set a high standard for similar events that may be held in the future.

YOU CAN EASILY OPERATE THIS TYPEWRITER YOURSELF

Don't worry your correspondent.
Don't write him anything by hand—that takes him time to make out—that may leave him in doubt, that he cannot easily read.
And don't fill out legal papers or card memos—or make out accounts or hotel menus in your own hand writing.
It looks bad, reflects on your standing, makes people think you can't afford a stenographer, and is sometimes ambiguous.
You can write out your letters—make out an abstract—fill in an insurance policy—enter your card memos—make out your accounts, or hotel menus—or do any kind of writing you need, on any kind, size or thickness of paper, and space any way you want on

The OLIVER Typewriter
The Standard Visible Writer

You can write any of these things yourself if you do not happen to have a stenographer.
For you can easily learn with a little practice to write just as rapidly, and as perfectly as an expert operator on the Oliver. Because the Oliver is the simplified typewriter. And you can do every word you write. About 80% more durable than any other typewriter, because it has about 50% less wearing points than most other typewriters.
Easier to write with than these other complicated, intricate machines that require "humoring"—technical knowledge—long practice and special skill to operate.
Than machines which cannot be adjusted to any special space—with which it is impossible to write abstracts, insurance policies, or odd-size documents except you buy expensive special attachments requiring expert to operate.
You can adjust the Oliver to any reasonable use—you can write on any reasonable size and thickness of paper, right out to the very edge, without the aid or any expensive attachment or special skill, and your work will be neat appearing, legible and clear.
For the Oliver is the typewriter for the doctor the lawyer, the insurance agent, the merchant the hotel proprietor—or any man that does his own writing.

BEATS HER OWN RECORD AGAIN

Lusitania Beats Her Previous Fast Trip by Over an Hour.

ENCOUNTERED STORMY SEAS

Made Voyage in 4 Days, 18 Hours and 40 Minutes—Lands Her Big Cargo of Gold Safely in New York—Exceeded 600 Knots Every Day—Average Speed 24.25 Knots—Machinery Worker Well.

New York, Nov. 9.—The marvelous record established less than a month ago by the giant turbine Cunarder Lusitania, when she cut several hours from the passage time across the Atlantic, already has been broken. But the Lusitania still retains the title of Queen of the Seas, as it was she herself that established the new low mark, and incidentally she added several new records to her credit. These include the best single days' run—618 knots, made on Nov. 6—an average of more than 600 knots for every full day, and an average hourly speed of 24.25 knots for the full 2,781 miles.

The best previous record for the westward passage across the ocean was made by the Lusitania on her last voyage when she covered the distance in four days, nineteen hours and fifty-two minutes. The voyage ended yesterday over the same course, and was completed in four days eighteen hours and forty minutes, thus clipping one hour and twelve minutes from the previous low mark. And this was done in the face of conditions none too favorable. From the start the weather was stormy, and on the last two days, when the big steamer was on the home stretch, where the greatest burst of speed might have been expected, she drove straight into the teeth of a strong wind, high confusing seas, and occasional sharp squalls. The day's runs were 21, 616, 618, 610 and 310 knots.

In the Lusitania's big vaults was stored nearly $12,000,000 in gold engaged abroad by American bankers since the present movement began.

Large Tannery Burned.

Quebec, Nov. 9.—A large tannery, the property of Edmond Julian, at Limoilou, Que., was totally destroyed by fire at an early hour yesterday morning. The Quebec brigade hurried to the scene a few minutes distant from the city, and succeeded in protecting the surrounding buildings, which were threatened. Loss, $35,000; insurance, $6,500.

Mystery at North Bay.

North Bay, Nov. 9.—Deep mystery surrounds the finding of a body covered by straw in a barn about two miles north of here yesterday morning. Every effort has been made to identify the dead man, but up to the present have been unsuccessful.

DAMAGES OF AWFUL HURRICANE

Marseilles Is Swept by a Terrific Wind Storm.

Gas Works Were Flooded — Many Perish in Falling Houses—Extent of Casualties Not Yet Known—Floods Causing Great Distress in South of France—Coal Station Submerged by the Rain.

Marseilles, Nov. 9.—A hurricane swept over this city last night, causing immense damage to docks and other waterfront property. The gas works were flooded by the terrific downpour that accompanied the storm, and the city was plunged into darkness. A number of people were killed by collapsing houses, but in the confusion and the darkness it is impossible to determine the extent of the casualties last night.

All of southern France continues to suffer from the floods following the excessive rains. In many places the inundations are worse than the horrors which followed the September storm. The extensive coal stations at Grassessaic have been completely flooded, and all work has been suspended.

Drinking; Was Drowned.

St. John, N. B., Nov. 9.—Robert Smith, a sailor, while attempting to board his vessel last night fell into the harbor and was drowned. Smith, who belonged to Yarmouth, N. S., had been drinking.

ARE SEEKING A SPEEDY TRIAL

Application on Behalf of Accused in London Election Case.

MAY BE TRIED NEXT WEEK

Prefer Appearance Before County Judge to Indictment at Assizes—Gave Themselves Up Yesterday—Question as to Jurisdiction Reserved—Crown Prosecutor Objects — Array of Counsel.

Toronto, Nov. 9.—Efforts of counsel to have the crown withdraw the conspiracy charges against John O'Gorman, George M. Reid, William J. Mulloy and Daniel Wylie, in connection with the 1905 London election bribery scandal, having failed, the four yesterday surrendered themselves to the sheriff, and at 2 o'clock in the afternoon appeared before Judge Winchester for trial.

There they withdrew their election for a jury trial, which was upon the list of cases to be tried by Justice MacMahon of London, who will preside at the Assizes, which open Nov. 18. They elected under the criminal code to be tried summarily by the judge.

To this J. Lynch-Staunton, K. C., of Hamilton, special crown prosecutor, objected, and the question of the jurisdiction of the judge was set for a week from Monday.

Why counsel for these defendants deemed it advisable to choose a judge as against a jury trial is causing considerable discussion.

E. F. B. Johnston, K. C., counsel for the accused, said that as Col. Denison had refused to try the cases when the men appeared before him this was the first opportunity the men had had to have summary trial, which must be had before Judge Winchester, he being the only judge with permanent criminal jurisdiction.

The decision to have the cases brought before Judge Winchester was reached Thursday night.

The bail bonds under which the men are bound to appear before the Assize judge still stand.

Belleville, Nov. 9.—A scaffold at the gas works broke yesterday morning and a bricklayer's helper, John McGillivray, fell about twenty feet and sustained injuries which may prove fatal.

London, Nov. 9.—The Empress of Ireland made the trip from Cape Race to Tory Island in 3 days, 23 hours, 15 minutes, the record for the Canadian service.

Indian Killed by Train.

WILL ATTACK WITNESSES.

Popular Comedian Denies Charges Brought Against Him.

New York, Nov. 9.—Henry J. Goldsmith, attorney for Raymond Hitchcock, has announced that the first step in preparing his client's defence would be an application for permission to inspect the minutes of the grand jury which found the six indictments against the actor. An attempt will be made to attack the characters of the girl witnesses who testified against Hitchcock and to show that they are not worthy of belief.

In the Voecks blackmail case Hitchcock, under cross-examination before his disappearance, admitted taking little girls in his auto to his home in Great Neck, where they were kept over night in his wife's absence. He also admitted taking two of them to a house on 41st street, where he had a furnished room. His attorney will claim that in his attentions to these girls Hitchcock acted purely out of the goodness of his heart and that he was inspired by no evil motives; that he was not guilty of the offences with which they have charged him.

The whereabouts of Hitchcock during the week that he was a fugitive from justice are still shrouded in mystery. Hollis E. Cooley, manager for Henry W. Savage, who went on Hitchcock's bail bond in the Police Court, has a farm in the Hoosac Mountains, about twenty miles' drive from North Adams, Mass.

Inspector McCafferty sent Detective Wilbur to investigate a clue that the actor was at North Adams. Wilbur spent two days searching in the mountains for Hitchcock just prior to the latter's return.

GOATS DERAILED TRAIN.

Long Hairs of Angora Flock Wound Around Wheels.

St. Louis, Mo., Nov. 9.—A work train drawn by an electric engine on the Illinois Traction system ran into a flock of forty-five angora goats near here Thursday. The long goat-hairs wound around the trucks and wheels in a way that derailed the engine and six cars. The track was torn up for 400 feet and traffic delayed for 12 hours.

Miss Maloney Indignant.

Philadelphia, Nov. 9.—"I never married Samuel Clarkson. It is all a lie—a mean, despicable lie. I never went abroad with him. I never eloped with him. There is nothing between us and never was. Now, it's all settled and I won't say one word more."

Helen Maloney-Osborne, hurrying from her father's mansion here to his summer home at Spring Lake, N. J., where the scandal that followed her recent disappearance is to be laid at rest through the sanctification of the previous Osborne marriage by the church, made this passionate pronouncement Thursday night.

Safety Valve Was Defective.

Trenton, Nov. 9.—The coroner's jury, which was empanelled at Trenton by Dr. Crowe, to investigate the cause of the fatal accident at the canning factory, returned a verdict that George Graham, and Louis Dube came to their death through an explosion of one of the retorts, the cause of the explosion, in the opinion of the jury, being a defective safety valve on the said retort, which should have released at a pressure of ten pounds of steam, and on investigation afterwards would not release at a pressure of 57 pounds.

Could Not Oust Brokers.

New York, Nov. 9.—Under the decision of the appellate division of the Supreme Court of New York State the curb stock market will continue to be one of the unique features of the financial district.

James A. Allan sought to secure an order from the court several weeks ago to compel the police commissioner to abolish the curb market on the ground that its noise and crowding of Broad street was a detriment to the business occupants of nearby office buildings.

A lower court, however, dismissed Mr. Allen's application, and on appeal the appellate division sustained the decision yesterday.

Crushed Between Vestibules.

Brighton, Nov. 9.—Blake Freeman, a young man residing in this town, was badly injured at the Grand Trunk depot yesterday morning about three o'clock. It is supposed he had rode between the baggage and express cars on No. 5 from Trenton to Brighton. When the train stopped at Brighton he was caught between the two vestibules and badly crushed. The train had to be started in order to release him. He is still living, but very low.

STRIKERS ON TRIAL.

Men Engaged in Buckingham Riots a Year Ago.

Ottawa, Nov. 9.—Adelard Hamelin, Hilaire Charette, Louis Landry, J. B. Clement, C. D. Bastien and G. R. Coteau, the six strikers implicated in the Buckingham riot of over a year ago, by which three lives were lost, appeared yesterday afternoon for trial in Hull before Magistrate Talbot.

The chief witnesses were Dr. McComb of Buckingham, who performed the autopsy, and Albert McLaren, president of the James McLaren Lumber Co., against which the demonstration was made. The story of the riot was retold.

Before the adjournment C. J. Brock, one of the counsel for the McLarens, made a strong appeal to have the prisoners committed, but this the magistrate refused, and they were admitted to bail. The fact that during the past year none of the men charged has made any attempt to leave the country was commented on.

THREE MEN DROWNED.

Caught at Sea in Furious Storm—Thought to Be Lost.

Charlottetown, P. E. I., Nov. 9.—Great anxiety is felt for the safety of Thomas Stewart, miller, middle-aged; Howard Poole, aged 17, and Reeves, aged 20, who left Souris on Wednesday night at 9.30, in the midst of a furious northeast gale, in the schooner Haleyon, for Georgetown, 22 miles distant. The Haleyon was only 30 tons' burden and carried no ballast. The men on board had little knowledge of seamanship. The trip should have been made under ordinary circumstances in five or six hours, but no tidings of the missing vessel have yet been heard. It is feared she capsized while attempting to clear Boughton Island. Wreckage of the same color has been seen in Cardigan River. The missing men all belonged to Woodville Mills, Lower Cardigan. Stewart is a middle-aged man with a wife and six children.

Will Go to Senate.

Ottawa, Nov. 9.—It is probable that the three Senate vacancies in Ontario will be filled at a meeting of the Cabinet within the next few days. It is understood that two of the vacancies will go to Mr. Archibald Campbell, M. P. for Centre York, and Mr. Belcourt, M. P. for Ottawa. For the third vacancy the name of Hon. John Charlton is most prominently mentioned, but no definite decision has yet been reached. The appointment of Messrs. Campbell and Belcourt will necessitate bye-elections in Centre York and Ottawa.

Will Oppose Mayor Ashdown.

Winnipeg, Nov. 9.—Municipal power is the whole topic of discussion in the city, and Monday night's session of the City Council promises to be a record-breaker in point of interest.

The power men will likely bring out a candidate in opposition to Mayor Ashdown, and it promises to be the biggest fight in the municipal history of Winnipeg.

The Labor party that night passed a resolution condemning the mayor for vetoing the power proposition.

ONLY A Common Cold,

but it becomes a serious matter if neglected. Pneumonia, Bronchitis, Asthma, Catarrh or Consumption is the result. Get rid of it at once by taking Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup.

Obstinate coughs yield to its grateful soothing action, and in the racking, persistent cough, often present in Consumptive cases, it gives prompt and sure relief. In Asthma and Bronchitis it is a successful remedy, rendering breathing easy and natural, enabling the sufferer to enjoy refreshing sleep and often effecting a permanent cure."

Mrs. C. Townsend, Lockport, N.S., writes: "I feel it my duty to let you know of my experience with Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup. I was troubled with a cold and severe cough all the time, and very severe spells of Asthma. The doctors did all they could for me, but could only give me relief for a short time. I happened to see your medicine advertised and purchased three bottles, and it gave me great relief, and I do not cough at all. I do not know how to express my gratitude for what Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup has done for me."

Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup 25 cts. per bottle at all dealers. Put up in yellow wrapper, and three pine trees the trade mark. Refuse substitutes. There is only one Norway Pine Syrup and that one is Dr. Wood's.

Mr. H. A. Thurston, of 228 Vermont St. E., Indianapolis, Restored by Ferrozone.

"A year ago I took the grippe. I was as weak as a child. I was no longer able to eat. My blood was thin. My cheeks were white and hollow. Doctors gave me all kinds of medicine, but none of them brought me strength. My friends said I was wasting away with some slow disease, and I bade them good-bye. Then I heard of the wonderful Ferrozone. After three days it gave me an appetite. I gained strength and became cheerful. Under Ferrozone I improved steadily. I am well to-day. I weigh fifteen pounds heavier than ever before, and feel like a new man.

The City Hockey League Adopts New Constitution

Some Important Changes Have Been Made Since Last Year ---Teams May Only Sign Ten Men---Norwood Will Be Admitted

At a meeting of the Executive of the Peterborough City Hockey League held last night in the Y.M.C.A. the committee appointed to take up the matter of the revision of the constitution of the League presented its report which was adopted by the executive. A copy of the new regulations will be found below and it will be seen that some important changes have been made since last year.

No other business was done, the applications for membership being laid over until Tuesday night when the annual meeting will be held in the Y.M.C.A. It is important that there should be a large attendance at this meeting and that all the clubs intending to enter should be on hand. The election of officers will take place and other important business will come up for discussion. The Norwood team has applied for membership and will in all probability be admitted.

The new constitution will be as follows:—

1. That this association be called the Peterborough City Hockey League.
2. The Annual Meeting of this League to be held not later than Nov. 15th of each year.
3. The active officers of this League shall consist of the President, 1st Vice-President, 2nd Vice-President; Secretary-Treasurer, and a representative from each club.
4. A majority of the officers shall constitute a quorum, and due notice must be given to each representative two days before such meeting.
5. The entrance fee of $2.00 must accompany each application for admission to the League; same being returned if application is not accepted.
6. No club can be represented at the annual meeting unless the admission fee of $2.00 for the present season is paid on or before date of meeting.
7. No verbal proxies will be accepted at any meeting and all proxies must be signed by an officer of the club and witnessed.
8. The amount of deposit required for each Club to be determined by incoming executive and must be paid to the Secretary before December 25th.
9. O.H.A. rules to govern all games so far as actual play is concerned.
10. All games must commence on advertised time. Any teams delaying games will be fined $2.00 per team.
11. All games must be played to a finish.
12. Competing teams to agree on a referee two days before each game and in the event of their inability to agree, this matter be left in the hands of the President and Secretary-Treasurer.
13. Any club playing a man who violates any rule of this League must lose such game and is also liable to suspension.
14. No team is allowed to enter the League after Dec. 15th.
15. Each club is requested to register their colours with the secretary before the first schedule game.
16. No permits issued to any club under any consideration.
17. A player in the City Hockey League must be a bonafide resident from Dec. 1st, of the municipality in which the team is located with whom he has signed a certificate.
18. Each player in the City Hockey League must hold a certificate from the League to entitle him to play in such games.
19. That the number of playing certificates for each club be limited to ten.
20. Players who have participated in any League games for the Peterborough Hockey Club in the O.H.A. series, other than the Junior; same and including the season of 1906-06, are not eligible.
21. The team winning the cup must furnish the Secretary-Treasurer a satisfactiry bond for $25.00 against loss or damage to the cup.
22. All City Hockey League games must be played on Peterborough ice.

Ray Best And Wilson To Meet Tom Coley To-night

Harriers Will Send Their Captain With The Winner Of The Examiner Road Race To Try To Cut Off Tom Coley In The Five Mile Race in Toronto Armouries

Peterborough will have two representatives in the five mile race at the Garrison A.A.A. Meet in the Toronto armouries to-night, the Y.M.C.A. Harriers having decided to enter Ray P. Best, the team captain, as well as Ernie Wilson, in the event. The two left for Toronto on the 4.48 C. P. R. train this afternoon, accompanied by Dick Baker, the Harriers' trainer. The two men are in good shape and should give Tom Coley the run of his life, although the indoor game is new to the local runners and the Irish Canadians' crack little five miler will have somewhat of an advantage in this respect. The Harriers' pair have been training for the past few nights in the drill shed and the Y.M.C.A. and have managed to accustom themselves a little to the indoor game.

Ben Howard will not be on hand, the reports in to Toronto papers, notwithstanding. The game little Indian did not feel in the best of condition, and the club decided not to send him along with the other two.

SPORTING NEWS AND VIEWS

The usual agitation is going on in Toronto just now in regard to a new hockey rink. Toronto doesn't need a new rink. What they require is a brand new lot of hockey players.

• • • •

The Nome, Alaska, basketball team will leave in December on one of the most remarkable jaunts ever taken by an athletic organization. In order to advertise Alaska, the Arctic Brotherhood and the managers of the Alaska-Yukon Exposition have raised $10,000 to pay the expenses of the trip. The players from the far north will play half a dozen games in Ontario and in all the American States. The Nome players may be seen in a game in Peterborough this winter.

Jim Jeffries, retired heavyweight champion of the world, denies the report that he is to re-enter the ring. The fact that he is taking daily exercise in a Los Angeles gymnasium has given rise to the rumour. Jeff says that he is out of the game for good, and he also adds that he thinks Tommy Burns, the Canadian heavyweight, the best man in the world in the ring to-day, which, coming from the king of them all, is high praise for Noah Brusso.

• • • •

The Montreal team against the Tigers to-day will be weak, according to a despatch from the East. If such is the case the Ottawa team would not surprise people in these parts very much if it took a fall out of Jimmy Craig's team. It is not likely that the Hamilton fans would put on mourning if they did.

• • • •

The Toronto Telegram says that Hamilton will have its work cut out to defeat the team it used to be, for even in its weakened condition it should do up the Argos without trouble.

• • • •

The Peterborough City Hockey League will soon include the same circuit as did the famous Trent Valley League. Norwood and Lakefield will both be in the running this season, and the public should see some of the best hockey that the City League has ever produced. The league will be stronger than ever this season, and with an increased number of teams.

• • • •

There is a rumour to the effect that Mr. Fred. A. Clarke, the efficient president of the City Hockey League for the past few years, intends to sever his connection with the league this season. It is hoped that this is a mistake, as Mr. Clarke has been a most impartial and painstaking official, giving his time and ability generously to the affairs of the league. He has had considerable experience in hockey matters, and it would be a handicap to the league to start the season this year without Mr. Clarke at the helm.

• • • •

As usual, Toronto has not got a team in the running in any of the big rugby unions. Varsity has a slight chance, but it doesn't look like a safe betting proposition down this way. The only man that is upholding Toronto's reputation just now is Tom Longboat, and he is only a visitor in the Queen City. Even Tom Coley denies that Toronto is his home. The first thing they know, Dave Hartley will go up and break the Belt Line record, and then there will be nothing left for the Toronto sporting writers to enthuse over.

• • • •

Jimmy Reynolds is again in the limelight with a few propositions which he hopes to have taken up next May, providing that he can secure wagers worth while. He offers to walk over the course from Oshawa to Toronto and return to Peterborough via Port Hope, recently covered by Hartley of Peterborough, in 33 hours, 42 one hour and six minutes less than Hartley's time. One week later Reynolds offers to walk from Port Hope to Toronto and return, a distance of 130 miles, on which he made a record of 36 hours and 22 minutes, in 34 hours. In each instance Reynolds offers to wager $300 against $500. Again, a week later, Reynolds will walk against Hartley 150 miles or more; the course proposed by Reynolds is from Port Hope to Toronto and return to Cobourg. In this case, Reynolds must see $1,000 opposition money before he starts. When questioned by a Times reporter as to whether he would do any more walking this year, Reynolds replied that he did not think he would, as the weather could not be depended on.—Port Hope Times.

• • • •

Hamilton will have a team of five men in the Independent Harriers' 15-mile team race at Montreal to-day. The team will be in charge of Bobby Kerr, and will consist of D. McQuaig, George Adams, Jack Caffery, Wallace Muirhead and Tom Ellis. The runners left on Friday night, and all are in good shape for the contest.

• • • •

None of the Hamilton players mentioned take part in any other sport but rowing, and only two or three of them are oarsmen, so that the action of the C.A.A.U. will not affect Tigers much. But because the C.A.A.U. has disqualified the players it does not necessarily mean that they are professional. The new rugby union has appointed a board of governors that is just as competent of declaring a man an amateur or professional as the C.A.A.U. The Interprovincial Union is an amateur organization, but will guide its own affairs and not cause trouble by trying to get in the good graces of the C.A.A.U. It has a number of men at its head who will stand for nothing but what is amateur, and the players will be just as free from the taint of professionalism as some of the athletic stars that have made business boom for the C.A.A.U. —Hamilton Herald.

• • • •

The City League in inserting a new clause in the constitution by which it is impossible for a club to sign more than ten players is a very wise one. In other years a couple of wide awake teams have got out early in the season and corralled the best of the players with the result that they were much stronger than the other clubs of the League. Under the new conditions it will be impossible to do this and it is easily seen that the change will be beneficial.

If We Could Look at the Heart of a Pale-Faced Person!

Few people ever stop to consider what pallor to the countenance means. In the first place it indicates an absence from the blood of the rich, red, life-giving elements so requisite to health; and in the second place it indicates a weakened heart action. These two things act and re-act. If we could look at the heart of one of these pale-faced people, we would see it flabby, weak and pallid. No wonder they are easily tired, get out of breath quickly, have palpitation, are nervous and downhearted. Their muscles are poor, their stomach disordered, and their lives are seldom free from misery.

Let them take Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills; there is no remedy to equal them for making pale faces rosy, weak hearts and shaky nerves strong, flabby muscles firm, and infusing new hope and ambition into life.

Mr. W. J. Churchill, Lombardy Street, writes: "I was troubled for three years with a weak heart and nervousness. I could not sleep and ever so little food would distress me. I also had faint and dizzy spells, and doctored with three doctors but was growing worse. After taking three boxes of Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills I feel as well as ever I did. They are the best pills on earth."

Price 50 cents per box, or 3 for $1.25 at all dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

HAS CRACKLESS VAMP

Improvement Number One

A Cracked Vamp

A Foot-rite Vamp

Why? We'll tell you what the vamp is, then why. The vamp is the leather between the box toe seam and the instep seam.

This is why Foot-rites have crackless vamps.

They're made of "Normal Calf," a leather almost as soft and supple as the live calf's skin. Never heard of a live calf's skin cracking, did you?

Foot-rite linen canvas linings are cut on patterns which fit the insides with watch-like accuracy. Fitless linings cause permanent diagonal vamp wrinkles, which split the leather.

Foot-rites are almost waterproof, hence soak up little water. The repeated drying of water-soaked boats eventually brings cracked vamps.

The Foot-rite toe-freedom box toe, being uncollapsible, holds the vamp leather arched and smooth, which prevents splitting at the vamp toe seam.

The Foot-rite wrinkleless vamp improvement keeps out vamp wrinkles which undermine and crack the vamp leather.

And being shaped over foot-sculptured lasts, Foot-rite insides are precisely the same shape and size as the feet that inhabit them, which compels the leather to crease straight instead of diagonally across the vamp. Diagonal creases wear in cracks. Straight creases don't. Our door swings inward but never outward to find a more welcome place.

Anywhere in America, Canada or Great Britain, $4.00, $5.00 and $6.00. Every pair Goodyear Welted—gives flexibility.

WESTMOUNT TEAM IS CONFIDENT

Think They Will Beat Peterborough in To-day's Big Game

The members of the Westmount team who are playing Peterborough this afternoon arrived in the city on the early C.P.R. train this morning and are registered at the Oriental. The Easterners are big, heavy men, and are confident of winning the game from Peterborough, according to their statements this morning. The majority of the team spent the morning in sight-seeing, the lift lock being the centre of attraction, and most of the Montreal men made the pilgrimage to East City. There are about twenty-five in the party.

If your every day duties are a burden, it is because you are not well. Miller's Compound Iron Pills will correct this condition. Sold by W. Madill.

WHERE IS THE MONEY GOING

Peterboro' Man Writes To The Toronto Saturday Night in Regard to Sport

The following letter from a Peterborough man appears in Toronto Saturday Night. The writer is evidently not very well informed in the matter of sports in Peterborough, and some of his statements indicate this:

Editor Saturday Night—Why does Saturday Night uphold the C.A.A.U., when deep down in your heart you know that that body is rotten and honeycombed with "pros." masquerading under the names of amateurs?

Take the most noted athlete in Toronto, Tom Longboat. No person for a moment supposes that the works, because no boss would have a man who was never at work. How does this man live? On fresh air?

Which looks the worst? The new football union that is a "pro." organization (under the C.A.A.U.) composed of gentlemen working every day, playing football for exercise, or Longboat, who does nothing but run?

Take lacrosse. If you have followed the game last season you will know that the C.L.A. had as many "pros." as the N.L.U. Take the case of Peterborough—everybody knows that one man played here for money, and when it was not enough he went West where he could get more. Look at Beaverton, Markham—you know that these are all Simon pure athletes, of course you do. Take Peterborough, take Stratford, any of these towns, and get a detailed account of money taken in at the gates in the O.H.A., and a detail of expenses—and, like Foster, you can ask, where is the money going?

Yours very truly,
W. J. OLIVER.

Peterborough Ahead At Half Time By Score Of 10-4

Biggest Crowd of The Season in Attendance — Colledge Drops Two Goals in First Quarter

LOCALS WORK SPLENDIDLY

Special Staff Correspondent.

Riverside Park, 2.45 p.m.—The biggest crowd of the season and one of the biggest that ever saw a game in Peterborough is here for the final senior O.R.F.U. game between Peterborough and Westmount. The field is in splendid shape despite the rainy weather of the past week. A strong wind is blowing across the field from the south-west. Phil McKenzie, of Montreal is refereeing the contest and J. B. Hay, secretary of the O. R. F. U., is umpire in the absence of Hughie Hayes, of Hamilton, who was to have officiated.

The teams lined up as follows:—

Peterborough.	Montreal.
Back.
Muthern	Cornell
Halves.
Colledge	Ross
Crough	Pennell
Quinlan	Wills
Quarter.
Lundy	Baillie
Scrimmage.
Deamard	McLeod
O'Brien	Brown
Clarke	Sevens
Forwards.
Dickson	Atkinson
O'Connor	Snowden
Dillon	O'Loughlin
Crowley	Steedman
Wilkey	Duckett
McDonald	Drennan

First Quarter

3.30 p.m. — The play was all in Peterborough's favour. They kicked off with the wind and in the first few minutes Peterborough had scored twice on punts over the dead line by Colledge. Peterborough punted repeatedly and the play was always in Westmount territory. Westmount could not gain on end runs. Finally Colledge got an opportunity and dropped a goal from the 30 yard line. Just before quarter time Colledge dropped another beautiful goal from the 40 yard line.

Score, Peterborough, 10; Westmounts, 0.

Snowden of Montreal was hurt, and was replaced by Brophy.

Second Quarter

In the second quarter Peterborough kicked against the wind and did not score, although they held their own in the bucking game. Cornell dropped a goal for Westmount in the last few minutes. Score, 10-4. The game was warmly contested up to this stage, with Peterborough having the best of it.

THE SEPARATOR.

Rate of Inflow Should Accord With Capacity of Machine.

Every separator is built to take care of a certain amount of milk. It has a certain capacity. The capacities of the average hand machines range from 250 to 900 pounds of milk per hour. When the machine is forced beyond its capacity the milk has to pass through the bowl so fast that it is not exposed to the centrifugal force long enough to effect a complete separation of the fat. The more milk that is run through the separator in excess of its given capacity the greater the loss of fat in the skim milk. It is therefore of importance that the operator know the exact capacity of his machine and then govern the inlet accordingly.

Cases in Point.

Seventeen experiments have recently been performed at the Indiana experiment station to demonstrate the importance of this one point. In six instances a large inflow was used, in six a small inflow, and in the remaining five cases the inflow was normal.

In case of the large inflow the float was removed from the receiver of the separator, and the milk was run through as fast as the separator could take care of it. In case of the small inflow the separator was fed at the rate of about two-thirds its capacity. The results show that where the machine was forced beyond its capacity the separation was less complete, and the loss of fat in skim milk was five times as great as where the inflow was normal. A decrease of the inflow below the capacity of the separator did not materially reduce the per cent of fat in the skim milk. If the inflow is decreased beyond a certain limit, while separation takes place in the bowl, both the skim milk and the cream escape through the skim milk outlet.

Effect on the Cream.

Forcing milk through the separator in excess of its capacity tends to produce a thinner cream. In the above experiments the cream of the large inflow tested 6 per cent less than that of the normal inflow. The smaller the inflow, other things being equal, the thicker the cream.—Professor O. F. Hunziker in Kimball's Dairy Farmer.

A Pretty Tie Hanger.

A three branch towel rack, the sort that screws to the side of a door or shelf, makes an extremely nice tie hanger for a man. The rack may be of the cheapest wood, as its branches are wrapped with cotton batting sprinkled with sachet powder. When this is done ribbon is wound round and round perfectly smooth, the ends being tacked at the hinged ends.

COUATY POLICE COURT TO-DAY

Two Cases Were Heard—Indians Who Raised Row at Meeting Fined

At the County Police Court this morning at 11 o'clock Magistrate Edmison gave judgment in the following cases:

That of Howden and Crowter was first dealt with. The case was against Crowter for keeping a dog that chased Howden's sheep. The two parties decided to settle it between themselves. Crowter paid the costs of court.

The case of George and Henry Taylor was next disposed of. They were charged with being drunk and disorderly and creating a disturbance at a meeting of the Indian Council in Chemong. The Indians pleaded guilty some time ago and were each fined $5 and costs, the costs amounting to $6.40.

LARGE MARKET THIS MORNING

Largest Market For Some Weeks—Fowl Offered in Abundance—Butter And Eggs Take a Drop

The market this morning was the best seen for many weeks. The rain which prevailed on the last two market days kept things down, but the crowd turned out in large numbers this morning. The outside market was crowded with vehicles, the most noticeable feature being the large quantities of pork, apples, and potatoes offered for sale. The inside market was a bumper, both sellers on credit—paid for in instalments, bers. Butter has taken a drop and was offered in abundance this morning for 28 cents. Fowl was the main article offered for sale on the inside market, and was snapped up freely by the people. The following are a few of the prices that prevailed:

Dressed Hogs	7 50
Live Hogs	5 25
Hay, bale	20 00	to	22 00
Hay, per ton	18 00	to	20 00
Straw	6 00	to	7 00
Potatoes, per bag	80	to
Apples, per bag	50	to	1 00
Pork, per lb	9	to	10
Lamb	13	to
Chickens, per pair	70	to	75
Geese, each	90	to	1 00
Ducks, per pair	88	to	1 00
Turkey, each	1 00	to	150

Another good walking record was made this morning by Mr. Herb Bellegbem, of Bridgenorth, who walked the six and one half miles intervening between that village and Peterborough, in exactly one hour. Considering the state of the roads the performance was a very meritorious one.

CLOTHES LINES BEING ROBBED

Light Fingered Gentry Are Operating in Bridgenorth

Some light-fingered gentry have been operating in Bridgenorth during the past few days, according to information received by the Examiner this morning from that village. On Thursday night several clothes lines in the village were robbed, and the inhabitants of the village would give the thief a bad hour is he were detected. Peter Nicholls lost a suit of underwear, five pairs of stockings were taken from Mrs. J. Robinson's clothes line, John Turner is mourning the loss of a suit of underwear, and W. McMurton was deprived of a shirt. The thefts were committed during the night, and there is no clue to the robber. Bridgenorth people regard the theft of clothing as a sign that the coming winter will be a hard one.

NEW TEXT BOOKS ARE PROPOSED

For The High Schools—Number To Be Lessened According to Report

THE PROPOSED CHANGES

An extensive plan for the entire reconstruction of the High School textbook system is being inaugurated by the Education Department. The plan, it is understood, contemplates a material reduction in the number of books required, the improvement in quality and material in their manufacture, and a reduction in their price.

It is proposed, try a careful system of editing, to confine the teaching of each High School subject to one text book. At present there is a multiplicity of authorized books. In English there are six, in history and geography seven, in mathematics seven, in classics five, in moderns two, in science three, and in bookkeeping and drawing seven —in all thirty-seven text books for these seven subjects.

The new system contemplates but seven, under existing conditions a purchase by the parent of the whole thirty-seven books in the various courses necessitates an expenditure of $24.86; the aim is to reduce this amount, under the one book per subject system, by over 70 per cent. without sacrificing anything in efficiency of training.

The steps by which the proposed reduction is to be brought about have yet, it is understood, to be laid before the Cabinet for approval; but it is likely the course to be followed will be somewhat similar to that adopted in relation to the Public School Readers, in which Dr. D. C. Goggin, with a staff of experienced practical associates, has charge of the work of collecting and editing the subject matter.—Toronto News.

C. O. C. F. DEBATE WAS POSTPONED

Too Much Other Business on Hand—Parliamentary Usages Discussed

On account of the large amount of business in connection with the meeting of the C.O.C.F. No. 423, on Friday evening the debate arranged for did not take place but will be discussed at the next meeting. A number of initiations and applications had to be considered. There was a short discussion on parliament usages regarding methods of debating and when this was concluded the time was too late to begin.

Fell From Lock Gate Twenty Feet Into The Ice-cold Water

Lockmaster John H. McWilliams Of Lakefield Had a Very Narrow Escape—Was Hit By Crank Of Lock And Knocked Off The Gate

HE ESCAPED UNHURT

Falling from the lock gate into the water twenty feet below, Mr. John H. McWilliams, lockmaster at Lakefield, had as narrow an escape from death as a man may come through and still live.

It appears that there had been a break in the lock at Lakefield on Thursday, which has been repaired by a diver, and on Friday night it was thought that the lock was once more in good shape. The Nicholls Bros.' steam punt, with an empty scow, was passing through the lock, and Mr. McWilliams was engaged in turning the crank on the lock gate which controls the flow of water, when, without warning, another break occurred and the handle of the crank swung around, suddenly striking Mr McWilliams on the forehead, knocking him backwards into the water. He just missed striking the scow in his twenty-foot fall and tumbled into the water. The crew of the boat went to his rescue in a punt, but before they could reach him he had managed to pull himself out of the water.

He was unhurt by the accident, with the exception of a bad bruise on his head where he was struck by the crank, and feels no bad effects from his plunge in the ice cold waters of the Otonabee. The result would have been more serious had he struck the scow in his descent.

Abattoir And Cold Storage Annex a Local Venture

Prominent Cattle Buyers Have Made Arrangements For Building And Options on Several Lots One Of Which Will be Chosen

A WHOLESALE BUSINESS

A large abattoir built on plans similar to those in the large cities will be construted in the near future either in Peterborough or its immediate outskirts, according to the ruling of the authorities. A company composed of Messrs. Geo. Lennert, of Lockport, N.Y., Jas. Ruth, F Stabler, H C Stabler and W A Stabler, of this city have had the project under consideration for some time and are now prepared to proceed with the work and make all final arrangements. They have an option on a desirable lot in the southern part of the city just outside the corporation; besides there are two other locations which have been approved of.

Good Prospects

The company intend to go into the wholesale meat business and cold storage. Mr. Lennert has had an extensive experience in this line and has an offeer to dispose of his Lockport business and it is understood will do so. In fact he has been trying to secure a residence in the city dufing the last month and it is expected will bring his family when all arrangements are made. The prospects for success are very bright, and there is every reason to believe that when active business is begun the company will prosper in all the branches which they propose. A large abattoir should be a boon to the farmers and should be patronized by the local butcher shops. If the scheme turns out as it is believed it will, a retail store will be opened up on George street and already the company haves made an offer for a suitable location.

Large pens will be built in connection with the abattoir which will be modern in every respect. Hogs, cattle and sheep will for the most part be handled and fowl will be purchased from the farmers A first class cold storage building will be added completing a modernly equipped plant for the proper handling of fresh meats.

The gentlemen connected with the concern are all experienced cattle buyers and should make a success of their enterprise.

Thus Doth Conscience Make Cowards Of Us All

One Time Beggar Who Stole Ride On G.T.R. Settles Up With Mr. Sandy

ENCLOSES FOUR DOLLARS

A one time "hobo" has improved on Shakspere's idea — "conscience makes cowards of us all." Conscience has made this man honest, which is more to the purpose in this material age. This "once a hobo" wrote a letter received on Saturday by Mr. F. Sandy, enclosing the sum of $4 to pay for a ride he once had stolen from Toronto to a western town. It evidently has repented of his theft, and was directed by his conscience to right the wrong, demonstrating that all the people in the world are not all bad all of the time. The post mark on the letter was "Peterborough," so that the one time "hobo" possibly resides here. The letter ran thus:

November, 1907.

Dear Mr. Sandy—

Kindly put the enclosed $4 in the Grand Trunk treasury in payment of a stolen ride once taken by me from Toronto to a western town.

Yours truly,
"ONCE A HOBO."

P.S.—"Him that cometh unto Me I will in no wise cast out."—Jno. 6, 37.

Bit Of Bridle Breaks And Causes a Serious Accident

Woman's Collar Bone Broken While Going to Church in Warsaw Yesterday

THE HORSE GETS AWAY

Examiner Special.

Warsaw, Nov. 11.—A broken collar bone and other rather serious injuries were the results of a runaway accident here yesterday morning caused by the breaking of a bit of a horse's bridle. The animal belongs to Mr. David Miller who resides a short distance outside the village in Douro and the mishap occurred while he was driving to church accompanied by his wife and his wife's mother, Mrs. Coleman. The bit broke just as the horse was crossing the bridge and as the animal was young and spirited it made a dash for liberty. The occupants were thrown out against the fence and Mrs. Coleman's collar bone broken.

The others were injured also and the buggy badly smashed. Mrs. Coleman is the mother of Miss Coleman, assistant superintendent of the Nisbolls Hospital.

"THE WARRIOR OF THE SKY LINE"

Subject of Sermon by Rev. A. H. Brace—Weekly Meetings

This is a busy week at the Park street Baptist church. Sunday morning began with a large congregation, and an inspiring service, the subject being the "Warrior on the Sky Line." After describing the man with a demon sword standing before Joshua, the "captain of the Lord's host," the preacher traced the parallel ebtween the conquest of Israel under Joshua and the disciples under Jesus. To-night the B. Y. P. U. meets at eight o'clock. Tuesday, the annual thankoffering of the Women's Mission Circle; a good programme and refreshments served. Wednesday, public service. Thursday quarterly business meeting.

SMALL POX CAUSES ALARM

District in Ontario County Report an Outbreak

Examiner Special

Sutton, Nov. 11th. — This district has been stirred by a mild outbreak of small-pox, resulting in the quarantining of the Mansion House, and the isolating of the four persons in the house. Frank Culverwell, who is stricken with the disease, is reported to be a rather serious case, but it is expected that the doctors will bring him through and prevent the spread of the disease.

There are several other people in the house, including the bar tender, male helper and a house maid.

There is an outbreak in the neighbourhood of Newcastle and Aurora, also, and the authorities are beginning to understand the seriousness of the situation and are taking radical steps to prevent it spreading.

AN EXPLANATION ABOUT CRESSMAN'S ANNEX SALE

In the Annex dodger, being distributed to-day for Cressman's Wednesday Annex sale, the proof reader has passed a figure, that has made a slight mistake, in quantities only.

Under the heading "Women's Cloth Suits," the dodger reads, "50 only;" it should have read "5 only." Those who are anticipating obtaining one of these suits should be on hand early. This explanation is made before the sale in order that there may be no misunderstanding with intending purchasers. 1d

AN UNANSWERABLE ANSWER.

The following, under the display heading, "Roads in very Bad Condition," appears in the columns of our esteemed contemporary, the Review:

The road between here and the northern part of the county, are in a very bad condition at present owing to the recent heavy rainfalls; in many places they are utterly impassable.

Mr. J. Irwin, of Inverlock, Sandy Lake, was to have come to the city to-day to take a party consisting of Mrs. A. C. Bliss, Mrs. Pentland, and daughters, and Messrs. Perry Alexander and T. Boyd, to Inverlock Cottage, Sandy Lake, but owing to the condition of the roads, found it impossible to make the trip.

The party will drive back to the lake when the roads are in a more favourable condition for travelling and, with the exception of Mr. Alexander, will probably remain there for two or three weeks. Mr. Alexander will stay at Inverlock, the guest of Mr. J. Irwin, until after the first of next year, and will spend most of his time in the pursuit of game in the woods at Sandy Lake and vicinity.

While Mr. Stratton represented West Peterborough, no such strong condemnation of the roads in the north was made, nor was truthfully possible. Under a representation of twenty years the roads were kept in good condition, and we had no record of travellers having to turn back or be swallowed up. Now, with four short years of what our contemporary would, doubtless, regard, superior representation, the roads in the north have become so bad that they are, as solemnly declared in the foregoing paragraphs, impassable.

The contrast between the roads of the present, and of the past, should be sufficient, and very convincing, answer, to the recent criticisms of government expenditures on roads in the north country, during Mr. Stratton's representation, which have appeared in the Review. Isn't it peculiar that alleged "wasteful expenditures" of our moneys had the knack of producing good roads, while the modern four-year-old regime has, according to the high authority of the Review, given the people of the north country roads that are simply impassable. The answer is unanswerable.

EDITORIAL NOTES

British brewers have not a monopoly of title privileges. The King has some respect for brains, as well. In conferring the birthday honour of C. M. G., upon Dr. Coulter, Deputy Post Master General, His Majesty has recognised Dr. Coulter's share in bringing about the "intellectual preference' which is doing its share in unifying the British peoples in the scattered possessions to a similar degree as Sir William Mulock's achievement of imperial penny postage.

It seems to be worth while being a king especially a British Imperial monarch. The direct maintenance allowance is not to be disposed, even though it is well earned; the tribute of honour, respect and attention, though not negotiable, is also as well earned as agreeable, and last, but, perhaps, not least, the parquisites associated with the "job" are not to be disposed either. Among the flood of congratulatory messages and presents that poured in upon King Edward was the great Cullinan diamond, of South Africa, estimated to be worth three-quarters of a million dollars.

Even the bitterest political opponents of Sir Charles Tupper, Canada's octogenarian statesman, will not grudge him the well-deserved honour implied in his having been made a member of the Imperial Privy Council. Sir Charles is 86 years of age, and has been a prominent figure in the political life of Canada for 52 years. At times he has been the stormy petrel of politics, but he has given great services to Canada and the Empire, and is possibly the only surviving member of that great patriotic guild, the "Fathers of Confederation." He still carries his burden of four score and six jauntily, and his mind is as alert and robust as his body. It would be no very great surprise to see Sir Charles back to take a hand in the next Dominion general elections. The probability of such a return is lessened by the fact that the Conservative party has a leader, and more than that, a leader in reserve in the person of Sir Charles' self-sufficient son, Sir Hibbert.

CANADA'S CHIEF DESIGNER

Says That Men's Fashions Are More Conservative Than Formerly

(Quebec Chronicle.)

Mr. J. H. Brownlee, a director of the Semi-ready Company, and chief designer for the company, left Canada for England a few days ago. While in Quebec, and just before going on board the Empress of Ireland, he talked to a "Chronicle reporter on the question of the correct dress for men. His company are practically the dictators of fashion in Canada.

"After swinging violently from one extreme to the other," said Mr. Brownlee, "men's fashions are getting down to liberal and common sense methods.

"The purpose of each well-dressed man is to select a style in which he looks best and a colour best suited to him. The modern method of tailoring which allows a man to get fine fabrics made to the finishing stage, has revolutionized the making of mens clothes.

"There is a marked departure from the strident and eccentric styles of previous seasons, and the wild and extravagant effects are only seen on the race track or in racy resorts.

"During the previous seasons the changes from one mode to another were astonishing. Sack coats were one year ridiculously short and the next absurdly long. One fall they would fit the form, and in the spring they spread out balloon-wise. Shoulders ran from the natural width to abnormal proportions. Lapels varied in length and shape, until the whole front of the coat was a rolloff lapel. Collars fell from high to low, while trousers ran from peg top and hagging effects to uncomfortably tight-fitting legs.

"To-day there is a naturalness in dress, a conservative leaning towards the happy medium in all things—in coats and trousers. Fashion has decreed sobriety in colour, but has given some leeway in shirts and neckties, for these will be of countless variety.

"We do not adopt London fashions any more than they adopt our Canadian styles. We adopt London and New York ideas, and create styles of our own. Many of our creations are afterwards copied and adopted by the tailors from whom we get a part of our ideas. So that we all leave our impression by our tailored expression."

FROM GIRLHOOD TO WOMANHOOD

Mothers Should Watch the Development of Their Daughters—Interesting Experiences of Misses Borman and Mills.

Every mother possesses information which is of vital interest to her young daughter.

Too often this is never imparted or is withheld until serious harm has resulted to the growing girl through her ignorance of nature's mysterious and wonderful laws and penalties.

Girls' over-sensitiveness and modesty often puzzle their mothers and baffle physicians, as they so often withhold their confidence from their mothers and conceal the symptoms which ought to be told to their physician at this critical period.

When a girl's thoughts become sluggish, with headache, dizziness or a disposition to sleep, pains in the back or lower limbs, eyes dim, desire for solitude; when she is a mystery to herself and friends, her mother should come to her aid, and remember that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will at this time prepare the system for the coming change, and start this trying period in a young girl's life without pain or irregularities.

Hundreds of letters from young girls and from mothers, expressing their gratitude for what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has accomplished for them, have been received by the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., at Lynn, Mass.

Miss Mills has written the two following letters to Mrs. Pinkham, which will be read with interest:

Dear Mrs. Pinkham:— (First letter,)

"I am but fifteen years of age, am depressed, have dizzy spells, chills, headache and backache, and as I have heard that you can give helpful advice in my condition, I am writing you."—Myrtle Mills, Oquawka, Ill.

Dear Mrs. Pinkham:— (Second letter.)

"It is with the feeling of utmost gratitude that I write to you to tell you what your valuable medicine has done for me. When I wrote you in regard to my condition I had consulted several doctors, but they failed to understand my case and I did not receive any benefit from their treatment. I followed your advice, and took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and am now healthy and well, and all the distressing symptoms which I had at that time have disappeared."—Myrtle Mills, Oquawka, Ill.

Miss Matilda Borman writes Mrs. Pinkham as follows:

Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—

"Before taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound my periods were irregular and painful, and I always had such dreadful headaches.

"But since taking the Compound my headaches have entirely left me, my periods are regular and I am getting strong and well. I am telling all my girl friends what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me."—Matilda Borman, Farmington, Iowa.

If you know of any young girl who is sick and needs motherly advice, ask her to address Mrs. Pinkham at Lynn, Mass., and tell her every detail of her symptoms, and to keep nothing back. She will receive advice absolutely free, from a source that has no rival in the experience of woman's ills, and it will, if followed, put her on the right road to a strong, healthy and happy womanhood.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound holds the record for the greatest number of cures of female ills of any medicine that the world has ever known. Why don't you try it?

DRINKING AMONG WOMEN DEPLORED BY ORGANIZER OF WOMEN'S TEMPERANCE UNION

Brandy Candies And Afternoon Teas Condemned—Too Much Attention To Parlours And Pantries

AN ORGANIZATION FORMED

Mrs. Lewis, The First President—A Campaign Against Cigarette Smoking To Be Waged

The feature of the organization of a Peterborough branch of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union, which took place yesterday afternoon in the Conservatory of Music Hall was the address of Mrs. S G E McKee, of Barrie, the Provincial President in which tha rather startling announcement was made that drunkenness among the women of Canada was rapidly becoming a custom. She referred in strongest terms to what she termed the pernicious habit of eating brandy filled candy, of attending afternoon teas at which there was no tea, and pleaded for God's sake and for the sake of patriotism and the love borne in the community that great care should be taken lest any temptation should be thrown as a stumbling block in paths of the weak.

Again in her address she condemned the practices of women who paid too much attention to the polishing of their parlours, the construction of their bed quilts and the equipment of their pantries. Good leaders were lacking in the temperance question and not enough attention paid to the children.

The meeting yesterday afternoon was successful inasmuch as a local branch of the W.C.T.U. was organized with officers elected. In fact there were no objections offered from any of the 250 persons present, against organization, and immediately on the conclusion of the special address the decision to form a union here was made by a standing vote. Mrs. McKee has recently been attending the annual convention of the W. C.T.U. in Cornwall, and remained over in Peterborough especially for the occasion. She was this year re-elected president of the Provincial Union and is possibly the most widely known woman in connection with the W.C.T.U. in Ontario.

The meeting was called to order by Rev. J G Potter, who led the song service at the beginning. Mayor McWilliams acted as chairman and in his address referred to the work of the union and the necessity of setting a good example to the young men along temperance lines, something he had always tried to do. A temperance solo was then sung by Master Harold Hatcher and followed by a ten minute address by Mrs. Crysler, who, pictured in a graphic manner some results of intemperance which had come under her notice. Before Mrs. McKee began her address Miss Reesor sang in her usual splendid voice "The Ninety and Nine." Miss Mason, of the Conservatory, supplied the accompaniments satisfactorily. Devotional exercises were conducted by Revs. H. M Manning and J. R. Webb.

Drink Among Women

Ontario said Mrs. McKee was the banner province in the Dominion so far as the temperance movement was concerned but she deplored the fact that such an important city as Peterborough had not taken any interest in it. She was pleased to know that there was a Y.M.C.A. here where boys might spend their evenings instead of being lured by the bright and handsomely furnished saloons. Strong drink, she said, is destroying every year in Canada over 5,000 men. The destination of these is known for it was written "that no drunkard shall enter the Kingdom of Heaven."

In giving some statistics Mrs. McKee stated that the cost of the liquor traffic to Canada was $159,000,000 and from the traffic the government only received about $8,000,000 in licenses. This she considered was an appalling spectacle to be confronted with at the judgment day. The law in Ontario does not permit prohibition, but she reminded her hearers that prohibition in municipalities by means of local option was obtainable. She herself had sent letters to the Premier of Ontario stating the objections the union took to the three-fifths clause. Quoting Owen Sound as an example she stated that anywhere that local option exists, the merchantile trade is doubled and that prosperity and happiness reigned where sorrow and shame were before. Last year nearly 100 municipalities secured local option and about 80 were attempting it this year.

Work of the Union

The speaker deplored the tendency in Canada towards the development of the drink evil among women and referred to the enticements in brandy sauce and brandy candy and afternoon teas as examples.

The work of W.C.T.U. is divided into 28 different departments such as evangelistic, hygiene and physical, purity work, police and prison work, exhibitions and fairs, etc. Unfermented wine at the communion table was another evil the union has been seeking to abolish and the need of good leaders was emphasized. The women wanted assistance in getting through a bill in the next session of parliament to abolish the cigarettes or the "coffin nails" as Mrs. McKee termed them. They were doing a greater evil she contended, among the young men that intoxicating liquor and she was glad to know that business institutions were refusing the boys who used them. There were 313,000,000 cigarettes smoked in Canada last year in addition to the millions rolled up by hand.

Peruna Condemned

Young women have taken to drink Peruna which is even worse than the whisky on account of the high percentages of alcohol used in its manufacture. The military construction camps at Petawawa and Niagara Falls where the young soldier very often gets his first taste of liquor from the canteen, were also condemned.

"We cannot watch too closely the tricks of the trade," she concluded, "and our M.P.'s. should be wakened up to the fact that at least if Galicians and Doukobors, etc., are allowed the freedom of the franchise we women should not be debarred."

Reads the Pledge

Mrs. McKee next read the pledge taken by abstainers and asked for all to stand who were prepared to keep it whereupon the majority of the assembly rose. It was next decided to form a union in Peterborough with the following officers:—

President—Mrs. Margaret Lewis.
Vice-Presidents — Mesdames (Rev.) Potter, Keith, Pearson, Davidson and Webb.
Treasurer—Mrs. P. Downham.
Cor. Secretary—Mrs. M A Turner.
Secretary—Miss Langford.

It was further decided to meet the last Friday of every month, after which the meeting closed about 6 o'clock with the benediction.

To Keep the Skin In Health

AOVID PORE-CLOGGING POWDERS AND CURE ALL SKIN IRRITATIONS AND ERUPTIONS WITH

Dr. Chase's Ointment

It is quite possible that, while you know of Dr. Chase'b Ointment as a cure for eczema psoriasis and the most severe forms of itching skin disease, you may have overlooked its value as a beautifier of the skin.

There are minor forms of skin trouble, such as rough, red, skin, chafing, chapping, pimples, blackheads, blotches, irritation, or poisoning from the clothing, etc., which disfigure and form a starting point for serious trouble.

A few applications of Dr. Chase a Ointment at such times not only remove these blemishes, but also restore the health and beauty of the skin, and positively prevent further development.

Miss C. Stanley-Jones, professional masseuse and nurse, 248 Simcoe street, Toronto, Ont., writes: "In my occupation as a nurse I have come across many cases in which Dr. Chase's Ointment has been used with extraordinary results. One case I record was that of a child of sixteen months, who was in a bad way with scaly head. It was a really nasty case, causing the child to suffer very much and to be very troublesome. I persuaded the mother to use Dr. Chase's Ointment, and in ten days the child was entirely cured.

"Another case was that of a lady who was greatly troubled with eczema on the face. The doctor was dosing her with medicine, which was doing no good. In this case cure was effected in seven days with only one box of Dr. Chase's Ointment. Both of these cures were lasting."

Dr .Chase"s Ointment is delightfully pure and creamy, is pleasant to use, and is rapidly absorbed. It acts as a food for the skin, making it soft, smooth and velvety. By its soothing, antiseptic and healing properties it allays inflammation, relieves itching, and heals sores, wounds and ulcers; 60 cents a box, at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto.

OBITUARY

PATRICK SHERIDAN

A sad death was that of Mr. Patrick Sheridan on Sunday morning at 10 o'clock, at the residence of his son-in-law, Mr. John Lynch, Chamberlain street. Mr. Sheridan was 70 years of age and was born in County Tyrone, Ireland. He came to Canada about twenty-four years ago and for twenty-one years had resided in Havelock. He married Ellen Hughes thirty-eight years ago, and is survived by a family of three sons and two daughters. Strong Sermon Preached by Rev. B. Heeney of Barrie At St. John's Church

ADVICE TO YOUNG MEN

The continuation of the Dedication Festival at John's church yesterday were marked by large attendances in the morning and at night. The feature of the evening service was the sermon preached by Rev. W. B Heeney, of Barrie. He emphasized the reasons for deep gratitude on the part of the people towards Almighty God and conveyed a message of sound advice to the congregation and particularly to the men.

His text was from the 14th verse of Psalm 139 as follows: "I will praise Thee; for I am fearfully and wonderfully made." Rev. Mr. Heeney expressed his pleasure at being present on such an occasion and for such a purpose and hoped that he would be a blessing to the people. He asked them to lift their hearts to God in prayer while he was speaking and thus they would be a blessing to each other. If a person possesses the characteristic of gratitude and love, it we have succeeded in developing that characteristic which manifests gratitude and love, we are in possession of the highest type of living. Yet, how comparatively rare, said Rev. Mr. Heeney is anyone found that is really thankful to God or man for the many blessings received from both.

Our children are like ourselves, Mr. Heeney remarked, and the child reflects the secret life of the home. Many boys are noticed without the words, "I thank you," in their vocabulary. People take all the blessings they can get and go their way without any expression of thankfulness for what they have received. How many parents, Rev. Mr. Heeney asked endeavour to train their children in courtesy towards man and imbue in them the spirit of gratitude towards God and their fellows.

Characteristic of the Age

The characteristic of the age he said might be summed up in the words "Give us more" of pleasure, of money and of the other worldly matters. The employer's motto is more work for less pay and the employees asks for less work and more pay. The result is that unions have been formed, strikes have culminated and even worse—bloodshed. Mr. Heeney strongly advised young men to beware of an over desire for money on account of the almost inevitable consequences. Many cases of ruin, suicide, prison have followed in the trail of an over-weening desire for more money. The speaker likened the hearts of most people to a stone in their relation towards God. There is no responsive warmth, they are too hard and cool.

Rev. Mr. Heeney then gave several reasons why we should be thankful to God. The first was because He has made us, for which the psalmist sang His praises and glory. Any doubts as to our origin should be cast aside, the speaker said, and he quoted Lord Kelvin to substantiate his statement that the theory of evolution is groundless. This eminent scientist declares that science is not agnostic, and instead of denying the existence of God, asserts it and takes it for granted. To use the words of the text, we are fearfully and wonderfully made, not in our physical being, but in our intellect and the God-given power of reasoning.

Another cause for gratitude, Mr. Heeney gave, was the fact that we possess a spirit, a source of communion with God. By it we know Him and can converse with Him. It is, he said, the differentia of all humanity. The greatest moment in the life of man is when he comes into consciousness of the power of love. This idea is conveyed by the celebrated painting, "The Soul's Awakening."

The Character

Rev. Mr. Heeney then dwelt upon a most sublime thought, and one which is of interest to every man, namely, the gift God has given us of moulding our own character, of shaping our destiny, and of working out our eternity. Character, he said, is the most priceless treasure that mortal man may enjoy. Every day it is passing through the workshop of life, being strengthened or alloyed. It is the one thing that man can bring with him, when he is transported from this world where it was fashioned, and without it the person will depart this life in the depths of bezzary as far as his next life is concerned.

Mr. Heeney made a beautiful appeal to the young men in particular to see to it that their characters will continue to be those which will win Divine favour when they appear before the throne of God to answer for the life which was given them to be used only for good purposes.

Ernie Wilson Beat Coley; 5 Mile Champion Of Canada

Local Y.M.C.A. Boy Won a Great Race in Toronto From Winner of The Hamilton Herald Event---Allowed Coley To Pace Him All The Way And Beat Him In The Stretch

The fame that Peterborough is gaining just now in the athletic world was considerably increased on Saturday night, when Ernie Wilson, of the local Y.M.C.A. Harriers' Club and the winner of the Examiner road race, beat Tom Coley, the Irish-Canadians' crack five-miler, in a five-mile invitation race at the C.A.A.U. open meet in the Toronto Armouries. The local boy won handily from his famous opponent, beating him by six feet, after a splendid race, in which Wilson proved that he was better than the best five-miler in Toronto, at least, and who was claimed to be the best at that distance in Canada. The importance of the victory can be estimated by the fact that the winner is to have the option of meeting Tom Longboat, and Coley, who has been trying to get a match with his famous team mate, was very anxious to win Saturday night's event in order to get a crack at the Indian. He anticipated no difficulty in trimming the local runner, but soon found that he had encountered a foeman worthy of his steel.

The race was a splendid one, according to those who saw the event. Wilson and Coley were the only entries, Ray Best, who was to have gone, finding it impossible to get away. The crowd seemed to be disappointed when the found that Wilson was Coley's only opponent, and seemed to think that the Irish-Canadian's little Englishman would have no trouble in putting away the Peterborough boy. They soon found their mistake, however. Wilson ran the same heady race as he did on Thanksgiving Day, letting Coley pace him all the way. The Toronto boy shot out ahead at the start, and Wilson fell in behind, treading on his heels all the way. Coley was quite content with this for the first mile or so, but when he found, after several attempts that he could not shake him off, he and his supporters began to get uneasy, and there were cries from the Irish-Canadians' quarter of "Let him do the pacing for a while, Tom," but Wilson remained in the rear, holding his position at Coley's heels without trouble, a though the Irish-Canadian did his best to leave him. They kept this way until the bell rang for the last lap of 220 yards, and with its sound Wilson sprang ahead with a leap or two that left him three yards ahead of Coley. The latter was surprised, thinking that the fast pace had killed his opponent, but he gamely accepted the challenge of Wilson's spurt and, although he instantly dashed after Wilson, could not get close enough to beat him. The two sprinted the last 200 yards, but Coley could not gain, and Wilson crossed the line a winner, leaving the 1,500 people present paralyzed with amazement. They could not believe that Tom Coley, the winner of the Hamilton Herald race and the herd of a dozen other long distance events, had been beaten by a comparatively unknown Peterborough boy, but they recovered enough to give Wilson a great reception, the West End and Central Y.M.C.A. rooters threatening to tear down the Armouries.

The time made, 27.19, was remarkably fast for an indoor event, and shows how hard Coley fought to shake Wilson off. The achievement of the Peterborough boy is a remarkable one, considering that it was his first five-mile race, that he had never run on an indoor track, and that he was up against one of the best Canadian middle distance runners. The most remarkable feature was that he not only outran his doughty opponent, but also out-generalled him, displaying headwork that would have done credit to a veteran of the track.

Wilson was accompanied to Toronto by Dick Baker, the trainer of the Harriers, who looked after him in good shape.

The Globe says of the race: Tom Coley's defeat by Wilson was the surprise of the evening. The Peterborough man gave the I.A.A.C. five-miler a thorough beating and there are no excuses for the little Englishman. The affair was a five-mile match, and Simpson, the Mississauga Indian, also from Peterborough, was expected to start, but did not put in an appearance. Simpson is aching for a chance at Longboat, and thinks he can beat the Toronto Indian. Wilson was not conceded much of a chance to beat Coley when the men went to the scratch. He is a tall, sinewy boy of the Longboat type. At the crack of the gun he swung in behind Coley and stuck like a leech throughout the entire five miles. Not once did he offer to go to the front, evidently preferring to allow his more experienced competitor to make the pace. Coley set it fast, and the course was covered in 27.19, seven seconds faster than by Longboat boat, paced by five runners at the Garrison spring indoor meet. The Irish-Canadian ran lower than Wilson, and several times hit up a clip for a quarter-mile that was enough to take the steam out of many a good runner. Wilson responded promptly each time, and Coley could not shake him off, try as he would. Rev. John D. Morrow, the former quarter-mile champion of Canada, who was one of the judges, stated at the end of the fourth mile that Wilson would win. He was running easily and with plenty of confidence, and would not let Coley get more than three feet ahead of him. Both runners bounded away at full speed when the bell sounded for the last lap, and had it hammer and tongs all around the track. Wilson was a foot in front of Coley after stealing the rail on the lower turn. At the top turn Coley was two feet back, and the Peterborough boy lengthened his lead when he straightened into the stretch. Coley was nearly two yards behind when Wilson breasted the tape. Coley claimed that Wilson cut him off by running out into the centre of the track after turning into the straight, but the protest was not entertained. The time by miles was 5.14, 11.06 2-5, 1830, 22.24 2-5 and 27.19.

CHARGED WITH BREACH OF CRIMINAL CODE

Case Before The Magistrate About Disposal of a Watch

At the police court this morning three cases were brought before Magistrate Dumble which occupied the court for most of the morning.

The first two cases were those of the Examiner and Review Printing Company, summoned to answer the charge that they "on the fifth day of November, 1907, did unlawfully publish a plan for the disposal of certain gold watches by lots, or tickets, contrary to section 236 of the criminal code."

The case of the Examiner was taken up first. Mr. R. M. Glover business manager, testified that the advertisement was taken in through the business office and was printed in the paper in the regular course of business.

Mr. Edwards, the manager of the Crystal, was next examined. He stated that the contest started ont he fourth of November and finished on Saturday the 9th. Up to Friday the eighth, Mr. Edwards had not formed any plan as to how he would dispose of the watch ,that was advertised. The people who came to the show received a coupon as they passed through the door which entitled them to enter the contest. On Friday a scheme was arrived at and any person with a coupon, which coupons were numbered from one to 5,000, had a chance to guess at the number of beans in the bottle which was sealed and placed in view of the public. The The coupons were not sold with the admission ticket, but were given away by Mr. Edwards as the buyer of the ticket passed through the door. The person coming in was to write on back of the coupon the number of beans he guessed were in the bottle, also signing his or her name and address. The person guessing nearest to the number of beans in the bottle was to receive a watch on Tuesday evening Nov. 11th.

The next case was that of the Review Printing Company. Mr. Dobbin, managing director also testified that the advertisement had been printed in the usual course of business. His first knowledge of the existence of such advertisement was upon reading it in the Review.

Both of these cases will be heard at the next court of competent jurisdiction.

After these were taken up the case against Mr. Edwards was considered.

He came back, but was told to get off the property; again he returned and tried to break in the door. The magistrate upon hearing the evidence remanded him for 8 days.

RIVERDRIVER SWAN FOR HIS LIFE

Tumbled off a Log in Jam Near Hunter Street Bridge

River drivers were engaged almost all day yesterday attempting to break the jam of logs on the Otonabee River, opposite the Quaker Oats establishment. The day was almost fatal to one of the men who tumbled off a log into several feet of water, and it was only due to his strong swimming powers that he arrived safely on the land again.

It was a common occurrence to see the men tumble off the slippery logs, but the majority of them were not in deep water, and easily walked in deep water, and easily waded back again to their apparent unpleasant work. The river men were watched with great interest by a large crowd from the bridge, who entertained fears of another drowning accident when one of the number fell into the water beyond his depth.

SIR THOMAS J. LIPTON

Everybody knows Sir Thomas J. Lipton, but everybody does not know the famous Teas, Coffees, Jams, Jellies and Pickles made by Sir Thos. Lipton. THE REASON

Why J. C. Brady Continues To Recommend Vinol

First: Because it is not a patent medicine and it contains besides tonic iron all of the medicinal curative elements of cod liver oil actually taken from fresh cods' livers, but without a drop of oil to nauseate and upset the stomach and retard its work; therefore, wherever old-fashioned cod liver oil or emulsions will do good, Vinol will do far more good.

Second: Because Vinol acts first upon the stomach, creates a healthy appetite, strengthens and tones up the digestive organs, purifies and enriches the blood, and, in a natural manner, restores health and strength.

Third: Because Vinol contains no injurious drugs to react upon the system; every ingredient being named on the label, a patient knows exactly what he is taking.

Fourth: Because we never sold anything in our store that gave such universal satisfaction for old people, weak, sickly women and children, nursing mothers, and to build up the system after a severe sickness, and for relieving hacking coughs, chronic colds, bronchitic and all throat and lung troubles.

Try Vinol on our guarantee. Mc-Dermid & Jury, druggists, Peterborough; also the Market Drug Store.

PRAISE FOR DR. TALLING

At a meeting of the Peterborough Presbytery held this morning, in the Guild room of St. Paul's church, the call of St. Paul's church, to Rev. Robert Pogue of Philadelphia, and of the Havelock congregation to Rev. J. A. G. Stirling, were sustained, and arrangements made for the induction ceremonies.

Ferguson representing the Board of Managers, and Mr. D. H. Moore, representing the congregation. The call was signed by 548 members and 110 adherents of the church.

Dr. Marsh will preside; Rev. D. A. Thompson of Hastings, will preach; Rev. Wm. Johnston of Millbrook, will address the minister, and Rev. Dr. Talling, by special request of the congregation, and with the consent of the Presbytery, will address the people.

The addresses of the commissioners all referred to the sterling worth of Rev. Dr. Talling to the congregation and to the great services that he had rendered the people of St. Paul's church.

John McDonald Gets Six Months

Chief Rossel received a letter from Chief Constable Rudd, of Cobourg, informing him of the arrest and imprisonment of "Mousie" McDonald. "Mousie" was arrested here on Thursday evening last, shortly after his arrival from Cobourg, and was sent back with a warning not to return. According to Chief Rudd's letter the same sentence was imposed on "Mouusie" in Cobourg and a certain minister in that town paid "Mousie's" way to Peterborough. The magistrate in Cobourg was very much surprised as he looked over his bench on Saturday and saw the old customer back again, and sentenced him to Cobourg jail for six months.

HOW WORLD GROWS

Race suicide seems to be a sporadic evil. At any rate, the human race at large is not threatened with extinction for lack of fresh supply. Statistics supplied by the British Government give the information that in the past ten years the world's population has increased sixty-three million souls in the principal countries of the world, and if the less civilized countries, where natural increase is more rapid, had been included, the figures of increase would have been much larger. In 1895 the total recorded world's population was 506,000,000; ten years later it had increased to 570,000,000. The figures are:

	1895.	1905.
Russia	125,000,000	142,200,000
United States.....	68,934,000	83,143,000
Germany...	52,279,000	60,605,900
Japan...	42,271,000	47,975,000
U. Kingdom... ...	39,221,000	43,221,000
France...	38,459,000	39,300,000
Italy...	31,206,000	33,804,000
Hungary...	18,257,000	20,114,000
Spain...	18,157,000	18,900,000
Smaller nations...	47,732,000	54,166,666

Belgium is the most crowded of all the civilized countries. The number of persons per square mile in each country is thus stated:

United States, 21.4; Russia (Europe), 51.3; Spain, 95.5; Hungary, 153.6; France, 190.7; Austria, 225.8; Germany, 290.4; Japan, 316.9; United Kingdom, 341.6; Holland, 406.4; Belgium, 588.7.

Canada is not given in this British blue book, but our Statistician estimates the growth of our population in the ten years to have been from 5,034,000 in 1895 to 6,086,000 in 1905. Owing to our immense undeveloped area it is impossible to estimate the population of Canada per square mile.

Tully's Hair Tonic

and DANDRUFF CURE makes the hair grow July 24th, 1907

About the month of September, 1906, my hair began to come out in large spots, leaving the scalp perfectly bare on the right side of the head, also my beard on the left side. About the 15th of December I showed it to J. D. Tully, Druggist; he said that he had a preparation that would restore the hair. I could scarcely credit his statement, but decided to try it, and in three weeks using the hair commenced to grow. Since that time I have lost nearly all my old hair which has been entirely replaced with new hair, and the beard also. I consider this by all means the best hair grower on the market, as I had previously tried other preparations without any effect. Any one wishing to ask me about it will find me at my home, 265 McDonnel Street, Peterborough, or at R. R. Crossing, G.T.R., Charlotte St.

Carriage Overturned Into The Ditch on Saturday Night

An accident, which might have proved a serious one, occurred late last Saturday night, near Christie's Corners. While returning from Dundas, Messrs. A. L. and G. V. P. Shaver, in company with Mrs. Jas. Hewitt and Miss L. Lightheart, two young ladies from Peterborough, had a very disagreeable experience. Owing to the darkness, which was much more intense on account of the rain, the horses were unable to keep the track. In their endeavour to regain the road, the horses sprang down an eleven foot embankment. In the descent the waggon was turned completly over, imprisoning the occupants under the heavy box. How all escaped serious injury is miraculous, for had the box struck any one serious results must have surely followed. As it was a few bruises were the lot of everyone. The horses crawled away, and after sometime were found in a near ditch, [illegible] would have undoubtedly died had they remained there long. The waggon was strewn over a mile of muddy road.

Mrs. J. Hewitt, Miss L. Lightheart and Mr. W. J. Lightheart had spent the day at the home of Dr. Shaver, West Flamboro.

BEER BUILDS BODIES

PURITY

Ontario beers are pure, above all else—far more pure than most of the milk sold in cities, because made under conditions of absolute hygiene.

FOOD-VALUE

Boiled potatoes contain not nearly the nutriment that is in pure beer; milk will not feed most folks so well, nor digest so thoroughly.

LAZY stomachs mean poor digestions—they don't work hard enough to extract the good of one's food.

Beer* is a food-drink that makes the stomach do its work better, because it increases the flow of the digestive juices and gives the stomach muscles more strength to do their work.

Beer* is better for run-down people than medicine; and for thin-blooded people nothing else will enrich the blood so surely and quickly.

Ask your own doctor if you hadn't better drink beer with your meals.

*BEER is a term which covers lager, ale, porter, and stout; and, in the practice of Ontario brewers, (unless beverages are made under most hygienic conditions from Ontario barley (the best in the world) malt, hops, and pure water. . . . B.

DISASTOOUS BLAZE IN TORONTO

Repetition of 1904 Holocaust Narrowly Averted.

DAMAGE ESTIMATED $100,000

Wholesale Warehouse Entirely Gutted—Fire Started In Second Storey—Cause Unknown — Loss Partly Covered by Insurance — Firemen Worked Splendidly and Saved Remainder of Block.

Toronto, Nov. 11.—Fire, which gutted the three upper floors of a five-storey building at 76 Bay street, on Saturday night, caused a loss estimated at about $100,000. For ...ree hours, until 10.30, the firemen worked hard before they got the flames well under control, and it was not until 2 o'clock yesterday mornin that their work was finished.

The building was of solid brick, five-storeys and basement, erected since the ever memorable "big fire" of 1904.

The firms involved are: Anderson & Macbeth, hats, $45,000; Phillips & Wrinch, fancy goods and notions, $20,000; Edwin Fisher, manufacturers' agent, $5,000; John Fisher, Son & Co., woolens, $9,000; J. Howard Stowe, manufacturers' agent, $8,000. Damage to building owned by Joseph estate, leased by Anderson & Macbeth, $10,000. Alcock, Laight & Westwood, $5,000. Loss is nearly all covered by insurance.

The fire was discovered by Night Watchman Wm. Johnson, who said the fire was burning fiercely in the second floor, occupied by Phillips & Wrinch. Anderson & Macbeth, who lease the building, occupied the basement and first floor, the rear part of the third floor and the top flat; the front section being used by Edwin J. Fisher, manufacturers' agent, while the fourth floor was tenanted by John Fisher, Son & Co., woolens, and J. Howard Stowe, manufacturers' agent.

He rang in an alarm from box 415 on Wellington street, between Bay and York at 7.38. A general alarm was sent in at 7.50.

The Bay and Lombard street divisions of the department were assisted in reaching the fire, having been called on a still alarm to the J. D. King building on Wellington street, west of York street, where a sprinkler system had been accidentally flushed, as it had the previous Saturday. They had gone down Bay street, past the Anderson building, on their way, and there was then no sign of fire. While they were still trying to stop the sprinklers their attention was attracted by the reflection of the other blaze, and they went for it without waiting to pick up the hose that had been laid out in the King building.

The fire had evidently been going for some time, for soon after it was discovered there came a noise as of an explosion. This is attributed to the ignition of the smoke which filled the building and which would cause the fire to spread quickly through the building.

The flames followed the stairway up and the central portion of the third, fourth and fifth floors and the roof were burned away, leaving the ends intact.

Six streams were got to work in front, while entry was made with a seventh to the second floor, where the fire had started. Fighting here, the men were close against the blaze and in grave danger from the weakening floors. Soon after eight o'clock there, above the second, crashed through, falling within a few feet of the firemen in a tangled mass of flaming wreckage. The men, who were of the Queen street section, stuck to the work and held this pile, while those outside poured in tons of water.

The men, especially in the rear, were in great danger from falling walls. Had either the front or rear walls given way, as threatened, some of the men must have been killed.

By 11 p. m. the danger was over, and the outlying sections were being sent home. There were six truck companies and twelve hose companies in service during the night.

Cause of the fire is unknown.

Hotel Stable Burned.

Guelph, Nov. 11.—Fire destroyed the barns of the Imperial Hotel here Saturday afternoon. Three horses were suffocated.

Village Escaped Destruction.

Ottawa, Nov. 11.—A big fire is raging at Casselman. The Ottawa fire department was last night asked to send an engine, coal and some hose, but considered it unwise to send them out of the city. Telephone communication is cut off with the village, which is in Russell County.

Later.—The Casselman fire is under control. A store was gutted and two hotels caught, but the efforts of villagers were successful in checking what looked like being a wipeout of the village by flames.

Eczema, Salt Rheum.

Eczema or Salt Rheum, as it is often called, is one of the most agonizing of skin diseases. It manifests itself in little round blisters, which contain an extremely irritating fluid. These break and subsequently a crust or scale is formed.

The intense burning, itching and smarting, especially at night or when the part is exposed to any strong heat, are almost unbearable.

The pre-eminent success which Burdock Blood Bitters has met with in permanently curing a disease of such severity is due to its wonderful blood cleansing and purifying properties.

No other remedy has done, or can do, so much for those who are almost driven to distraction with the terrible torture, as our thousands of signed testimonials can testify to.

Mrs. Jno. R. Keady, Linton, N.B., writes: "I was so troubled with Salt Rheum for eight years, that I could not work my hands were so sore. By using Burdock Blood Bitters my hands were eventually cured."

Mrs. Ira C. Buckner, Eden, Ont., writes: "I was troubled with Eczema for a long time. It came out on my face and between my shoulders. A friend told me about Burdock Blood Bitters. I took two bottles and it helped me so much I cannot recommend it too highly."

CHARGED WITH FRAUD.

Trust Company Officials Accepted Deposits While Insolvent.

Portland, Ore., Nov. 11.—J. Thorburn Ross, president; George H. Hill, vice-president, and T. T. Berkhardt, treasurer of the Title Guarantee & Trust Co., which went into the hands of a receiver last Wednesday, were arrested Saturday, and a warrant is out for John B. Aitchison, secretary of the defunct institution. Aitchison is now in New York City.

Those defendants who have been arrested were released yesterday afternoon on furnishing $2,500 bail each.

The charge against them is accepting deposits while knowing the bank was insolvent. Under the laws of Oregon, this is a felony punishable by a maximum fine of $1,000 or imprisonment in the penitentiary for two years, or by fine and imprisonment.

BETWEEN TWO FIRES.

Man Charged With Burglary Is Wanted For Attempted Murder.

Montreal, Nov. 11.—"Bill" Dease, who was arrested here two weeks ago in connection with the safe-blowing in the office of the Montreal Fruit Auction Co., will have to face a still more serious charge.

Should he be acquitted of the safe-blowing he will have to go to L'Assomption to answer to a charge of attempted murder laid against him by Chief Normandin of that town. Chief Normandin surprised a gang of burglars robbing the postoffice at L'Assomption two years ago, and when attempting to make an arrest was shot at by two of them.

When Dease was arrested here in connection with the safe-blowing job his picture was sent to every town in the province, where burglaries had been committed during the past few years.

Chief Normandin came to Montreal Saturday and went down to the jail to have a look at Dease. The moment he saw Dease he identified him, although Dease was standing in line with six other men at present awaiting trial.

The case for safe-blowing is stronger against 'Ed" Moore than Dease, because the former had a peculiar coin in his possession when arrested exactly similar to one that was in the safe when it was blown.

EDITOR ARRESTED.

Wrote Scathing Articles and Is Held For Criminal Libel.

Montreal, Nov. 11.—On account of an article, "The Nefarious Man," which appeared in La Gazette del Canada, Mr. Antonio Cordasco, labor agent, Saturday had Signor Angelo Maria Buccino-Salviata, editor of the paper, arrested for libel, and in addition has instituted against him in the Superior Court suit for $1,000.

The article complained of tells of a Mr. Thom-Gaultiere going to Cordasco's place of business to collect rent. The labor agent is alleged to have threatened with a revolver, causing Gaultiere to run into the street and summon the police.

The report continues, that the police "acted well" and scolded Cordasco, and ends up with, "And till when will he abuse the patience of the people—to the pillory."

Mr. Cordasco claims there is no truth in the report of La Gazette del Canada.

When arraigned Signor Buccino-Salviata pleaded not guilty, and was remanded until Wednesday for enquete.

SOO MEN FOUND ARMED TO THE TEETH

Black Hand Men Arrested at the Soo.

SUSPECTED OF BLACKMAIL

Police Find Dynamite and Fuses In Their Room—Traced by a Forged Check—Had Small Armory Packed In Grips—Both Tried to Use Revolvers — The Evidence Is Very Strong Against Them.

Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., Nov. 11.—Saturday afternoon the Canadian Soo police made two arrests, considered by them to be the most important here in years.

The first man arrested was caught red-handed in the act of passing a forged check, and the other, when arrested, attempted to draw a revolver.

The importance of the arrests were realized when it was learned that the authorities are all but convinced that the men are none other than members of the Black Hand, who have been operating here two weeks.

Their inability to raise money in the manner they hoped compelled them to adopt other means, leading to their undoing. In the baggage taken with the men were found papers, railway guides and other evidence showing they had come to the Soo directly from Medicine Hat, from which place letters to the Soo were mailed.

The strongest evidence against the men, and which the police hope will connect them directly with the crime was the discovery of handwriting identical with that contained in the Black Hand letters.

The men are desperate characters. Grips containing revolvers and ammunition, knives, etc., were found. Revolvers were found on the men when arrested, and the first man attempted to use one.

The first arrest was made in the store of H. Megginson, where the man presented a check in favor of H. Chandler, and purporting to be signed by the paymaster of the Lake Superior Corporation. Megginson saw the check was a forgery, and the man was induced to remain in the store while Megginson went for change. Megginson got Chief of Police Downey and effected the arrest. The man attempted to draw a revolver, but was prevented. When taken to jail and searched, several saws were found sewed into the waistband of the trousers, and three other worthless checks were in his pocket.

It was learned that the man had a companion, and the first prisoner, giving the name of H. Smith, said he could be found at the Queen's Hotel, where the baggage also was. The place was visited, and when the man came for the grips he was arrested. Saws and a revolver were found on him. He gave the name of Howard.

Papers found on the men showed they came from the Northwest, both having receipts for poll-tax paid in New Westminster. Two suit cases taken with the men were examined, and much interesting evidence discovered, leading to the belief that the men were the Black Hand artists wanted.

Yesterday the room at the hotel occupied by the men were searched, and a quantity of fuses, nitro-glycerine and other explosives were found, evidencing the fact that the men were either engaged on burglaries or intended to carry out threats against those receiving the Black Hand letters. Saturday afternoon the man Howard, before his arrest, tried to pass a number of bogus checks in the Michigan Soo.

Both appear to be Englishmen, and their appearance is not suggestive of criminals. Smith is about 24 years old, and Howard somewhat older. Saturday night Smith broke down in jail and made many damaging admissions, which the police decline to disclose. Howard is considered to be the more dangerous of the two. He claimed to have reached the Soo the day before the arrest from up the Algoma Central, where Smith says he worked for the Lake Superior Corporation on the railroad. Howard refuses to talk.

The police believe the men can be connected with a series of crimes committed between Toronto and the coast in the early part of the year. They deserve credit for the arrests, particularly as a provincial officer was here for a week and did not cooperate with the Soo force. He could learn nothing, and returned to Toronto without a clue.

Peterboros Senior Champions Of The Ontario Rugby Union

Defeated Westmount In The Final Game On Saturday By 25-4 In Decisive Manner—Visitors Were Never In The Hunt

FOUR GOALS FROM FIELD

Peterborough Led All The Way Shutting The Visitors Out In All But One Quarter And Out-Played Them From Start to Finish

For the first time in the history of Rugby in this city, Peterborough has captured a senior championship, winning that honour on Saturday by defeating the Westmount team of Montreal, in a decisive manner, before the biggest crowd of the last few years. The Westmount team had cleaned up the eastern section of the senior O.R.F.U., by beating Kingston, while Peterborough had won the western by sweeping the Toronto Victorias out of the way. It was, therefore, a battle between the east and the west, and the latter won in a manner that indicated that in the O.R.F.U., at least the faster brand of Rugby is played in the west. Peterborough won the game by a score of 25 to 4, a bigger margin than was expected even by the most ardent supporters of the locals. Westmount came here with a great reputation. Rumours of a heavy wing line and great speed, and trickiness behind the line, had preceeded them on the western journey, and the locals looked for a hard battle for the honours, but the expected fight did not materialize, and the homesters had things pretty much their own way all through, outgeneraling and outplaying the Montreal men all the way in a clean-cut way, that left the issue one of just how large the score would be.

Small Crowd

The crowd although big in comparison with others that have been seen here, was nothing like one would expect for the final game, upon which the fate of a senior championship hinged. About 550 people paid admission to see the battle, and that number included the pupils of The Grove school, Lakefield, who, as usual, drove down to see the game. The crowd was a decided disappointment to the local club, and better things were expected, although the results in other years, should have warned them that they could expect practically no support from local people, even if they were in the running for the championship.

To get back to the game, it was a fine contest, somewhat one-sided, of course, but with an abundance of open playing that made it a great exhibition for the spectators, and they seemed to enjoy every moment of the fray. It was the best game, from a spectator's standpoint that has been seen in Peterborough for some time, as the ball was always in sight, both teams adopting a policy of open play that kept the crowd enthused all the time. There were few spectacular runs, the tackling on both sides being too effective for that, but splendid punting and drop kicking made up for the lack of pretty dashes.

How Peterborough Won

That Peterborough were by far the better team could not be doubted by anyone who saw the struggle. They had the game always in hand, playing a steady game all through, with the result that the issue was never in doubt. When they had the win in their favour in the first and third quarters they continually punted and long kicks by Colledge and Crough never failed to gain ground, as the wing line were up under every ball and gave the Westmount backs no chance to get away to run the ball back, and on nearly every occasion they were nailed in their tracks. Westmount, with their lighter line found it almost impossible to gain any ground, either by line plays or end runs, and the result was that they were forced to kick against the wind, and their efforts were puny when compared with the splendid work of the Peterborough backs, who would return, and the easterners would lose ground on every occasion. The ultimate result of this aggressive policy on the part of the locals, was that they forced the play all through the two quarters when they were kicking with the wind, and the Westmounts were kept continually on the defensive and, although they worked hard and pluckily, they could not avert the score that was piled up against them.

Westmount had no Punter

On the other hand, in the second and fourth quarters, when Westmount were favoured by the strong wind, which was blowing from the south-west, and should have done their scoring, they were handicapped by having no one who could punt like Colledge or Crough, and, consequently the wind was not nearly the same boon that it was to Peterborough. The locals adopted defensive tactics in these quarters, and, as they were superior in line plunging, had no difficulty in retaining possession of the ball for the greater portion of the time, thus reducing Westmount's scoring opportunities to a minimum. Peterborough's superiority in mass playing was soon demonstrated and the locals wisely kept up these tactics, hammering at the Westmount line for big gains. Lundy, Colledge and Hurtubise took turns at carrying the ball, and, assisted by the wing line, tore holes in the Westmot forward division for gains of 5 yards or more at a clip forcing the easterners back without trouble. It was only rarely that they had to kick on the third down, and when they did Colledge changed his style of punting, and his low twisting kicks against the wind, travelled as far as the Westmount backs could punt with the breeze in their favour. Peterborough was helped too by the fumbling of the Westmount back division, which blew up at critical moments and were nailed for losses. In the last half the superiority in bucking was most clearly exhibited, when Peterborough kept up a constant hammering on the Westmount line, making straight gains through the centre. Getting the ball at midfield, they carried it by line plays to Westmount's twenty yard line. Then fortune smiled on them, and a Westmount offside gave them ten yards more, and on the next down Hurtubise was given the ball, and plunged through the easterner's line for the remaining ten yards for the only try scored during the game.

Combination Runs

Westmount's chief play when on the offensive was a combined run by the halves assisted sometimes by the full back, and at others by the outside wing. The play was spectacular the passing being fast and accurate, but it was not effective after the first two or three times that it was tried, and even then it did not gain them much ground. For the most part the Peterborough wings broke through and smothered the play, often nailing the man with the ball for a loss of ten yards or more; but Westmount persisted in using it all through the game, mixing it up once or twice with a criss-cross that did not get them any more. A few attempts at bucking showed them the futility of the process, and as the kicking game was no help to them owing to the superiority of the Peterborough backs in booting the ball, there was nothing left for them but to continue their end run even if they were not gaining with it, and under these conditions it was no wonder that they did not score more often than they did.

Peterboro' Great Game

The whole Peterborough team played grand Rugby all through, not a weak spot being in evidence on the team anywhere. The back division was sure and reliable, only a few fumbles being made during the afternoon and none of them proved costly. They handled the ball cleanly, caught well, and out-punted Westmount with the greatest ease. On the wing line the same superiority was in evidence. Bigger than their opponents, and combining with their size, as much speed as the lighter Westmounts, they tore up they visitors' line at will; while on the other hand, Westmount could not get through when Peterborough had the ball, and Colledge was given the best of protection in making his punts, with the result that not one was blocked during the afternoon. What's more, the Peterborough men kept on side, and only a couple of penalties were inflicted on them during the game, while Westmount suffered numerous times, by infringements in the scrimmage, and on the wing line.

Colledge Shone

Colledge at centre half for the locals, was one of the bright lights of the game. His good right leg was responsible for the most of Peterborough's points, his punting and drop kicking being magnificent. Punting with the wing, his high long kicks kept the play right in Westmount's territory and when an opening offered for a drop kick, he got the ball away fast and accurately, duplicating his feat of the first game by kicking three goals from the field, two of them in the first half. The first was from the twenty-five yard line, and the second, one of the most wonderful seen on the local grounds, being from the forty-five yard line, and from an angle. The ball, however sped high and squarely between the uprights. In the third quarter he succeeded in performing the trick once again from the twenty-five yard line. Crough was moved from the outside wing to the back division, and played a stellar game all through. He caught well, ran for good gains, and his return of the Westmount punts could not have been improved upon. On one occasion he secured the ball at the touch line, in the centre of the field, and, with half a dozen Westmount wings upon him, kicked the ball to the dead line with his left foot. The ball travelled over fifty yards before it struck the ground.

Lundy in Limelight

Quinlan played his usual steady reliable game, catching, running and tackling well, while Mulhern, at full back took care of everything that came his way in a finished manner, making several pretty catches behind the line and running back punts well, his zig zag dashes gaining ground every time he got the ball. Lundy at quarter put up magnificent Rugby, playing the game of his life. His passing was sure and accurate, and when it came to bucking, he was there knocking at the door all the time. He tore through the Westmount line for big gains. On the defensive his tackling was a great help to the locals in stopping the end runs, which were such a prominent feature in Westmount's tactics. He made some of the prettiest tackles of the afternoon, invariably getting his man low and hard, and often pulling down the Westmount backs for big losses.

Wing Line Strong

The wing line all played grand Rugby, giving the backs great protection, when Peterborough had the ball, and when Westmount was in possession, tearing through on the halves in great shape. The line tackled splendidly and followed up fast, being always down with the ball and the result was that none of (Westmount's muffs were allowed to go to waste. Captain Hurtubise did some great bucking and Westmount had troubles of their own in stopping him when he was handed the ball for a line plunge. On the occasion when he went over for a try, he carried half of the Westmount team with him. Crowley, who was playing on his fifteenth championship team on Saturday played a splendid game on outside wing, his following and tackling being responsible for many gains, and he was always up the field well under the ball. The same is true of O'Connor, on the other end of the line, who tackled splendidly all through. Dillon and Dickson, the two inside wings, had it on their opponents in every way, both on the attack and on the defensive, stopping bucks in great fashion. Fitzgerald played his first game at middle wing, and was always prominent, tackling and following up well, while he was effective in the line work. Clarke, Deannard and O'Brien in the scrimmage, outclassed their opponents, and had no trouble whatever in getting the ball out cleaning shoving the opposition trio all over the lot.

Cornell Westmount's Best.

Cornell was Westmount's star, doing the best punting of any of the visitors. He started out at full-back, but was moved up to centre-half when Baillie was hurt. Cornell scored Westmount's only points, catching a punt from Colledge at Peterborough's 25-yard line and dropping a goal neatly. The play was unexpected, but Peterborough could not have stopped it even had they been looking for it as they were too far away from him when he received the ball. Baillie, the star quarter-back of the visitors, from whom so much was expected, did not play the game the crowd was looking for, although he worked hard all the time. In the first quarter he had his shoulder injured in making a flying tackle and had to retire to full-back, where he played the most of the game. He made one spectacular and plucky play that earned him the admiration of the crowd in the last quarter, when he made a flying leap and threw himself in front of one of Peterborough's bucks in a vain attempt to stop the advance. The entire mess of players passed over Baillie, but he fortunately escaped unhurt.

Ross also put up a good game on the back division, but Willis, the right half, was of little use to his team, making some bad fumbles and being dreadfully slow in getting rid of the ball. On the wing line the only men that compared with Peterborough's splendid advance squadron were Duckett and Drennan, the two outside wings, who did some pretty tackling and following up during the game. Snowden, the biggest man on the line, had his wrist sprained towards the end of the first quarter and had to get out of the game, giving way to Brophy, who did not do much to distinguish himself. Sovers did a lot of useful work on the line, but, like his team mates, he was too light for the big local line.

Off-side Interference

The Westmount back division worked in a lot of off-side interference and got away with it, too, as the officials did not seem to pay any attention to that department of their playing. On their combination runs the man making the pass would line up along side the player with the ball and ward off tacklers. They worked this two or three times with effect and they were not penalized, and they kept it up right along.

Barring this point, there was nothing wrong with the work of the officials, Messrs. Phil. McKenzie of Montreal, who was referee, and J. B. Hay of Toronto, scoretary of the O.R.F.U., who officiated as umpire in place of Hughie Hayes of Hamilton, who was to have acted, but who failed to put in an appearance. Both gave the best of satisfaction and their rulings were accepted without quibble by both teams.

The weather conditions were splendid for the game and the field was in good condition, considering the wet weather that preceded the contest. A strong wind from the southwest was blowing at the beginning of the game and it did not fall off any during the play so that the advantage was even all through in this respect.

The game was hard fought and was not too clean at some stages, a number of penalties being inflicted upon both teams. Several scraps were mixed up with rugby, and one in particular was a lively set-to, resulting in three men being sent to the side line. Nobody was hurt in these little affairs, and the best of feeling was in evidence after the game was over.

The Rival Teams

The teams faced each other like this when the referee's whistle blew for the commencement of the struggle that was to decide the fate of the O.R.F.U. senior championship:

The Play

Peterborough won the toss and elected to kick with the wind in the first quarter. Ross kicked off for Westmount a few minutes after 2.30 o'clock, the ball going to Mulhern, who caught nicely, but was downed before he could run the kick back far. Colledge made a mammoth punt to Willis, who fumbled badly, and the

D & A FORM-TRAINING CORSET

We have successfully combined in this "D & A FORM TRAINING" MODEL the heretofore irreconcilable quartette:

STYLE GRACE ELEGANCE HYGIENE

A distinctive feature of this corset is the horizontal section at the lower part, which women of full development, especially those exhibiting a tendency toward abdominal prominence, have come to recognize as the only safe and reliable way of training their forms into lines of symmetry and fashionableness.

It is this section which not only serves to conceal the actual weight of the wearer, but successfully persuades the flesh to the hips, and reduces the abdomen very effectually.

Considering its figure reducing and "FORM TRAINING" qualities, this corset at $3.00 is a very economical investment—in fact, it will outwear three ordinary $1.00 corsets.

You will find this style and various other "D & A" MODELS in every good store where corsets are sold, ranging in prices from $5.00 to $1.00.

PETERBOROS ARE SENIOR CHAMPIONS OF ONTARIO RUGBY UNION

play was taken into Westmount territory, there to remain for the quarter. The Easterners tried their combined end runs and managed to gain their yards on the first two plays of the kind tried. Peterborough soon solved the play, however, and the Westmounts were forced to kick, and Peterborough had possession of the ball on Westmount's 25-yard line. Colledge kicked over to Cornell, who returned into touch at Westmount's 25-yard line. From the scrimmage that followed, Colledge punted over the line to Cornell, who was downed for a rouge before he could get out with the pigskin. Score, Peterborough 1, Westmount 0.

Peterborough kept forcing the play. Colledge kicked to Willis at Westmount's 10-yard line and Crowley secured the ball when the visitors' half fumbled. Colledge punted over to Cornell, who made a nice run and relieved the situation. Westmounts were held for downs, three attempts at runs around the end failing to gain them their yards. Colledge tried to drop a goal from the 30-yard line, but it went wide to Ross, who gained before being tackled. The play was all in Westmount ground and the visitors were kept on the defensive. Peterborough was given the ball at Westmount's 25-yard line, and gained five yards on line plunges, only to lose possession on another off-side. Ross punted to Colledge, who marked at centre. His free kick was blocked, but the wing man who did it was off-side, and the ball was brought back again for a second kick, and Colledge punted to Westmount's 10-yard line, where Cornell was downed. A scrap, in which Hertubise, Dillon and Cornell were involved, and which resulted in all three being ruled off, followed. Westmount tried hard to hold the ball, attempting to carry it out of the danger zone by bucks and end runs, but they were thrown back for a loss and Peterborough secured possession at Westmount's 30-yard line. Colledge punted into touch in goal for another point. Score, Peterborough 2, Westmount 0.

Baillie, the visitors' quarter-back and captain, got away on a fake play on the kick-off, carrying the ball to centre field before being downed. Dickson, however, dropped on the ball in the next scrimmage, and Colledge kicked into touch for a good gain. Baillie tried a long pass over to Willis and it went wide, the visitors recovering almost on their own line. Peterborough kept pressing them steadily, and the ball continued to hover in their quarter.

Goal From the Field

Finally, after Westmount had tried end runs without result, and was forced to kick, Colledge was given an opportunity, and from a scrimmage at Westmount's 25-yard line dropped a goal. The visitors protested, saying that the ball went outside the uprights, and on their request a change was made in goal judges. Score, Peterborough 6, Westmount 0.

Following the kick-off Westmounts were given the ball on an off-side at Peterborough's 45-yard line. Several end runs by Willis and Ross failed to gain any ground, and Cornell punted to Crough, who fumbled, but recovered near his own line. Colledge kicked into touch at centre. Peterborough's twings were getting through without trouble, and Westmount's combination plays were being broken up, with the result that they were forced to kick. Colledge returned for good gains, and the play was all in Westmount territory. Snowden, the big inside wing of the visitors, had his right wrist sprained and had to go off, his place being taken by Broph. Soon after, Baillie hurt his shoulder in making a flying tackle, and retired to full-back, Cornell being moved up, while Pennell played quarter. Just before the quarter was up Colledge tried another drop kick from the 45-yard line, and the result was a magnificent goal, the ball travelling square between the posts. Score, Peterborough 10, Westmount 0.

Westmount Scores

Conditions were changed in the second quarter and Westmount had the wind. Peterborough, however, adopted a running and bucking game, with the result that they were able to keep possession of the ball most of the time, and even against the wind had the better of the play, although they failed to score during the period. Getting the ball at centre, they carried it for fifteen yards on a series of bucks, only to lose possession on an off-side. Cornell punted forty yards to Mulhern, who fumbled, but recovered the ball and got away for a good run. Westmount was awarded the ball on an off-side at Peterborough's 25-yard line, and Cornell made a poor kick into touch at Peterborough's fifteen yard line. Colledge kicked to Cornell, who caught the ball on the run at the 25-yard line and dropped a goal neatly, and Westmount had scored their first and only points. The play was very even during the quarter, with the ball around mid-field most of the time. Score, Peterborough 10, Westmount 4.

Locals Score Rapidly

With the wind in their favour again in the third quarter, Peterborough dropped their defensive tactics and once more went at the visitors hammer and tongs, the ball remaining in Westmount territory the greater part of the time. Cornell kicked off to Quinlan, who fumbled, but recovered and passed to Mulhern, who was downed in his tracks. Westmounts were given the ball a moment after on an off-side, and Ross got in a good run, carrying the ball to Peterborough's 40-yard line before he was downed. The signal called for a drop kick, but Cornell tried a punt instead, Mulhern catching the ball at his own line and running it out of danger. On the first scrimmage Colledge kicked to centre field Crowley charged Willis as the Westmount half was punting, and was penalized. Willis was hurt and there was a delay of some minutes. When play was resumed Colledge tried a drop from the 40-yard line, the kick falling short and going to Willis, who relieved, making a poor kick into touch at Westmount's 20-yard line. From the next scrimmage Colledge tried another drop, which went to one side, but Cornell was nailed behind the line for a rouge. Score, Peterborough 11, Westmount 4.

Colledge Drops Another

Peterborough kept right on the attack and the visitors were given no chance to get away with the ball. In a few minutes Colledge was given another opportunity for a drop kick at Westmount's quarter line and he made good use of it, another pretty goal resulting. Score, Peterborough 15, Westmount 4.

Dockett and O'Connor had a pugilistic encounter and both were penalized. Colledge tried two drops from near centre field, but both went low into the scrimmage. Peterborough recovered the ball on both occasions. Lundy was ruled off, although for what reason could not be learned, and Hurtubise followed him a moment after for a high tackle, leaving eleven Peterborough men against thirteen. However, even with this handicap, Peterborough kept forcing the Easterners back. Colledge punted to Westmount's 10-yard line, and Cornell returned to centre field to Crough, who returned with his left foot an close quarters, the ball travelling to the dead line for a point. Score, Peterborough 16, Westmount 4.

A moment after, Crough repeated the feat and the score was Peterborough 17, Westmount 4.

Peterborough kept up the punting game, and Westmount could not keep the ball away. Before three-quarter time was called, Peterborough had scored twice on long kicks to the dead line, by Colledge and Crough. Score, Peterborough 19, Westmount 4.

Hurtubise, Severs and O'Brien went off for scrapping. For a moment it looked as if both teams were going to mix it up, but order was restored. Before time was called Quinlan was penalized.

Last Quarter

In the last quarter Westmount seemed to be tired, and Petreborough adopting a bucking game, shoved the visitors around almost at will. Westmount forced the play for the first few minutes, a long kick from Cornell to Mulhern, who was tackled in his tracks, carrying the ball into Peterborough ground. Willis got around the end and over the line for a touch, but the ball was called back and given to Peterborough on an off-side. Crowley made a nice gain. Colledge tried a long pass across the field, but it went wrong. Peterborough, however, recovered and resumed their smashes at the Westmount line, carrying the ball from centre field on fierce assaults on Westmount's advance guard to Westmount's 20-yard line. An off-side gave the locals ten yards more, and then Hurtubise cantered over for a try, getting over the line right at the posts. Crough converted easily, and the score was Peterborough 25, Westmount 4.

There was no further scoring, although Westmount carried the fray into Peterborough territory on the kick-off, the ball being fumbled, and going nearly to Peterborough's line before being gathered in. By short runs and bucks, however, the locals fought their way out to centre field again and held the visitors safe. Just before the final whistle blew Crowley made one of the prettiest plays of the day, gathering a punt from Cornell on the dead run and getting away for a good dash. Peterborough had the ball at Westmount's 40-yard line when play was stopped, and Peterborough were champions, and the visitors beaten, but not disgraced.

SPORTING NEWS AND VIEWS

The gate on Saturday was disgracefully small and Peterborough did not make a cent as a result of the final game for the championship. After the expenses had been paid there was only $41 left and that went to Westmount, who, of course, were out financially as a result of the journey.

• • • •

Phil McKenzie, who refereed Saturday's game, is a big contrast to some of the other officials who act around these parts. According to the O. R. F. U. rules he was entitled to ten cents per mile for his expenses, which would have given him $26.10 for his services. Mr. McKenzie, however, refused to accept more than $15, his actual expenses. Joe Hay, secretary of the O. R. F. U., nearly had a fit when the news was broken to him.

• • • •

At the senior Y.M.C.A. class tomorrow evening the proposal to form a senior basketball league will be taken up. There is no doubt that the proposal will be carried through.

THIS remark is often made concerning the young man wearing one of our HANDSOME SUITS.

The young man of to-day demands the very newest fashion—the very latest innovations. No stubby Coats, no narrow lapels, no bag-hanging Garments for him this season. We select certain lines of Suits from Tailoring Houses that are specialists in Young Men's Clothes, whose styles are patterned after what one sees on the College campus—dashingly daring but not too extreme.

Suits at $12, $15 and $18

OUR OVERCOATS too, are extremely stylish and yet moderately priced. Don't fail to see what we can do for you. We have many new customers daily. Why? Because we have the Best Goods at the price.

OPENING MEETING OF SOCIETY

Royal Astronomical Society To Meet Tomorrow Night—A Lantern Provided

IS FOR THE BEGINNERS

The Astronomical Society meets tonight in Y.M.C.A. Hall at 8 o'clock, for the first of a series of class studies. Dr. Marsh will conduct the class this evening, and promises to give every possible assistance to the students thereafter in individual study.

The executive of the society, who have undertaken, at considerable personal expense, to provide a "Lantern" and a "Planetarium" for this inaugural meeting, wishes it understood that there is no admission fee, and that the public is invited.

As only the first principles of astronomy, the first steps in the science, will be considered, the meeting is distinctly for beginners. Even though you do not intend to continue the study, come and learn a few simple facts, is the invitation extended to all.

Some people consider astronomy a study too abstruse for them and possibly savouring of dry, uninteresting facts, unnecessary for the ordinary man. Unfortunately, very little attention is paid to this branch of science until the college course, and the general public is therefore not impressed with its great value.

Thus it is found that men of much intelligence, and a large fund of general knowledge, know but little of even the elementary facts in astronomy—facts upon which our very existence depends, and the means of our sustenance in the rotation of crops, etc. This should not be. An excellent opportunity is given in Peterborough at present to secure these facts by attending the meetings of the Royal Astronomical Society. They are free and you are very welcome.

THE RE-ADORNMENT OF ST. PAULS'

Some Reports Why the Interior of The Church is Again Being Painted

As announced yesterday, the services at St. Paul's Church were held in the Sunday school hall on Sunday on account of the further decorations in the church. The interior of the church has already undergone adornment, but when the painter finished his work it appears that none could be found to take the responsibility for the colours which decorated the walls. The result was that the interior of the church was not suitable, and hence the re-painting which is going on at present. It is understood that a few of the wealthy members of the congregation are meeting the extra costs of the re-decorations.

UNDERGROUND WORK IS FINISHED

Canadian Machine Telephone Company's Contract in Lindsay Completed

Mr. Dan McCabe and other Peterborough employees of the Canadian Machine Telephone Company, spent Sunday in the city, and returned to Brantford yesterday. The work of laying the underground conduits for the Lindsay system has been carried ahead very rapidly, and on Saturday the underground work was completed. The contract was finished in three weeks, which is very quick considering the bad weather and other difficulties under which the workmen have been labouring.

To Advertise Tenders For Snow Ploughing

Board of Works Decides to Have The Work Done in The Same Districts And on The Same Terms as Last Year

DICKSON STREET SIDEWALK

The Board of Works Committee of the city council, met yesterday afternoon, for the purpose of making arrangements for the removal of snow during the winter, and as a result the engineer was instructed to advertise for tenders for snow ploughing on the same terms, and for the same districts, as last year. In the discussion on the subject, it was pointed out by the Engineer that the city's supply of iron ploughs was too small. At present there are five of these ploughs, while the engineer was of the opinion that there should be ten, at least. There are six snow ploughing districts in which the work is done by contract, and a central district where the cleaning is done by the city's own teams and employees. The cost of the snow ploughing last year was $907.50.

At yesterday's meeting Ald. Duncan, the chairman, presided, and there were present Ald. Johnston and Wilson, and the City Engineer. When the snow ploughing question was taken up, Ald. Johnston moved, seconded by Ald. Wilson, that the City Engineer be instructed to advertise for tenders for snow ploughing for the same districts and on the same terms as last year.

The application of Mr. Bushell for an approach to his crossing on Charlotte street, was considered. The engineer will report on the matter.

The Dickson street and Hunter street sewer questions were left over for a few days.

The request of the congregation of the Park street Baptist church for a temporary approach to the church, was granted, and the city engineer will see that the work is done.

Ald. Johnston moved, seconded by Ald. Wilson that the sidewalk on the west side of Dickson street, be built.—Carried.

Committee Grants More Requests For Lights

Three Will be Placed on James Street—One At The Corner Of Brock And Setwart Street Also Granted

NONE FOR "FINGER POST"

The principal business before the Fire, Water and Light Committee yesterday afternoon was in connection with several requests for lights in different parts of the city, which were granted after some discussion. It had been decided earlier in the year not to pay any attention to any further requests in that line this season, but since then several petitions have been granted, and as the lights were needed the committee seemed to be of the opinion that they could not do other but order the lights to be installed.

Ald. Johnston was in the chair, and there were present Ald. Wilson, Duncan, Bradburn and Morgan.

Mrs. R. S. Davidson wrote asking for an incandescent lamp on James street, east of Mark street, and Ald. Morgan supported the request by saying that the street was very dark, and that the residents were preparing a petition to send to the committee for lights there. He was of the opinion that three or four lights should be placed on James street.

Finally, Ald. Morgan moved, seconded by Ald. Duncan, that two lights be placed on James street, and that if the chairman deems it necessary that a third light be installed.—Carried.

Ald. Bradburn moved, seconded by Ald. Duncan, that an incandescent lamp be placed at the corner of Stewart and Brock streets.—Carried.

A petition was read from the people living around the Fingerpost, at the northeast boundary of the city, for a light there, but the committee decided not to grant the request.

The Mayor who entered just before the meeting adjourned, expressed the opinion that the committee should not have granted any more requests for lights this season.

LINDSAYITES WERE TANGLED

Believed Mice Were Used To Pull Telephone Wires Through The Conduits

THE PUZZLE IS EXPLAINED

Lindsay people, with their usual conservative ideas, thought that a mouse was used to pull wires through the underground conduits which the Machine Telephone Company is installing there, and Mr. Lytle, the manager, has to explain matters for them. The Post says about the tangled ideas of the citizens:

Large numbers of citizens have been lying awake nights pondering on how the telephone company is going to get its wires through the pipes after they are already buried. Some queer solutions of the puzzle were offered.

One man stoutly maintained that they would take a mouse with a string tied to its tail to one manhole, and at the other would place a bit of cheese. The mouse, smelling the cheese, would go after it and so take the thread through the pipe, when a cable would be pulled through, and then the wires. Another opinion was that a man with a strong breath would blow the wires through. Still another, that one of our crack shots would put a bullet through with a wire tied to it. Magnets to draw the wires through, water to float a tethered cork through, animals chasing each other through, and even a whisky barrel at one end and a dry man at the other, were among the ways proposed to overcome the difficulty.

To settle the many disputes, a Post reporter took it upon himself to gain some information from the head man, Mr. W. H. Lytle.

"Oh," he said, "that's simple enough. Why, you know, we have lengths of steel rod which fit together with a ball and socket joint, and we shove one after another in at one man-hole, till the chain is complete to the next. A steel cable is then fastened to the last rod, and a man at the other end commences to pull in the rods and disconnect them one by one till the cable is in his hands. He then draws away till the wires, which are hitched to the end of the cable, come to the man-hole at which he is. The operation is repeated from man-hole to man-hole throughout the town till the whole service is laid. Simple, isn't it?"

ST. JOHN'S GUILD HOLD RECEPTION

Girls Guild Entertain The Congregation Of St. John's Church

The congregation of St. John's Church was hospitably entertained last night in the Sunday school room by the Girls' Guild of that church. The room was gaily decorated with flags and bunting, and the windows handsomely curtained, the decorations being the loan of the J. C. Turnbull Company.

The first part of the evening was taken up with a short programme, with Mr. Charles in the chair, most of the participants being members of the Conservatory of Music, and each number being beautifully rendered. The programme was as follows:

Piano Solo—Miss Sisson.
Solo—Miss Dawson.
Recitation—Miss Fraser.
Duet—Miss Seward and Miss Lancaster.
Reading—Mr. F. D. Kerr.
Song—Mr. Coleman.

Between the first and second numbers of the programme, Mr. Hughes Charles, the chairman of the evening, delivered a short and humourous address. "This society," Mr. Charles began, "is one of the oldest societies in the church, the members of which have worked indefatigably to make this society the leading society of the church, and, so far as I can ascertain, it is the greatest organization that we have. We have a church worth working for, this grand old edifice, that we commemorate its seventy-second anniversary. We have been adding to and constructing this church from year to year, until now we have a vestry of which any church should be proud, and, as regards its architecture, designed by Mr. Belcher, it is a gem." In conclusion, Mr. Charles congratulated the girls on their splendid reception, and trusted that they would continue to prosper.

Rev. Dr. Lamfeldt was called upon for a few words. He also congratulated the girls on their splendid work. Before there was any St. Luke's or All Saints' Church in this city there was a St. John's, and therefore we look to her as our mother. Anything that benefits her benefits the English Church as a body, and I give the society, on behalf of my congregation, our heartiest wishes for future success.

Mr. R. J. Soden is to be thanked for supplying the dishes used.

Refreshments were then served and were much appreciated. The Girls' Guild of St. John's Church certainly do deserve credit for the manner in which they entertained the congregation, and for the efficient way in which everthing was carried out. After the refreshments, the assembly rose and sang the National Anthem.

VICTIM OF EXPLOSION IN HOSPITAL

Wm. Watson of Kinmount Was Rather Seriously Injured—Taken To Lindsay

Examiner special.

Mr. William Watson, of Kinmount, who was seriously injured in the explosion of the acetylene lighting plant in the Northern Hotel of that village, was brought her yesterday from the north and was met at the station by the hospital ambulance and conveyed to that institution. On inquiry, we learn that while Mr. Watson's burns about the face and hands are very serious and painful, no permanent results are anticipated, as with the careful dressing and attention his injuries will receive at the hospital, he will be about again in a short time.—Lindsay Post.

British Premier Says Delegates Worked Hard For Arbitration.

KING'S BIRTHDAY BANQUET

Brilliant Function at Mansion House, London—Congratulations to Lloyd-George—Review of Peace Conference — Admiral Fisher Defends Navy—Is Superior to Any Foreign Power—Invasion a Bogie.

London, Nov. 11.—The celebration of the 66th anniversary of King Edward VII.'s birthday was brought to a fitting close at the inaugural banquet of the new Lord Mayor of London, Sir John C. Bell, at Guildhall, Saturday night. For the first time since the brief regime of Lord Rosebery, in the early 90's, the former Liberal Prime Minister occupied the post of honor. The Premier, Sir H. Campbell-Bannerman, who last year was unable to attend the lord mayor's banquet owing to the death of his wife, was in his place and delivered the principal speech of the evening in reply to the toast of His Majesty's Ministers.

Departing from the usual rule, the Premier referred in his opening remarks to domestic affairs, and especially congratulating David Lloyd-George, President of the Board of Trade, on the settlement of the dispute between the railways and their employes. Touching on foreign affairs, Sir Henry said that the results obtained at the recent Hague Peace Conference had not come up to his most sanguine hopes, but that he was glad he had been over-sanguine in his expectation, for he had spoken for a nation which had no aggressive designs upon its neighbors and desired only to live in peace and amity towards all.

The Hague Conference, declared the Premier, was a plant of slow growth, but one in which he had great confidence, and he believed the day would come when there would be a cessation in the mad race for armaments which now was the scourge of our common civilization. In a review of the work accomplished by the conference, Sir Henry said that it had by no means been insignificant.

The British delegates had done all that they could to advance the question of arbitration. If they had attempted to force the issue, he declared, the result would have been negative or even worse—friction. An international prize court would be a notable step in advance, he said, and it might be necessary for the leading maritime powers to come to an agreement for the establishment of such a court, and the adoption of rules therefor. Great Britain had also left matters in shape for future amicable discussion of the abolition of contraband and the restriction of floating mines.

The Colonial Conference, the Anglo-Russian treaty and the steps taken to prevent the plague and sedition in India having been disposed of, Sir Henry took up the Congo question. As great as the contrast is between the hopes of the English people when the Congo was established, and the conditions existing there at the present time, he felt that he must speak with the greatest reserve, because the Belgian Parliament will shortly be asked on what terms it will take over the independent Free State of the Congo. Great Britain would not interfere in the negotiations, he declared, but the Government was deeply impressed with the responsibility that it, in common with others, felt that the Government of the Congo should be put on a footing with the colonies admtnistred by other nations, and in accordance with the treaties under which the Congo came into existence.

Sir John A. Fisher, senior Naval Lord of the Admiralty, in replying to recent attacks upon the navy, pointed out that in the recent North Sea manoeuvres there were gathered 26 of the finest battleships in the world and 26 cruisers, many of which were superior to any foreign battleship, and even this great fleet represented only a fraction of Great Britain's naval power. Besides, he said, the gunnery and general efficiency of the English fleet surpassed all records and was a matter of wonder and admiration. "The object of the Admiralty," said Sir John, "has been one of instant readiness, and we have got it. Don't be disturbed by the bogie of invasion. One might as well talk of embarking St. Paul's Cathedral on a penny steamer as embarking 100,000 German soldiers to invade England."

In conclusion Sir John declares that the fleet in the number of fighting ships and in general capacity was never so satisfactory as at the present time.

The union fined Mr. Rumsby $10 for employing two men at a band concert who were behind in their dues as union musicians, and Col. Hall immediately instituted a prosecution with the above result.

WAS NOT PECULATION.

Italian Minister Says Trouble Originated In Department.

Rome, Nov. 11.—The trial before the Senate of Nunzio Nasi, ex-Minister of Public Instruction, on the charge of defrauding the State Treasury, was continued Saturday. Nothing new was brought out.

Several witnesses seemed to have forgotten depositions previously made, evidently fearing the revenge of Nasi or his friends in the event of either his condemnation or acquittal.

Signor Nasi undoubtedly is gaining ground in his attempt to demonstrate that the accusations were due, not to his peculations or falsifications, but partly to the disorder in the Ministry of Public Instruction and partly to the necessity on his part to provide expenses not comprised in appropriations voted by Parliament.

WOULD EASE THE STRINGENCY.

Police Nab Winnipeg Man Making Counterfeit Wholesale.

St. Paul, Minn., Nov. 11.—What apparently is the boldest counterfeiting game ever attempted in the northwest was nipped in the bud when Secret Service Agent McManus walked into a room in the Union Block and arrested a man supposed to be Ernest R. Workman of Winnipeg, and secured $200,000 counterfeit money of Workman's own manufacture.

Until his arrest Workman had no suspicion that he was being watched or followed, though the secret service department has been on his trail daily and nightly for three weeks. He was said to be on the eve of his departure for Winnipeg, as he could pass bad money in Canada betted than in the States.

The stuff was in the shape of 1,000 gold certificates of $20 each.

E. R. Workman is a well-known young architect at Winnipeg. He was married about 18 months ago, and has a baby boy. His wife believes there must be some mistake. He is 26 and came from Hechston, near Kemptville, Ont., four years ago.

FATAL SHOOTING ACCIDENT.

Well-Known Prizefighter Killed While After Ducks.

Windsor, Nov. 11.—Willie Spracklin, who had attained considerable local fame as a prize fighter, was accidentally shot Saturday afternoon while duck hunting, and died yesterday from his injuries.

Spracklin was in a skiff with a companion named Star Mason and had sighted a flocked of ducks near Fighting Island. Mason drew his gun to shoot and just as he pulled the trigger a wave caused the boat to lurch. The charge struck Spracklin in the head, one ear was blown off and the head was otherwise frightfully injured.

Mason's cries for assistance brought two other hunters, and they conveyed Spracklin to a hotel on the Canadian side, whence he was later removed to the Hotel Dieu Hospital. He lingered until 10 o'clock yesterday. Deceased was a son of Joseph Spracklin, and was trained by his father for his ring exploits. He fought a dozen battles or more without defeat. His success in the ring made him exceedingly popular in local and Detroit sporting circles.

GETS SMART SENTENCE.

Seven Years For Man Who Tried to Murder Physician.

Winnipeg, Nov. 11.—R. M. Quigley was sentenced to seven years with hard labor at the Assizes Saturday, for having attempted to murder Dr. Clyn Smith of St. Louis, Mo., who was traveling for pleasure and to recover his health.

Quigley struck up a friendship with the doctor, went about with him and finally enticed him for a drive on a lonely road at dark and deliberately attempted, as he admitted, to shoot with a view of maiming him. He sought to make the jury believe that he was so shocked by the conversation of the man upon whom he forced himself that, like a knight errant of old, he sought to take his life to protect the world of the young and innocent from his wiles.

CASHIER DISAPPEARS.

Banks Deficit Said to Amount to Over Fifty Thousand Dollars.

Lawton, Okla., Nov. 11.—D. R. Rankin, cashier of the Merchants and Planters' Bank, has disappeared, and it is said that there is a shortage in the bank of about $50,000. The bank has been taken in charge by the territorial bank examiner, E. H. Smocke. Many irregularities have been unearthed, it is alleged.

Among the assets of the bank is an unsecured note of Cashier Rankin for $3,100. J. Harry Lynch, a union labor worker, owes the institution $11,000 without security. The estimated liabilities of the institution are $113,950, with assets estimated at $55,619. Only $400 in cash was found by the bank examiner. T. H. Dun has been appointed receiver for the bank.

THREE MEN INJURED.

Italians Seriously Hurt by Dynamite Explosion at Port Arthur.

Port Arthur, Nov. 11.—While engaged in loading a hole for a blast in a sewer trench here Saturday afternoon three Italians were injured, one seriously, by a premature explosion of dynamite.

One man was over the hole at the time and he had a portion of his face blown off and an eye put out. He is not likely to live and two others were struck with flying rocks, and they were badly cut up.

Railroad Strike In Cuba.

Havana, Nov. 11.—The railroad strike in Cuba will probably end today, Manager Orr of the United Railroad having presented a proposition which is likely to be accepted by the strikers.

The proposition grants a certain wage increase, but denies the payment of wages in American money, or an eight-hour day. Only a few of the alleged American strikebreakers, who arrived in the city from New York Oct. 7, remain here. The trains are running almost on the regular schedule.

One ounce Fluid Extract Dandelion;
One ounce Compound Salatone;
Four ounces Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla;

Mix, and take a teaspoonful after meals and at bedtime, drinking plenty of water.

The above prescription has been found invaluable in the treatment of kidney, bladder and urinary troubles, and diseases arising therefrom, such as rheumatism, sciatica, lame back and lumbago, and we feel that the public are entitled to particulars concerning it.

A prominent physician states that the excellent results that have been obtained from the use of the mixture are due to its direct action upon the kidneys, assisting them in their work of filtering all poisonous waste matter and acids from the blood and expelling same in the urine, and at the same time restoring the kidneys to a healthy condition.

He further states that anyone suffering from afflictions of this nature will find it to be very beneficial, and suggests that it be given a trial.

The Town Lover; or, How the Lady-Killer Blew Up In the Stretch.

[Copyright, 1902, 1903, by Robert Howard Russell.]

NO SCANDAL.

There once lived at a prominent Railway Junction a local Swell known as Wilbur. He was what one might call a Half-Portion. That is, he was a little shy on weight, but what he lacked in Avoirdupois he made up in Nerve. He was a Fresh Gazabe, who could get away with anything. For instance, he could sit in a Lady's Lap for an Hour at a Time without starting any Scandal, and yet if a full-grown Man tried to hold this same Lady's Hand for a couple of Minutes, just to be sociable, she would tell around that she had been insulted.

In speaking of Wilbur the Girls usually said that he was Cute, or else just too Cunning for any use. The Men said various Things about him, but what they said does not come under the head of Sunday Reading.

Every Debutante wanted to wear him on her Chatelaine, but most of the Men were plotting to drop a little Prussic Acid into his Ice-Cream Soda.

For some Reason or other the gabby young Squab who is a Ten-Strike with the Dolly Grays never stands very Ace with the Poker-Players.

When a man has put some blonde Esmeralda up on a Pedestal a mile high and is silently waiting for the Day when he will know her well enough to carelessly throw one Arm over the back of the Chair, it makes him Hop-Eyed to see some 90-pound Rabbit with an immortal Rind chase up to the Goddess and give her the kitchy-kitchy Business under the Chin and call her "Babe."

The Pocket-edition Society Boy can take Liberties that would cause the Six-Footer to be murdered and thrown into the River.

Wilbur was the busiest little Insect that ever buzzed, and his Work had a Mahogany Finish. He could put in an Afternoon with five or six boulevard Netties and make every one of them think that she was the High Card.

His Den was richly decorated with Trophies of the Chase, and the Postman became lop-sided from delivering his Mail.

There is such a Thing as being too Popular, and that was what ailed Wilbur. He was being passed around all the while and never had time to devote himself to any particular Queen, and, besides, he didn't meet very many that were Particular. He fluttered from Flower to Flower, and he did not have the Heart to tie up with any one of the Bunch and make her his Steady, because he knew that the others would pine away or else renounce the World and enter a Convent.

One Reason why Wilbur had such a strong Pull with the Buds was that he never permitted his Work to interfere with his Social Duties. They could get him on the Phone at any time and book him for any kind of a Stunt from a Luncheon to a Golf Tourney. He kept his Evening Clothes at the Office, and he could respond to a Dinner Invitation like a Fireman going to a Fire. He never side-stepped a chance to eat.

One of his prize Specialties was to play sympathetic Companion to the Woman whose Husband belongs to a Club. He cultivated the antique Hens who make out the Invitation Lists, and that is why Wilbur usually led the German and distributed the Favors when the Smart Set pulled off a Cotillon.

WILBUR'S MAIL.

Although he was on Salary, he somehow contrived to hold up his End. Fortunately, his Board did not cost him anything, and he squared all of his Society Obligations by making Party Calls instead of sending American Beauties.

Inasmuch as all of the real Tessies were more or less crazy about Wilbur, it seemed a lead-pipe Certainty that he would land an Heiress who would take him to Palm Beach on a Wedding Tour and then pay his Tailor Bills for all time. However, so many were on his Trail that not one of them had a chance to monopolize him. Just when Hortense would get him off into a Corner to tell him that she loved Blue Eyes, Beryl would come along and begin to stroke his Hair, and then Clarice would come up and pin Violets on him.

A Selling-Plater can keep after one Girl and finally hound her into making a Promise, but the Honey Boy has to play a Circuit all the Time. Wilbur usually had about 47 Names in his Date-Book.

He never ran short, because when the June Brides dropped out, a new Crop, fresh from the Boarding-Schools, came on to fill the Vacancies.

Year after Year the Ladies' Idol continued his heart-breaking Career, not because he wished to be Cruel, but because he couldn't help being so all-fired Entrancing.

There never was a time when he could have put a Tag on any Dukiness without putting a Blight on the entire Female Community; so he waited.

In fact, he overdid the Waiting Act. About the time that he outgrew his Hair and began to look a little puffy around the Eyes, the Lumty-Tum Elite caught the Athletic Fever. The Real Boy in Sussiety was the husky Fellow who had played on a College Eleven and who owned a String of Polo Ponies.

EVENING CLOTHES ALWAYS READY.

Little Wilbur, the has-been Midge, found that he could drift into a Drawing-Room without causing the faintest Ripple.

Now that he was becoming Bald and Shelf-Worn, no one cared to use him as a Pet.

He was lucky if he got a few kind Words from some elderly Patroness. As for the Girls who owned a Million Dollars apiece, they couldn't see him with a Spy-Glass.

So he became that pathetic Figure, the played-out Beau—the extinct Volcano in the Landscape of Gayety. He tried to butt in, from Force of Habit, but he had the Ice Pitcher handed to him so often that at last he got wise to himself and realized that he belonged on the Top Shelf.

He did what every Man does—viz., the best he can. He hooked up with a Maiden Lady who looked all right in the Dark, and although a Bundle of Money came with her, he earned all that he got.

MORAL: He who nails the First One seldom makes a Mistake.

The Attempt to Spruce Up the Family and Give It a Standing.

[Copyright, 1902, 1903, by Robert Howard Russell.]

NOT WHOLLY CIVILIZED.

Once there was a Happy Family that began to get a few hard Bumps when Ma bought a Work on Etiquette. Up to that time the Outfit had not tried to throw on any Lugs.

The male contingent slouched around the House in their Shirt-Sleeves, while the Girls often came to Breakfast in their Balloon-Wrappers, and never thought of primping until about 3 P. M. Father had an assortment of Rube Table Manners left over from his early Experience on the Farm.

He never saw the sense of changing Knives when he hacked into the Butter, and as for using the side of the Spoon, he never could get the Hang of it.

Up to the Time that he married and became House-broke he had been a Sword-Swallower in a $4 Beanery. For years he up-ended his Soup-Plate so as to get all that was coming to him, and cooled his Coffee in the Saucer, and concluded his Exhibition of Barbaric Sports by using a large timber piece of Bread as a Mop.

His Wife worked on him for twenty years, and finally had him so civilized that he no longer tucked the Napkin inside of his Collar, although he still put both Elbows on the Table and groaned a little just before tackling the Pie.

Ma belonged to several Clubs and began to meet the Lady Managers of Society. It was her Ambition to lift her own Family out of the Skate Division and get the whole Bunch into the local 400. That is why she bought the Volume containing this year's League Rules for cutting into High Life.

She wanted the Boys to forget their corn-fed Origin and do the Reginald Act and learn how to act in the Presence of Ladies. They were mostly Hands and Feet, and had no Ambition in Life except to play Baseball.

The Girls were a Sad Lot when Ma lined them up and decided to transform them into Drawing-Room Queens. They were Gum-Chewers of the most abandoned Type, and what they did to the English Language it would be a shame to tell. Each of them was more or less stuck on some chinless Percy who wore his Watch-Chain high up and rubbed himself with Eau de Cologne.

Ma's Purpose in studying the Book of Etiquette was to remove the Kinks from this array of Raw Material.

She wanted each of the Boys to be a Chesterfield, while the Girls were expected to brace up and follow in the footsteps of Mrs. Sherwood.

As Director of the Training-School she had to call them down about 1000 times per Day. When she had Company the Boys always forgot to arise when a Lady entered the Room. When Dinner was announced they were always first at the Table. Instead of conversing with the Persons seated next to them, they humped over and got busy with the Victles.

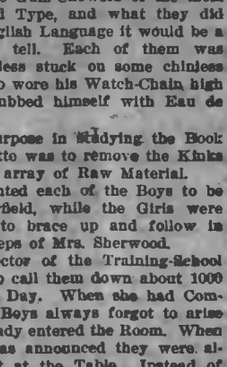
As for the Girls, they usually flocked in a Corner and had a Whispering-Bee. At the Table they would get an Attack of the Giggles, without letting any one else in on the Good Thing.

To cap the Climax, the Male Parent would usually try to lift the Gloom by springing some ancient Wheeze outlawed by Haverly's Minstrels as far back as 1880.

Ma had a proud Chance to win a Social Standing so long as she was handicapped by that Band of Yokels. Just when she would be talking Art with a Massachusetts Accent, one of the Boys would break in with a Demand for a Second Helping of Cauliflower. Or else the Prize Blacksmith, in a well-meaning effort to be Hospitable, would urge the Lady Opposite to pitch in and Eat some more.

After Dinner it often happened that Ma would tout the Accomplishments of the Young Ladies. Accordingly, they would be urged to Play Something, at which they would hang back and snicker and do a Sis Hopkins Specialty.

While they were Killing Time, Father would usually fall asleep with his Mouth open, or else one of the Boys would upset something in trying to do a Sneak from the Room.



HER TRAINING SCHOOL.

As soon as the last unhappy Guest had escaped into the Night there would be a large-sized Roast waiting for the whole Tribe. Ma would sit up until 1 o'clock reminding them of all the Horrible Breaks they had made. She said that sitting around [illegible] in the Kitchen cracking Hickory-Nuts was about their Size when it came to playing the Society Game. She allowed that they would be more at Home if they moved out to some Ranch and associated with the Live-Stock. When Ma got riled she forgot her Culture-Club training and handed out a very Tabasco Line of Conversation.

She said she was good and tired of trying to make Ladies and Gentlemen out of a Flock of Yaps who took after their Father.

At this she would get a Rise out of Father. He said he didn't propose to strain himself being Polite to a lot of Four-Flushes who owed him Money. That was the Trouble with Father. He was President of the Company, and seemed to think that his Official Position gave him a Right to break Crackers into his Soup. He refused to wear a White Tie with his Evening Clothes just because some cheap Department Manager had set the Style.

As for the Offspring, they were too mullet-headed to get wise to Ma's magnificent System of doing the Heavy. When it came to a toss-up between a Pink Tea and a Variety Show, they put their Spending Money on the Coon Song. Any time that Ma dressed them up and took them out to meet the Elite they hung back.

At last Ma saw that the only Hope lay in shipping the whole Pack away to high-toned Schools in the East.

For several Years the Rising Generation put a Terrific Crimp in Father's Income, but at last they came home all speeded up, and then they were so Fly that Father could not travel in the same Class and even Ma could get a few pointers from them.

At present they are tearing up the Scenery in their Touring-Cars, and they have the Nerve to tackle any kind of Society.

MORAL: A patient Woman can Educate any one except her own Husband.

Bellboy Goes to Central.

St. Thomas, Nov. 11.—At the police court Saturday morning Harold Legassicke, the Grand Central bellboy who in October, 1906, disappeared with $40 with which he was sent out to get change, was sentenced to six months in Central Prison. A letter was read from Rev. Mr. Wallace of Toronto, formerly pastor of Centre street Baptist church, asking for leniency.

Put the Blood In Condition

BY THE RESTORATIVE BLOOD-FORMING PROPERTIES OF

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food

It is weakness that causes most of our sufferings — weakness of the heart, weakness of the stomach, weakness of the liver, kidneys and bowels.

The result is feeling of languor and depression, and impaired action of the vital organs, headaches, indigestion, spells of dizziness and weakness, sleeplessness, irritability, and a general rundown condition of the system.

Put the blood in good condition by the use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and you have a foundation for health to build on. Weakness and disease will give way to new strength and vigor, and angour and discouragement will yield to ne hope and happiness.

Mr. Fergus Cowan, Lily Oak, Ont., writes:—"As a result of the severe winter and an attack of la grippe, I was all run down this spring. I seem improved very much by using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. My appetite is better than it has been for years, and though sixty years of age I am able to do a man's work on the farm following a team. I believe that I owe my good health to the use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food."

Mrs. Geo. Bettie, Carr's Brook, Colchester Co., N.S., writes: — "Last spring I was very much run down, felt tired all the time and did not seem to have life or energy enough to do my work. Three boxes of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food did me a world of good and made work a pleasure to me. I have not had occasion to use any medicine since, and have recommended Dr. Chase's Nerve Food to all my friends.

"We always keep Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills in the house to be used for constipation, pains in the back and stomach troubles."

By means of good blood only can Nature make weak people strong, and Chase's Nerve Food is composed of the most powerful blood-forming elements known to medical science. Every dose is bound to be of some benefit to you; 50 cents a box, at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto.

BRAINS OF THE ARMY.

Famous Soldier Dead—Was Head of Intelligence Department.

Major-Gen. Sir John Ardagh, who had been lying ill for some days suffering from hemorrhage of the brain, died recently, at Glynllifon Park, Carnarvon, in his 68th year. This distinguished soldier, who was born in 1840, son of Rev. W. J. Ardagh, entered the army as a lieutenant of Royal Engineers in 1859. He was promoted captain in 1872, major in 1880, and lieutenant-colonel in 1885. While still a subaltern (1869) he went on a mission to Nova Scotia and Bermuda with Major-Gen. Sir W. Jervois. Having qualified for a staff appointment he was employed as D.A.Q.G. of the Army Intelligence Department on missions to Holland, Austria, Italy, and Turkey. He was among those pres-

After a short period as Instructor in Military History to the School of Military Engineers he went to Egypt in October, 1882, as Assistant Adjutant-General, and served throughout the campaign. He was present at the operations at Alexandria and at the battle of Tel-el-Kebir, was mentioned in despatches, and received the brevet of lieutenant-colonel and the Osmanieh of the Fourth Class. In March, 1884, he went to the Soudan as Commanding Royal Engineers and Chief of the Intelligence Department, and was present at the battles of El Teb and Tamai. Col. Ardagh was several times mentioned in despatches and received the C. B. Later he accompanied the expedition up the Nile, and was appointed commandant of the base at Cairo. As colonel on the staff of the Frontier Field Force he took part in the action of Giniss. He returned to England in November, 1887, to take over the duties of Assistant Adjutant-General at Headquarters. He went to India in March, 1889, as private secretary to the viceroy, the Earl of Lansdowne. In April, 1895, he became commandant of the School of Military Engineering, which appointment he vacated in April, 1896, on being appointed Director of Military Intelligence at Headquarters. Sir John married Susan, Countess of Malmesbury, widow of the third earl, in 1896, having been created K.C.M.G. two years before. In 1897 the degree of LL.D. honoris causa was conferred upon him by Trinity College, Dublin. In 1899 Sir John was British delegate to the Peace Conference at The Hague, and afterwards was appointed member of the Permanent Tribunal. He served also on the Arbitration Tribunal between Chili and Argentina, and presided over the South African War Claims Commission in 1901.

AN INTERNATIONAL PROBLEM.

Once there lived in a Jim Crow Town a glowing Intellect who was Posted on all the Issues of the Day. Some one had to keep Cases on the Government and prevent the whole Outfit from getting out of Kelter, and so the Job fell to Mordecai F. Quinsy. Mr. Quinsy found that he could give his Time to regulating the Washington Game because his Wife did Sewing and his Daughter was an Expert Stenographer. Between them they kept him supplied with good 5-cent Cigars and relieved his Mind of all Business Cares.

He had nothing to worry him except Affairs of State.

When he tackled a large International Problem he could do so with a keen, active Brain that had not been fagged out by any cheap Exertion, such as trying to locate the Winter's Supply of Coal.

Mr. Quinsy had the solemn Phiz of a professional Pall-Bearer, and much meditation had corrugated the Front of the Dome. Those who merely caught one Flash of him and never looked up his Record and checked off his Pedigree thought he was about due to break into the Senate. To tell the cold and icy Truth, Mordecai could not have been elected Constable, but just the same he knew all about John Hay's next Move, and sometimes he fretted a good deal for Fear that John would make a Miscue.

Mr. Quinsy could sit on a Kit of Mackerel, with a Bunch of Keys, a Barlow Knife, a Plug of good eating Tobacco, and about 35 cents in Currency secreted in his Jeans, and he could tell the Treasury Department just how to manage the next $100,000,000 Issue of Bonds.

One thing that worried Mr. Quinsy a lot was the possibility that Teddy would make some serious Mistake. He felt more or less responsible for Teddy, inasmuch as he had formally nominated him in front of Pilkins's Hardware Store as far back as 1889. If he could have been at Teddy's Elbow all the time to whisper Advice there would have been no Chance for the Administration to get balled up. But the Trouble was that Mr. Quinsy was out at Pewee Junction and Teddy was up at Washington, and they could not get together to frame up a Policy.

Mr. Quinsy was a man of Regular Habits and very Methodical. He had so much to do every Day that he had to work on a close Schedule.

NUMBER SIX.

In the Morning, after his Wife had arisen and started the Fire and put on the Griddle, Mr. Mordecai F. Quinsy would arise and take a few Observations of the Weather. He was a very able Prognosticator, and one of his favorite Stunts was to get up in the Morning and do a little Forecasting for the benefit of his Wife and Daughter.

After Breakfast he put on his Overcoat and wrapped himself up in a Comforter so as not to catch Cold and lose the Use of his Voice. If Mordecai F. Quinsy had lost the use of his Voice this Country would have been in a Bad Way.

Mr. Quinsy knew a Druggist who took a Daily Paper, and so, the first thing every Morning, he went to the Drug Store to find out what Fool Break had been made by Congress. After reading the Paper he sat by the Stove and laid out some Work for the Ways and Means Committee.

After which he went down to the Station to see Number Six go through.

took a fresh Grip on the World of Trade, and boned like a Turk, making Payments on the House. He was beginning to look round-shouldered, but he drank plenty of Coffee and smoked fat Cigars and buckled down.

He had it all planned to take a good Rest as soon as he had lifted the Mortgage. He went so far as to send out for Time-Tables and look at the Pictures of People sitting around in Steamer Chairs enjoying the Sea Air.

He would have taken a nice, long Vacation, only he saw a Chance to break into the Firm. Accordingly he went in Debt up to his Eyes. He would lie awake at Night casting up his Liabilities and computing Interest. He talked to himself on the Street, and acted just the least bit Dippy. But he was determined to swing the Deal, and then, as soon as he was out of the Woods, he could take a Trip and bang around Picture-Galleries.

For Years he had said that it was a Crime for any one Man to pile up more than $100,000. As soon as he went above that Figure it was a Case of sitting up Nights to count it. As soon as he had that Hundred Thousand raked up and tied in bundles, then for a Quiet Spot near a Body of Water and a Naphtha Launch and the free, open Life of the Golf Links.

FOURTEEN PUSH BUTTONS IN FRONT OF HIM.

To the 50-cent Table-d'Hote Fellow, 100,000 Salmoleons in one Lump looks bigger than the Union Station, but the Man who is being gnawed by the Mazuma Bacillus thinks he is a Pauper unless he can count up Seven Figures. He is always sizing up alongside of Rockefeller and Morgan, and he feels like a Piker sitting in a stiff Poker Game with one White Seed.

Just about the time the Business Man counted up $100,000 to the Good he discovered that he needed seven Servants around the House. And the Missus could float downtown on a sunny Afternoon and make $1,000 look like a Pinch of Small Change.

He set his Mark at One Million. Then, when he had that, out to the Sylvan Dell. He was going to be a Gentleman Farmer.

Every Office Building on Earth is congested with hollow-eyed Prisoners who are planning to be Gentleman Farmers. About next Year or Year after—away from the Hurly Burly and nothing to do except raise Chickens.

All of them have those Chicken Dreams. This Business Man whom we are describing even went so far as to pick out the kind of Chickens he was going to raise—Plymouth Rocks. He figured how many Eggs he could get per Hen, and sometimes, when the Pencil was working well, he estimated that he could make the Place self-supporting.

In the mean time he was humping himself and eating Pepsin Tablets and taking a little something every Night to make him Sleep.

The Business had developed so that he had fourteen Push-Buttons in front of him, and kept two Stenographers busy, and was jumping from the Long-Distance Phone to the Private Office most of the Time, and chewing up 50-cent Cigars, and in other Ways giving a correct Imitation of a Man who has a large and ambitious Family on Hand.

He began to look Wild out of the Eyes and had a severe Case of the Jumps, but he had to postpone that Rest for a little While, because no one else understood all the Details of the Business.

When the Doctor hinted about Nervous Prostration he said that he was trying to get the whole Organization down to a System, so that some one else could step in and run it, after which he expected to take a Place in the Country and raise Chickens. He told the Chicken Story so often he began to believe it himself.

WOULD BE ALL RIGHT IN A DAY OR SO.

In order to systematize the Large Business so that he could turn it over to some one else and then have his Vacation, he began to put in 16 hours a Day, and landed in the large Corner Room, with a Trained Nurse putting Ice on his Head and telling him he would be all right in a Day or so.

He had a ticker put in at one side of the Bed, and kept a Stenographer up hand up to the Afternoon that he departed this life.

It is said that when he went to his Reward he was met by a Celestial Attendant, who proved to be the Recording Angel.

"If you're the Recording Angel, get out your Book," said the Business Man. "I want you to take a few Letters for me."

Five Years Each for Two Men.

London, Nov. 11.—Five years in Kingston Penitentiary was the sentence meted out to William Bavin and Thomas Cameron by Judge Macbeth Saturday morning. The charge against the two young men was that of having perpetrated an unmentionable crime.

Floods in Italy.

Rome, Nov. 11.—Storms accompanied by torrential rains have again caused floods in several parts of Italy, and a number of vessels have been wrecked in the Mediterranean and Adriatic seas.

Dreyfus Pensioned.

Paris, Nov. 11.—An announcement of the pensioning of Major Alfred Dreyfus was officially gazetted Saturday, as follows:

"Dreyfus, Alfred, chief of squadron (major), 30 years 10 months and 24 days' service; pension from Aug. 25, 1907, 2,350 francs ($470) a year."

Dreyfus having retired before completing two years service as major received only the pension of a captain.

THE BEST OF PROOF

That Hyomei Will Cure All Forms Of Catarrhal Diseases

Testimonials could be printed by the thousands, many of them from Peterborough and nearby towns, that Hyomei is an absolute cure for all catarrhal troubles, but the best proof of its unusual curative powers is the guarantee that Wm. Madill gives with every outfit that he sells, "Money back if Hyomei does not do all that is claimed for it."

Hyomei is not a secret remedy. Its formula is given freely to physicians who want to know what they use when the prescribe Hyomei. It is guaranteed under the Pure Food and Drug Law, by serial No. 1418.

By breathing Hyomei, the healing medication goes directly to every nook and corner of the air passages where the catarrhal germs may lurk, and disinfects and heals. To be convinced of this you have only to give it a trial, remembering that if it does not cure, Wm. Madill will refund your money.

The complete Hyomei outfit costs but $1.00, and in most cases is sufficient to cure the disease, making it not only a scientific treatment, but one that is highly economical. Get an outfit to-day from Wm. Madill if you have any catarrh.

London's "Workshys."

Willesden guardians are entertaining at their workhouse nine of the most inveterate "workshys" in London.

These able-bodied citizens, whose ages range from 31 to 51, have cost the ratepayers of Willesden for the support of themselves and their families during the last three years thousands of pounds.

"The fact is that a lazy man with a wife and family finds life much easier and pleasanter in a workhouse than outside. If he wants a holiday he discharges himself and returns as soon as the hospitality of his friends is exhausted.

Here is the record of one of these "workshys": A — is a fine, tall man, 45 years old, and a skilled carpenter. He has a family of eight, most of whom have been born in the workhouse and brought up by the guardians. The two elder children are at work, one as a domestic servant. The fact that the guardians sent the girl to Wales to be out of the reach of her good-for-nothing father is considered a great hardship by A.

Since May, 1905, A and his family have cost the guardians nearly $2,000.

With variations, this is the story of the rest of Willesden's nine worst workshys, who are all to the eye good, lusty men. They follow the trades of a blacksmith, an omnibus-conductor, a furniture packer, a bricklayer and a plasterer. Six of the nine have wives in the house. And between them they have 34 children.

YOU CAN EASILY OPERATE THIS TYPEWRITER YOURSELF

Don't worry you correspondent.

Don't write him anything by hand that takes him time to make out—that may leave him in doubt, that he can't easily read.

And don't fill out legal papers or card memos—or make out accounts or hotel menus in your own hand writing.

It looks bad, reflects on your standing, makes people think you can't afford a stenographer, and is sometimes ambiguous.

You can write on your letters—make out an abstract—fill in an insurance policy—enter your card memos—make out your accounts, or hotel menus—or do any kind of writing you need, on any kind, size or thickness or paper, and space any way you want on

The OLIVER Typewriter

The Standard Visible Writer

You can write any of these things yourself if you do not happen to have a stenographer.

For you can easily learn with a little practice to write just as rapidly, and as perfectly as an expert operator on the Oliver. Because the Oliver is the simplified typewriter. And you can see every word you write. About 20% more rapidly than any other typewriter, because it has about 20% less wearing points than most other typewriters.

20% easier to write with than these other complicated, intricate machines that require "learning"—technical knowledge—long practice and special skill to operate.

Then machines which cannot be adjusted to any special space—with which it is impossible to write abstracts, insurance policies, or odd size documents except you buy expensive special attachments requiring experts to operate.

You can adjust the Oliver to any reasonable space—you can write on any reasonable size and thickness of paper, right out to the very edge, without the aid of any expensive attachment or special skill, and your work will be neat appearing, legible and clean.

For the Oliver is the typewriter for the doctor, the lawyer, the insurance agent, the merchant, the hotel proprietor—or any man that does his own writing.

Dear Sir.—I have much pleasure in acknowledging the receipt of the cheque for $1,244, being the amount paid me on the maturity of my endowment policy, 35,390, in your Company, which matured on the 1st inst.

I find I have received almost 4 per cent. compound interest on every dollar paid in to the Company, and in addition have had free insurance for the past fifteen years.

Such a result speaks volumes for the management of your Company, and far exceeds my expectations, and I would be ungrateful indeed were I not to acknowledge it.

I was also offered a paid-up policy of $3,078, or an annuity for life of $111.86, both of which I consider excellent.

I thank you very much indeed and wish your Company the continued success and confidence it so richly deserves.

Yours very truly,

OWEN SOUND WAS THIRSTY.

Liquor Detectives Bring Prominent Citizens and Hotelmen to Court.

Owen Sound, Nov. 12.—Owen Sound is in the midst of a liquor sensation in which hotelkeepers, bar lessees and prominent citizens are indiscriminately mixed. The case comes off in the Police Court this morning. Government Detectives Holland and Heyworth visited the town and the result follows. Against the Paterson House, three complaints; against the Duncan House, three complaints; against T. C. Hatton, druggist, one complaint; against Mrs. Ryan, a suburban hotel, one complaint, and one complaint each against the Pacific Hotel, Central Hotel, Comely House, City Hotel, Coulson House and the Albion.

The honor prize goes to the Royal Hotel, of which Joshua Warnlow is proprietor. He alone will not appear compulsorily in the Police Court today. Fraternal interest may cause him to peep in, however.

Complaints have been laid also against a number of more or less prominent citizens who are charged with purchasing liquor in unlicensed premises. Well-known merchants have got their blue papers. A leading Conservative lawyer is also included. Several of the complaints have been made against proprietors who have been previously convicted. There is no option of a fine for a second offence and somebody may have to go to jail.

SEVEN VESSELS WERE LOST.

Heavy Death Toll of Fishing Banks Last Season.

Halifax, Nov. 12.—The average catch of St. Pierre fishing vessels for the season, which averaged 1,780 quintals for each of the 71 schooners, shows a marked increase over previous year and has restored business activity in that section of the French colony. Out of the vessels sailing out of St. Pierre, seven of them were lost, in which 123 souls were victims, the majority of whom left large families.

Largest ship owners, and, therefore, the takers of largest catch, were Morne Francaise Co., who had twenty vessels, whose total catch amounted to 30,963 quintals. Five of their vessels were lost with all on board.

The Madeline, with 20 men, was never heard of since leaving the French colony on her first trip.

The total catch of the French fleet is 120,000 quintals of fish, worth nearly $800,000.

SHE PASSED AS A MAN.

Colorado Woman Married and Lived With "Wife" 30 Years.

Trinidad, Colo., Nov. 12.—Miss Catherine Vosbaugh, who for nearly 60 years passed as a man, died at a hospital yesterday.

Miss Vosbaugh was born in France 83 years ago. When a young woman she found it difficult to make her way on account of her sex. Adopting men's clothes she obtained employment as a bookkeeper in Joplin, Mo. This position she held for nine years, and then accepted a position in a St. Joseph, Mo., bank.

While in St. Joseph she married a woman with whom she lived for 30 years, as "Charles" Vosbaugh. The two women as man and wife came to Trinidad two years ago. After the death of the "wife," Miss Vosbaugh worked in various capacities until she became so feeble that last year she was taken to a hospital. It was then that her sex was discovered.

BOND WOULD NOT ATTEND.

Stayed Away From Governor's Dinner on King's Birthday.

St. John's, Nfld., Nov. 12.—Premier Bond was absent from the governor's King's birthday levee and dinner, leaving the city by the morning train for his country seat. The governor at the dinner eulogized the former Premier, Sir William Whiteway, the president of the council. Sir Edward Shea, and the leader of the opposition, Capt. Charles Dawe. The latter was absent through severe illness. He also emphasized the loyalty of the Newfoundland fishermen.

Bond's absence is regarded as discourteous to the King's representative.

Mother Died From Emotion.

Iqueique, Chili, Nov. 12.—Two lives were lost in the fire that visited this port Sunday and destroyed a large section of the poorer residential quarter. They were two little girls, and when the bodies were discovered by the distracted mother the unfortunate woman expired from the stress of her emotions.

A total of 3,000 people are homeless as a result of the conflagration. They are being cared for by the authorities and the charitably-inclined citizens.

Montreal Live Stock.

MONTREAL, Nov. 11.—(Special.)—At the Montreal Stock Yards' West End Market the receipts of live stock for the week ending Nov. 9 were 4088 cattle, 3020 sheep and lambs, 2356 hogs and 438 calves. The offerings for local consumption this morning were 1350 cattle, 800 sheep and lambs, 800 hogs and 200 calves. A firmer feeling prevailed in the market for cattle, owing to the fact that supplies were 250 head smaller than a week ago, but, as there was little demand from outside sources to-day, they were ample to fill all requirements and prices show no change. The weather conditions were anything but favorable; but, notwithstanding this fact, the attendance of local buyers was fairly large, and the demand was good, consequently an active trade was done and a good clearance of all the stocks was made. Cable advices from Liverpool on Saturday reported trade slow but firmer at unchanged prices. Choice cattle here continue to be scarce, and were quoted at 4¾c, while sales of good stock were made freely at 4¼c to 4½c; fair at 3¾c to 4c; common at 2¾c to 3c, and inferior at 1¾c to 2c per lb. There was no further change in the market for sheep this week, prices being steady, owing to smaller offerings and a continued demand for export account, and sales were made at 4¼c per lb. The demand for butchers' stock was somewhat limited, and trade in this line was quiet, at 3¼c to 3½c, while culls are still slow of sale at 2c per lb. A better feeling prevailed in the market for lambs on account of decreased receipts and an improved demand for local consumption; in consequence a fairly active trade was done at 5¾c to 6c per lb. The demand for calves continues good, and sales of choice stock were made at $12 to $15; good at $8 to $10; fair at $5 to $7, and common at $3 to $4 each. Altho receipts of hogs have fallen off considerably during the past week, and the offerings this morning were small, yet the feeling in the market was weaker, and prices since this day week have scored another decline of 25c per 100 lbs., which has, no doubt, been due to the weaker foreign advices on Canadian bacon and the fact that prices were reduced 2s to 4s per cwt. during the past week. The demand for hogs here was fair, and sales of selected lots were made at $6 to $6.25 per 100 lbs., weighed off cars.

New York Live Stock.

NEW YORK, Nov. 11.—Beeves—Receipts, 2807; steers slow and 10c to 20c lower; bulls firm to 25c higher; thin cows 10c to 20c higher; medium unchanged, fat cows about steady; steers, $3.40 to $6.20; oxen, $5; bulls, $2.75 to $4; cows, $1.25 to $4.

Calves—Receipts, 1254; veals steady and choice stock firm; western and grassers slow and unchanged; veals, $5 to $8.50; tops, $9.75; culls, $4 to $4.50; grassers, $3 to $5.25; westerns, $4.50 to $5; yearlings, $3 to $3.75.

Sheep and Lambs—Receipts, 14,300; sheep steady; lambs firm to 15c higher; some sales possibly 25c higher; sheep, $2.50 to $5.50; culls, $2 to $3; lambs, $6.12½ to $7.40; one car, $7.50; culls, $4.50 to $5; Canada lambs, $7.40.

Hogs—Receipts, 13,113; market a trifle firmer at $6.40 to $6.75; few outside buyers, $6.

DIED OF EXHAUSTION.

Tried to Live on Peanuts as Advised by Scientists.

Fremont, Neb., Nov. 12.—Because scientists have reported that peanuts contained all the elements necessary to sustain life, Archie Venuto, a Fremont man, attempted to live by eating nothing but peanuts, with the result that he died of exhaustion yesterday after a week's goober diet. At the end of four days, Venuto became insane and was placed in a hospital. He had absolutely refused to eat anything but peanuts thereafter and drink nothing but water.

Londesboro Station Burned.

Clinton, Nov. 12.—Early yesterday morning the G. T. R. depot and freight shed at Londesboro, seven miles from this place, was totally destroyed by fire. The agent, Percy Carlisle, acted as cashier for Messrs. Steep, Cantelon and Elliott, three apple buyers, and these men will lose heavily as the money vouchers and receipts were all destroyed. Mr. Steep lost about one carload of apples, and Elliott will lose two or more, which were stored in the freight shed.

The cause of the fire is unknown.

Born After Mother's Death.

Webster, Mass., Nov. 12.—An operation performed on Mrs. Adam Massik 10 minutes after she was dead brought into existence a healthy baby boy, who, the physician, Dr. J. O. Demeroux, predicts, will live.

The child is in all respects normal. The fact that he is alive is regarded by the physician as remarkable. Mrs. Massik, who was 30 years of age, and whose husband is a mill employe, was ill three days with congestion of the lungs. She died at nine o'clock. Dr. Demeroux said yesterday: "In the last twenty years I have seen three other cases like this, but the children, while alive at birth, never lived more than ten minutes afterward. This child gives excellent promise of living."

New Insurance Act.

Ottawa, Nov. 12.—A new insurance act, based on the recommendations of the Royal Insurance Commission, will be introduced by Hon. W. S. Fielding, Minister of Finance, at the approaching session of Parliament.

The probabilities are that the bill drafted by the commission will be introduced by the Minister and referred to a special committee for consideration and amendment.

Capelli Goes to Kingston.

Toronto, Nov. 12.—Francesco Capelli, the Italian murderer from Parry Sound, who finally escaped the gallows by commutation of his sentence to life imprisonment, was lodged in the cells at the Court street station last night while on his way to Kingston Penitentiary in charge of Deputy Sheriff J. Armstrong and a constable. The little man wore a sunny smile.

Four More Chinamen Caught.

Brockville, Nov. 12.—There seems to be a regular wholesale attempt being made to smuggle Chinamen from Brockville and this vicinity into the United States. Last Thursday morning six were caught by United States officers shortly after making a landing west of Ogdensburg and four more were caught in the same spot before daylight yesterday morning.

Life Sentence For Murder.

THE AWFUL FATE OF A MINER

Doomed to Die in an Inaccessible Chamber.

MEANS SLOW STARVATION

Alive But In Darkness, Michael McCabe Faces Terrible Death—Blast Blew Away Mine Pillars — Imprisoned Beyond Reach of Help —Will Take a Year to Reach the Spot Where He Is.

Mahony City, Pa., Nov. 12.—Alive and unhurt, but in darkness that will never be lifted, Michael McCabe, a miner, is awaiting certain death by starvation, 800 feet below the surface of the earth in the Draper colliery, near here.

While McCabe was at work Sunday he fired a blast that blew away one of the mine pillars. He fled in the wrong direction and got into a blind shaft. A fellow workman managed to get out of that wing of the colliery before the roof caved in.

The mine breach extends to the surface, where it yawns 60 feet wide, right in front of McCabe's home, where his wife and six children vainly hope for his rescue.

Mine officials say it may be a year before it will be possible to reach the place where the man is shut up.

Saw Burning Vessel.

Thessalon, Nov. 12.—Word has been received here that on Thursday night late a steamer was seen burning some miles west of Blind River. It seems to have been first reported by John Dyke, who lives near the mouth of the Mississauga River. Word has since reached here that it was also seen by several people at Blind River. The steamer Midland was due here the same night, and grave fears were entertained that the Midland had met disaster, but happily the Midland has turned up all right. The impression is now that the burned vessel was a barge.

Ottawa, Nov. 12.—The Presbyterian and Methodist Ministerial Associations of the city yesterday placed themselves on record as disapproving the methods employed at the Streets and Paris bazaar last week.

TRIED TO KILL LITTLE GIRL

Sam Tota Asks Her to Marry Him Then Shoots.

TRAGEDY AT VANCOUVER

Miss Lottie Dodds Has Close Call—Rejected Lover Attacked Her With Revolver and Razor—Tried Two Shots, Then Kills Himself—The Girl's Screams Brought Assistance Just in Nick of Time.

Vancouver, B. C., Nov. 12.—"Are you going to marry me?" was the question that preceded the tragedy here Sunday night, which resulted in the self-murder of Sam Tota, an American, aged 25, while Lottie Dodds, aged 22, the girl he loved, lies at death's door in the hospital.

Tota was a cigar-store assistant, carrying on his occupation between this city and Vancouver. He arrived Sunday, and, armed with a revolver and razor, lay in wait for Miss Dodds, as she was going to church from St. Joseph's Hospital, where she was employed as a nurse. As she passed he sprang from his hiding place and confronted her with the fatal question. She attempted to hurry past, when he fired two shots. These proving ineffective, he pulled out the razor and commenced slashing the girl. Her screams brought assistance, when Tota turned the razor on himself and inflicted injuries, from which he died at once.

The girl was carried to the hospital, where it was found that only the fur around her throat had saved her from instant death, such was the maniacal fury of her aggressor. She now lies in the hospital in a precarious condition.

The attentions of the dead man were directed towards the girl for over two years. When here he lodged in the house where she lived.

FATAL STREET FIGHT.

St. Catharines' Man Under Arrest Awaiting Verdict of Jury.

St. Catharines, Nov. 12.—A street fight which occurred in the vicinity of the Imperial Hotel, Queenston street, on Saturday night, Sept. 21, resulted fatally yesterday, and while James Archibald Pattison lies dead at his home, George Vance occupies a cell at police headquarters, awaiting the verdict of the coroner's jury, which will determine the cause of Pattison's death to-day.

There is a mystery surrounding the affair. Nothing followed the fight for almost two weeks, when Vance and Longley pleaded guilty and were fined for fighting on the street. That was the last heard of the affair until Sunday, when Dr. Mulock was summoned to attend Pattison. It is understood that death resulted from concussion of the brain, but Dr. Mulock, yesterday afternoon refused to give out any particulars. He said that a post-mortem would be held, and that, in view of the fact that an inquest had been ordered, would say nothing for publication.

Upon information received High Constable R. E. Boyle and Sergt. McCarthy visited the home of Mrs. Hare on the Thorold road at noon and arrested Vance. No charge has been laid against him as yet. It is said Pattison and an Indian also took part in the fight and that the former was hit on the head by a stone thrown by Vance, and that death resulted from the effects of the injury. When the facts were reported to Coroner Merritt he gave orders for an inquest to be held this morning.

Alvinston, Nov. 12.—James Medale, while working on the farm of Thomas McKeown, Euphemia, was assisting on loading cornstalks, being on top of a high load, when he slipped, alighting on his back and injuring his spine. He is completely paralyzed.

BRITAINS KING MEETS THE KAISER

Emperor William Greeted by His Majesty at Windsor.

WARSHIPS BOOMED WELCOME

Royal Visitors Arrived In Dense Fog —For Three Hours Royal Yacht Was Enveloped In Mist—Prince Went Out In Torpedo Boat— Get Enthusiastic Reception From the English People.

Portsmouth, Eng., Nov. 12.—The German Imperial party reached Windsor at five o'clock and were warmly greeted by King Edward and Queen Alexandra. The two monarchs and their wives cordially embraced and then went to Windsor Castle.

The visitors had left the fog behind them, and as they entered the ancient town the weather was bright and everything tended to extend a joyful greeting to the travelers. The railroad station was profusely decorated and the half-mile route to the castle was bright with bunting of many colors, while above the castle entrance flew an immense German Imperial flag.

The whole town turned out in honor of the occasion and gave Their German Majesties a hearty reception. The procession from the station to the castle was headed by a detachment of the Household Cavalry, after which came a carriage containing Emperor William, King Edward, the Prince of Wales and the Duke of Connaught. In the second carriage were the Empress, Queen Alexandra, the Princess of Wales and Princess Victoria. The suites followed in other carriages and another detachment of Household Cavalry brought up the rear.

The route to the castle was lined by troops.

Saluted the Emperor.

Portsmouth, Nov. 12.—The British Channel fleet, under the command of Admiral Lord Charles Beresford, and numbering nearly 50 warships, dressed from stem to stern, saluted the German Emperor as the Hohenzollern passed up the narrow waters of Spithead and the land batteries joined in the welcome as the yacht entered the harbor.

Owing to the delay caused by the fog, the hour of the arrival of the Hohenzollern at the jetty was miscalculated, the announcement being made that she would not get there until 2.45 p. m., but she steamed into the harbor an hour earlier than expected with the result that all the officials and guards of honor, who had been patiently waiting for the Hohenzollern's arrival throughout the morning had gone to lunch when she finally appeared through the fog.

The Emperor apparently enjoyed the surprise he had sprung on the British officials and the consequent scramble to get back to the jetty in time to take part in the welcome of the Imperial visitors.

After inspecting the guards of honor the German Emperor and Empress and their suites, accompanied by the Prince of Wales and his suite, left Portsmouth by train for Windsor at 2.30 p. m. amidst the fire of a royal salute from the assembled warships and the garrison batteries.

The injured man was conveyed to camp, the wound bleeding freely. It is thought that he will recover.

Disasters Ahead.

Rome, Nov. 12.—Signor Alfani, the celebrated seismologist and director of the Florence Observatory, fears that the sunspots, which he calculates to be twelve times the size of the earth, and which will reach the solar meridian in the middle of November, are liable to lead to violent magnetic disturbances, causing storms, floods, volcanic eruptions and earthquakes. Signor Alfani's former predictions have been invariably realized.

Ottawa, Nov. 12.—The revenue of the Dominion for October was nearly eight millions and a quarter; for the seven months ending Oct. 31, it was fifty-eight and a quarter millions. Aeroplane Flew Back.

TAXES NOT PAID

Only Three More Days Before The Extra 5 Per Cent. Will be Added To The Tax Bills

$20,000 YET TO BE PAID

The public is reminded that there are only three more days in which to pay taxes, before the 5 per cent, extra is added on their tax bills. On Saturday Collector Green begins to add the extra 5 per cent., so that the ratepayers may govern themselves accordingly. Mr. Green states that there is not nearly as much money in the treasury as there should be at this time, but that during the last couple of days over $5000 has been collected.

There is yet possibly between $18,000 and $20,000 to be collected in three days, in order that the extra five per cent. may be escaped.

NORTH DUMMER YOUTH RUN OVER BY A HEAVY WAGGON; EMERGES WITH A BROKEN LEG

Was Hitching Up The Horses—Waggon Tongue Slipped Through The Neck-yoke

IS IN SERIOUS CONDITION

Examiner Special.

Warsaw, Nov. 12.—Runaway accidents in Dummer appear to have become periodical. On Sunday Mrs. Coleman and Mr. and Mrs. David Miller were seriously injured in an upset caused by the breaking of the bit of a horse's bridle and yesterday a young resident of North Dummer emerged from an accident with a broken leg and with almost the loss of his life.

The youth who suffered was Roland Dunford, the youthful son of the late Lazarus Dunford, of North Dummer. He was hitching up the horses to the wagon when the neck-yoke slipped along the tongue allowing the vehicle to strike the horses' heels. This frightened them and they started off at a gallop. Being in front of the wheels young Dunford was knocked down and run over by the heavy wagon with the result that his leg was broken. His injury is very painful and he will be laid up for some time.

Kidney Disease For Twenty Years

Miss Chawell Reid, Orrville, Muskoka, writes, "For twenty years I was troubled with kidney disease, and have recently been completely cured by using three boxes of Dr. Chase's Kidney Liver Pills. I had tried many remedies but nothing seemed to do me very much good until I used this splendid family remedy."

EAST CITY HUNTER LOST IN THE FOREST FOR OVER TWENTY HOURS; HAD HIS EYE PIERCED BY A DEAD LIMB

Andrew Hall Returns From Hunting Expedition In Serious Condition ---He Lost His Way

MAY LOSE SIGHT OF AN EYE

Found by a Rescuing Party In a Bog Hole at 2 O'Clock in The Morning

Lost in the northern woods in search of the antlered monarch last week, Andrew Hall of Mark street, East City, spent over twenty hours apart from all human beings, and barely escaped with his life. When discovered about two o'clock in the morning of Saturday it was found that a piece of twig had pierced his left eye, and which may yet be the cause of the loss of its sight.

Mr. Hall left last week for a hunt in the north. He was with no club, and made his headquarters in a farm house, from which he left on Friday morning on a jaunt through the woods by himself in search of the haunts of the deer. Being unacquainted with the situation and landmarks of the district, he soon lost his bearings in the forest, and became hopelessly lost. Travelling all day long, he went farther and farther away from the farm house, and twilight found him still in the woods.

In a Bog Hole

With the falling of the shades of night, the lost man began to despair of getting back to the farm house. Making his way towards his headquarters, as he thought, he walked into a bog-hole, in which he became wet and cold. He carried matches, but these were rendered useless by the dampness, so that he was unable to light a fire to obtain warmth or to attract attention of rescuers.

At the farm house during the day a threshing bee was in progress, and when the men discovered that the lone hunter would not return, they instituted a search.

Found Half Dead

When found by the rescuing party, Mr. Hall's eye was pierced with the branch of a dead tree, which he had run against in the darkness, so that he may lose the sight of it. He was located in a marsh at two o'clock in the morning, almost exhausted from his long day's tramp. He was carried back to the farm house and brought to his home in Peterborough the following day, where he now lies ill from his awful experience. His eye was badly injured, and it is probable he will not regain the sight of it.

Makes a Big Gain in a Week

BRUCE LEES

The Examiner newspaper competition for newsboys is proving a popular one among the among the boys. Last week the winner of the special $2 Examiner prize was Bruce Lees, the thirteen year old son of Mr. Richard Lees, County Public School Inspector. He is an energetic youth and makes good money selling newspapers. In the last week he secured 38 new subscribers for the Examiner, which indicates his industrious character. He finds the Examiner easy to sell, and stands a fair chance for the big prize at the end of the year. The boys should remember that all begin the week on an equal footing, and all have an equal opportunity of getting the two dollar special prize on Saturday night.

LYNX STOLE HENS

Shot by Brother Of Mr. Wm. Watt Of Perry Street, Near His Residence At Coe Hill

MEASURES 8 FT. IN LENGTH

Mr. Wm. Watt of Perry street, city, has received word from his brother, who lives near Coe Hill, of the killing of an immense lynx at his house a few days ago. The animal made it a custom to steal from Mr. Watt's chicken coop at regular intervals, and several of the flock had vanished before the big cat was brought to earth.

One evening the proprietor of the hennery watched for the coming of the marauder and caught him in the act of stealing a chicken.

Mr. Watt soon dispatched the animal by a well-aimed shot, and stopped its further encroachments on the hen coop.

The lynx, when measured, was found to be eight feet in length from the tip of th tail to the nose, and is reported to be the largest ever captured in that district. The animal is creating widespread interest as well as fear. The residents are afraid to appear outside their houses after dark lest another of the family of ferocious cats should appear on the scene.

HUNTERS ARE HAVING POOR LUCK

Report From North Says The Weather Has Been Bad

According to reports from the north country the hunters from this city are not meeting with the greatest success in their pursuit of the deer. The Ketcheum party has succeeded in securing sixteen, but other clubs have not been so lucky. The bad weather is given as a reason for the poor sport, and a letter from the north says that the gullies are full of water from the three days' rain of last week, and that the weather conditions have not been favourable. The Gold Lake party will be back to-morrow, and by the end of the week all the hunters will be home.

MARKET CLERK MEETS WITH SUCCESS

Mr. M. A. McIlmoyle Goes Back Hunting For Three Days—Shoots Two Bucks

Mr. W. A. McIlmoyle, the market clerk, went back to Buckhorn on Saturday after his market duties were through for a little hunt with his cousin, Steve Nicholls, the famous hunter and paddler. The market clerk has had extremely good luck this year, having shot two bucks during his short stay at Buckhorn. Mr. McIlmoyle is very much impressed with his trip and is satisfied that he is a lucky hunter. Steve Nicholls has a party back of Buckhorn and they were having good luck. The fishing back there, said Mr. McIlmoyle, is splendid, and everybody seems to be satisfied with the hunting.

EVANGELISTIC WEEK AT MARK STREET

Rev. Mr. Coon Begins a Week of Special Meetings

A week of evangelistic meetings was commenced last night at Mark street Methodist church. The pastor, Rev. H. C. Coon, gave an address on "The Christ We Need." There was a fairly large attendance and a hearty song service was held. This evening Rev. E. A. Pearson will give an address and another good attendance is expected.

CLOSING MEETINGS ARE TO BE HELD

Cheese Factories to be Wound Up For The Season—Speakers Invited

The patrons and owners of the cheese factories throughout this district are beginning to look forward to the closing of them for the winter, and in every case some function or other will be held as a celebration. The past season has been a successful one and the cow has been a veritable mint to the farmer. It is believed that the closings will begin about the 25th of this month, and some good speakers on the dairy question will be induced to attend some of the meetings.

WEDDING BELLS.

JOHN-McCALLUM

Rivington, Que., Nov. 12.—(Special) —A very pretty but quiet wedding was celebrated in the village this afternoon at 4.30 o'clock, when Miss Edith McCallum, late superintendent of the Memorial Hospital, Montreal, and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dougall McCallum, was united in marriage to Mr. Joseph John, proprietor of John's tea, Peterborough, and son of Mr. John John of Manchester, Eng. The ceremony was performed in the presence of the friends of the interested parties by Rev. A. J. Brown of Dutton, Ont., a brother-in-law of the bride. The bride was attended by two bridesmaids, Miss H. Lorne McCallum, her sister, and Miss Jessie McCallum, a cousin. The groomsman was Mr. Neil McCallum, brother of the bride. After the ceremony the usual wedding dinner was partaken of. The presents were both handsome and numerous, showing the esteem in which the bride is held by her many friends in Rivington and vicinity. Mr. and Mrs. John will spend their honeymoon at Niagara Falls, after which they will return to Peterborough, where they will reside.

THE STOCK MARKETS WERE IN A VERY UNSETTLED CONDITION; ON ACCOUNT OF ADVERSE RUMOURS

Amn Smelting and Refining Breaks Over Six Points---Reasons For The Drop

THE MARKET SAGGED OFF

Examiner Special.

New York, Nov. 12.—A break of over six points in American Smelting and Refining unsettled things in the Stock Market to-day. The stock broke on reports that the directors would meet to-day and that the dividend would be reduced. This was denied by the directors later, but the stock did not rally. The metal issues generally were weak and lower in sympathy with smelting and had the effect of pulling the railroad stocks back, after they had made a brave start toward improvement under the lead of Union Pac. and Reading. This improvement was all lost later in the day and prices went under those of last night.

London was very quiet to-day but bought a few hundred shares on balance here. The passing of the dividend on Parrot Copper adversely affected the copper stocks.

The general market continued to sag off in the trading and the close was heavy.

NEW PRESIDENT OF THE STRATHCONAS CITY CHAMPIONS

Mr. C. G. Graham Who Will be at The Head of The Executive This Year

PETERBORO' CANOES MENTIONED

Yankee writers Couldn't Steal Our Canoes Though They Got Almost Everything Else

CLEAR CASE OF THEFT

The following extract from the Niagara Falls Review in reference to the selfish custom of Yankee writers and the Yankee press to publish misleading geographical reports regarding the location of Dawson and the Klondike, will be of interest. Incidentally, the famous Peterborough canoe has been mentioned, demonstrating its popularity in the far-off Yukon. The extract is as follows:

"In a recent issue of Toronto Saturday Night appears a letter from Mayor Woodsides of Ottawa, protesting against the studied [illegible] American magazines and writers to speak of Yukon as in Alaska. The last issue of The Youth's Companion shows that the complaint was founded on a substantial basis. On the front page is a story by Jack London, in which it is definitely stated that Yukon, Dawson and Klondike are all in Alaska. Jack London knows, and the editor of The Youth's Companion knows, that they give their readers erroneous information when they publish a story like this. Yet they do it. One little quotation from the story tells its own story of mixed geographical facts (!): 'After breakfast the boys got out the Peterborough from its winter cache. It was an admirable example of the boat-builder's skill, an imported article brought from the natural home of the canoe—Canada. It had been packed over the Chilcoot Pass, two years before, on a man's back, and had then carried the first mail in six months into the Klondike. Walt., who happened to be in Dawson at the time, bought it for three hundred dollars' worth of dust which he had mined on the "Mary May."—Niagara Falls Review.

Austria, Hungary.—The weather continues drouthy, this together with recent heavy frosts has made the outlook for wheat very unfavourable. Reports, however, state that further seeding will soon be possible.

Roumania.—The recent rains have improved the outlook, and as the weather is now mild seeding will soon be finished.

Bulgaria and Turkey.—The weather is too dry and seeding is being delayed.

Russia.—The weather is milder, and the recent rains although light were beneficial to seeding, supplies are light and markets are firm.

Australia.—Weather conditions show improvement and the outlook is less apprehensionable.

ARE ROBBED OF RINGS

Former East City Residents Lose Valuable Diamond Rings In Buffalo

STOLEN IN THE NIGHT

A theft occurred in Buffalo a few days ago of some valuable diamond rings, the losers being former Peterborough women, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Jno. Craig, Hunter street, East City. The burglars entered the residence at night and made away with a valuable diamond ring belonging to Mrs. Ray, and also one the property of her sister, Miss Craig.

The whole house was ransacked and many valuables stolen. Mr. and Mrs. Craig of East City have been informed of the theft. So far as can be learned, no information has been received regarding the lost rings, and it is probable that the robbers will not be apprehended.

CHANGES IN THE NUMBERING OF HOUSES IN THE WEST END BEING RAPIDLY CARRIED OUT

George Street is Made the Index For The Numbering of The Streets Running North And South---Others Start With 450 At Park Street

CONTRACTOR NOW AT WORK

The changes decided upon by the city council in the numbering of houses, are being carried out by the contractor, Mr. W. J. Koster, whose tender was accepted by the Legal Committee, and the work is rapidly going ahead. The streets west of Park street are being re-numbered this fall, and the other sections decided upon south of Lake street, will be attended too as soon as possible after the other is completed. Under the new system, the numbering of the houses should be a decided improvement over the old method, especially in the streets running west from Park street to the boundary. Formerly the numbering was done in a very unsystematic manner, a different way being employed on almost every street. On some the numbering commenced at Park street, starting in at one, and on others the numbers were a continuation of those on the streets east of street.

By the new way the numbers will start in at Park street with 450 on one side of the street and 451 on the other, so that there will be something systematic in the numbering. This will apply to all streets running west from Park street. In the case of the cross streets running north and south the numbers will correspond with the numbers of the houses which are parallel on George street. For instance, if the first house on Belmont avenue was parallel with 337 George street, it should be numbered 337 Belmont avenue. This is expected to make it easy for strangers to find their way about the city, as by locating a number on a George street they will be able to find the house of that number they are looking for, no matter how many streets west it may be. Thus George street will act as an index for the system.

Neat aluminum numbers are being placed on the houses. They are supplied by the Peterborough Hardware Company.

EXAMINER WANT ADS. ALWAYS BRING RESULTS

Examiner want ads. find things and do it quickly. Yesterday a gentleman advertised a strayed cocker spaniel. Before the whole of yesterday's edition of twenty-six hundred was distributed, the advertisement caught the eye of a lady, to whose residence the dog had strayed, with the result that the owner got his pet, and the Examiner lost the price of the two insertions of the advertisement, which the discovery rendered unnecessary. But no matter—other advertisements will speedily take its place. The public knows the merits of the Examiner's want ad. columns — a pleased customer makes two.

LICENSE DETECTIVE SPIES.

Hon. George P. Graham, while leader of the Liberal party, strongly condemned, on the platform and in his newspaper, the Whitney Government's practice of employing spies to tempt and trap liquor dealers to break the after hours and Sunday laws. The Mail and Empire while condemning Mr. Graham and the Recorder for condemning the spy system, itself condemns it in these words: "The sneak form of detecting is roughly condemned, and rightly so by the Opposition. * * * The sneak system of detecting is, of course, inexcusable and unfair. It is not encouraged or allowed, and it should not be." And not only the Mail and Empire condemns the practice, but Hon. Mr. Hanna, himself, the head of the license department, is ashamed of it. In a public address he asserted that the instructions to the detectives require them to employ no deception, and to induce no violation of the law for the purpose of founding prosecutions. As to reports to the effect that the instructions are violated Mr. Hanna says "he has offered in every such case that comes to his knowledge to dismiss the receiving officer, remit the fine and wipe off the bad mark against the hotelkeeper, if the story is substantiated on oath." Hon. Mr. Hanna is not quite disingenuous. He has only to consult the notes of sworn testimony offered at prosecutions, brought by his spies to find many a story "substantiated on oath." But the spy system will be justified probably because it gives a piece of the spoils to hangers-on of the Conservative party, who have "claims" but are not fit to be given decent employment.

WAGES AND COST OF LIVING

There has during the last few years been a marvellous advance in the cost of all sorts of commodities. Labour, provisions, clothing — all these things have risen in price.
What has been the effect of these advances on the average wage-earner? Is he richer or poorer as a result of the general upward movement which has taken place?
A partial answer to these questions is supplied in the July issue of the United States Bulletin of Labour. In this bulletin there are published returns of present wages, hours of labour, etc., together with comparisons, in over 4,000 of the leading industrial establishments of the United States; there are also details of the cost of food now as compared with cost in years past.
The statistics given show that the average weekly earnings in the four thousand odd establishments reported upon were 3.9 per cent. greater in 1906 than they were in 1905, while the retail cost of food purchased by the workers had increased by only 2.9 per cent. in the same time. Thus the increase in earning power exceeded the increase in cost of food by one per cent. Since there is no necessary deduction to off-set that part of the increased wage which represents the margin of income over and above living expense, it is obvious that the average worker in the United States was considerably better off last year than he was the year before, at least in so far as food prices govern the cost of living. Moreover, notwithstanding the increase in weekly wage, there was an average reduction of one-half per cent. in the hours spent in labour each week.
When the comparison is carried still further back, a greater improvement is made in the showing. The average weekly wage in these 4,000 representative establishments last year was 18 1-2 per cent. in excess of the average weekly earnings from 1890 to 1899. On the other hand, the retail price of food shows an increase in the interval of only 15.7 per cent. Thus the earning power increased in that ten-year period nearly three per cent. more than did the cost of food on which earnings are so largely spent.
Assuming that the upward movements in both food and labour in Canada have about paralleled those of the United States, and there is reason to believe they have, then what is said as to the position of wage-earners in the United States holds true to wage-earners in Canada also. It will be noticed, however, that the figures quoted from the United States Bulletin of Labour do not cover 1907, and it is probable that in the past year the cost of food has advanced in both countries rather more rapidly than wages have increased. Moreover, the item of rents in the two periods covered by the Labour Bulletin is not taken into account. Still, after allowance has been made for all this, it is probable an investigation along all lines, and carried up to the present moment, would prove the wage-earners of North America to be in a substantially better position than they were eleven years ago.—Toronto Star.

A NOBLE ENTERPRISE

In this age of altruistic enterprise the work of the Barnardo Homes commands attention and commendation. Few are aware of the extent and far-reaching effects of their work, though in our own community there are numerous examples of persons rescued from vice and its terrible consequences occupying respectable and useful positions in society, who would, but for the work of Dr. Barnardo's Homes, have gone down to the blackness of moral and physical ruin. From an address delivered by Lord Brassey recently at the annual meeting of the society, we learn that up to the 31st of October, 1906, no fewer than 62,000 children had been rescued through its agency, that last year the number of children in residence averaged something a little short of 8,000, that in the past year more than 1,400 boys and girls were sent to situations and employments at home or at sea, that up to the date of the latest statistics nearly 19,000 boys and girls had been emigrated by the Homes, that in 1906 close on 1,200 boys and girls had been sent out by the society chiefly to Canada, 98 per cent. of whom are reported as doing well. In addition to this, 300 boys are being trained to follow the sea, while the crippled blind, deaf and dumb inmates number 900. The income of the association for the year under review amounted to $956,000. Truly the Barnardo Home institution is a great beneficence.

MR. GRAHAM AND MR. LONGBOAT.

Mr. Hugh Graham, of the Montreal Star, shows a disposition to make good use of his money, in his offer to give Longboat, the long distance running champion, a cheque for two thousand dollars if, at the end of five years, the latter shows good conduct—"if he has resisted temptation, kept temperate, and ranged himself on the side of clean sport." Mr. Graham's action is very generous and commendable, and indicates a desire to purify sport, and a praiseworthy desire to keep a successful athlete in the right line, a form of encouragement especially needed in the case of a man whose training has not, perhaps, been equipped him for standing the always trying ordeal of success. But Mr. Graham's action, judged from a moral point of view, is open to question. It is doubtful that an inducement offered a man to be good, will have a permanently and solidly beneficial effect upon character. It does not represent a high ideal. The highest moral virtue consists in doing, or being, good, because it is right. Being good from principle, shows far higher character, than being good for revenue — for material reward. Yet, under the circumstances, Mr. Graham has, perhaps, done a wise thing. He very fully appreciates the temptations of all kinds that assail success, especially in the field of athletics, which is, unfortunately, not always occupied by the highest, and best, influences. It will be interesting to watch its effect upon Longboat. He will either drift into professionalism, or remain under tutelage and patronage, under conditions that will not tend to develop manhood and self-reliance. If he becomes professional, the monetary success he may meet will tend to weaken the restraining influence of great expectations from Mr. Graham's quarter. If he continues to follow amateur lines, these very expectations, while operating as an incentive to good habits and good behaviour, will not tend to develop habits of self reliance, and independence, essential features of strong manhood.

EDITORIAL NOTES

Canada's total trade for the past year amounts to the important figure of six hundred and forty million dollars, one hundred dollars per head of the population, a ratio that is not surpassed by any other country in the world.

The possibility of a bye-election in the city of Ottawa, says the Ottawa Free Press, makes timely the reminder that out of thirty-seven bye-elections held since the general elections of 1904, the Government has lost only one, London, and has gained several.

Residents upon Gilmour, Weller and other streets, that begin at Park street, are inquiring why the street numbers have been raised in the new scheme of re-numbering, every number having been raised by 448. The only explanation suggested, is creditable to the desire of the city council to be consistent. They have raised the assessment so high that it is quite in keeping to raise the street numbers to correspond.

SILENCE DOES NOT MEAN CONSENT

Rev. Dr. Shaw, principal of the Montreal Wesleyan College, makes the following reply to the statements made in the press by Rev. Dr. Workman:—
"In your issue of Thursday there is a long and violent attack upon me by Dr. Workman. The public will not conclude from my continued silence the past six months, under such frequent and provoking assaults, that I admit the statements thus made. It is a pity, and an anomaly that a man's orthodoxy has to be defended by himself and his friends continually maligning some one else.
"Dr. Workman is where he is today, but slightly, if at all, through any action of mine. It is by the deliberate judgment of our College Board, after thorough examination by a Committee of which I was not a member, and in the discussion of whose report I took very little part. I had nothing to do with the initiation of the inquiry, and after a motion was made for it, I gave, as principal, a brief privileged statement of fact, never desiring or intending that it should be made public except that I felt in honour bound to inform Dr. Workman afterwards of what I said.
"The committe on trial in the libel prosecution found that I had reason for believing the statements to the board made by me to be true, and that it was my duty to make them.
"I agreed to two conciliatory items suggested at Conference. These items in one way tarnish my honour. Some think they enhance it. They certainly have not had the slightest relation to what our board has since done. They could not have. As to a guarantee that the inquiry referred to should be dropped, such was never given by myself or any one else. It could not be, because neither I nor anyone else could assume to do such a thing. I did not object to the Conference asking for it if it wished, because the right of petition here is unlimited, but what occurred? The Committee and Conference dropped the proposal to interfere with the action of the Board, and so the inquiry went on. With what result? When the report of the committee was considered at length by the Governors, the motion was made in all good faith that the matter now drop. That motion had no showing whatever, but two motions remained, one for Dr. Workman's dismissal in November, and the other in May. All voted for one or the other, but the first prevailed. I am sorry to have to state these things, and I am sorry for Dr. Workman's position. But from my representative position in Church and State which I have unworthily occupied during the 44 years of my ministry, it is certain that any damage done to my influence, however, unjustly, will be a damage to our Church. I am not responsible for Dr. Workman's errors; I am not responsible for his being brought to task for them; I am not responsible for the course pursued by the Board of Governors. I am not responsible for the action of dismissal, except as one Governor out of twenty-nine, but I have tried through all provocations through which I have passed amid showers of reproachful terms now descending plentifully also upon the Board and its Committee; I have tried to be calm and forgiving and silent.
"WILLIAM J. SHAW."

Greatest European Authority on Skin Diseases, Says it's a Germ

The old idea that dandruff is scales of skin thrown off, through a feverish condition of the scalp, is exploded. Prof. Unna, Hamburg, Germany, European authority on skin diseases, says dandruff is a germ disease. The germ burrows under the scalp, throwing up little scales of cuticle, and sapping the vitality of the hair at the root. The only hair preparation that kills dandruff germs is Newbro's Herpicide. "Destroy the cause, and you remove the effect." Not only cures dandruff, but stops falling hair and permits a luxuriant growth. Delightful hair dressing. Sold by leading druggists. OBITUARY

JOSEPH ELMHIRST

The particulars of the death of Joseph Elmhirst, of Keene go to show that in the midst of life we are in death. On Thanksgiving Day, Thursday, Oct. 31st., he went to Lindsay to spend a few days with his son, Philip. Shortly after dinner, or while finishing his dinner on Sunday, he was seized with a heart spasm. A doctor was at once sent for and relief was given. In about two hours there was another seizure, and he passed from that into a third and died from its effects before the doctor who had been sent for, could get back again. The late Mr. Elmhirst was 59 years of age. He was a purchaser of cattle and was well known through the country. At Keene he performed the duties of County Constable. He was in religion a Presbyterian, and in politics a Conservative. His father, aged 87 years, still lives and resides in Otonabee. He is also survived by seven brothers, two sons and four daughters. The sons are Philip, of Lindsay, and Joseph, of Medford, Oregon. The daughters are Mrs. Robt. Dobbin and Mrs. George Fowler, of North Monaghan; Mrs. (Dr.) Lawrason, of Beamsville, and Mrs. Thomas Taylor, of Otonabee. The funeral was from the Grand Trunk station, Peterborough, on the arrival of the noon tram on Tuesday and interment took place in the Little Lake Cemetery.

Editor Post Card Column:
Dear Sir,—In the Examiner of yesterday I read with joy the account of "Hobo's" conversion and consequent manifestation of an inward work of grace by an outward performance of that which was pleasing to God. And to brand this act of his return of money stolen, as "Cowardice" is to my mind, rather harsh, to say the least. We would never accuse the jailor at Philippi of being a coward when, after he was converted, he set to work and washed the backs of Paul and Silas whom he had helped to beat the night before. "Hobo" conceals his identity, not because he is a coward, but no doubt from a desire to avoid publicity as the writer does by signing,
Yours truly,
"Hobo's Friend."

Kidney Disease on the Increase

Recent reports from the New York Board of Health show that kidney disease is greatly on the increase. THE SWEENEY PARTY HAVING GREAT SUCCESS

Word Was Received To-day From Messrs. Elliott and Storey Who Left Last Saturday To Join Party

Word was received here to-day from Mr. R. A. Elliott, and Mr. M. Storey, who left some days ago to join Rev. Mr. Teeney's party in Muskoka. The party took G.T.R. train to Scotia Junction, but, according to the letter they are now at Sequin Falls. Both of these gentlemen, especially Mr. Elliott, are good hunters, and have already made a valuable addition to the Sweeney party. They state that the party have had poor luck so far but but since their arrival have shot four bucks and expect to bag some more to-morrow. The weather up there has been ideal for hunting; everything is as comfortable as can be expected. The only thing the Peterborough hunters have to complain of is the short time they have for hunting.

Word Received Last Night That He Was Not Expected to Recover

JUDGE'S SCATHING CENSURE.

Says Oil Syndicate Was a Barefaced Swindle.

Toronto, Nov. 12.—The Divisional Court has decided in favor of the plaintiffs in the appeal of the defendants from the judgment of Judge Teetzel in the case of the Alexandra Oil & Development Co., Limited, Thomas J. Drain and Edward J. Butler, against John W. Cook and Henry J. Boerth, over certain oil leases in Essex County.
In giving judgment, Mr. Justice Riddell declares that the action arose out of a "barefaced swindle perpetrated by the defendants Cook and Boerth," who reside in Mariners Township, North Hastings.
"Their victims," says the judge, "were a number of persons in Ontario, among them several barristers—who seem to be the most credulous and 'easy' of men, in matters relating to their own pecuniary interest; however suspicious and exacting they may be in matters affecting their clients."
According to the facts, Cook became the owner of certain oil leases.
"He associated with himself Boerth, who is said to have a glib tongue," says the judge, "and the two laid siege to a number of friends of Cook's."
A syndicate was formed, the "friends" paying $1,000 each to take over the leases. The judge declares that the defendants were guilty of fraud in the sale.
"The friends were dazzled by the glowing prospects held before their eyes," the judge goes on. "They were defrauded and cheated by the defendants."
He refers to Cook as the "tort bearer." The wrong, says the judge, was in inducing the company to buy a property for $20,000 which really cost much less.
The court upholds the trial judge, contending that the defendants were promoters, and therefore liable to account.

MAY AFFECT HUNDREDS.

Judge Says British Columbia Divorces Do Not Count.

Vancouver, Nov. 12.—If a decision given yesterday by Judge Clement in the British Columbia Supreme Court is upheld by the Court of Appeal, all divorces given in British Columbia during the last 36 years will be declared illegal. The case was that of Henry Watt and his wife, who were married in Bellingham fifteen years ago. They have large property interests there and in Vancouver.
The judge himself questioned the divorce laws in operation here, which are the same as those which existed on the statute books of the old crown colonies of British Columbia before Confederation.
The court decided this law went out of business in 1871. Technically this nullifies the divorces of hundreds of people, and of other hundreds of marriages, and will naturally effect large property interests. With the possibility of faulty legislation the Provincial Government yesterday assumed all the costs of both sides in the case of Watt v. Watt. In the event of the decision of yesterday being upheld, legislation, likely both Federal and Provincial, will be passed to declare legal the divorces and marriages and try to establish fully all the present families.

$2000 For Longboat If He Resists Temptation

Montreal Star Offers to Pay His Expenses in Connection With The Olympian Games in England---Tom Promises To Keep The Name Of Canada Good

Immediately after the finish of the race in Montreal on Saturday the following letter was handed to Longboat:

Montreal, Nov 9, 1907.

Tom Longboat:

Dear Sir—The world admires your pluck. Canadians are proud of what you have done in the field of sport. With Canada's hopes of glory in the athletic field of the future you have responsibilities. Your own victories may gratify your personal ambition, but that should not be the end of it. Your country can be not a little served by a continued example of clean sport.

Most athletes of fame are exposed to extraordinary temptations at the hands of friends and pretended friends. Remember, too, there are always lots of people jealous of a winner. Enemies will ever be on the watch to trap you into doing something wrong. An athlete cannot do his best unless he is temperate and honest.

When you are tempted, think of Canada. You have been instrumental in bringing her fame. Don't be enticed, or she will lose it. Aim high, then you will do the best that is in you.

If, at the end of five years, you are still in the athletic field, and it can be truthfully said of you that you have resisted temptation, kept temperate, and ranged yourself always on the side of clean sport, I shall be most pleased to hand you a cheque for two thousand dollars.

If you should be selected to represent Canada at the Olympian Games in England next year, you may, if you choose, go at the expense of the Montreal Star.

Yours truly,
HUGH GRAHAM.

On reaching his room in the Windsor, Tom sent the following reply:—

Montreal, Nov. 9, 1907.

Dear Mr. Graham—You are very kind. I know how you feel; you want Canada's name kept good. I feel the same. I will do my best. Five years from to-day I will send you a little bill for two thousand dollars, and will buy a nice little wigwam for my best girl.

Yours gratefully,
THOMAS LONGBOAT.

The Strathconas Hold Annual Hockey Meeting

Mr. C. G. Graham is Elected President of The City League Winners —Enthusiastic Gathering Was Held Last Night

NEW OFFICERS ELECTED

The annual meeting of the Strathconas the champions of the City Hockey League was held last night in the Y.M.C.A. and was a most enthusiastic gathering indicating another prosperous season for the club this year. Manager Metheral occupied the chair and there were present a large number of enthusiasts and players. The prospects of the club are very bright and the Strathconas should be found knocking at the door all the way. The principal business transacted was the election of officers which resulted as follows:

Hon President—Mr. Jas Kendry.
President—C G Graham.
Vice-President—R M Glover,
Secretary—F D Craig,
Treasurer—W Regan.
Manager—W J Metheral.
Executive Committee—L Dobson, Clarence Wilson and C N Barber.

Messrs. Metheral and Craig were appointed delegates to represent the club at the annual meeting of the City Hockey League to-night.

The Strathconas have all of their last year men available with the exception of Harold White, the cover point, who is in Toronto, and Jack Seymour, who is now in Lindsay, and is not likely to be here this season.

The club has been fortunate in securing the services of Dick Baker the trainer of the Y. M. C. A. Harriers, to look after them, and he should have the team in good shape early in the season as his success in training long distance runners may be taken as a criterion.

The City League winners have lost the services of Walter Parnell, whose duties at the fire hall will keep him out of hockey this winter. He has been of the greatest assistance to the club for several years both in baseball and hockey and will be missed very much this season.

Women Suffer Agonies from Kidney Trouble

GIN PILLS CURE THEM

There is Mrs. Ripley, for instance. She suffered terribly with her back. It ached, ached, ached—all the time. Even in bed, it seemed as if she could not get easy. It finally became so bad that housework was impossible.

She certainly was a discouraged woman when she began to take GIN PILLS. And there isn't a happier, healthier woman in the Dominion than this same Mrs. Ripley to-day.

Willowdale Mast, May 9th, 1907.

I cannot refrain from writing you the benefits I have received from Gin Pills. Before I had taken Gin Pills I suffered dreadfully with my back, and had suffered for twenty years. I have tried almost everything but got no relief until I got "Gin Pills."

I have taken six boxes and now I have not the sign of a pain or an ache in my back. I am now 49 and feel as well as I ever did in my life. There is nothing can hold a place with Gin Pills for pains in the back to which women are subject. Yours truly,

(Mrs. Benjamin P. Ripley.

Mrs. Ripley had serious Kidney Trouble. And the sick kidneys were making her back ache—were giving her those splitting headaches—were sapping her strength—and dragging her down. GIN PILLS really saved her life. GIN PILLS cured her. She has been well ever since. GIN PILLS are a grand medicine for kidney ills.

Try them at our risk. Use the coupon in this paper when you write for a free sample and send you a box of GIN PILLS for yourself. Just to see what they will do for you. Address: The National Drug & Chemical Co. of Canada, Limited, Dept. D, Winnipeg, Man.

Or, if you prefer, go to your druggist and get a box. 50c. a box.

W. J. Metheral Re-elected Manager of The Strathconas Hockey Club

THE INTER-COLLEGIATE CHAMPIONS

Peterboro's Next Opponents Have Not Yet Been Decided Upon

Peterborough will likely play for the Dominion championship if the championship of the Intercollegiate Union is decided in time for the game to be played this season. At present there is every prospect of there being a tie among the college teams. McGill and Ottawa College play in Ottawa on Saturday and if the Ottawa Collegiates win they will carry off the honours. However, if McGill wins the two will be tied for the championship and Varsity, if they defeat Queen's again on Saturday, will will be on a level with the other two in which case there will be little chance of Peterborough meeting the winners as it will take several weeks to decide the issue.

MAKES A NEW CANADIAN RECORD

Ernie Wilson Established One in Defeating Tom Coley Saturday

Ernie Wilson, by defeating Tom Coley on Saturday night, not only gained the fame of beating the Canadian five-mile champion, but also the additional honour of establishing a new Canadian five-mile indoor record, the time 27.19 being the fastest ever made on an indoor track in Canada for that distance. Longboat, in an attempt to break the record last spring, and aided by five pacemakers, ran the five miles seven seconds slower than did Wilson on Saturday night. All the Toronto journals speak in terms of the highest praise of Wilson's race and grand work, and prophesy a great future for the local boy.

In the final game for the Preparatory School championship on Saturday St. Andrew's college defeated City College School. The star for the latter was Gordon Campbell, son of Mr. Peter Campbell of this city. He played quarter for the Port [illegible]

SPORTING NEWS AND VIEWS.....

It did not take the I.M.C.A. Harriers long to be revenged on the Irish Canadians, and Tom Coley, for the latter's defeat of Fred Simpson in the Hamilton Heralds race on Thanksgiving Day. Ernie Wilson, the Indian's team mate turned the trick by defeating Coley at his favourite distance on Saturday night.

Peterborough is nothing, if not fashionable in sporting circles, and as walking and running are in vogue just now, the athletes of the city are proving that they do not need to back up from anybody. The achievements of Simpson and Wilson, and of Dave Hartley, are sufficient proof of this fact, and Hartley will furnish another on Saturday week by beating Reynolds, in the twelve hour match in Toronto.

• • • •

Saturday's victory for Peterborough made the fifteenth championship upon which Bill Crowly, the manager, of the locals, has played, and they are getting to be no novelty to the well known local athlete, who has played on championship lacrosse, hockey and Rugby teams, and all of them in Peterborough. There may be other Canadian sportsmen who have made as good a record, but we have not heard of them yet.

• • • •

There is only one fault to be found in the playing of the Peterborough Rugby team, and although criticisms may look out of place after Saturday's splendid victory, yet it is well to remind the players that to win a hard fought Rugby game it is necessary to have fourteen men on the field all the time. There were too many penalties inflicted on the Peterboroughs Saturday, and had the Westmounts put up a harder fight the locals would have felt their absence much more severely than they did on Saturday. Fortunately, however, the visitors did not do so, and, therefore, the fact that a large number of Peterborough men decorated the fence did not have the disastrous effect upon the game that it might have done.

• • • •

Joe Hay of the O.R.F.U. is anxious to learn the meaning of the phrase, "Rah, Rah, Rah." If any local party can inform him they are asked to correspond with the sporting editor of the Toronto News, at once, and be rewarded.

• • • •

Ernie Wilson's victory over Tom Coley on Saturday night, should convince a few knockers around the city who think that he did not fairly win the Examiner road race, and that the Y.M.C.A. boy is as good, or a little better than the best of them. He receives a gold medal for his grand work.

• • • •

Dave Hartley goes to Toronto on Saturday week to meet Reynolds, of Port Hope, in a twelve hour race on Saturday, and, if form counts for anything, the local walker should should have no difficulty in proving his superiority over the lake shore pedestrian.

• • • •

The fame won by Dave Hartley in his recent walking feat is indicated by the fact that he has received a letter from the Acton Publishing Company of Toronto, asking for his photograph and a sketch of his athletic career for the purpose of publication in the Painter's and Decorator's Journal, which is published by that company. The intention is to show the painters of Canada a likeness of the man who has brought so much honour on their craft.

• • • •

Just because the Montreal Star has offered to give Tom Longboat, $2,000 at the end of five years, if he has lived a temperate, honest life during that period, some of the Canadian sporting journals say that Longboat by accepting the offer has professionalized himself, according to the conditions of the amateur declaration established by the C. A. A. U. The charge is a trifle one. There was no thought of paying Longboat for his services as runner when the offer was made. It was merely as Tom himself points out in his letter of acceptance, "to keep the name of Canada good." The proprietors of the Star know, as does everybody in Canada who follows the movements of the athletic world, that Longboat finds it difficult to resist temptation, and the generous offer of the Star is made in an effort to encourage and stimulate him in his efforts to remain temperate. To talk of professionalizing the Indian on that account is absurd.

• • • •

For the Hamilton Tigers not to win a senior championship is a novelty that will not be relished in Hamilton. However, the Mountaineers have good cause to console themselves with, as it was undoubtedly the loss of Simpson, followed by the death of Southam that destroyed their championship aspirations.

• • • •

Mr. A. W. MacPherson of Peterborough has been elected once more to the position of treasurer of the O.H.A. by acclamation, a tribute to the esteem in which he is held by the hockey public of Ontario, and to to the good work he has done in connection with the office which he has held for some years.

• • • •

Some of the junior hockey players of the city are discussing the advisability of forming a Junior City League this winter. If suitable arrangements could be made for the use of the rink the scheme would be a feasible one and would do much to benefit the game in Peterborough, as it is from the young players that future championship material must come.

"Quite startling is the news I hear,"
Said Jimmy Reynolds, of Port Hope,
"But I'll tell to no one what I fear
And talk to myself of what I hope

"A walker is coming from the west
If he maintains that five mile clip
He'll set me back as second best
And walk away with the championship.

"My hope is gone, my heart is sore,
My record is no wonder now;
He's beaten me two hours or more,
But I can't well imagine how.

"He's snatched away my hard-won fame,
And set the land in mighty stir;
Behold, Dave Hartley is his name,
And his home's the city of Peterburr.

"I'll let them see some other day
The full extent of my walking power,
My record then shall stand for aye—
Though Hartley's the hero of the hour."

THE WALKING MATCH POSTPONED

Hartley and Reynolds Will Not Meet Until a Week From Saturday

The match between Dave Hartley and Jimmy Reynolds has been postponed for a week, according to a letter received from Toronto yesterday. The reason is that it was found impossible to secure a place for the walk next Saturday. The intention had been to have the contest take place in the Armouries, but the management has found it impossible to secure the use of that track, so that it has been decided to hold the walk on a week from Saturday in the Mutual street rink, and the two parties have been notified to that effect.

Bad Palpitation of The Heart
EVER SINCE SHE WAS NINE YEARS OLD.
MILBURN'S HEART AND NERVE PILLS EFFECTED A COMPLETE CURE.

If you find your health failing, your food apparently doing you no good, your heart beating irregularly—now slow, now fast—skipping a beat now and then, palpitations or throbbings on the slightest excitement or exertion, pain in the region of the heart, face pale, dizzy and faint spells, these all point to heart weakness, to nerve derangement, to a state of health consequent upon these, which, if not corrected and cured by Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills, will surely end in utter prostration and hopeless invalidism.

From the depths many have been raised by this remarkable remedy, as its power is beyond all question most marvellous; but, why wait until you have gone so far? Taking these pills now will turn you from the perilous path of sickness and put you on the highway to health.

Miss Mary Wilson, Toronto, Ont., writes: "It is with the greatest of pleasure that I recommend Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills. Ever since I was nine years of age I have been afflicted with palpitation of the heart, pain in my side and nervousness. As I grew older it kept increasing. After having tried numerous doctors medicines, but to no avail, I was induced to try your pills, and after using several boxes I began to improve, so kept on taking them for some time until now I can truthfully say I am in perfect health."

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are 50 cts. per box or three for $1.25, at all dealers or The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

$2000 For Longboat If He Resists Temptation

Montreal Star Offers to Pay His Expenses in Connection With The Olympian Games in England---Tom Promises To Keep The Name Of Canada Good

Immediately after the finish of the race in Montreal on Saturday the following letter was handed to Longboat:

Montreal, Nov 9, 1907.

Tom Longboat:

Dear Sir—The world admires your pluck. Canadians are proud of what you have done in the field of sport. With Canada's hopes of glory in the athletic field of the future you have responsibilities. Your own victories may gratify your personal ambition, but that should not be the end of it. Your country can be not a little served by a continued example of clean sport.

Most athletes of fame are exposed to extraordinary temptations at the hands of friends and proposed friends. Remember, too, there are always lots of people jealous of a winner. Enemies will ever be on the watch to trap you into doing something wrong. An athlete cannot do his best unless he is temperate and honest.

When you are tempted, think of Canada. You have been instrumental in bringing her fame. Don't be induced, or she will lose it. Aim high, then you will do the best that is in you.

If, at the end of five years, you are still in the athletic field, and it can be truthfully said of you that you have resisted temptation, kept temperate, and ranged yourself always on the side of clean sport, I shall be most pleased to hand you a cheque for two thousand dollars.

If you should be selected to represent Canada at the Olympian Games in England next year, you may, if you choose, go at the expense of the Montreal Star.

Yours truly,
HUGH GRAHAM.

On reaching his room in the Windsor, Tom sent the following reply:—

Montreal, Nov. 9, 1907.

Dear Mr. Graham—You are very kind. I know how you feel; you want Canada's name kept good. I feel the same. I will do my best. Five years from to-day I will send you a little bill for two thousand dollars, and will buy a nice little wigwam for my best girl.

Yours gratefully,
THOMAS LONGBOAT.

The Strathconas Hold Annual Hockey Meeting

Mr. C. G. Graham is Elected President of The City League Winners —Enthusiastic Gathering Was Held Last Night

NEW OFFICERS ELECTED

The annual meeting of the Strathconas the champions of the City Hockey League was held last night in the Y.M.C.A. and was a most enthusiastic gathering indicating much other prosperous doings for the club this year. Manager Metheral occupied the chair and there were present a large number of enthusiasts and players. The prospects of the club are very bright and the Strathconas should be found knocking at the door all the way. The principal business transacted was the election of officers which resulted as follows:

Hon President—Mr. Jas Kendry.
President—C G Graham.
Vice-President—R M Glover,
Secretary—F D Craig,
Treasurer—W Regan.
Manager—W J Metheral,
Executive Committee—L Dobson, Clarence Wilson and C N Barber.

Messrs. Metheral and Craig were appointed delegates to represent the club at the annual meeting of the City Hockey League to-night.

The Strathconas have all of their last year men available with the exception of Harold White, the cover point, who is in Toronto, and Jack Seymour, who is now in Lindsay, and is not likely to be here this season.

The club has been fortunate in securing the services of Dick Baker the trainer of the Y. M. C. A. Harriers, to look after them, and he should have the team in good shape early in the season if his success in training long distance runners may be taken as a criterion.

The City League winners have lost the services of Wallie Parnell, whose duties at the fire hall will keep him out of hockey this winter. He has been of the greatest assistance to the club for several years both in baseball and hockey and will be missed very much this season.

W. J. Metheral Re-elected Manager of The Strathconas Hockey Club

THE INTER-COLLEGIATE CHAMPIONS

Peterboro's Next Opponents Have Not Yet Been Decided Upon

Peterborough will likely play for the Dominion championship if the championship of the Intercollegiate Union is decided in time for the game to be played this season. At present there is every prospect of there being a tie among the college teams. McGill and Ottawa College play in Ottawa on Saturday and if the Ottawa Collegeians win they will carry off the honours. However, if McGill wins the two will be tied for the championship and Varsity, if they defeat Queen's again on Saturday, will will be on a level with the other two in which case there will be little chance of Peterborough meeting the winners as it will take several weeks to decide the issue.

MAKES A NEW CANADIAN RECORD

Ernie Wilson Established One in Defeating Tom Coley Saturday

Ernie Wilson, by defeating Tom Coley on Saturday night, not only gained the fame of beating the Canadian five-mile champion, but also the additional honour of establishing a new Canadian five-mile indoor record, the time 27.19 being the fastest ever made on an indoor track in Canada for that distance. Longboat, in an attempt to break the record last spring, and aided by five pacemakers, ran the five miles seven seconds slower than did Wilson on Saturday night. All the Toronto journals speak in terms of the highest praise of Wilson's race and grand work, and prophesy a great future for the local boy.

In the final game for the Preparatory School championship on Saturday, St. Andrew's college defeated Trinity College School. The star for the latter was Gordon Campbell, son of Mr. Peter Campbell to this city, who played quarter for the Port Hope team.

Women Suffer Agonies from Kidney Trouble

GIN PILLS CURE THEM

There is Mrs. Ripley, for instance. She suffered terribly with her back. It ached, ached, ached—all the time. Even in bed, it seemed as if she could not get easy. It finally became so bad that housework was impossible.

She certainly was a discouraged woman when she began to take GIN PILLS. And there isn't a happier, healthier woman in the Dominion than this same Mrs. Ripley to-day.

Write made to Mrs. Ripley, May 9th, I cannot refrain from writing you the benefits I have received from Gin Pills. Before I had taken Gin Pills I suffered dreadfully with my back, and had suffered for twenty years. I have tried almost everything but got no relief until I got "Gin Pills."

I have taken six boxes and now I have not the sign of a pain or an ache in my back. I am now 45 and feel as well as I ever did in my life. There is nothing can hold a place with Gin Pills for pains in the back to which women are subject. Yours truly,
Mrs. MALCOLM P. RIPLEY.

Mrs. Ripley had serious Kidney Trouble. And the sick kidneys were making her back ache—were giving her those splitting headaches—were sapping her strength—and dragging her down. GIN PILLS really saved her life. GIN PILLS cured her kidneys. She has been well ever since. GIN PILLS are a grand medicine for women.

Try them at our expense. Mention this paper when writing and we will send you a free sample so you can see for yourself just what GIN PILLS will do for you. Address Dept. Dodds Drug Co., Winnipeg, Man. 91

SPORTING NEWS AND VIEWS.....

It did not take the Y.M.C.A. Harriers long to be revenged on the Irish Canadians, and Tom Coley, for the latter's defeat of Fred Simpson in the Hamilton Heralds race on Thanksgiving Day. Ernie Wilson, the Indian's team mate turned the trick by defeating Cole; at his favourite distance on Saturday night.

Peterborough is nothing, if not fashionable in sporting circles, and as walking and running are in vogue just now, the athletes of the city are proving that they do not need to back up from anybody. Just because the Montreal Star has offered to give Tom Longboat, $2,000 at the end of five years, if he has lived a temperate, honest life during that period, some of the Canadian sporting journals say that Longboat by accepting the offer has professionalized himself, according to the conditions of the amateur declaration established by the C. A. A. U. The charge is a trivial one. There was no thought of buying Longboat for his services as runner when the offer was made. It was merely as Tom himself points out in his letter of acceptance, "to keep the name of Canada good." The proprietors of the Star know, as does everybody in Canada who follows the movements of the athletic world that Longboat finds it difficult to resist temptation, and the generous offer of the Star is made in an effort to encourage and stimulate him in his efforts to remain temperate. To talk of professionalizing the Indian on that account is absurd.

"Quite startling is the news I hear!"
Said Jimmy Reynolds, of Port Hope,
"But I'll tell to no one what I fear
And talk to myself of what I hope.

"A walker is coming from the west
If he maintains that five mile clip
He'll set me back as second best
And walk away with the championship.

"My hope is gone, my heart is sore,
My record is no wonder now;
He's beaten me two hours or more,
But I can't well imagine how.

"He's snatched away my hard-won fame,
And set the land in mighty stir;
Behold, Dave Hartley is his name,
And his home's the city of Peterburr.

"I'll let them see some other day
The full extent of my walking power,
My record then shall stand for aye—
Though Hartley's the hero of the hour."

THE WALKING MATCH POSTPONED

Hartley and Reynolds Will Not Meet Until a Week From Saturday

The match between Dave Hartley and Jimmy Reynolds has been postponed for a week, according to a letter received from Manager Hanlon of the Toronto Rowing Club yesterday. The reason is that it was found impossible to secure a place for the walk next Saturday. The intention had been to have the contest take place in the Armouries, but the management has found it impossible to secure the use of that track, so that it has been decided to hold the walk on a week from Saturday in the Mutual street rink, and the two parties have been notified to that effect.

Bad Palpitation of The Heart

EVER SINCE SHE WAS NINE YEARS OLD,

MILBURN'S HEART AND NERVE PILLS EFFECTED A COMPLETE CURE.

If you find your health failing, your food apparently doing you no good, your heart beating irregularly—now slow, now fast—skipping a beat now and then, palpitations or throbbings on the slightest excitement or exertion, pain in the region of the heart, face pale, dizzy and faint spells, these all point to heart weakness, to nerve derangement, to a state of health consequent upon these, which, if not corrected and cured by Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills, will surely end in utter prostration and hopeless invalidism.

From the depths many have been raised by this remarkable remedy, as its power is beyond all question most marvellous; but, why wait until you have gone so far? Taking these pills now will turn you from the perilous path of sickness and put you on the highway to health.

Miss Mary Wilson, Toronto, Ont., writes: "It is with the greatest of pleasure that I recommend Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills. Ever since I was nine years of age I have been afflicted with palpitation of the heart, pain in my side and nervousness. As I grew older it kept increasing. After having tried numerous doctors medicines, but to no avail, I was induced to try your pills, and after using several boxes I began to improve, so kept on taking them for some time until now I can truthfully say I am in perfect health."

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are 50 cts. per box or three for $1.25, at all dealers or The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

Music and Drama

H. WILMOT YOUNG

H. Wilmot Young, with a strong caste supporting Marjie Adams Young opened a four night's engagement at the Grand last night to a large audience. The play "A Broken Heart," a general favouritge with the people, was put on in a manner above the ordinary Stock Company productions. Marjie Adams Young as Queenie Montrose, pleased the audience with her acting as she has done on former occasions. Wilmot Young, as Lord Huntington, won many new admirers by hos strong acting and was frequently applauded. The company is well balanced and for popular prices present a show worth double the money. Harry Lindley, as John Henry Wilkins, the discoverer of a famous stomach bitters, provided the humour as a relief to the heavier parts. (Baby Marguerite, a little tot, was the "tie that binds," bringing husband and wife together again as a happy conclusion to the play.

The specialties were a feature of the play. The illustrated songs were well sung by K. Chas. Moore and the moving pictures were the best that have been on the local stage in a long time. The DeMateos, handcuff experts, gave a performance of their ability to elude locks and iron bands than was entertaining. A change of specialties is given every night and the public are assured of two hours pleasure for the next four nights.

The free exhibition outside the opera house was witnessed by a large number of people and was well received. This performance is given every evening at 7.30.

Miss Gillespie Dealt With "The Greed for Gold" Question at B.Y.P.U. Meeting

PHILOMATHEAN HOLDS MEETING

Report of Officers—Distribution of The Collegiate Sports Prizes—Large Meeting

Yesterday afternoon at 4.15 o'clock the first fortnightly meeting of the Philomathean Society of the local Collegiate Institute was held in the Y.M.C.A. Assembly Hall. There was a large attendance of the pupils, and much interest was displayed during the progress of the programme.

Mr. Michael O'Brien, the newly-elected president, occupied the chair and opened the programme with a few well-chosen words.

After the reading of the minutes of the last meeting and the treasurer's report by Misses Yenney and Crane, Miss Katherine Burnett favoured the audience with a nicely rendered piano solo, which was followed by an essay on "Jenny Cruncher," by Miss Katie Leary. The character was taken from Dickens' well-known "Tale of Two Cities," and was an excellent example of the work done by the Collegiate pupils. A reading, also taken from a "Tale of Two Cities," was given by Mr. C. Thornton, and was followed by a debate, "Resolved, that Asiatics should not be allowed to settle in Canada." The affirmative was upheld by Mr. Arthur Rosebore and Miss E. Connor, and the negative by Mr. Frank Austin and Miss E. Coughlin. The subject, being one which is attracting great attention just now, was warmly contested, the decision being finally given in favour of the negative by the judges, Mr. Colin Lees, Miss L. Rushnell and Miss Agnes Holland.

The Principal, Mr. C. Fessenden, next presented the prizes to the winners of the various events in the annual field day of sports, held some time ago at Nicholls Oval. Mr. Allan Bravender, winner of the senior series was presented with the senior cup and a pair of gold cuff links, kindly donated by Mr. A. Gibson. Mr. F. Wilson, as winner of the junior series, also received a cup and pair of cuff links. Others who received prizes were Messrs. McGarrity, Hall, Perks, Conroy, Turner, Dickson, Elcombe, Hayes, Sheeny, Bartlett, Feely, Wallis, Garrow and Laing. Mr. Harry Hall, on behalf of those participating in the sports, moved a vote of thanks in favour of the teachers and officers for the interest which had been shown in the sports. The motion was unanimously carried by the attending scholars.

Mr. Harold Brown followed with a piano solo, after which Mr. J. E. Hodgson offered an excellent criticism, giving several valuable suggestions to those taking part in the programme, which will no doubt be taken advantage of in the future meetings.

The meeting adjourned with the singing of the National Anthem.

Peterboro' An Important Centre Commercially

Further Facts About It's Prominence As Found by The Men "On The Road" With The Satchels

CENTRE OF THE DISTRICT

In Saturday's issue of the Examiner an article appeared, pointing out the centralization of Peterborough, from a commercial standpoint, showing that the city was the home of 111 commercial travellers. A prominent merchant of Peterborough has further pointed out that besides the fact that so many commercial men who make their homes here, there are scores of other travellers who make this city their headquarters for the outlying towns and villages.

There are many, he says, who come to Peterborough, and remain here all week, They belong to some of the leading wholesale houses in the Dominion. The merchants says that their reasons for staying here from Saturday to Monday are that they find business active and conditions progressive. The hotel accommodation is also an attraction, as travellers state that the Peterborough public houses are among the best, including their sample rooms, for the display of goods, in the province.

Almost every day merchants from the outlying places come to Peterborough to meet the commercial men, So that in addition to the 111, or possibly more than that number of travellers, who have their homes in Peterborough, there are scores of others who make this city their headquarters, again demonstrating the prominence attached to it by men who travel, and who ought to know.

One of the most recent arrivals as a citizen is Mr. John Firth, a representative of the big firm of the W. B. Hamilton Co., wholesale boot and shoe dealers, Toronto. Mr. W. Chamberlain, the representative of Getty and Scott, Galt, also boot and shoe dealers, always remains here a week at a time, and there are many others who also consider Peterborough the central city of the eastern district in regard to its commercial importance.

Banker's Mistake And How He Recovered The Money

May Mean Trouble For Him If Cattle Buyer Keeps His Promise —A Cheque Misinterpreted And Means of Regaining The Money

WAS THE CLERK JUSTIFIED

Mr. Thos. Brown, one of the members of Morris and Brown, local cattle buyers, returned yesterday from Montreal, where he was transacting business on the cattle market, and relates an experience which he casually witnessed, and of which the circumstances are rather peculiar. Another cattle dealer (not a local man) had business on the market, and received a cheque for four hundred dollars, with the writing in French. He went to one of the banks, where he cashed it, and returned to his hotel.

Later in the day the bank clerk found out that he was two hundred dollars short, and looking over the cheques, particularly noticed that which he had cashed for the cattle buyer. On close inspection he found to his dismay that he had misinterpreted the figures, and had mistaken a four for a six, and the cattle buyer had received two hundred dollars too much.

Consulted the Manager

The young man scarcely knew what to do, but was advised to consult the manager of the bank, and the latter engaged a detective to try and recover the missing two hundred. The clerk and the detective learned the name of the hotel where the cattle dealer usually registered, and on going there were soon in communication with him. Into a private room the three men went to consider the situation, and, of course, the cattle dealer had a large wad of money. He did not know just what to do, but the other two men decided to take the two hundred dollars, so confident was the clerk that he had the right man. The clerk returned to the bank, but the cattle buyer decided that he had been wronged, and returned to his own town to arrange with a lawyer to regain the money.

Mr. Brown stated that the affair interested him inasmuch as the legality of the action of the clerk seemed to be questionable. On the surface it appeared a rash act, but the outcome, if the cattle buyer is true to his word, will be watched with interest.

KETCHECUM CLUB HOME ON FRIDAY

The Ketchecum Hunt Club is meeting with fair fortune around its camp in the woods of Cavendish township. Last night Messrs. M. Comstock and Archie Morrow returned home and state that on Saturday night the part had secured 16 deer. The hunting this year is good, although the deer are not as large as they have been seen in other years.

The party have so far met with no accidents, have seen no bears, and have had a very pleasant outing. The remainder of the party are expected home on Friday next.

Tully's Hair Tonic

and DANDRUFF CURE makes the hair grow July 24th, 1907

About the month of September, 1906, my hair began to come out in large spots, leaving the scalp perfectly bare on the right side of the head, also my beard on the left side. About the 15th of December I showed it to J. D. Tully, Druggist; he said that he had a preparation that would restore the hair. I could scarcely credit his statement, but decided to try it, and in three weeks using the hair commenced to grow. Since that time I have lost nearly all my old hair which has been entirely replaced with new hair, and the beard also. I consider this by all means the best hair grower on the market, as I had previously tried other preparations without any effect. Any one wishing to ask me about it will find me at my home, 295 McDonnel Street, Peterborough, or at B. B. Crossing, G.T.R., Charlotte St.

Successful Open Meeting Under Auspices Of Sherwood Forest Camp Last Night—The Arms Of The Order

A MUSICAL PROGRAMME

The open meeting of Sherwood Forest Camp, No. 50, Woodemn of the World, last night, in the Sons of England Hall, Hunter street, was a big success in every sense of the word. The attendance not only of members of the Camp, but of the general public, was large and the able exposition on the aims and objects of the order given during the evening, could not fail to have good results as it served to interest those outside of the Order in its work. Mr. T. E. Bradburn, M.P. P., occupied the chair during the evening. The Camp was fortunate in having three well known members of the order, and three eloquent speakers, present, whose addresses added much to the enjoyment and interest of the programme. Mr. C. C. Hodgins, M. P.P, of Lucan, Ontario, the Head Council Commander of the Order, Mr. D. Cinnamon, of Lindsay, the Head Adviser, and Mr. R. Copeland of Millbrook, the Head Organizer, were all present and delivered inspiring addresses, in which they referred to the aims of the Order and spoke of the great progress which it is making in membership and on other lines. Their remarks were followed with close attention, that showed that the audience were keenly interested in the subject.

During the evening an enjoyable musical programme was rendered, and was much appreciated by the audience whose pleasure was indicated by the fact that nearly every number was encored and a recall number had to be given.

The programme was as follows:
Piano solo, Mrs. Evans.
Quartette, Misses Edwards and Flowers, Messrs. F. Scrimshaw and H. McCabe.
Comic song, Mr. Featherstone.
Phonograph selections, Mr. Seith.
Solo, Mr. T. Pratt.
Comic song, Mr. Featherstone.

At the conclusion of the programme delightful refreshments were served and a pleasant social evening spent before the gathering dispersed. Such a splendid meeting could not fail to benefit the order in this city, where the Camp is in a most flourishing condition.

AN INTOXICATED MAN USES A PITCHFORK IN A FRACAS

There was a regular melee in one of the local livery barns this afternoon which might have resulted in something serious had it not been for the prompt action of one of the stable hands. One of the employees in the barns was clipping a horse, having the horse tied to a rope that stretched across the stable. Everything went along smoothly until a drunk appeared on the scene, making a few remarks about the horse. He then then tried to untie the horse, but was stopped and told to get out of the barn. He refused, whereupon the livery hand tried to put him out. The intoxicated fellow was full of fight, but was soon held and thrown to the ground, the stableman telling him that if he did not get out he would turn the hose on him. The drunk became submissive, and upon regaining his feet picked up a pitch-fork. Only the prompt action of a third party, who had arrived on the scene, it is likely that he would have run it through his opponent.

THE GRAND OPERA HOUSE BEING IMPROVED

Mr. J. J. Turner Places New Plate Glass Glass Doors Inside Opera House—New Design for Gallery Entrance

Mr. J. J. Turner, the proprietor of the Grand opera house, deserves credit for the way he has been looking after the comforts of his patrons. This year the people of Peterborough have seen extensive improvements in the opera house and Mr. Turner promises that these are not the last, and hopes in a short time to be able to arrange the boxes so that the occupants will be less exposed to view. The latest improvement in the opera house is that of four plate glass swinging doors, inside the main doors. These doors divide the entrance to the balcony from the pit. This will prevent any draught from the main inside door, which is continually opening during a performance. Mr. Turner has also placed a beautiful illuminated sign over the entrance to the gallery.

Successful Season For City Hockey League

Annual Meeting of League Was Held Last Night—Mr. Fred A. Clarke is Re-elected President —Old Officers Have To Drop Out

NEW TEAMS ARE ASSURED

Judging by the enthusiasm which pervaded the annual meeting of the City Hockey League last night, the coming winter will be the most successful in the history of that body. It would appear that there will be more teams than ever and the different clubs will be better balanced and stronger than last year if present conditions can be taken as a criterion. New teams in the league this year will be the T.A.S. and Norwood, while there is every likelihood that Keene will also be represented by a strong seven which will make things interesting for the other teams of the league. Norwood paid its entrance fee last night and was admitted, and the T.A.S. sent word that it would hold its annual meeting this week and would apply for membership.

The principal business last night was the election of officers, and the returns showed that Mr. Fred. A Clarke, who has been the popular and efficient president of the league for a number of years, was returned to office, and the league is to be congratulated upon the fact that Mr. Clarke has consented to carry out the duties of the office for another year. He has been a most faithful officer in the past, and no doubt will give the league the same attention this year as he has given it in the past. On the other hand the league will have to regret the absence of two able officers who have had to drop out this year, in the person of M. J. Mabery who has been vice-president, and Ira D. Moore who has been secretary for a number of years. Although the representatives present tried to prevail upon both of these gentlemen to reconsider their decision to drop out, they stated that it would be impossible for them to take the offices this year, although they promised that they would give the league every possible support.

The teams represented and their delegates were the Strathconas, W. J. Metheral; High Lifes, W. Rose; Charlotte Street, Ira Moore, and Norwood by Russell Pierce.

Secretary's Report

Ira Moore, secretary, presented the following report:

The season of 1906-07 was the third year for this league in Peterborough, and was in some ways more successful than the previous year. There were six clubs in the league, namely, Strathconas, Charlotte Street, Lakefield, Auburns, High Lifes, and Orphans.

After playing through a single schedule, three extra games had to be played, the Strathcona Hockey Club winning the cup from Charlotte Street, champions of 1905-06, by the margin of one goal. The games were all interesting, but as a rule were not patronized as liberally as was deserved. This league during the past season accomplished its aim in developing players for the higher circles and sent two players to the Peterborough team, and it will be the aim of the league to do further developing work. Financially, the league did very well considering the fact that we had an extra team in the league, necessitating extra games as well as extra games to decide the championship.

Total receipts of monies received in trust for the teams amounted to $306.75, against which we had expenditure of $211.75, the balance being divided equally among the six clubs.

In leagues monies we had a balance from last year of $2.56, which together with receipts amounted to $19.50. Our expenditure against this amounted to $15.80, leaving a balance to our credit for this year of $3.70.

With the hearty co-operation of all the teams in the league we look for continued success.

The election of officers resulted as follows:—

Patrons and Patronesses— Mr. and Mrs. John Finlay, M.P., of Norwood; Mr. and Mrs. T. H. McGrath, Mr. and Mrs. John Nugent, Dr. and Mrs. Wightman, Mayor and Mrs. McWilliams.

Hon. President—Hon. J. R. Stratton.

Hon. Vice-President — Mr. G. N. Graham.

President—Fred. A. Clarke.

First Vice-President — C. G. Graham.

Second Vice-President—Harry Morgan.

Secretary-Treasurer— H. T. Huston.

The Executive will consist of a representative from each club.

The constitution as prepared by the special committee appointed for that purpose and approved of by the league executive was read to the meeting, and the unanimous opinion seemed to be that it is entirely suitable to the league. One change was made, the rule regarding the number of players which each club is allowed to sign being changed for the benefit of the outside clubs. The constitution allowed each club to sign but ten men and was framed for the purpose of preventing any local team from monopolizing all the available players. There would be no possibility of one of the outside teams doing this, and it was felt that by allowing them to sign more men they could benefit their club financially. It was therefore decided to amend the rule so that it applies only to Peterborough teams.

A new rule was also added to the effect that the league be given the power to retain from the trust money of each club the sum of $10 to pay for the banquet which is given at the close of every season to the champion club.

The schedule of the league will be drawn up soon after December 15, after which date no team will be allowed to enter. The officers were appointed a committee to wait upon the management of the Brock street rink for the purpose of making arrangements for the use of the rink by the league this season. Before the meeting adjourned, votes of thanks were passed to the retiring secretary and vice-president for their valuable services, and to the Y.M.C.A. for the use of the building for meeting purposes.

Eighteenth Anniversary Of Court Stanley, A. O. F.

Mr. H. E. Wilson, Representative Of High Court, Toronto, Addresses Gathering — A Large Crowd in Attendance

GREAT PROGRESS MADE

Last night in the S.O.E. Hall, Hunter street, the members of Court Stanley, A.O.F., celebrated the 18th anniversary of the Court. The room was well filled with members and their friends. Mr. H. C. Wilson, High Court Treasurer, of Toronto, was the main guest of the evening.

Mr. Hendry, the Chief Ranger of Court Stanley, was in the chair, the first part of the evening being taken up with a splendid programme, each selection being beautifully rendered. The programme follows:

Chairman's Address — Mr. T. Hendry.

Quartette Selection.

Song—Mr. Chambers.

Banjo Selection—Messrs. Ellis and Reid.

Comic Song—Mr. Featherstone.

Cornet Solo—Mr. Simmons.

Duet—The Misses Kennedy.

Song—Mr. Q. Crowe.

Song—Miss Howell.

Cornet Solo—Mr. Simmons.

Banjo Solo—Mr. F. R. Clarke.

Song—Miss A. Kennedy.

Recitation—Miss A. Kennedy.

Quartette Selection.

Banjo Selection—Messrs. Ellis and Reid.

Song—Mr. Pratt.

Cornet Solo—Mr. Simmons.

After the programme Mr. H. C. Wilson of Toronto addressed the assembly. "In 1889," he began, "Court Stanley was first organized with fifteen members. During the 18 years of progress you have now a membership of 166, and prospects of a great many more. I am sure it is a pleasure for me to return here again and see an increase since last spring. Court Stanley is one of the best Courts in Canada, outside Toronto, and the members ought to be proud of their organization. We are going to appoint an organizer for Ontario, but from the way Peterborough has succeeded in getting along I don't think an organizer is needed here, but we depend on each individual member to look after the interests of the Court. Your membership has come to such a stage that you will be able to send a representative to the High Court in Toronto each year and will have power to cast a vote for every member of your Court, so if you wish to increase your powers in governing the affairs of the A.O.F. you must increase your membership. The women also ought to join the companions of the Forresters and become as active as the men."

The speaker concluded his address by wishing the Court every success during its next year.

The assembly then adjourned to another room where refreshments were served by Coleman Brothers, after which the gathering dispersed.

Great praise is due the following members for arranging the details: Bros. T. Hendry, H. Hanwell, Jas. McDonald, S. Adam, R. J. McWilliams, H. Anderson, J. Detcher.

The thanks of the members of the Court was extended to all who took part in the programme.

Dr. Marsh Gives Splendid Lecture To Beginners

Explains The Mellish's Comet Soon To Be Seen—Arctic Meteorities Are Described

SUN SPOT DISTURBANCES

The meeting of the Astronomical Society last evening proved to be one of the most interesting in the history of the society. A good attendance, coupled with a most instructive address by Dr. Marsh, marked the meeting as one to be remembered with pleasure.

Several new members were proposed during the course of the evening, showing that the society is growing rapidly. The president announced among other matters of interest that he had received from the Metorological Department a 3-inch telescope for the use of the Peterborough section of the Royal Astronomical Society. As soon as possible it will be put in proper shape and loaned to individual members. It is a remarkably fine instrument and will undoubtedly give much pleasure.

One of the members related some interesting features of a recent visit to the New York Museum of Natural History where he saw among many others the three meteorites that were secured in the Arctic by Commander Peary. These meteorites weighed 30 1-2 tons, 10 tons and six tons respectively. Their analysis showed them to be 91 per cent. iron.

A number of the recent astronomical events were related by Dr. Marsh and lucidly explained by him. Among these were Mellish's comet, which is increasing very rapidly in size, and in a few weeks' time will be distinctly visible to the naked eye, appearing in the eastern sky about midnight.

A large sun spot disturbance was seen on Tuesday, and when measured proved to have diameters of 78,000 and 68,000 miles. Some astronomers endeavour to connect magnetic and other earthly disturbances with these spots, and in doing this point to the fact that the great landslide in India on October 21 occurred on the gate of the largest sun disturbance of the year.

The large knobs on the rings of Saturn are confirmed by the latest bulletins sent the secretary of the society by Harvard observatory. These were explained by Dr. Marsh.

The talk of the evening covered many minor features of astronomy, defining the various branches of the study, and then explaining the more common terms used, and illustrating by the marvellous mechanism the "Planetarium," the application thereof. With the aid of the "lantern" and revolving discs, a very clear idea of the planetary system about us was given. The talk was intended for beginners, and the speaker succeeded in conveying a very comprehensive idea to the uninitiated.

In order that the members and their friends may have a better opportunity for interchange of ideas and for questions, the next meeting of the society will be held at the home of Mr. Herbert Collier, Weller street.

MR. DAVIDSON RETURNS FROM WEST

Visited His Nephew At Maple Creek For Six Weeks

Mr. Jas. Davidson returned home on Monday night from a six weeks visit with his nephew at Maple Creek, in Western Canada. He states that in many respects the crops in the west are good but that the frost has contributed greatly towards the loss compared with other years.

At Maple Creek the oat crop was good. Mr. Davidson says that his nephew will have at least 2,000 bushels of oats and that the potato crop on his farm could not be excelled by any he had ever seen in Ontario.

Mr. Davidson had a splendid trip westward and had many interesting stories to tell of incidents in the long journey.

Houses on Lake and Wescott Streets Have Been Removed

Aylmer street, between Lake street and Wescott street, is now practically opened, the houses on either street having been removed and have been placed on the west side of the new portion of the street. Mr. L D Letellier, 15 Crescent street, purchased three houses from the town. Two of them fronted Wescott street and one was on Lake street. Mr. Letellier engaged James and A. Hurtfman, housemovers, of Millbrook, to move these houses in order that they would be facing on Aylmer street, between Lake and Wescott streets.

Mr. Letellier speaks highly of the work done by this firm. Two of the houses were moved after the bricks had been taken off, but the third was moved entire and not one of the bricks were loosened or the plaster broken. The Huffman brothers intend to come to Peterborough to live and will continue in their business in this city.

George Ade Fables

The Willing Collegian Who Was Hunting For a Foothold.

[Copyright, 1902, 1903, by Robert Howard Russell.]

THE ANTIQUE MEDICINE MAN EXPLAINS.

Once there was a Young Man with a College education, an assortment of Cravats, and about $8 in Real Money who was anxiously looking for his Life Work.

He wanted to break into a Learned profession so that he could wear his Good Clothes all of the Time and get the Coin without working too hard for it.

His Idea of a dignified Snap was to sit in a small Office about three hours every Day and have the Public come in and pass Money to him. The Medical Game struck him as being about the softest Proposition of all.

He thought that all Doc had to do was to lead the Mark into the Chamber of Horrors, where they have the Skulls and the Butcher-Knives, look him over, ask a few Questions, tell him to stop Smoking, and then tap him for a V.

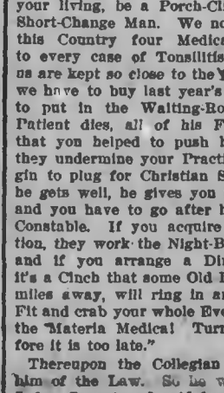
So the hopeful Graduate went to the old Family Physician for a few Tips.

"Any one who tackles the Æsculapian Stunt is a vitrified Mutt," said his Whiskers. "If you must earn your living, be a Porch-Climber or a Short-Change Man. We now have in this Country four Medical Degrees to every case of Tonsilitis. Most of us are kept so close to the Carpet that we have to buy last year's Magazines to put in the Waiting-Room. If a Patient dies, all of his Friends say that you helped to push him off, so they undermine your Practice and begin to plug for Christian Science. If he gets well, he gives you the Laugh, and you have to go after him with a Constable. If you acquire a Reputation, they work the Night-Bell on you; and if you arrange a Dinner-Party, it's a Cinch that some Old Lady, three miles away, will ring in an Epileptic Fit and crab your whole Evening. Nix the Materia Medica! Turn back before it is too late."

Thereupon the Collegian bethought him of the Law. So he went to old Judge Caveat and said he wanted to start right in Reading.

"If you can dispense with Eating for the next 15 Years, come and join our noble Profession," said the Judge. "If you have got into the Food Habit, however, and feel that you may need Clothes now and then, take my Advice and duck. It's getting so that one can't drop a Brick out of a Window without hitting at least three Lawyers. The only ones who land are those that sell their Immortal Souls to the Corporations, and they get roasted so hard that they can't be elected anything except United States Senators. The Legal Profession is a Lottery in which there are 999 Blanks to every Prize, and the one who gets the Prize usually draws a case of Nervous Dyspepsia with it and has to live on Cereal Food. If you desire safe and profitable employment, learn to be a Bank-Robber, but don't join the Starvation Brigade. The Professions are petering out. We live in a Commercial Age. The Money-Makers of to-day are the Wise Boys who trade in Produce and Manufactured Staples."

Accordingly the Young Fellow put in an Application with a large Wholesale Concern. The High Guy called him in and gave him a Talk.



ALL ABOUT THE GROCERY BUSINESS.

"If you are Strong and Willing we can start you at $3.50 per Week juggling Boxes," said the Manager. "In ten Years or so you will be moved up into the bookkeeping Department, where you can get $60 a Month just like finding it. Before you decide upon a Mercantile Career, I may as well warn you that 95 per cent. of those who go into Business eventually blow up, and the other 5 per cent. compromise with the Trust and get what they can. The inexperienced Kid without Capital who tries to get a Hammock-Load — these air-tight Combinations has about as much chance as a Chicken at a Camp-Meeting. If you wish to sit on a High Stool so long that you grow fast to it, and then, at the Wind-Up, get a Floral Pillow from your Fellow-Employes, come and join our Happy Band. But, if you are Foxy, cut out the Mercantile Act and try some Enterprise in which you will have a Show to pull out something for yourself."

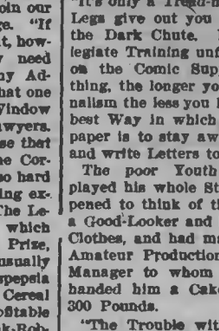
Journalism looked very good to him because it seemed to require neither Experience nor Funds, and he could mould Public Opinion without joining the Moulders' Union. An Old-Timer in the Business steered him away.

"Don't start into this Life," he said. "It's only a Tread-mill, and after your Legs give out you are dropped down the Dark Chute. Besides, your Collegiate Training unfits you to help out on the Comic Supplement. Another thing, the longer you daily with Journalism the less you know about it. The best Way in which to direct a Newspaper is to stay away from the Office and write Letters to the Editor."

The poor Youth had just about played his whole String when he happened to think of the Stage. He was a Good-Looker and knew how to wear Clothes, and had made terrific Hits in Amateur Productions. The hardened Manager to whom he sent his Card handed him a Cake of Ice weighing 300 Pounds.

"The Trouble with you is that you have been attending the University instead of working on a Spring-Board so as to do the Double Flip-Flops," said the Rag-time Impresario. "You are next to the Greek Verb all right, but you are shy on Buck-and-Wing Steps, and I can't see that you have a Chance in a Million. I suppose you have studied Shakespeare. If so, you may possibly hook up with a fly-by-night Organization. The Legitimate Drama is now being played at the Whistling-Posts and Water-Tanks, but not in the great Thought-Centres. If your Voice had been cultivated in Europe, I think I could fix it for you to carry a Spear, but as you have not sufficient Talent to get you into the Chorus, I suggest that you go down and play the Stock Market."

Here was an Inspiration. He would go and find Employment in a Broker's Office and study the Quotations and gradually pike into the World of Speculation. He sought out a pious old Gambler who had made a Ton of Money by never doing what he let on he was going to do.



THE OLD BROKER'S FINAL WORD.

The veteran Financier would not be a Party to the ruination of any Grand Young Man. "Keep away from the Market," he said. "All those who play the Ticker get the Solar-Plexus Punch sooner or later. This Speculation is very demoralizing. It has demoralized every one except me. I always warn Young Men to buy nothing on Margins. Buy it outright. You can do this easily after you've earned the first Million or two as a Stenographer.

"I might give you a Hunch on the Q. T.," said the Old Gentleman. "Those who are very Bright often marry into the families of the vulgar Rich, thus acquiring the Means to go Abroad and study Art and, at the same time, throw the Hooks into their Native Land."

"I'll tackle Matrimony," said the Collegian. "That appears to be the only Field that is not overcrowded."

MORAL: Every Man knocks his own Line of Work and sticks to it like Glue.

CRISIS OF GIRLHOOD

A TIME OF PAIN AND PERIL

Miss Emma Cole Says that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has Saved Her Life and Made Her Well.

How many lives of beautiful young girls have been sacrificed just as they were ripening into womanhood! How many irregularities or displacements have been developed at this important period, resulting in years of suffering!

Miss Emma Cole

A mother should come to her child's aid at his critical time and remember that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will prepare the system for the coming change and start this trying period in a young girl's life without pain or irregularities.

Miss Emma Cole of Tullahoma, Tenn., writes:

Dear Mrs. Pinkham:

"I want to tell you that I am enjoying better health than I have for years, and I owe it all to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"When fourteen years of age I suffered almost constant pain, and for two or three years, I had soreness and pain in my side, headaches and was dizzy and nervous, and doctors all failed to help me.

"Lydia E. Pidkham's Vegetable Compound was recommended, and after taking it my health begin to improve rapidly, and I think it saved my life. I sincerely hope my experience will be a help to other girls who are passing from girlhood to womanhood, for I know your Compound will do as much for them."

If you know of any young girl who is sick and needs motherly advice ask her to write Mrs. Pinkham, Lynn, Mass., and she will receive free advice which will put her on the right road to a strong, healthy and happy womanhood. Feeding the Milk Maker.

In an experiment at the Michigan State college on the value of roots as a supplement to silage for dairy cows the addition of roots to an already complete ration of silage, clover hay and grain for a dairy cow stimulated both milk and butter fat production.

The cost of the ration, however, was raised to such a degree as to lessen the profit of production, milk costing 4.2 cents more per hundred pounds and butter fat 1.1 cents more per pound as a result.

In case a large production is desired, as in making records, roots might be used to advantage.

The cows gained in weight more on the root ration than when fed without roots, but the difference was not great.

The percentage of butter fat in the milk was constant, whether on the root ration or without roots.

How Much Grain?

Seven pounds daily is a fair average amount for cows weighing 800 to 900 pounds which produce ten quarts of 5 per cent milk daily. Feeders in localities where there is not a quick demand for milk may find it economy to use only five pounds of grain daily and a maximum amount of home grown coarse feeds. Heavy milking Holsteins weighing 1,200 pounds may require twelve or more pounds of grain daily, depending upon their ability to utilize it. The usual daily roughage ration to go with the grain mixture will consist of what hay the animal will eat clean (eighteen to twenty-four pounds) or one bushel of corn silage and ten to sixteen pounds of hay, according to Professor J. B. Lindsey of Massachusetts.

In Brief.

Every pound of feed above the actual maintenance is profit. Simple maintenance is nothing.

Orchard grass is an excellent pasture plant, furnishing good grazing during the season, and it ranks high for nutritive qualities.

Regularity is very essential, for if the cows have to wait half an hour for their feed after the usual time it will cause them to fret and cut down the milk yield.

The best way to prevent the calves having the scours is to be careful not to overfeed, giving them not more than five or six pounds of milk three times a day at first, increasing gradually as they grow older, remarks an exchange.

London's "Workshys."

Willesden guardians are entertaining at their workhouse nine of the most inveterate "workshys" in London.

These able-bodied citizens, whose ages range from 31 to 51, have cost the ratepayers of Willesden for the support of themselves and their families during the last three years thousands of pounds.

"The fact is that a lazy man with a wife and family finds life much easier and pleasanter in a workhouse than outside. If he wants a holiday he discharges himself and returns as soon as the hospitality of his friends is exhausted.

Here is the record of one of these "workshys": A — is a fine, tall man, 45 years old, and a skilled carpenter. He has a family of eight, most of whom have been born in the workhouse and brought up by the guardians. The two elder children are at work, one as a domestic servant. The fact that the guardians sent the girl to Wales to be out of the reach of her good-for-nothing father is considered a great hardship by A.

Since May, 1905, A and his family have cost the guardians nearly $2,000.

With variations, this is the story of the rest of Willesden's nine worst workshys, who are all to the eye good, lusty men. They follow the trades of a blacksmith, an omnibus-conductor, a furniture packer, a bricklayer and a plasterer. Six of the nine have wives in the house. And between them they have 34 children.

CHAPTER I.

IN the public room of the Sixth National bank at Bar Harbor, in Maine, Lieutenant Alan Drummond, H. M. S. Consternation, stood aside to give precedence to a lady. The lieutenant had visited the bank for the purpose of changing several crisp white Bank of England notes into the currency of the country he was then visiting. The lady did not appear to notice either his courtesy or his presence, and this was the more remarkable since Drummond was a young man sufficiently conspicuous even in a crowd; and he and she were at that moment the only customers in the bank. He was tall, well knit and stalwart, blond as a Scandinavian, with dark blue eyes which he sometimes said jocularly were the colors of his university. He had been slowly approaching the cashier's window with the easy movement of a man never in a hurry, when the girl appeared at the door and advanced rapidly to the bank counter with its brass wire screen surrounding the arched aperture behind which stood the cashier. Although very plainly attired, her gown nevertheless possessed a charm of simplicity that almost suggested complex Paris, and she wore it with that air of distinction the secret of which is supposed to be the exclusive property of French and American women.

The young man saw nothing of this, and, although he appreciated the beauty of the girl, what struck him at that instant was the expression of anxiety on her face, whose apparently temporary pallor was accentuated by an abundance of dark hair. It seemed to him that she had resolutely set herself a task which she was most reluctant to perform. From the moment she entered the door her large dark eyes were fixed almost appealingly on the cashier, and they beheld nothing else. Drummond, mentally slow as he usually was, came to the quick conclusion that this was a supreme moment in her life, on which perhaps great issues depended. He saw her left hand grasp the corner of the ledge in front of the cashier with a grip of nervous tension, as if the support thus attained was necessary to her. Her right hand trembled slightly as she passed an oblong slip of paper through the aperture to the calm and indifferent official.

"Will you give me the money for this check?" she asked in a low voice.

The cashier scrutinized the document for some time in silence. The signature appeared unfamiliar to him.

"One moment, madam," he said quietly and retired to a desk in the back part of the bank, where he opened a huge book, turned over some leaves rapidly and ran his finger down a page. His dilatory action seemed to increase the young woman's panic. Her pallor increased, and she swayed slightly, as if in danger of falling, but brought her right hand to the assistance of the left and so steadied herself against the ledge of the cashier's counter.

"By Jove," said the lieutenant to himself, "there's something wrong here! I wonder what it is. Such a pretty girl too!"

The cashier behind his screen saw nothing of this play of the emotions. He returned nonchalantly to his station and asked in commonplace tones:

"How will you have the money, madam?"

"Gold, if you please," she replied, almost in a whisper, a rosy flush chasing the whiteness from her face, while a deep sigh marked the passing of a crisis.

At this juncture an extraordinary thing happened. The cashier counted out some golden coins and passed them through the aperture toward their new owner.

"Thank you," said the girl. Then, without touching the money, she turned like one hypnotized, her unseeing eyes still taking no heed of the big lieutenant, and passed rapidly out of the bank. The cashier paid no regard to this abandonment of treasure. He was writing some hieroglyphics on the cashed check.

"By Jove!" gasped the lieutenant aloud, springing forward as he spoke, sweeping up coins into his hand and bolting for the door. This was an action which would have awakened the most negligent cashier had he been in a trance. Automatically he whisked out a revolver which lay in an open drawer under his hand.

"Stop, you scoundrel, or I fire!" he shouted, but the lieutenant had already disappeared. Quick as thought the cashier darted into the passage and, without waiting to unfasten the low door which separated the public and private rooms of the bank, leaped over it and, bareheaded, gave chase. A British naval officer in uniform rapidly overtaking a young woman quite unconscious of his approach, followed by an excited, bareheaded man with a revolver in his grasp, was a sight which would quickly have collected a crowd almost anywhere, but it happened to be the lunch hour, and the inhabitants of that famous summer resort were indoors; thus fortunately the street was deserted. The naval officer was there because the hour of the midday meal on board the cruiser did not coincide with lunch time on shore. The girl was there because it happened to be the only portion of the day when she could withdraw unobserved from the house in which she lived during banking hours to try her little agitating financial experiment. The cashier was there because the bank had no lunch hour and because he had just witnessed the most suspicious circumstance that his constantly alert eye had ever beheld. Calm and imperturbable as a bank cashier may appear to the outside public, he is a man under constant strain during business hours. Each person with whom he is unacquainted that confronts him at his post is a possible robber who at any moment may attempt either by violence or chicanery to filch the treasure he guards. The happening of any event outside the usual routine at once arouses the cashier's distrust, and this sudden flight of a stranger with money which did not belong to him quite justified the perturbation of the cashier. From that point onward innocence of conduct or explanation so explicit as to satisfy any ordinary man becomes evidence of more subtle guilt to the mind of a bank official. The ordinary citizen, seeing the lieutenant finally overtake and accost the hurrying girl, raise his cap, then pour into her outstretched hand the gold he had taken, would have known at once that here was an everyday exercise of natural politeness.

Not so the cashier. The farther he got from the bank the more poignantly did he realize that these two in front, both strangers to him, had by their combined action lured him, pistol and all, away from his post during the dullest hour of the day. It was not the decamping with those few pieces of gold which now troubled him. It was fear of what might be going on behind him. He was positive that these two had acted in conjunction. The uniform worn by the man did not impose upon him. Any thief could easily come by a uniform, and as his mind glanced rapidly backward over the various points of the scheme he saw how effectual the plan was. First, the incredible remissness of the woman in leaving her gold on the counter; second, the impetuous disappearance of the man with the money, and, third, his own heedless plunge into the street after them. He saw the whole plot in a flash. He had literally leaped into the trap, and during his five or ten minutes' absence the accomplices of the pair might have overawed the unarmed clerks and walked off with the treasure. His cash drawer was unlocked, and even the big safe stood wide open. Surprise had as effectually lured him away as if he had been a country bumpkin. Bitterly and breathlessly did he curse his own precipitancy. His duty was to guard the bank, yet if had not been the bank that was robbed, but at best a careless woman who had failed to pick up her money. He held the check for it, and the loss, if any, was hers, not the bank's, yet here he was, running bareheaded down the street like a fool, and now those two stood quite calmly together, he handing her the money and thus spreading a mantle of innocence over the vile trick. But, whatever was happening in the bank, he would secure two of the culprits at least. The two, quite oblivious of the danger that threatened them, were somewhat startled by a panting man,

"Come back to the bank instantly!"

trembling with rage, bareheaded and flourishing a deadly weapon, sweeping down upon them.

"Come back to the bank instantly, you two!" he shouted.

"Why?" asked the lieutenant in a quiet voice.

"Because I say so, for one thing."

"That reason is unanswerable," replied the lieutenant with a slight laugh, which further exasperated his opponent. "I think you are exciting yourself unnecessarily. May I beg you to put that pistol in your pocket? On the cruiser we always cover up the guns when ladies honor us with their presence. You wish me to return because I had no authority for taking the money? Right; come along."

The cashier regarded this as a bluff and an attempt to give the woman opportunity to escape.

"You must come back also," he said to the girl.

"I'd rather not," she pleaded in a low voice, and it was hardly possible to have made a more injudicious remark if she had taken the whole afternoon to prepare.

Renewed determination shone from the face of the cashier.

"You must come back to the bank," he reiterated.

"Oh, I say," protested the lieutenant, "you are now exceeding your authority. I alone am the culprit. The young lady is quite blameless, and you have no right to detain her for a moment."

The girl, who had been edging away and showing signs of flight, which the bareheaded man, visibly on the alert, leaned forward ready to intercept, seemed to make up her mind to bow to the inevitable. Ignoring the cashier, she looked up at the blond lieutenant with a slight smile on her pretty lips.

"It was really all my fault at the beginning," she said, "and very stupid of me. I am slightly acquainted with the bank manager, and I am sure he will vouch for me if he is there."

With that she turned and walked briskly toward the bank at so rapid a pace as to indicate that she did not wish an escort. The bareheaded official found his anger unaccountably deserting him, while a great fear that he had put his foot in it took its place.

"Really," said the lieutenant gently as they strode along together, "an official in your position should be a good judge of human nature. How any sane person, especially a young man, can look at that beautiful girl and suspect her of evil passes my comprehension. Do you know her?"

"No," said the cashier shortly. "Do you?"

The lieutenant laughed genially.

"Still suspicious, eh?" he asked. "No, I don't know her; but, to use a banking term, you may bet your bottom dollar I'm going to. Indeed, I am rather grateful to you for your stubbornness in forcing us to return. It's a quality I like, and you possess it in marvelous development, so I intend to stand by you when the managerial censure is due. I'm very certain I met your manager at the dinner they gave us last night. Mr. Morton, isn't he?"

"Yes," growled the cashier in gruff despondency.

"Ah, that's awfully jolly. One of the finest fellows I've met in ten years. Now, the lady said she was acquainted with him, so if I don't wheedle an introduction out of him it will show that a man at a dinner and a man in a bank are two different individuals. You were looking for plots, so there is mine laid bare to you. It's an introduction, not gold, I'm conspiring for."

The cashier had nothing further to say. When they entered the bank together, he saw the clerks all busily at work and knew that no startling event had happened during his absence. The girl had gone direct to the manager's room, and thither the young men followed her. The bank manager was standing at his desk, trying to preserve a severe financial cast of countenance, which the twinkle in his eyes belied. The girl, also standing, had evidently been giving him a rapid sketch of what had occurred, but now fell into silence when accuser and accomplice appeared.

The advent of the Englishman was a godsend to the manager. He was too courteous a gentleman to laugh in the face of a lady who very seriously was relating a set of incidents which appealed to his sense of humor, so the coming of the lieutenant enabled him to switch off his mirth on another subject, and in reply to the officer's cordial "Good morning, Mr. Morton," he replied:

"Why, lieutenant, I'm delighted to see you. That was a very jolly song you sang for us last night. I'll never forget it. What do you call it? 'Whittington Fair?'" And he laughed outright as at a genial recollection.

The lieutenant blushed red as a girl and stammered:

"Really, Mr. Morton, you know [illegible] not according to the rules of evidence. When a fellow comes up for trial previous convictions are never allowed to be mentioned till after the sentence. Whiddicomb Fair should not be held against me in the present crisis."

The manager chuckled gleefully. The cashier, when he saw how the land lay, had quietly withdrawn, closing the door behind him.

"Well, lieutenant, I think I must have this incident cabled to Europe," said Morton, "so the effete nations of your continent may know that a plain bank cashier isn't afraid to tackle the British navy. Indeed, Mr. Drummond, if you read history you will learn that this is a dangerous coast for your warships. It seems rather inhospitable that a guest of our town cannot pick all the gold he wants out of a bank, but a cashier has necessarily somewhat narrow views on the subject. I was just about to apologize to Miss Amhurst, who is a valued client of ours, when you came in, and I hope, Miss Amhurst," he continued gravely, turning to the girl, "that you will excuse us for the inconvenience to which you have been put."

"Oh, it does not matter in the least," replied the young woman, with nevertheless a sigh of relief. "It was all my own fault in so carelessly leaving the money. Some time, when less in a hurry than I am at the present moment, I will tell you how I came to make the blunder."

Meanwhile the manager caught and interpreted correctly an imploring look from the lieutenant.

"Before you go, Miss Amhurst, will you permit me to introduce to you my friend, Lieutenant Drummond of H. M. S. Consternation?"

This ritual to convention being performed, the expression on the girl's face showed the renewal of her anxiety to be gone, and as she turned to the door the officer sprang forward and opened it for her. If the manager expected the young man to return he was disappointed, for Drummond threw over his shoulder the hasty remark:

"I will see you at the club this evening," whereupon the genial Morton, finding himself deserted, sat down in his swivel chair and laughed quietly to himself.

There was the slightest possible shade of annoyance on the girl's face as the sailor walked beside her from the door of the manager's room, through the public portion of the bank

The Sufferings of the Dyspeptic

DUE TO NEGLECTING TO KEEP THE LIVER RIGHT, THE DIGESTION GOOD, THE BOWELS HEALTHY BY USING

DR. CHASE'S KIDNEY-LIVER PILLS

You may shudder to think of yourself as a dyspeptic—as one who, through stomach troubles, has come to look on the dark side of things, and to be ill-tempered and grouchy—but if you neglect treatment for repeated attacks of indigestion you will most assuredly become a chronic dyspeptic.

The great mistake is to put the blame on the stomach, and strive in vain for lasting benefit from tablets and so-called digestives. The real cause of trouble in nine cases out of ten is with the liver.

Thousands of persons are being cured of complicated cases of indigestion by Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, because of their direct action on the liver, thus ensuring a good flow of bile—good digestion and healthful action of the bowels.

Mr. C. D. Bennett, Maple Grove, Megantic Co., Que., writes: "I had dyspepsia very bad. The food would sour, my stomach would swell up. I suffered a great deal and could not sleep. As the result of using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills I am now entirely cured, and can eat any kind of food without feeling any bad effects. They have made a new man and a younger man of me, and I cannot say too much in their praise.

"Dr. Chase's Ointment cured a friend of mine of piles when he was so bad he could not work or even stand up."

Mr. Wm. G. Purdy, Bridgetown, N. S., writes:—"When I wrote to you for Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills I was a sufferer from kidney disease, stomach troubles, and liver and bowel disorders. By using one pill at bedtime every night my health has gradually improved until I can say that I am in better health than I have been for twenty years. All other medicines failed, but Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills have cured me."

This treatment is thorough, far-reaching and of lasting benefit, and cures the most severe cases of chronic and intestinal indigestion, as well as biliousness and constipation; 25 cts. a box, at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto.

D & A FORM-TRAINING CORSET

We have successfully combined in this "D & A FORM TRAINING" MODEL the heretofore irreconcilable quartette:

STYLE GRACE ELEGANCE HYGIENE

A distinctive feature of this corset is the horizontal section at the lower part, which women of full development, especially those exhibiting a tendency toward abdominal prominence, have come to recognize as the only safe and reliable way of training their forms into lines of symmetry and fashionableness.

It is this section which not only serves to conceal the actual weight of the wearer, but successfully persuades the flesh to the hips, and reduces the abdomen very effectually.

Considering its figure reducing and "FORM TRAINING" qualities, this corset at $3.00 is a very economical investment—in fact, it will outwear three ordinary $1.00 corsets.

You will find this style and various other "D & A" MODELS in every good store where corsets are sold, ranging in prices from $5.00 to $1.00.

Synopsis Of Canadian North-West

HOMESTEAD REGULATIONS

Any even numbered section of Dominion Lands in Manitoba or the North-west Provinces, excepting 8 and 26, not reserved, may be homesteaded upon by any person who is the sole head of a family, or any male over 18 years of age, to the extent of one-quarter section, of 160 acres, more or less.

Entry may be made personally at the local land office for the district in which the land is situate.

Homestead Duties. A settler who has been granted an entry for a homestead is required to perform the conditions connected therewith under one of the following plans:—

(1) At least six months' residence upon and cultivation of the land in each year during the term of three years.

(2) If the father (or mother, if the father is deceased) of any person who is eligible to make a homestead entry dwell a farm in the vicinity of the land entered for by such person as a homestead, the requirements of this Act as to residence prior to obtaining patent may be satisfied by such person residing with the father or mother.

(3) If the settler has his permanent residence upon farming land owned by him in the vicinity of his homestead, the requirements of this Act as to residence may be satisfied by residence upon the said land.

Application for patent should be made at the end of three years, before the Local Agent, Sub-Agent or the Homestead Inspector.

Before making application for patent the settler must give six months' notice in writing to the Commissioner of Dominion Lands at Ottawa of his intention to do so.

Deputy of the Minister of the Interior.

to the exit, and the young man, noticing this, became momentarily tongue tied, but nevertheless persisted with a certain awkward doggedness which was not going to allow so slight a hint that his further attendance was unnecessary to baffle him. He did not speak until they had passed down the stone steps to the pavement, and then his utterance began with a half embarrassed stammer, as if the shadow of displeasure demanded justification on his part.

"You—you see, Miss Amhurst, we have been properly introduced."

For the first time he heard the girl laugh, just a little, and the sound was very musical to him.

"The introduction was of the slightest," she said. "I cannot claim even an acquaintance with Mr. Morton, although I did so in the presence of his persistent subordinate. I have met the manager of the bank but once before, and that for a few moments only, when he showed me where to sign my name in a big book."

"Nevertheless," urged Drummond, "I shall defend the validity of that introduction against all comers. The head of a bank is a most important man in every country, and his commendation is really very much sought after."

"You appear to possess it. He complimented your singing, you know." And there was a roguish twinkle in the girl's eye as she glanced up sideways at him, while a smile came to her lips as she saw the color again mount to his cheeks. She had never before met a man who blushed, and she could not help regarding him rather as a big boy than a person to be taken seriously. His stammer became more pronounced.

"I—I think you are laughing at me, Miss Amhurst, and indeed I don't wonder at it, and I—I am afraid you consider me even more persistent than the cashier. But I did want to tell you how sorry I am to have caused you annoyance."

"Oh, you have not done so," replied the girl quickly. "As I said before, it was all my own fault in the beginning."

"No; I shouldn't have taken the gold. I should have come up with you and told you that it still awaited you in the bank. And now I beg your permission to walk down the street with you, because if any one were looking at us from these windows and saw us pursued by a bareheaded man with a revolver they will now, on looking out again, learn that it is all right and may even come to regard the revolver and the hatless one as an optical delusion."

Again the girl laughed.

"I am quite unknown in Bar Harbor, having fewer acquaintances than even a stranger like yourself, therefore so far as I am concerned it does not in the least matter whether any one saw us or not. We shall walk to-

"That was a very jolly song you sang."

gether, then, as far as the spot where the cashier overtook us, and this will give me an opportunity of explaining, if not of excusing, my leaving the money on the counter. I am sure my conduct must have appeared inexplicable both to you and the cashier, although, of course, you would be too polite to say so."

"I assure you, Miss Amhurst"—

"I know what you would say," she interrupted, with a vivacity which had not heretofore characterized her, "but, you see, the distance to the corner is short, and, as I am in a hurry, if you don't wish my story to be continued in our next"—

"Ah, if there is to be a next!" murmured the young man so fervently that it was now the turn of color to redden her cheeks.

"I am talking heedlessly," she said quickly. "What I want to say is this. I have never had much money. Quite recently I inherited what had been accumulated by a relative whom I never knew. It seems so incredible, so strange—well, it seems incredible and strange yet—and I have been expecting to wake and find it all a dream. Indeed, when you overtook me at this spot where we now stand I feared you had come to tell me it was a mistake—to hurl me from the clouds to the hard earth again."

"But it was just the reverse of that," he cried eagerly. "Just the reverse, remember. I came to confirm your dream, and you received from my hand the first of your fortune."

"Yes," she admitted, her eyes fixed on the sidewalk.

"I see how it was," he continued enthusiastically. "I suppose you had never drawn a check before."

"Never," she conceded.

"And this was merely a test. You set up your dream against the hard common sense of a bank, which has no dreams. You were to transform your vision into the actual or find it vanish. When the commonplace cashier passed forth the coin, their jingle said to you, 'The supposed phantasy is real,' but the gold pieces themselves at that supreme moment meant no more to you than so many worthless counters, so you turned your back upon them."

She looked up at him, her eyes, though moist, illumined with pleasure inspired by the sympathy in his tones rather than the import of his words. The girl's life heretofore had been as scant of kindness as of cash, and there was a deep sincerity in his voice which was as refreshing to her lonesome heart as it was new to her experience. This man was not so stupid as he had pretended to be. He had accurately divined the inner meaning of what had happened. She had forgotten the necessity for haste which had been so importunate a few minutes before.

"You must be a mind reader," she said.

"No, I am not at all a clever person," he laughed. "Indeed, as I told you, I am always blundering into trouble and making things uncomfortable, for my friends. I regret to say I am rather under a cloud just now in the service, and I have been called upon to endure the frown of my superiors."

"Why, what has happened?" she asked. After their temporary halt at the corner where they had been overtaken they now strolled along together like old friends, her prohibition out of mind.

"Well, you see, I was temporarily in command of the cruiser coming down the Baltic, and passing an island rock a few miles away I thought it would be a good opportunity to test a new gun that had been put aboard when we left England. The sea was very calm and the rock most temptsome. Of course I knew it was Russian territory, but who could have imagined that such a point in space was inhabited by anything else than seagulls?"

"What!" cried the girl, looking up at him with new interest. "You don't mean to say you are the officer that Russia demanded from England, and England refused to give up?"

"Oh, England could not give me up, of course, but she apologized and assured Russia she had no evil intent. Still, anything that sets the diplomatists at work is frowned upon, and the man who does an act which his government is forced to disclaim becomes unpopular with his superiors."

"I read about it in the papers at the time. Didn't the rock fire back at you?"

"Yes, it did, and no one could have been more surprised than I when I saw the answering puff of smoke."

"How came a cannon to be there?"

"Nobody knows. I suppose that rock in the Baltic is a concealed fort, with galleries and gun rooms cut in the stone after the fashion of our defenses at Gibraltar. I told the court martial that I had added a valuable bit of information to our naval knowledge, but I don't suppose this contention exercised any influence on the minds of my judges. I also called their attention to the fact that my shell had hit, while the Russian shot fell half a mile short. That remark nearly cost me my commission. A court martial has no sense of humor."

"I suppose everything is satisfactorily settled now?"

"Well, hardly that. You see, continental nations are extremely suspicious of Britain's good intentions, as indeed they are of the good intentions of each other. No government likes to have—well, what we might call a 'frontier incident' happen, and even if a country is quite in the right it nevertheless looks askance at any official of its own who through his stupidity brings about an international complication. As concerns myself, I am rather under a cloud, as I told you. The court martial acquitted me, but it did so with reluctance and a warning. I shall have to walk very straight for the next year or two and be careful not to stub my toe, for the eyes of the admiral are upon me. However, I think I can straighten this matter out. I have six months' leave coming on shortly, which I intend to spend in St. Petersburg. I shall make it my business to see privately some of the officials in the admiralty there, and when they realize by personal inspection what a well intentioned idiot I am all distrust will vanish."

"I should do nothing of the kind," rejoined the girl earnestly, quite forgetting the shortness of their acquaintance, as she had forgotten the flight of time, while on his part he did not notice any incongruity in the situation. "I'd leave well enough alone," she added.

"Why do you think that?" he asked.

"Your own country has investigated the matter and has deliberately run the risk of unpleasantness by refusing to give you up. How, then, can you go there voluntarily? You would be acting in your private capacity directly in opposition to the decision arrived at by your government."

"Technically that is so; still England would not hold the position she does in the world today if her men had not often taken a course in their private capacity which the government would never have sanctioned. As things stand now, Russia has not insisted on her demand, but has sullenly accepted England's decision, still quite convinced that my act was not only an invasion of Russia's domain, but a deliberate insult; therefore the worst results of an inconsiderate action on my part remains. If I could see the minister for foreign affairs or the head of the admiralty in St. Petersburg face to face for ten minutes I'd undertake to remove that impression."

"You have great faith in your persuasive powers," she said demurely.

The lieutenant began to stammer again.

"No, no, it isn't so much that, but I have great faith in the Russian as a judge of character. I suppose I am imagined to be a venomous, browbeating, truculent Russophobe, who has maliciously violated their territory, flinging a shell into their ground and an insult into their face. They are quite sincere in this belief. I want to remove that impression, and there's nothing like an ocular demonstration. I like the Russians. One of my best friends is a Russian."

The girl shook her head.

"I shouldn't attempt it," she persisted. "Suppose Russia arrested you and said to England, 'We've got this man in spite of you?'"

The lieutenant laughed heartily.

"That is unthinkable. Russia wouldn't do such a thing. In spite of all that is said about the Russian government its members are gentlemen. Of course if such a thing happened there would be trouble. That is a point where we're touchy. A very cheap Englishman wrongfully detained may cause a most expensive campaign. Our diplomatists may act correctly enough and yet leave a feeling of resentment behind. Take this very case. Britain says coldly to Russia:

"'We disclaim the act and apologise.'

"Now, it would be much more to the purpose if she said genially:

"'We have in our employment an impetuous young fool with a thirst for information. He wished to learn how a new piece of ordnance would act, so fired it off with no more intention of striking Russia than of hitting the moon. He knows much more about dancing than about foreign affairs. We've given him a month's leave, and he will slip across privately to St. Petersburg to apologize and explain. The moment you see him you will recognize he is no menace to the peace of nations. Meanwhile if you can inculcate in him some cold, calm common sense before he returns we'll be ever so much obliged.'"

"So you are determined to do what you think the government should have done."

"Oh, quite. There will be nothing frigidly official about my unauthorized mission. I have a cousin in the embassy at St. Petersburg, but I shan't go near him; neither shall I go to a hotel, but will get quiet rooms somewhere that I may not run the risk of meeting any chance acquaintances."

"It seems to me you are to afford the Russian government an excellent opportunity of spiriting you off to Siberia, and nobody would be the wiser."

Drummond indulged in the free hearted laugh of a youth to whom life is still rather a good joke.

"I shouldn't mind studying the Siberian system from the inside if they allowed me to return before my leave was up. I believe that sort of thing has been exaggerated by sensational writers. The Russian government would not countenance anything of the kind, and if the minor officials tried to play tricks there's always my cousin in the background, and it would be hard luck if I couldn't get a line to him. Oh, there's no danger in my project!"

Suddenly the girl came to a standstill and gave expression to a little cry of dismay.

"What's wrong?" asked the lieutenant.

"Why, we've walked clear out into the country!"

"Oh, is that all? I hadn't noticed."

"And there are people waiting for me. I must run."

"Nonsense, let them wait."

"I should have been back long since."

They had turned, and she was hurrying.

"Think of your new fortune, Miss Amhurst, safely lodged in our friend Morton's bank, and don't hurry for any one."

"I didn't say it was a fortune. There's only $10,000 there."

"That sounds formidable, but unless the people who are waiting for you muster more than $10,000 apiece I don't think you should make haste on their account."

"It's the other way about, Mr. Drummond. Individually they are poorer than I, therefore I should have returned long ago. Now, I fear, they will be in a temper."

"Well, if anybody left me £2,000 I'd take an afternoon off to celebrate. Here we are in the suburbs again. Won't you change your mind and your direction? Let us get back into the country, sit down on the hillside, look at the bay and gloat over your wealth."

Dorothy Amhurst shook her head and held out her hand.

"I must bid you goodby here, Lieutenant Drummond. This is my shortest way home."

"May I not accompany you just a little farther?"

"Please, no. I wish to go the rest of the way alone."

He held her hand, which she tried to withdraw, and spoke with animation.

"There's so much I wanted to say, but perhaps the most important is this: I shall see you the night of the 14th at the ball we are giving on the Consternation?"

"It is very likely," laughed the girl, "unless you overlook me in the throng. There will be a great mob. I hear you have issued many invitations."

"We hope all our friends will come. It's going to be a great function. Your secretary of the navy has promised to look in on us, and our ambassador from Washington will be there. I assure you we are doing our best, with festooned electric lights, hanging draperies and all that, for we want to make the occasion at least remotely worthy of the hospitality we have received. Of course you have your card, but I wish you hadn't, so that I might have the privilege of sending you one or more invitations."

"That would be quite unnecessary," said the girl, again with a slight laugh and heightened color.

"If any of your friends need cards of invitation, won't you let me know so that I may send them to you?"

PIMPLES

ALTHOUGH, NOT A DANGEROUS DISEASE, ARE A VERY TROUBLESOME AND UNSIGHTLY AFFLICTION . . .

They are caused by either poverty or impurity of the blood and require the prompt use of a good blood medicine such as Burdock Blood Bitters, for their eradication, which it speedily accomplishes, at the same time strengthening the entire system. Pimples also often arise from dyspepsia and constipation, and in these cases Burdock Blood Bitters has the double effect of removing the pimples together with their cause.

Mr. D. P. Samson, Osceola, Ont., writes: "I was troubled with pimples all over my face and hands. I paid out money to doctors but they could do me no good. A friend convinced me to try Burdock Blood Bitters, and after using two bottles the pimples vanished, and I have not been troubled with them since."

Burdock Blood Bitters may be procured at all Druggists and Dealers.

CHRONIC CATARRH NOSE AND THROAT

"At the Advice of Friends I Tried Pe-ru-na and the Results Have Been Highly Satisfactory." — So Writes Mr. Pilon.

MR. RAOUL PILON, 116 Rue Notre Dame, Lachine, P.Q., Can., writes:

"I write you a few words to express to you my satisfaction at being cured. I was afflicted with catarrh of the throat and nose and suffered much. I was greatly discouraged. I had a bad breath and bad taste in my mouth in the morning.

"I took treatment for some time without obtaining relief. At the advice of friends I tried Peruna and the results have been highly satisfactory. At the end of four months I was completely cured."

Neglected catarrh becomes chronic. Having developed into the chronic stage, a longer and more persistent treatment will be required to cure it than if the disease were treated at the onset.

However, Peruna will bring relief, whether the catarrh is acute or chronic. If you are wise you will keep Peruna on hand and take a few doses at the first appearance of a cold or cough, and thus save yourself both suffering and expense.

Patients have the privilege of writing to Dr. Hartman for free advice. A book on "Chronic Catarrh" will be sent upon request.

LIQUOR CASE FAILS.

First Charge Against Owen Sound Citizens Is Dismissed.

Owen Sound, Nov. 13.—The Government liquor detectives arrived from Orangeville yesterday afternoon at 1.05, accompanied by License Inspector M. Beckett.

The police joined in the bodyguard on the arrival of the train, and though the star witnesses were occasionally hooted by the "anti-ops" they sustained no physical abuse.

The court room was crowded to the doors, and Magistrate Creasor never had such a house. The "standing room only" sign would have been good at any hour of the proceedings.

James Henderson, lessee of the Central Hotel bar, like all the other fifteen defendants, fought his case. Evidence was taken, but was not conclusive, and Henderson was acquitted.

The fact that the defendants will contest the complaints, which will be proceeded with to-day, makes it look serious for the "prominent citizens" who may, in consequence, have to be called by the prosecution to give evidence. Then their wives will know why they got in with the latch key on Thanksgiving night and hung their overcoats on the gasoliers.

Mrs. Ryan, who is alleged to have fought back the increasing thirst of the natives around Rockford, and on occasions afforded moisture for the whistles of the neighborhood cattle buyers, was up before John Rutherford, J. P., last night. The case was adjourned until to-night.

At the hour this despatch was filed the liquor detectives were still safe, but anxious, and feeling like a visiting lacrosse team on its way to the outgoing steamer.

SHOT WHILE MAKING ARREST.

Patrolman Wilson Fatally Injured by Roughs at Detroit.

St. Thomas, Nov. 13.—Mr. Edward Pye of Yarmouth, formerly M. C. R. engineer of this city, received word Monday that his son-in-law, Geo. H. Wilson of Detroit was dying as the result of a murderous attack early Monday morning.

Mr. Wilson is a patrolman on the Detroit police force and was fulfilling his duties in the tenderloin district, attempting to quell a disturbance when the tragedy occurred. He was shot three times through the head by one of about a dozen men who demanded that he release one of their number whom he had arrested for disorderly conduct.

The shooting took place about 1.15 o'clock Monday morning, in the heart of the tenderloin district in Champlain street. The arrest was made in front of No. 66, while on the way to the signal alarm box at Beaublien street and Champlain with his prisoner. A great blotch of blood in the snow on the sidewalk Monday morning told the story of the temporary mastery of the assassins over the law.

As soon as the alarm reached police headquarters a cordon of police and detectives was thrown about the scene of the shooting. An immense crowd of the disreputables of the district, inmates of the resorts and callers, gathered about the scene. The crowd gave the assassin and his outlaw mob a good chance to escape.

Hamilton Street Car Smash.

Hamilton, Nov. 13.—There was a bad smash between a street car and a Grand Trunk freight train at the corner of King street and Ferguson avenue about 3.30 yesterday afternoon. The street car was going east, and as it approached the crossing Motorman McIlwraith found that he was unable to stop it. He jumped, and the car crashed into the freight train, which dragged it some distance. There were a number of passengers in the car, and they were badly shaken up. Walter Howell, druggist, King and Emerald streets, sustained a broken leg, and W. W. Hesson of 82 Sovereign street, Toronto, was hurt about the back and arms. Several others were badly shaken up. Conductor Ryerse also had one leg injured. The vestibule of the car was completely wrecked, and one of the freight cars was also badly damaged.

Thomas Burns Released.

Ottawa, Nov. 13.—At the inquest yesterday at Osgoode, upon the death of Martha Burns, wife of Thomas Burns, who died and was buried in quick order and whose husband left the village.

A verdict of not guilty was returned. Analysis Ellis of Toronto, wired that he could not swear to strychnine in the stomach.

Neighbors in the village had spread stories of the man illusing his deceased wife, but no definite evidence could be gathered at the inquest.

McFadden Gets Two Years.

Trenton, N. J., Nov. 13.—Judge William M. Lanning, in the United States District Court yesterday imposed a sentence of two years at hard labor in the New Jersey State Prison, and a fine of $2,000 on Barnard McFadden, editor of the magazine Physical Culture, for violation of the postal laws of the United States by sending objectionable literature through the mails. McFadden's counsel took an appeal, after having made application for a new trial, which was denied.

COUNTERFEITER WAS BUSY.

Made Profit of 50 Per Cent on Pure Coins.

New York, Nov. 13.—The arraignment of Herman Hense before United States Commissioner Shields yesterday by United States secret service officers, on the charge of counterfeiting, brought to light what they regard as one of the most important finds in the counterfeiting business in recent years. Hense was held for the Federal grand jury.

According to statements made to the commissioner, Hense has been producing half dollars of practically pure silver, so skilfully made that only experts could detect them. The plant where the coins were produced was said to be in a secluded spot in the Ramapo Mountains, in Rockland County. The present price of silver, it was said, enabled him to purchase bar silver, or old silver for remelting, and turn out coins of standard weight and fineness at a profit of 50 per cent. About 200 of the coins had been circulated in New York before the officers secured the clue which led to Hense's arrest.

Trolley Smashed Carriage.

New York, Nov. 13.—Edward W. Johnson, assistant superintendent of the Standard Oil Works at Bayonne, N. J., died there yesterday, and Henry Ohning, Johnson's assistant, is dying as a result of injuries they received Monday night when the carriage in which they were riding was struck by a trolley car at Fifth street in that city.

A WONDERFUL CURE OF RHEUMATISM

THE CAUSE An excess of uric acid and ureates are deposited in the tissues of the body and joints, causing aches and pains which are called rheumatic.

All the various causes of rheumatism, such as the acute, articular, muscular and gout, have the same common cause—Uric Acid.

To effect a satisfactory cure the uric acid must be removed. This can only be done by introducing into the circulation a remedy which will dissolve the uric acid and stimulate the action of the excretory organs.

No Case That Ferrozone Can't Cure

The remarkable success of Ferrozone is due to the fact that it attacks the disease in the blood. It goes right to the root and cause of the trouble.

Ferrozone is a perfect solvent for uric acid and quickly destroys its evil effect. It stimulates and quickens the sluggish circulation and drives every trace of rheumatic poison out of the system.

Rheumatism Can't Last If FERROZONE is Used.

We have conclusive proof of this. The strongest possible endorsements from people who have been cured after all else failed. If you suffer from rheumatism yourself, or in case you have a friend or relative subject to this disease, read the following—they tell their own tale.

LIFE-LONG CRIPPLE CURED

Mr. Louis Noll, 15 Fulton street, New York, N. Y., writes: "Ever since boyhood I have been a sufferer from rheumatism. My joints were twisted and swollen, and the pain at times was really intense. I used gallons of liniments, vapor baths, and other treatments, but was first noticeably relieved by Ferrozone. It cured me perfectly after taking twelve boxes."

Mr. Henry Heer, Pharmacist, 23 Eldridge Ave., New York, vouches for Mr. Noll's absolute cure. He says: "Mr. Noll was been freed from chronic rheumatism by Ferrozone. For years he has not been so well, and today shows no signs of rheumatic trouble. It is a pleasure to recommend Ferrozone."

The BEST remedy for rheumatism that science has produced is Ferrozone—it is unquestionably the only sure and lasting cure. Sold everywhere by druggists. Price 50c per box or six boxes for $2.50—by mail to any address if price is forwarded to N. C. POLSON & CO., Kingston, Ont., and Hartford, Conn., U.S.A.

SLEUTH QUOTES THE BIBLE.

Steve Adams Again on Trial For the Murder of a Claim-Jumper.

Rathdrum, Idaho, Nov. 13.—At the second trial of Steve Adams for the murder of Fred Tyler, a claim jumper, Attorney Darrow, of the defence, following out the scheme used at the first trial, called James McParland, of the Pinkerton agency, for cross-examination. McParland said he got Adams to acknowledge his part in the murder of former Governor Frank Steunenberg.

"I told Adams," he said, "that he would better make a clean breast of the whole affair, as he would feel much better, and it was a debt that he owed to the state and to the law and order; that he was a tool, and he admitted it. I used the Bible stories of David and Paul as illustration of what it benefited a man when he repented of a crime and that he might be redeemed."

"By whom," asked Mr. Darrow.

"By God, of course," said McParland.

"You did not tell him that you would forgive him and that you would save his soul?" asked the lawyer.

"I have not the power of absolution," replied McParland.

"Did you make Adams any promises?"

"I told him I believed that the state would be fair; I told him of Jerry, the Bum of the Mollie Maguires, who was not prosecuted when he turned states evidence, after having had a hand in the killing of Daniel W. Ray."

S. C. Thiel said that Adams confessed to the Tyler murder to him three weeks after he had confessed to McParland his part in the Steunenberg murder. Thiel told of joining the Western Federation of Miners at Butte in 1904, when he was working there for the Pinkertons.

KING TOASTS KAISER.

Emperor William Expresses Hope For Closer Unity of Nations.

Windsor, Nov. 13.—In the historic hall of St. George yesterday Emperor William and the Empress were dined.

The speeches made by King Edward and Emperor William were formal in tone. They consisted in reciprocal expressions of the pleasure the visit afforded, and of a mutual desire for the maintenance of peace and friendship between the two nations.

Emperor William alluded gracefully to his happy childhood under the roof and within the walls of grand old Windsor Castle, and he expressed the earnest wish that the close relationship existing between the two royal families should be reflected in the relations of the two countries, and thus confirm the peace of the world, which, he said, was the constant endeavor of King Edward and himself.

At the conclusion of the state visit at Windsor Castle, Nov. 18, Emperor William will spend a fortnight at High Cliffe Castle at Christchurch, near Bournemouth, a beautiful sequestered spot of historic associations. King Edward, the King of Spain and other royal personages have often stayed at High Cliffe Castle.

Hotelkeeper Arrested.

St. Catharines, Nov. 13.—Stuart Nelson, proprietor of the Union Hotel, Merritton, is in custody on a serious charge.

A quantity of lumber has been missed from the new station being built by the Niagara, St. Catharines and Toronto Co. and no trace of the missing goods could be found. Chief Moffatt, Merritton, accompanied by Provincial Officer Kelley, Niagara Falls, traced the goods to a barn in the rear of the hotel, but Nelson, although he denied the theft, refused to give the name of the guilty party and the company had the warrant issued for his arrest on the charge of receiving stolen articles.

Big Steamer Wrecked.

Vancouver, Nov. 13.—Because her master was in a hurry to reach Vancouver and did not stop at Victoria to pick up a pilot, the big steamship Indroville, formerly on the Portland Oriental route, lies a wreck at the end of Henry Island, in the centre of the Gulf of Georgia.

The crew got safety ashore, although the forward part of the big vessel was full of water. Whether the wreck occurred in Canada or the United States is a question that agents in Vancouver are trying to settle. It is believed the steamer has been wrecked directly on the international boundary line.

Trial by Railway Men.

Brampton, Nov. 13.—The trial of Engineer Hodges and Conductor Grimes, accused of negligence, which caused the wreck of the exhibition special at Caledon curve on Sept. 3, did not go before Justice Magee at the Assizes here yesterday, as a civil suit which commenced yesterday was not concluded in time. The first witness in this important trial will be called after lunch to-day.

The line of defence will be that the ill-fated train was not running at excessive speed, and that the engine, of which Hodges was in charge, was a "roller," and had been taken off another division as unfit for that roadbed.

In all, about 40 witnesses will be examined at the trial, which will probably conclude Thursday night.

W. N. Davidson of Toronto is prosecuting attorney and T. C. Robinette appears for the defence.

CANAL GATES SWEPT AWAY

Disaster in Lachine Canal Causes $50,000 Damage.

STEAMER REGINA IS SUNK

Barge Carried Down River—Collides With Ocean Liner—Misunderstanding of Orders Drives the Steamer Neepawa Full Speed Against Lock Gates—Narrow Escape of Captain and His Family.

Montreal, Nov. 13.—Through some misunderstanding between the officers and engineer of the steamer Neepawa, that boat caused $50,000 damage to the shipping in Montreal harbor last night. She was entering lock No. 1 and the captain gave orders to reverse as she neared the lock. This was misunderstood, and the boat went full steam ahead and carried away the lock gates. There was a drop of 12 feet, and the boat was swept down this into the river, but escaped serious damage. Three barges above her in the locks were not so fortunate. These three, the Hurona, the Regina and the Bella, belonging to the Montreal Transportation Co., were swept down into the river, and collided with the wharf and other boats.

The Regina was caught in the huge wave and swept into the river and sunk near the Corsican of the Allan line. The Regina was loaded with 25,000 bushels of wheat, and had on board Capt. Malette, his wife and four children, but they managed to escape as the boat sank under them. She is in 40 feet of water, and is damaged to the extent of $5,000, in addition to the value of the wheat.

The Hurona was caught against the lock and damaged to a considerable extent. She was loaded with 28,000 bushels of wheat and flax, and has three feet of water in her hold. Her damage will be to the extent of $5,000. The Bella was tied to the wharf, and escaped injury, not being carried away by the rush of water.

There is $5,000 damage done to the wharves and locks as well as the delay and inconvenience to navigation. Officials state that the damaged locks will be fixed up inside of 24 hours, and in the meantime the old locks can be used by boats which do not draw more than 14 feet. The whole affair will be investigated by Commander Spain.

WANT GERMAN ENTENTE.

Kaiser's Visit to Cement Two Nations In Closer Friendship.

Windsor, Eng., Nov. 13.—"There is no intention of discussing at Windsor any concrete political questions," said Herr Von Schoen, secretary of the German Foreign Office, who is accompanying Emperor William on His Majesty's visit to England.

"Germany and England are in the happy position of having no actual political questions outstanding, but we hope and believe that the Emperor's visit will bring about a renewal of the old-time affectionate relations between the two countries. Their relations have always been correct, but this is not enough. There is an increasing desire that they become something more. Germany does not look for any specially defined political agreement or understanding that might give rise to apprehension in the case of any other power. My hope simply is that the relations between the two Governments may become more closely assimilated to the not only correct but affectionate relations existing between the reigning houses."

A Board of Conciliation.

Ottawa, Nov. 13.—The Labor Department has received an application from the employes of the Strathcona Coal Co. of Alberta for a board of conciliation and investigation in connection with the miners' demands for an eight-hour day and changes in wages schedule, etc. Some forty men are affected.

LITTLE CHILD CUT TO PIECES

Fiendish Crime Discovered in North Vancouver.

WAS WORK OF DEGENERATE

Body of Seven-Year-Old Girl Found in Londsdale Gardens—Had Been Slashed With Razors—Bottle of Gin Was Lying By—Child Had Been Missing Since Saturday—Was Sent For Groceries.

Vancouver, B. C., Nov. 13.—Clementine Nahu, seven-year-old daughter of Capt. Nahu, was murdered at North Vancouver on Saturday. The crime is one of the most horrible that ever occurred in British Columbia.

The little girl had been ill-treated by a fiend whose actions were too fearful to describe. The body of the child was found amongst the bushes in Londsdale gardens yesterday afternoon. She had been killed by cuts with two razors which lay on the ground alongside her remains. Her body was cut to pieces. A bottle of gin was picked up nearby.

The child lived with her parents at Moodyville, and on Saturday she was sent to North Vancouver with orders on the store. The orders were not filled and the child was at once searched for. Provincial police and the whole town searched all Saturday, Sunday, Monday and yesterday. Police have gone to North Vancouver from this city, but so far no arrests have been made.

Evidence at Inquest on St. Catharines Man—Vance Arrested.

St. Catharines, Nov. 13.—Coroner Merritt yesterday opened an inquest into the death of James Archibald Pattison.

Dr. M. J. Mulock and Dr. S. H. McCoy, who had attended deceased on Sunday, and who made a postmortem examination, both swore positively that death resulted from septic meningitis, caused by a blow from a stone. Both tables of the skull had been fractured an inch deep for a length of an inch and a half, and the inner fragment had been broken loose and and adhered to brain and that evidence was distinct that the injury had been caused at the time of the street fight.

John Butler saw Vance go out on the road and pick up a stone, run to the corner, where he overtook Pattison, and threw the stone, hitting him on the head.

The jury took a little over half an hour to return the following verdict: "That said James Pattison came to his death from a stone thrown by one George L. Vance on the evening of Sept. 21, A. D. 1907, striking deceased on the head and fracturing the skull, and from the evidence given we are convinced that the said blow was the cause of his death on the eleventh day of November inst."

Upon the finding R. E. Boyle, high constable, swore out a warrant charging Vance with manslaughter, and the charge was laid before Police Magistrate Comfort, who, after reading the information to Vance, remanded him till Monday next for preliminary hearing.

Jail Breaker Arrested.

Belleville, Nov. 13.—In July last Michael Ryan and Albert McKeown escaped from Whitby jail, where they were serving a sentence for burglary in Oshawa. Monday night Ryan was arrested here on a charge of stealing a coat, and confessed that he was one of the Whitby jail-breakers.

Forty Seriously Injured.

Seattle, Wash., Nov. 13.—Forty men, women, and children were injured, twenty-six seriously, in a street car accident Monday, when two speeding cars crashed into each other in a dense fog.

ANOTHER FATAL TRAIN WRECK

Fireman Mooney Killed in Accident on C.P.R. at St. Clet.

TWO OTHERS BADLY SCALDED

Signals Were Disregarded — Freight Train Crashed Into Engine of Another While Taking Water—Impact Was Terrific—Sixteen Cars Smashed Into Kindling Wood—Engineer Jumped in Time.

Smith's Falls, Nov. 13.—A rear-end collision which occurred on the C.P.R. at St. Clet, about one o'clock yesterday morning, caused the death of Fireman Daniel Mooney of this place, and the destruction of an engine and fourteen cars.

A freight was taking water at St. Clet when another one eastbound dashed into it.

Arthur Rennick, engineer of the moving freight, saw the other standing on the track just ahead of him, but could not stop his train. He jumped and escaped. Mooney got caught in the wreck and was instantly killed.

Brakemen S. A. Mayhew and P. Collins escaped with slight injuries. All the men belonged to Smith's Falls.

No one was injured on the standing freight. Passenger trains are being sent by way of Ottawa. Mr. Mooney leaves a wife and three small children.

PATHETIC SCENE IN COURT.

Daughter Gives Evidence Against Her Mother In Alienation Suit.

Brampton, Nov. 13.—Minnie Henry, daughter of John Henry, who is suing William Mothersill for $20,000 for alienation of his wife's affections, was a pathetic figure on the witness stand when telling of what she had seen in the house. She declared she and the girls hid behind the piano in the front room and witnessed a meeting between Mothersill and Mrs. Henry.

The witness broke down repeatedly while telling her story to Hartley Dewart, K. C., counsel for the plaintiff.

She and her sisters ordered Mothersill off the farm on one occasion, and at another time on their return from a drive to Georgetown they found their father crying on the steps.

At present the mother lives in the north wing of the house alone. "I think she is broken-hearted," said the girl. "What is your attitude?"

"We love her, she is our mother," said the witness brokenly. Mothersill sat in the court, ruddy-faced and heavy.

The witness swore that in 1902 Mothersill threatened to kill her because she would not leave him and her mother alone.

FIGHT AGAINST GALLOWS.

Two Lives in Balance—Cases Go to Appeal Court.

Toronto, Nov. 13.—J. G. Farmer of Hamilton, as counsel for Jake Sunfield, under sentence of death for murder, yesterday applied to the Court of Appeal for leave to appeal from the decision of Chief Justice Falconbridge refusing a stated case. Owing to the absence of the chief justice, no decision was given.

The defence contended that Radzyk's statement to a witness, "Jake shoot; no doctor, me die" was not a dying declaration, as there was nothing to show he was in a hopeless state. Radzyk's reply had been made in a voice just above a whisper, so that the prisoner could not hear it, and he had no opportunity of denying it.

A similar motion was made on behalf of William Paul of Kenora, Ont., who killed Kenrick Shilling of Pinewood.

Blind Pigs Raided.

Cobalt, Nov. 13.—Jack Maki, a foreigner, was fined $50 and costs or three months in jail for pointing a revolver at a policeman who attempted to separate him and another Finn in a fight.

Alexander Blondin and James Wakefield were fined $100 and costs, and $50 and costs, respectively, by Magistrate Browne for keeping "blind pigs."

Small fines were also imposed on three others for disorderly conduct. The fines yesterday totalled $225. Three more cases for the illegal selling of liquor will be heard to-day.

Scalded by Hot Water.

London, Nov. 13.—Alice Curnoe, the little three-year-old daughter of Mr. John Curnoe of Wellington street, was probably fatally injured Monday night shortly after six o'clock by falling into a pail of boiling water. The little tot was playing about the kitchen and backed into the water, which had been placed there but a moment before. She was taken out at once and Dr. John D. Wilson summoned. He found that her back had been frightfully scalded, and fears that she may not recover.

Check Workers Wanted.

Toronto, Nov. 13.—R. L. Oliver and Harry H. Groote, arrested in Bridgeburg, Ont., are wanted for working worthless checks here. It is for this that they are under arrest.

While here Groote was at the King Edward Hotel and Oliver at the Queen's. It is alleged that Oliver attempted to pass a check drawn against the account of the Acme Tool Co. of Oshkosh, N. Y., for $100. The police now hold the check and say that no such firm as described exists.

Three Miners Killed.

Vancouver, B. C., Nov. 13.—A frightful explosion of dynamite occurred Monday in the coal properties being opened by the Canadian Pacific Railway at Hosmer, B. C., and as a result three of the miners lost their lives.

Gin House Exploded.

Pine Bluff, Ark., Nov. 13.—A boiler in the gin house of the Trulock plantation, near here, exploded yesterday, killing the owner, J. B. B. Trulock and five negroes, and demolishing the gin house.

GERMAN ATTACHE RECALLED.

Sequel to Sensation in French Naval Circles.

Paris, Nov. 13.—A special despatch from Wilhelmshaven, Prussia, announcing a report that Rear Admiral Sogel, the German Naval Attache here, has been recalled, is printed here as an item of sensational news, presumably in connection with a recent discovery of treason in the French navy and espionage on the part of agents of a foreign power.

Ensign Charles B. Ullmo, of the French navy, was arrested at Toulon, Oct. 25 on the charge of being a spy. An examination of his effects showed him to have been in possession of many valuable documents, and he afterwards confessed to having abstracted a secret signal book and a naval cipher. An army reserve officer named Burton, was afterwards arrested at Vendome on similar charges.

At Toulon, Nov. 10, five ringleaders of what would appear to be a most important association of international spies, which apparently have been carrying on an extensive traffic in military and naval secrets, were arrested, and it was understood that warrants had been issued for the apprehension of more suspects.

The authorities of Toulon Monday searched the local postoffice, and among other things found a telegram, apparently sent by Ensign Ullmo to a German agent, offering to sell information concerning the defences of France.

Burglar Binds Woman.

Windsor, Nov. 13.—Mrs. Steers, 60 years of age, staggered from her home on Caron avenue Monday evening with blood oozing from her mouth and told her neighbors that a strange man had entered her house while she was alone and, with a revolver held to her head, compelled her to stand while he bound her arms with strips of clothing. He then struck her a heavy blow on the mouth, knocking her down and ransacked the house. Finding no money he decamped.

Damages at Vancouver.

Ottawa, Nov. 13.—A report from W. L. Mackenzie King to the Secretary of States says that final adjustment has been made of all the damage claims of the Japanese in Vancouver in connection with the riots of last September. Mr. King has awarded damages totaling $10,775 on 56 claims presented. The total amount asked for was $13,500.

Stole Men's Wages.

Trinidad, Colo., Nov. 13.—The sum of $20,000 belonging to the American Smelting & Refining Co., which was to be used to pay employes, was stolen near Trinidad Monday night. The money was taken from a buggy which was being driven by the paymaster and another man. No arrests have been made, but two men are under suspicion.

PETERBOROUGH WEDNESDAY NOVEMBER 13 1907

CONTRACT HAS BEEN AWARDED FOR CONSTRUCTION OF THE TRENTON SECTION OF TRENT VALLEY CANAL

Secured by English Firm In Montreal At The Contract Price Of $870,000 — Excavation Work This Winter

3 LOCKS AND 3 DAMS

Territory Extends Over a Distance Of Four And a Half Miles—To Be Completed By March 31, 1909

That the Trent Canal is considered of great importance by the Dominion Government for traffic purposes is again illustrated by the awarding of the contract of Section No. 1, announced to-day by Superintending Engineer Grant, which is the second section of the beginning of the end of the great waterway.

The contract was awarded to Mr. Louis P. Nott of Montreal, an English firm, for the contract price of $870,000.

Section No. 1, of the Trent Canal, is practically all that portion extending from the Bay of Quinte, until the second section is met with. Strictly speaking, it begins at the point that marks deep water above the Trenton bridge, about one-half a mile above the Bay, to one mile above Glen Miller Bridge. This distance is estimated at 4 1-2 miles in length, and in the construction of it there will be three dams and three locks necessary.

The Elevation

The first two locks will have a lift of 20 feet each and the third a lift of 27 feet. The first one will be situated at the crossing of the main line of the G.T.R. at Trenton, near the station; the second, one half mile above, on the Trent River, and the third at Glen Miller Bridge.

The contract was awarded last week by the Government, and the work will begin as soon as the plant has been installed on the ground. It is probable, therefore, that the excavation work on the rock, etc., will begin this winter. The agreement with the contractors stipulates that the work must be completed by March 31, 1909.

Two Contracts Let.

By the awarding of the contract for the first section of the canal, two of the sections below Peterborough will soon be under way—the first and the fifth.

The work on the latter is being rapidly pushed forward by the contractors, Messrs. Brown and Aylmer, and already two thirds of the dam at the Middle Falls has been constructed. Already this contract amounts to $560,000, and of this about $325,000 has been spent so far. Brown and Aylmer have to construct two dams and two locks, besides the excavation work.

The Government it will be remembered, appropriated at the last session, $700,000 to be spent during the present fiscal year, on work on the Trent Canal Waterway.

The Rosedale Section

The next contract to be let will be that of the Rosedale Section between Cameron and Balsam Lakes, and west of Fenelon Falls. A new lock, a new dam, and a short neck of land between the two lakes belong to this portion. The contract for this will be let in the course of a few days. The work will be done to the same dimensions as on the Rice Lake section. The locks will be 8 feet 4 inches deep on the sills, and 9 feet in the canal. The lock chamber will be 176 feet between the quoins and 33 feet in width.

Varicose Ulcers Cured

Mrs. Elisabeth Campbell, of 20 Sheridan avenue, Toronto, states, — "About eight years ago I hurt my leg near the ankle, and the result was what doctors called varicose sores. I was treated in two Toronto hospitals and sent away without being cured. From the very first Dr. Chase's Ointment helped me, and by persistent use it has entirely cured me."

OBITUARY.

JAMES ALLEN

Yesterday evening, Mr. Robert Allen of Douro, received a telegram from Grand Forks, B. C., informing him of the death of his son, James, from typhoid fever. The deceased was only 24 years of age, and had been ill but one month, when called away by death yesterday morning. He has been in the west but 18 months, and his demise was entirely unexpected by his friends here. Besides his parents he is survived by five brothers and three sisters. They are William John, Joseph and Edmond in British Columbia, Edmund and Leo at home, and Mrs. William Young, Mary and Spatia, in Douro. The funeral will take place to-morrow, the remains to be buried in Grand Forks.

A POOR LUMBERING SEASON IS IN STORE, SAYS A PETERBOROUGH MAN

According to the statement made by a prominent lumberman of this city, it looks as if the lumbering season this year will be a poor one. "The camps are all filled up now," he said, "and we need no more men. The lumbering business, so far, has been extremely poor. I think that the lumbermen in Ontario, will curtail their cut. As far as I can make out, the trouble seems to be the high price of feed, and the big wages demanded by the men." This will prove a serious matter to a number of men around Peterborough, who work on farms in the summer, and go back to the woods in the winter.

A DECORATOR FALLS FROM ST. PAUL'S CHURCH SCAFFOLD; SUSTAINS SEVERE INJURIES

Nose May Be Broken In His 20 Feet Fall—Scaffold Gave Way

HIS LEG BADLY INJURED

While engaged in making the decorations in St. Paul's church, Wm. Monroe, of Toronto, one of the workmen had a narrow escape from death by falling from a scaffold. He was working about 20 feet from the floor when the accident occurred and had he been over the seats there is little doubt that his injuries would have proved fatal.

The fall occurred about 11.30 o'clock and was a total surprise to the victim. One of the planks of the scaffold broke, letting him down to the floor near the door. He fell, feet downward, but nevertheless received an ugly would on the side of the nose. How this occurred Mr. Monroe could not imagine as he doesn't remember striking his head against anything hard. His nose was out half way around and it may be that it was broken in the accident.

The most painful part of his body, however, was his right leg upon which he fell. This afternoon he was unable to touch it to the ground and if it is not broken it is badly sprained.

Mr. Monroe was picked up partially unconscious and carried by his associate workmen from the church to the Crown Hotel, where he has been boarding. He expects to be able to work again in a few days, but the appearance of his wounds do not forbode activity for some weeks to come.

DULL STOCK MARKET TO-DAY

A Call For 10 Per Cent. To Be Made On The U. S. Government Deposits In National Banks

THE SELLING STOPS EARLY

(J. R. Heintz & Co. Special.)

New York, Nov. 13. — The stock market was narrow and dull to-day with an inclination towards heaviness. Opening prices were fractionally lower all around, with some pressure in the copper and smelting stocks. After the first hour the selling stopped, and while shorts covered the market improved a point or so, Reading and Union Pacific again showing the best tone.

In the afternoon a rumour went round that the secretary of the treasury will shortly call for 10 per cent. of the U. S. Government deposits in the national banks, on approximately $22,700,000. It is to be noted that the amount of gold engaged but yet to arrive from Europe corresponds very closely with the total of the impending call. The proportion of the call from the New York City banks would be $7,800,230. The market sagged off again on the above rumour, and then relapsed into dullness again.

London tardiness influenced by better advise from the continent. Under the influence of higher Liverpool cables and a disposition on the part of foreigners to buy all the wheat in sight here for export, the grain markets were strong and higher, with wheat up nearly three cents. Cotton was fractionally higher also.

COUNTERFEIT QUARTERS ARE IN THE CITY; KEEP AN EYE ON YOUR CHANGE

The citizens are advised to keep their eyes open for counterfeit quarters that are reported to be floating around. Several of them have within the past few days been located, and it is probable that many more are being passed that have not yet been recognized as valueless.

The bank teller of one of the local banks has met with a few of the counterfeits, and states that he has heard of several outside banking circles refer to the bad money which may possibly have hailed from Lindsay.

A hardware merchant also states that yesterday he ran across one of the useless pieces, paying out fifteen cents in change for what he considered to be a 25-cent Canadian piece of money. The hardware man, however, was not to be beaten, and before the man with the lead quarter escaped, had noticed the mistake. The guilty one looked very guilty, he states, and was compelled to turn over good money and take back his counterfeit.

LOCAL MAN HAD SOME RIBS FRACTURED IN A RUNAWAY

A runaway accident occurred last night between 5 and 6 o'clock at the corner of McDonel and Aylmer streets. The central figure was Mr. Mark Spencely of Bethune street.

Mr. Spencely was driving north on Aylmer street, and upon coming to McDonel street he met another vehicle going east. His horse took fright and bolted. The driver, who was totally unprepared for a runaway, was thrown out of the buggy and alighted on the cement pavement on McDonel street, fracturing his ribs and hurting his left arm. The buggy was overturned in the accident and the shafts smashed. Mr. Spencely was taken to his home on Bethune street and has been confined to his bed to-day.

A YOUNG MAN MAKES THREE MILLION IN SIX WEEKS ON THE WALL STREET MARKET

Does Not Care To Discuss His Personal Affairs — Some Incidents of His Career

UNKNOWN TO FINANCIERS

Examiner Special

New York, Nov. 13.—If Wall street had balanced last night its accounts for the past six weeks, it would have discovered that at least $3,000,000 has been taken from the coffers by an unknown hand. That sum is "missing" in the sense that not half a dozen of the best-informed financiers could say into whose pockets the money has gone. It may, therefore surprise Wall street to learn today that a beardless fortune-hunter of 28 has the money.

His name is J. L. Livermore. He has been waiting patiently these five years for his opportunity. It came during the recent bean market, and Livermore operated on a scale which meant that he would either have princely wealth or become a pauper.

Mr. Livermore received a reporter last night in his splendidly-appointed apartments at No. 194 Riverside drive.

"I prefer not to discuss my personal affairs," he said. "Few men in Wall street know me, and I prefer not to be known. When a man has been successful down there, Wall street is looking for him. There are those who have won fortunes in the market and heralded their success. I prefer to enjoy my gains as quietly as I won them."

Mr. Livermore's hair is almost white, but not from illness or premature age. He speaks rapidly, and his words are clean-cut. He looks less than his 28 years, yet he has been "in the market" since a lad of 17. At that time he was employed as a "marker" in a Boston broker's office. It was in those days that he determined to realise his dream of becoming a millionaire. He saved his pennies to that end. When he had accumulated dollars he took a "flyer" in the bucket shops.

As a youth he was secretive concerning his business. Few knew he had left Boston to operate on a larger scale. He met with indifferent success.

It was after several bucket shop proprietors had "welched" on account of the big deals which Mr. Livermore put through in their offices that he decided seven years ago to come to New York and enter Wall street.

ROCK IN THE BALTIC BY ROBERT BARR

The thrilling story of "A Rock in the Baltic" has been secured by the Examiner for its readers, and the first chapter appears in this issue. This book was written by the well-known Canadian, Robert Barr, and is an intensely interesting story of thrilling intrigue and heart interest. It is a tale worth while reading, and none should miss the opening chapter of the story.

THE DUMMER HUNTERS MAKE GOOD IN FIRST DAY'S HUNT

Warsaw, Nov. 13.—(Special) — Some stories of rare sport have come from the hunting grounds in the north to village, but the most sensational of them all was the capture of two big black bear by the Payne party, who have been in the woods over a week.

The first day of their arrival on the scene they captured the two bear. The animals were fine specimens from reports received here and their captures are said to be of an exciting character.

One of the party sighted a fine Bruin some distance off and before he could bring him to earth had disappeared in a large beaver marsh. Another of the nimrods happened to be in the vicinity and easily shot the bear. The other was making his way towards one of the inexperienced members of the party who imagined an attack, but was shot before he reached his destination.

The party secured four deer the same day.

BIRTH

ROBERTSON—At "Weatherdale," St. Charles street, Victoria, B.C., on October 15, 1907, the wife of Harold B. Robertson, of a son.

SPORTING VIEWS AND NEWS

An interesting controversy will be decided a week from Saturday when the two veteran walkers, Dave Hartley and Jimmy Reynolds, will meet at the Mutual street rink.

The two men will walk for twelve hours, and something like sixty miles should be covered. The finish will be about 10.30 at night.

There is, of course, much difference between a walk round a track in a covered building and treading the open road in all kinds of weather, and this will be a great factor in the outcome of the race.

When the records of the two men are compared the race looks like Hartley's all the way, for the Peterborough man covered the first sixty miles of his journey in a whirl of speed, and it was in this half that he broke Reynolds' record. However, the circumstances are different, and the result may be different also. — Toronto Telegram.

A professional hockey league was organized yesterday composed of teams from Berlin, Toronto, Guelph and Brantford, with a prospect of London forming a fifth member. The league should have a successful season. All will have strong line-ups, and as the traveling expenses will not be unduly heavy there should be no difficulty from a financial standpoint. The O.H.A. has lost some of its best teams by the formation of the new league.

• • • •

With Norwood, Keene and Lakefield in the City League this season there should be some great hockey. All the outside teams will be strong and they will no doubt put up a great fight for the league championship. All games will be played on Peterborough ice as usual. The season should be the best in the history of the league under these circumstances.

ATHLETIC ASSOCIATION TO GOVERN ALL BRANCHES OF SPORT IN PETERBOROUGH

RE-ELECTED ONCE MORE PRESIDENT OF CITY HOCKEY LEAGUE

MR. FRED A. CLARKE

Unanimously Re-elected at Last Night's Meeting

Would Render The Financing Of The Different Games an Easier Matter—Club House Would Be Built

HAVE LARGE MEMBERSHIP

The suggestion has often times been made that an athletic association should be formed in Peterborough for the control and government of all forms of athletic sport in this city. The idea is to have a club which would direct the movements of the different lines of sport, instead of having them under different managements as they are at present, and there is much to be said in favour of such a scheme. It can easily be seen that with all sports under one management the financing of the different teams is a much more simpler matter than under the present system for the reason that if one branch of sport is not a paying proposition the support given the others will counter-balance the deficit. Then again the membership of such a club would be a large one, and from the members themselves considerable support could be derived. The plan would be to build or secure quarters near the river and the athletic grounds where it would be possible for the members to indulge in boating and other aquatic sports, as well as to engage in the field games.

There would surely be no difficulty in securing a large membership for such an organization, and if anything is to be accomplished for next season the work should be commenced at once and carried on through the winter.

Mr. D. Fraser, Proprietor, Has Let Contract for Plumbing And Decorating

General improvements are being made in the Snowden House which will keep it up to the standard of modern hotels. Mr. F. R. J. MacPherson has the contract of installing a new furnace and complete heating system, with a radiator in each of the rooms. Mr. Fraser, the proprietor, has in view the comfort of his patrons, and this system of heating will ward off any blast of winter. Messrs. Sharp and Manning, painters and decorators, have the contract of the painting of the rooms and hallways, and the walls are also being papered.

The improvements are of a general nature and will add to the neatness and brightness which is the aim of the management.

The annual thank offering in connection with the Fraser Mission Band of St. Paul's Church was held last night and proved to be a very interesting meeting. Miss Drummond presided, and after responsive reading exercises, Miss Lillian Moore sang a solo, "Hold Thou My Hand."

Rev. Dr. Talling then gave an address on thankfulness, in the course of which he pointed out the value of being born in a Christian country, contrasting Canada with China and India. The proceeds amounted to $35.60.

The generous offer has been accepted by the club, and the players are asked to meet to-night at Mac's cigar store for the purpose of attending the opera house in a body.

A BARBER SHOP WAS ENTERED

Attempt Made To Rob Mr. S. H. Baker's Shop

Another has been added to the long list of burglaries or attempts at robbery which have been made in this city recently. The other night an attempt was made to enter Mr. S. H. Baker's barber shop on Water street, but the endeavours of the would-be thief were fruitless and the attempt was a failure. Entrance was gained into the room at the back of the shop through the Munro House yards. A sliding window had been pushed to one side, and a number of articles were knocked down, but the person found it impossible to penetrate any further into the shop, as the door into the front of the store was securely barred. Nothing was taken.

YOUNG MAN ASSAULTED IN HOTEL

Claims He Was Knocked Down Because He Owed a Man A Dollar

A young man in this city employed as a fireman says he was very badly treated in one of the hotels this afternoon. When seen by the Examiner he was in an awful state, his face and hands were covered with blood, his celluloid collar was parted in the centre and his clothes showed signs of a scuffle. The individual claims that he owed a certain man a dollar and that this fellow insulted him in one of the hotels before the whole bar-room. He immediately left the bar and went to another hotel, but was followed by his creditor. He was drinking at the bar with another man, when in came the man to whom he owed the dollar, and insulted him again. A wordy war then began, he states, followed by a few blows from the creditor, to whom he owes his present appearance. The young fellow made for the police station and promises to make it hot for the man who he claims struck him.

A GOOD BOARD OF TRADE

The town of Welland may well be spoken of by the similitude of Jonah's gourd. It came up in a night, but there is no worm to gnaw its root nor east wind to blast it. On the contrary, its life came up from the east. It was the development of electric power at Niagara Falls that produced the electric thrill that brought Welland to life. "It was set on fire by an electric spark," is the opening statement of an elegant and informing booklet issued by the advertising committee of the town's exceedingly live Board of Trade. A few years ago Welland was dead, industrially and commercially; but the awakening came suddenly. It is now one of the most important manufacturing centres in Ontario, and its advantages and cause of growth are succinctly set forth in the little Board of Trade book. It has the advantage of access, at a very low rate, to 235,000 electric horse-power at Niagara Falls, not to speak of that at Decews Falls. Its street lights cost only $40 per year for 2,000 candle-power all-night lamps. Its natural gas costs 25 cents per thousand. Its transportation facilities are unsurpassed. It is on the Welland Canal and is served by the main lines of four great railways. It has numerous other advantages which, combined with another condition, accounts for the fact that within the past two years ten large industries, employing about 3,000 hands, have been established in Welland, and its population nearly doubled last year. "Another condition" is the possession of a live Board of Trade which is a Board of Trade, and not a somnolent, go-as-you-please, bun-feeding, talk-bund. It spares no effort to bring new industries, and figuratively sits up o' nights to do it; that is, effort is never relaxed, and no time is lost in going for and getting a new industry. These things are recited to show what, with good natural and provided advantages a live Board of Trade can bring to effect. "Watch Welland Grow," the title page injunction of the Welland Board of Trade's "Little Book about the best town in Canada for Manufacturers," means that there is something worth watching. It needs no prophet to forecast a prosperous future for the resurrected town.

A GOOD YEAR OF TRADE

The Government returns continue to show satisfactory increases in the trade of the country, and continued prosperity of the people, and general activity of industrial and commercial operations. The stringency of money, its scarcity, so far as the bank resources available are concerned, have, it is true, given a little rein to the pessimist, and set the optimist thinking. But the indications of any important cessation of prosperous conditions are not sufficient to cause any alarm. In this country, at least, there are great undertakings afoot, which will involve a vast expenditure of money, and this will tend to very largely mitigate the effects of conditions that may well affect, and do affect, other countries, or would, under different conditions, adversely affect this country. We have such an unlimited expanse of territory to open up, and people, such illimitable natural resources to develop, that opportunities for profitable employment of capital will not be wanting. This condition of affairs largely explains the fact that the total trade of Canada, per head, is the largest of any country in the world, amounting to over $100 per head. Therefore, it is not surprising that while financial disaster shakes our neighbours to the south, we are only troubled with a naturally sympathetic reflex of such a condition, and it is not surprising that the trade of Canada continues to show satisfactory growth. For the month of September, imports increased from $27,220,606 for the corresponding month last year to $28,307,178; while the duty collected increased from $4,680,268 to $5,082,731. For the twelve months ending September, the imports in 1905 amounted to $255,257,885, in 1906 to $296,359,543, and in 1907, $362,459,907, while the duty collected amounted respectively to $42,614,512, $48,041,753, and $58,661,696. There could be no better indication of the national prosperity as reflected in the purchasing power of the people as a whole. The domestic exports for September also showed a satisfactory increase, being $25,703,586, as compared with $21,337,915 for September, 1906; while for the twelve months ending September, 1906, they were $157,315,429; for 1906, $244,796,391, and for this year, $244,180,922, showing so far a slight decline this year as compared with last year, on account, no doubt, for the most part, of the slower movement of wheat this fall. The exports of manufactures increased appreciably, both for the month and the year, and the aggregate over-sea trade of the country has increased from $573,703,517 for the twelve months ending September, 1906, to $644,737,791. That included exports of foreign produce, and imports and exports of coin and bullion. Our domestic exports to Great Britain amounted to $126,805,985; to other British countries to $12,213,980; and to the United States to $89,981,440, for the twelve months ending September, last year, while the imports from Great Britain amounted to $71,021,550 dutiable, and $25,057,202 free; from other British countries, $9,183,442 dutiable, and $6,110,761 free; from the United States, $115,052,085 dutiable, and $102,987,931 free; and from all other countries together, $26,208,643 dutiable, and $10,942,320 free. Another satisfactory year in the course of Twentieth Century progress, has been passed.

EDITORIAL NOTES

The Whitney Government is not succeeding very well in its promise to keep the liquor traffic out of New Ontario. A club at Haileybury, New Ontario, had a charter which absolutely forbade the sale of intoxicating liquors. Now the head of the License Department, the same Minister who issues charters, has given the club a new charter permitting the sale of intoxicants. Here is a subject, ready made, for the new Women's Christian Temperance Union of Peterborough to discuss.

This shows how those who have been watching Canada grow, have been rewarded. The revenue of Canada for the first six months of the fiscal year of 1907, was $50,441,288, or one and a third times greater than the revenue for the last year of Conservative rule for the whole twelve months. And the revenue was collected under a lower tariff — fourteen per cent. lower. The Conservative rate was $12.28 per $100 The Liberal rate $15.73 per $100 of duties paid.

Beer* Is No Mere Stimulant
Beer is not the choice of the drunkard, because it cannot stimulate enough—not enough alcohol in malt beverages to class them as intoxicants. But there is just enough alcohol in beer (less than in sweet cider) to induce the digestive system to do its work more thoroughly and quicker. Most grown people — and women especially—find good beer good to drink with meals, because it not only has much food-value in itself, but renders all other foods easier to digest.
Your own doctor will probably tell you beer is good for you with your dinner and at bedtime.
* BEER is a term which covers lager, ale, porter, and stout and, in the practice of Ontario brewers, implies beverages made under most hygienic conditions, from Ontario barley (the best in the world) malt, hops, and pure water. 303

SPENDING MONEY ON COWS

Some Interesting Facts Given About Cow Testing Associations

THE PINE GROVE FACTORY

The lowest herd average noted in the recent cow-testing reports received by the Canadian Dairyman is 229 lbs. of milk and 8.4 lbs. of fat, by a herd of nine cows in the Lorneville Association. The individual production of this herd is fairly uniform, the highest record being 330 lbs. of milk testing 3.3, and the lowest 140 lbs. testing 3.8. With butter at 30 to 34 cents a pound, butter-fat should bring at least 35 cents a pound. At this price each cow in this herd would return about $2.90 to its owner during the 30 days. Now, to feed this herd at present prices for all foodstuffs would necessitate an expenditure of not less than $3.00, and probably more. Consequently, the owner of those nine cows is considerably out of pocket by keeping them.

In the same association another herd of nine cows produced 15.9 lbs. of fat during the 30-day period. At the same estimate for butter-fat, each cow in this herd would return to its owner about $5.56. Apart from feed and labour the owner should realize a fair profit.

Again, one cow at the Pine Grove Association near Lakefield produced 880 lbs. of milk in 30 days testing 4.9 per cent., or 43.1 lbs. of fat. At 35 cents a pound of fat, she would return $15.08 to her owner, or be equivalent to five cows like those composing herd No. 1. Looking at it in another way, if a man who is boarding here No. 1 were to have but one cow equal to individuals in the latter two herds, he would be making money, whereas with his nine cows he is losing money and losing it fast.

Many similar instances could be cited, but these serve to show that there are many dairymen who would be "money in pocket" if they got a divorce from their cows. These tests show what their cows are producing. A little figuring will show them whether the cows are replenishing or depleting their pocket-books.

The food over and above that required for maintenance is utilized for milk production. Consequently the greater the amount of food in excess of that required for maintenance up to a reasonable limit, depending on the assimilating capacity of the cow, the greater will be her yield of milk. Light feeding, therefore, is not always attended with the most economical returns. Feed liberally, but feed judiciously.

DRINK PLENTY OF GOOD WATER

Also Valuable Recipe to Relieve Kidney Trouble Anyone Can Prepare

TRY THIS AT YOUR HOME

"The people here do not drink enough water to keep healthy," exclaimed a well-known authority. "The numerous cases of stomach trouble, kidney and bladder diseases and rheumatism are mainly due to the fact that the drinking of water, nature's greatest medicine, has been neglected.

"Stop loading your system with patent medicines and cure-alls; but get on the water wagon. If you are really sick, why, of course, take the proper medicines — plain, common vegetable treatment, which will not shatter the nerves or ruin the stomach."

When requested for such a prescription for the cure of rheumatism and kidney trouble, the answer was: "You must make the kidneys do their work; they are the filters of the blood. They must be made to strain out of the blood the waste matter and acids that cause rheumatism; the urine must be neutralized so that it will no longer be a source of irritation to the bladder, and, most of all, you must keep these acids from forming in the stomach. This is the cause of stomach trouble and poor digestion. For these conditions I would suggest the following prescription, which is composed of only vegetable ingredients, which can be obtained from any good prescription pharmacy. Any one can mix them by shaking well in a bottle: Fluid Extract Dandelion, one-half ounce; Compound Kargon, one ounce; Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla, three ounces. To be taken in teaspoonful doses after each meal and at bedtime, but don't forget the water. Drink plenty and often." This valuable information and simple prescription should be pasted up in each household and used at the first sign of an attack of rheumatism, backache or urinary trouble, no matter how slight.

WHY SHEEP RAISING IS ON THE WANE

Five Reasons Why Farmers Are Abandoning It

A bulletin, the first of the kind, has been issued by the department of agriculture, on "The Sheep Industry in Ontario." For some years past the decrease in the number of sheep raised in the province has been very marked. The reasons for this are stated to be five in number: Lack of sufficient profits due to the low price of mutton and wool, or to the comparatively high prices for the other kinds of stock or their products; losses caused by dogs killing or wounding sheep; lack of pasture due to the keeping of as much other stock as the land would carry, and the prohibition of grazing on public roads; the difficulty of fencing, and losses from disease and at lambing time.

Tables are appended showing the numbers of sheep kept in various detail; the prices in comparison for ten years past, and much information on the losses caused by dogs and the observance of the law in this respect.

It is believed that sheep raising should prove profitable under present conditions and much valuable information may be obtained from the bulletin by those who act upon this view.

STOP THE STRENUOUS LIFE

Weakens The Tissues And Lessens The Organic Vitality

The stress and strain of the strenuous life in both city and country tends towards stomach troubles.

Five people suffer to-day where one did ten years ago with sick headache, dizziness, flatulence, distress after eating, specks before the eyes, bloating, nervousness, sleeplessness, and the many other symptoms of indigestion.

All who are suffering with stomach troubles, and that means at least two out of three in Peterborough, and other towns, should use Mi-o-na stomach tablets. Nothing else is as safe, yet effective; nothing else can be so thoroughly relied upon to relieve all troubles from indigestion as Mi-o-na.

It is not a mere digestive taken after the food is eaten, but a true tonic, stimulant and strengthener for the muscular walls of the stomach, increasing the flow of digestive fluids and putting the stomach into such condition, that it does the work nature expects of it.

So reliable is Mi-o-na in its curative action that Mr. Madill with each 50 cent box he sells gives a guarantee to refund the money unless the remedy does all that is claimed for it.

WATER LILY AFTER THE LAST LOAD

Went Up The Canal Yesterday—Successful Season

The steamer Water Lily will soon go into winter quarters. She left yesterday for Stony Lake on her last voyage up the canal for the season, and will bring down a scowload of wood from the north. The Water Lily has had a most successful season, both in freight carrying and passenger traffic, which she expects to duplicate next year.

Kidney Disease For Twenty Years
Miss Caswell Reid, Orrville, Muskoka, writes, "For twenty years I was troubled with kidney disease, and have recently been completely cured by using three boxes of Dr. Chase's Kidney Liver Pills. I had tried many remedies but nothing seemed to do me very much good until I used this splendid family remedy."

A GIGANTIC BABY.

Centralia, Ill.—Mrs. Joe Robinson gave birth to a child weighing nineteen and a half pounds. Two years ago, she bore a baby which tipped the beam at eighteen pounds.

It is easy to see that Mrs. Robinson enjoys perfect health. Many women will envy her, because they go through life, wretched and dispirited on account of ill-health. Mrs. Mary Shoreham, of Toronto, suffered for years with diseased ovaries, constant pain in the back, headaches, indigestion and sallow, yellow skin. "Seven months ago a lady friend recommended Fruit-a-tives," writes Mrs. Shoreham, "and I decided to try this medicine, though I had little faith in it, because the doctors said an operation was necessary. After I had taken four boxes of Fruit-a-tives I was free of all pain, and was well again."

"Fruit-a-tives" are made of fruit juices and tonics and are the best medicine in the world for women. 50c.

NEEDLEWORK PATTERNS FOR EXAMINER READERS

It is not to be denied that a prettily embroidered set of four different and useful sizes, worked on white or tan heavy linen, in coloured mercerised cottons, is one of woman's conceits of the day. When time and hand work play so large a part in the completion of an article of any kind, it is absolutely imperative that the materials used be of the most reliable quality; and with dependable goods, an attractive pattern in four useful sizes, and reasonable cost for all, we commend this design for complete satisfaction. It may be had already stamped on either white or tan heavy linen with plain or coloured materials to work or in a perforated pattern which is simple to use and includes complete materials and full directions for stamping. The prices are: Fancy table set, 24x24 centrepiece, perforation, 25c; stamped on heavy linen, 75c; on tan linen 85c; material white or coloured, 55; 32x32 centrepiece, perforation, 1-2 size, 25c; on linen, 90c; on tan linen, 90c; material to work, white or coloured, 85; 14x20, tray cloth, perforation, 25; on linen, 50; on tan linen, 55c; materials, white or coloured 45c; 20x60 scarf for bureau, or pianos, perforation, 50; on linen $1; on tan linen, $1.10; material, white or coloured, $1.10.

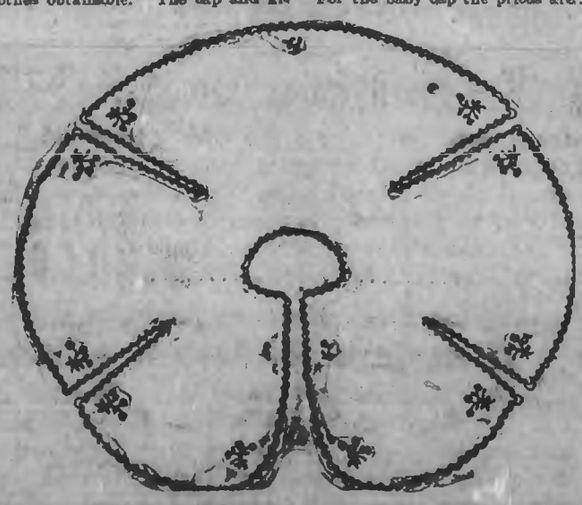
Though it is not the best policy to over burden the baby with an over-abundance of fancy clothes and frills, every mother wants to see her baby have the prettiest and daintiest clothes obtainable. The cap and kimona here shown (being embroidered in white and the scallops simple buttonholed) present a rich appearance when finished. The same articles may be had in the sweet pea design. The linen and lawn on which the cap is stamped are of the most reliable quality, and the French flannel on which the kimona is to be had, being of an exquisitely fine, but durable, quality, is especially recommended.



For the baby cap the prices are: Infants' cap, stamped on lawn, 20; on linen, 30; material to work, 15. For the forget-me-not design, perforation, 25c; stamped on lawn, 20; on linen, 30; material to work, 15. For the kimona or cape in forget-me-not design, perforation, 25; stamped on linen, 60c; on extra fine French flannel, 75c; material to work, 15c.

NATIONAL DAIRY SHOW AT CHICAGO

Some Practical Pointers on Cream Separators Worthy of Perusal

The National Dairy Show held a week or two ago in Chicago, was noteworthy for its exhibit of cream separators. It surpassed anything previously attempted as a display of dairy apparatus. Cream separators were represented by both the older and by several newer makes.

A careful inspection of them all, according to good authority, proved very gratifying to the Simplex Link-Blade, which has been received with so much favour by the farmers in this district, as well as others.

In the general trend of designs there was nothing shown at the exhibition that came so near to efficiency, as the Link-Blade device. In most of the makes, complication of parts, instead of simplification, was evident and the efforts of nearly all other makes seemed to be directed towards features outside of the bowl, and having little or nothing to do with the skimming of the milk. The simplicity of construction of the "Simplex" and its high efficiency, was recognized in meeting the conditions fully.

There are no better talking points to-day in the separator trade than the Link-Blade device and the self-centering bearings, and there are no two patents which are capable of more convincing demonstration. The history of the development of most machines, is one of simplification, and the doing away of parts formerly thoughts necessary. The self-centering bearing is a vast improvement, and places the "Simplex" in a very enviable position.

SMITH MAN CHASED BY A BULL

An Exciting Run—Latest Bridgenorth News

Examiner special.

Hall's Bridge, Nov. 12.—Dr. Metzler, pastor of Bridgenorth Circuit, occupied the pulpits of the Methodist church, on the Wesley Circuit, on Sunday last, and conducted the sacramental services.

Mr. A E Kennedy's auction sale of farm stock, etc., on Thursday of last week was a very successful one. His many friends will regret his departure from the neighbourhood.

Mr. D W Blewett was the victim of a severe shaking up one day last week. He went down to the pasture field to drive a bull from one field to another, when the animal turned upon him, and despite the aid of the dog, was hunting him around severely. His son, who was ploughing a short distance away, ran to his father's assistance, was also used rather roughly for a time, until the arrival of Mrs. Blewett with a pitch fork, when they succeeded in conquering the beast and driving him away. Mr. Blewett's many friends will be pleased to learn that he is able to be around again, although very sore from the bruises that he received.

Rev. M E Wilson, a former pastor of Wesley Circuit, will preach anniversary services next Sunday at 10.30 a.m. and 7.30 p.m. A tea will be held on the Tuesday following.

Pale, Anaemic, Sickly Girls

REGAIN COLOR, HEALTH, AND VIGOR WHEN THE BLOOD IS ENRICHED BY

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food

Your mirror will tell you if you are anaemic, for the unnatural pallor of your gums, lips and eyelids will indicate the thinness and weakness of the blood.

Anaemia is most common among young women and is marked by pallor weakness, indigestion, irritability, spells of dizziness and fainting, heart palpitation, severe headaches and feelings of extreme exhaustion.

The blood is lacking in the elements which go to form energy, vigour and strength and demands such assistance as is best supplied by Dr Chase's Nerve Food.

This great food cure sharpens the appetite, invigorates the nerves which control the digestive fluids, strengthens the heart's action and naturally and gradually restores the sufferer from weak blood to health, strength and vigour.

The headaches and eyeaches of pale nervous school girls, of office girls, and of factory employees, are largely the result of thin, watery blood, and will disappear when the blood is enriched and the system built up by Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

Mrs. D. Hobbins, 420 Charlotte street, Peterborough, Ont., writes:—"My daughter was troubled with a weak fluttering, heart. The least excitement seemed to aggravate her trouble, and at times she had severe racking headaches. She became so bad that it affected her nervous system and she felt miserable most of the time. Through the use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food her condition is entirely changed. Her nerves are steady, the headaches are gone and the action of the heart is strong and regular. We have every reason to give the credit to Dr. Chase's Nerve Food."

Put this great restorative to the test by noting your increase in weight while using it.

Dr Chase's Nerve Food, 50 cents a box, or six boxes for $2.50, at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto.

Born After Mother's Death.

Webster, Mass., Nov. 12.—An operation performed on Mrs. Adam Massik 10 minutes after she was dead brought into existence a healthy baby boy, who, the physician, Dr. J. O. Demeroux, predicts, will live.

The child is in all respects normal. The fact that he is alive is regarded by the physician as remarkable. Mrs. Massik, who was 30 years of age, and whose husband is a mill employe, was ill three days with congestion of the lungs. She died at nine o'clock. Dr. Demeroux said yesterday: "In the last twenty years I have seen three other cases like this, but the children, while alive at birth, never lived more than ten minutes afterward. This child gives excellent promise of living."

Armstrong and a constable. The little man wore a sunny smile.

Four More Chinamen Caught.

Brockville, Nov. 12.—There seems to be a regular wholesale attempt being made to smuggle Chinamen from Brockville and this vicinity into the United States. Last Thursday morning six were caught by United States officers shortly after making a landing west of Ogdensburg and four more were caught in the same spot before daylight yesterday morning.

Foreign Postage.

On Oct. 1 the new foreign postal rate adopted at the meeting of the last universal postal convention in Rome in April became effective. The new rate makes the charge for foreign postage 5 cents for the first half ounce and 3 cents for each additional half ounce instead of 10 cents for each ounce, as the present rate prescribes. This applies to all mail sent to foreign countries, except Canada, Mexico and Cuba. To these countries the domestic rate of 2 cents for each half ounce still holds. The change of postal rate from 5 to 3 cents for each half ounce after the first is the only important change adopted by the last universal postal convention.

Shredded Wheat Banquet An Unqualified Success

Supper Served For Three Hours—Crowds In The Methodist School Room Where Affair Was Held—Charlotte Street Ladies Delighted

A MUSICAL PROGRAMME

Perhaps the largest gathering that has ever crowded into the Sunday school room of the Charlotte street Methodist church was that of last night, when a Shredded Wheat banquet was held under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid Society and the choir. The affair was a huge success, in every particular. The finances surpassed the dreams of the most enthusiastic person on the committee, and as an enjoyable social, bringing out the young and old of the congregation, it is only necessary to say that the building was taxed to its limit.

The supper was begun at 6.30 o'clock, and continued until 9, and during that time the tables were filled without any intermission. The banquet was provided by the Natural Food Company of Niagara Falls, the manufacturers of the famous Shredded Wheat biscuit, and Triscuit. Nothing was left undone by the gentlemen representing the company in preparing a substantial repast. The different courses were daintily served by the young ladies and of the food that was provided, the general opinion was that it was excellent.

The menu was as follows:
Creamed chicken in Shredded Wheat baskets.
Pickles.
Cold Ham.
Triscuit and Butter.
Jellied Fruit Sandwich with Whipped Cream.
(Pure Gold Jelly.)
Triscuit and MacLaren's cheese.
Shredded Wheat Ice Cream.
Huyler's Chocolate Triscuit.
Fruit.
Pure Gold Coffee. Salada Tea.

Musical Programme

At nine o'clock, Rev. Mr. Manning called upon Rev. Mr. Pearson to open the programme with prayer. The banquet was not nearly over but Mr. Manning asked that those still at the table be as quiet as possible in order that the music might be proceeded with. The concert was in keeping with the first part of the evening, and the majority of the people stayed to enjoy it.

The following numbers were given:
Solo, Selected... ... ...Mr. D. Campbell
Recitation, Nobody's Child..... .....
Greta LeBarr
Solo, Heroes and Gentlemen .....
Mr. H. Morphet
Reading, Bridget and the Spider.....
Miss L. Thomas
The Canadian Shredded Wheat Company... ... ... Mr. J. Hewitt
Mandolin Club, Over the Waves .....
Recitation, Everyone's in Slumberland but you and Me..Greta LeBarr
Solo, Rocked in the Cradle of the Deep..... ... ...Mr. Barber
Duet, Gently sighs the Breeze.....
Mr. and Mrs. Greenslade

Miss Greta LeBarr, who is a pupil of Mrs. A. Patterson-Mowry, was particularly well received by the audience.

Miss Clarry performed the duties of accompanist in a finished style.

Music and Drama

THE DANITES

Another good house greeted Marjie Adams and H. Wilmot Young last night in their production of the Danites, a five-act drama depicting California in the early days when this bloody organization held away. The play was well put on and those in the leading roles won still greater favour. The specialties are a feature of the show the company having stinted nothing to please the people between the acts. Varena, styled on the programme as the Electrical Wonder, Europe's latest sensation, has become a favourite with the Peterborough people and no one can afford to miss seeing her artistic sketch. The illustrated songs are also well received and in fact all the specialties are splendid, the moving pictures being the best ever seen here.

To-night the company will play the people's choice, "East Lynne." The management of the Grand have invited the champion Peterborough Rugby Club to attend the play to-night and they will occupy the box seats.

UNCLE TOM'S CABIN

The Free Press of Winnipeg, says: "Downie's Uncle Tom's Cabin" was presented at the Walker theatre last Saturday afternoon and evening, and if the slightest doubt as to popularity of this sterling old production lingered in the minds of the theatregoers it would have been completely dispelled had they peeped in at either the matinee or evening performance and seen the big theatre packed from pit to dome, with happy, interested men, women and children. Many of those present were not regular playgoers, but they would not have missed "Uncle Tom's Cabin" for anything, and the children simply had to see it.

As for the performance, well, it was very much better than the usual interpretation of this piece. There was only one "Marks" and only one "Topsy," but the interpreters of these characters were equal to two people. Dot. Williams was particularly clever as "Topsy" and kept the audience roaring with laughter.

Baby Hazel is a pretty child and pleased as "Little Eva." Another bright youngster is Baby Edna, who played little Harry Harris, and later, as her own self, did a catchy specialty.

Vernon Skinner, in the title role, was impressive and affective, and all the other roles were nicely played.

During the action of the play, and between the acts, numerous clever specialties were introduced, which elicited hearty encores. The hoop rolling and singing of the coloured people were particularly good.

It delighted the children to see "Little Eva" make her first entrance, in a dear little carriage drawn by two tiny ponies. Also, to see Marks come on later, riding a donkey.

The stage settings were pretty, especially the transformation showing "Little Eva" in Heaven. Taken altogether the performance was most satisfactory.

This company will appear in the Grand Opera House, matinee and night, Saturday, Nov. 16.

Watch for the big street parade.

MR. SOMMERVILLE IN THE CITY

Reports a Splendid Meeting at Madoc Yesterday

Mr. N G Summerville, of Brooksville, was in the city to-day in connection with certain branches of the dairy business. Yesterday he was in Madoc where a very enthusiastic dairy meeting was held. In fact it was one of the best that has been conducted so far this season. Mr. Summerville was present and the other speakers were Mr. Derbyshire, Mr. Glendenning, Mr. Murphy and Mr. Publow. The gentlemen are meeting with great results in their tour and are proving a boon to the dairymen they visit.

SMALL POLICE COURT THIS MORNING

Only One Prisoner In The Box—Charged With Keeping Dog Without Licence

The police court this morning was very small, only one prisoner faced the magistrate and on a very minor offence.

The charge was against Harry Sodden for keeping a dog without a license. Mr. Soden proved that the dog was born after the first of May and was allowed to go with a warning to get a license before the first of May, next year.

ANOTHER LOCAL MAN ON THE ROAD

Mr. Ira D. Moore To Travel For The Quaker Oats Company

It is understood that the Quaker Oats Company will in the near future place another Peterborough man on the road to sell their products which are finding ready markets throughout Canada. The man to be advanced is Mr. Ira D. Moore, who for the past four years or more has been connected with the office staff of the company.

Mr. Moore will, on assuming his new duties, cover the towns and cities of Ontario, west of Toronto, and will act as the Western Ontario agent for the Quaker Oats Company.

This is an honour conferred on Mr. Moore upon his merits and his friends join in wishing him success in his advancement. He has identified himself with various sports in the city and especially with the city Hockey League, as secretary, from which he will be greatly missed. He was a valuable member of the Charlotte street Hockey team and his place at cover point will be difficult to fill.

It is probable that Mr. Moore, who begins his new duties about the first of December will move out of Peterborough and reside in some western town.

THE ACCURACY OF THE MARKET SCALES

Proved This Morning And Another Example of How Bad Reports Are Started

An occurrence at the market to-day serves as an example of how rumours regarding the weigh scales are spread abroad without any foundation. A farmer from Dourc brought in ten head of cattle, which he had sold, and wanted them weighed. He was confident that they would tip the beam at more than 9000 lbs., but when actually weighed they showed about 8,700 lbs. He said that was not their true weight and that the scales must be wrong. He decided to take them away and started across the market square for some other scales or to the buyers' yards.

Clerk McIlmoyle was then called upon to weigh a number of hogs. One of them was a large sow, belonging to a man named Foster. He had weighed it at his barn and the market scales showed not a pound difference. The sow weighed 540 lbs. and was a fine specimen of its kind. These two cases should surely set at rest any doubt that there may be regarding the accuracy of the scales and shows how rumours spread, and the causes for them.

SLUMP IN THE JUNK BUSINESS

Local Man Tells of Decrease That Has Occurred Since Summer

One of the leading junk dealers of this city was speaking about the decline of his business since mid-summer. The prices then were abnormally high, and this citizen believes that he will never see them at such a notch again. Copper was selling at $20 a ton, but is now selling at $11. Similarly with iron. The usual price of iron last summer was $18.50 a ton, and the same sells at $8 now. For these reasons the junk business has fallen off considerably, but the local firms are by no means discouraged and are plugging away to keep the trade going.

THE THANKSGIVING AT PARK STREET

Annual Supper And Concert By South End Baptists, a Success

A choice programme, an appreciative audience and liberal gifts were the features of last night's annual thank offering of the Park street Ladies' Mission Circle. The president, Miss M. Mann, was in the chair. The report was read by the secretary-treasurer, Mrs. Jos. Johnston. A paper on "Thanksgiving" was read by Miss Edith Gillespie, and a paper on "Gratitude" by Miss Browett of the Murray street church. The choir rendered several selections, and a duet by Miss Hill and Mr. J. Tranter was also rendered. Rev. A. H. Brace followed with an address on "Modern Missions." Dainty refreshments were served and a happy social time spent.—Com.

CITY'S WORK NEARLY COMPLETED

Different Gangs Are About Through Work For The Season

The city's work upon the streets and sidewalks is very nearly over for the season, and most of the different gangs are finished. A large amount of work has been done this year in the construction of permanent crossings, sidewalks and sewers, more having been accomplished in this line than in any previous year. The sidewalk men are through for the season and the crossing men have already finished, while the men employed in sewer work are nearly through the Cedar street contract and when that is completed their work will be through.

FACTS ABOUT THE SUN AND EARTH

Things That Every Beginner in Astronomy Ought To Know

A member of the local branch of the Astronomical Society has provided the following facts and figures for the Examiner which everyone should know:

The earth does not revolve on its axis once in 24 hours, requiring but 86,164 seconds for the action. This it does every day. It never takes one second more than this nor one second less. That means three minutes and 56 seconds less than 24 hours.

The earth in its motion round the sun travels at the rate of 18 miles every second, a velocity of 1100 times faster than an express train, and yet we do not feel the slightest jar. We are flying through space at the rate of speed exceeding a cannon ball 75 times.

Seen from a distance in space the earth appears like our moon to us, shining brilliantly.

The earth never travels the same path twice.

The sun is not stationary as generally supposed, but it and the universe, of which it is considered the centre, are moving constantly in one direction. The relative position of the bodies remain practically the same.

Tully's Hair Tonic

and DANDRUFF CURE makes the hair grow July 24th, 1907

About the month of September, 1906, my hair began to come out in large spots, leaving the scalp perfectly bare on the right side of the head, also my beard on the left side. About the 15th of December I showed it to J. D. Tully, Druggist; he said that he had a preparation that would restore the hair. I could scarcely credit his statement, but decided to try it, and in three weeks using the hair commenced to grow. Since that time I have lost nearly all my old hair which has been entirely replaced with new hair, and the beard also. I consider this by all means the best hair grower on the market, as I had previously tried other preparations without any effect. Any one wishing to ask me about it will find me at my home, 265 McDonnel Street, Peterborough, or at R. R. Crossing, G.T.R., Charlotte St.

SMALL BOYS TAMPER WITH SLOTS

Breaks The Springs and Let in The Chilly Air

Residents of the city who have complied with the request of the Post Office Department by placing letter-slots in their door are experiencing some difficulty with the small boy who persists in jamming all kinds of articles into the slots, thereby breaking the springs on the flap, which leaves an opening for the cold air to pour in.

LOCAL MAN A BREAKFAST TABLE TALKER

Writes a Letter To The Globe About The First Atlantic Cable

A Peterborough man interested in "the first Atlantic Cable" question and who signs himself "W. J. C." writes the following letter for The Breakfast Table Page of the Toronto Globe:—

To the Editor of The Globe: I am a regular reader of The Globe, and am greatly interested in the Breakfast Table talk. You have lately been touching on the first Atlantic cable. There are one or two discrepancies that I think I can put right. In August, 1857, I was a first-class boy on board H.M.S. Leopard, which frigate was to accompany the U.S. frigate as escort. The Niagara had half the length of cable on board, and the Agamemnon the other half. The Niagara laid the shore end at Bantry Bay, in Ireland. I was one of 600 that helped run the shore end up. On the fourth day out the cable broke at 4 o'clock in the morning, just as the watch was being changed. I was on deck at the time, and when the gun fired, telling everybody the cable had parted, every man and boy was on deck, manning the rigging and the hammock netting, without giving themselves time to dress, all staring at the Niagara, about three cables length away, with the cable gone. Cyrus W. Field was on board the Leopard, and his agony and chagrin were such that many thought he would have committed suicide. We then returned to Plymouth, and the 350 miles of cable, that was buoyed up every few miles was under-run by H.M.S. Oberon, and about 200 miles of it picked up. The parting of the cable was supposed to have been caused by a kink in it. The halt that was on board the Agamemnon was to be joined in mid-ocean. The statement you make that the two ends were joined on board the Agamemnon in Queenstown Harbour is wrong. What would be the use of the two ends on board one vessel? If you should publish this, then I should wish it to catch the eye of someone else who was in the expedition, so that we could compare notes.

Peterborough, Nov. 4. W. J. C.

CITIZEN CLAIMS SHORT WEIGHTS

Says That He Knows By Experience They Are Given

Shortage in weights given by some of the city merchants is an accusation which a prominent citizen has advanced. He states to the Examiner that by experience he has found slight shortages in weights given by some groceryman and butchers. He says that, of course, there are many honest men in both the grocery and the butcher business, but that some are inclined to be too close in weighing and measuring.

He believes that an inquiry should be made as to the proper means of measuring potatoes. He would like to know whether it is proper to buy and sell them by weight, or by measure, as then he would be in a position to determine whether he was being fairly dealt with or not.

That tired feeling will disappear and you will be able to eat well and sleep well by using Miller"s Compound Iron Pills. Sold by W. Madill.

MARK STREET SERVICES

The evangelistic services at Mark street church were continued last night and were largely attended. The efforts of the pastor, Rev. Mr. Coon, are beginning to meet with success, and the two weeks' meetings should result in a religious revival. The sermon was preached by Rev. Mr. Coon, Rev. E. A. Pearson not being able to be present last night. The subject of the address was the consecration of our lives to God. Tonight the pastor will speak on "Christ, the Great Optimist."

Mr. N. A. Howard-Moore

Whose Splendid Amateur Photo Work has caused such favorable comment, has a number of excellent Views on exhibition in our Window, of the Recent FOOTBALL GAME at LINDSAY. The Different Stages of the Game are very realistic, and the features of the players and many of the spectators are distinctly recognizable. Mr. Howard's work is greatly admired.

PRODUCE NEW WHEAT.

Pronounced More Hardy Than Manitoba Product—Easy to Raise.

A discovery that may ultimately revolutionize farming is announced by a group of Cambridge scientists. Careful experiments have been made during the last eight years in testing and crossing the qualities both of plants and animals. The immediate result of the Cambridge experiments has been to create varieties of wheat and barley which will surpass the quality even of Manitoba hard grain and increase the value of English grain by 10 per cent. or more.

Prof. Middleton, Prof. Wood, and Mr. R. H. Biffen during the last eight years have been conducting the experiments at the Cambridge University experimental farm at Impington. All the known varieties of wheat throughout the world were collected together and grown on a small scale. As was only to be expected, the majority absolutely refused to be acclimatised, but a few showed a disposition to be kinder. Eventually a few hopeful varieties were selected for such characteristics as resistance to the attacks of rust, good cropping capacity, fine milling quality, stiff straw, and such like, and were crossed with British wheats with the idea of combining all these good qualities in one variety. By the careful application of the recently discovered Mendelian laws a number of new varieties have been produced and have been "fixed." Passing through various trials, they were eventually submitted to the tests of milling and baking, with the most satisfactory results.

The department is meeting with similar success in an attempt to breed wheats which shall be resistant to the attacks of the deadly yellow rust, and barleys which shall be a great improvement on those at present grown in this country.

Possibly the most fascinating of the experiments is at present in its infancy. It is being tried upon sheep, the object being the improvement of the wool and carcase, or other characteristics with a monetary value. The experiments so far go to establish that Mendel's laws apply to animals as well as plants, and that similar results may be expected from similar experiments.

RIVAL TOMBSTONES.

Public Protest Against Execution of Man Who Shot Gamekeeper.

The greatest indignation prevails in the parish of North Baddesley, England, and the surrounding Hampshire districts on account of a scandalous development which has taken place in connection with the tombstone erected in memory of Charles Smith, who was hanged in 1822 for "attempted murder."

The late Mr. Smith, who, with the object of stopping arrest, shot at and wounded in the leg, but did not kill, a gamekeeper, deeply moved the public, and a tombstone recording the circumstances of his martyrdom to the game laws was subscribed for and erected in North Baddesley churchyard. The late Lord Viscount Palmerston, whose gamekeeper Smith had wounded, was greatly nettled at this, and did his utmost to have the stone removed, but failed. Since then it has remained a permanent record of the stigma he incurred, for although at that time Prime Minister of England, and professing to be in favor of abolishing capital punishment, he declined to raise his voice against the execution of Smith.

Now an astounding attempt to vindicate him has occurred. Alongside the tombstone erected by public subscription to Smith, another has just been placed.

It bears an inscription, the object of which is to alienate the sympathy which the original tombstone is bound to create. The greatest resentment has been aroused in the locality, and much surprise felt that it should be possible for the consecrated ground of a parish churchyard to be used for such a purpose. A petition has been framed with the object of having the new tombstone removed.

Significance is attached to the initials "E.A.," which appear on the new stone. Broadlands Park, the seat of the late Lord Viscount Palmerston, is now held by his descendant, Right Hon. Evelyn Ashley.

The Crossbow.

The pope in 1186 prohibited the crossbow as barbarous and threatened crossbowmen with excommunication.

The Old Miracle Play.

In the old miracle plays the "Adoration of the Three Kings" was always represented by members of the Jewelers' guild, each act or scene of the plays being given by a separate corporation, which defrayed all the expenses.

Uncle Sam's Domains.

The sun never sets on the soil of the United States of America. When it is 6 o'clock at Attoo island, Alaska, it is 9:36 o'clock a. m. the next day on the eastern coast of Maine.

The Onion Knife.

After using a knife to pare onions drop it in cold water and leave until the dishes are washed, then wash with hot soapsuds, and no odor will be noticed. This rule holds good for utensils in which fish have been cooked. Scouring soaps will not remove disagreeable odors from knives and dishes, but this simple method never fails.

SPORTING NEWS AND VIEWS.....

Peterborough won the O. R. F. U. championship series on Saturday by defeating the Westmounts of Montreal by 25 to 4. The game was easy for Peterborough. The Peterborough team played in a brilliant manner and were superior in every way. The "Peter" have a good team this year and deserve their championship honours.—Stratford Herald.

• • • •

Secretary J B Hay, of the O.R.F.U., says that this is his last year in rugby, but when next year comes around it is likely that Mr. Hay will still be found faithful to his old love.

• • • •

The members of the Westmount club stated on Saturday after the game that thir club intended to remain in the O.R.F.U., and would do all in their power to help that body in the east. They stated that they were well satisfied with their first year in the Ontario Union and would everything in their power to form a strong eastern district. It would not cause much surprise if an Ottawa team formed one of the eastern members of the O.R.F.U., and according to the Westmount men there are good prospects of other teams casting in their lot with the Ontario body.

A forecast of the hockey situation, locally, and in Ontario generally, does not indicate the brightest prospects for the winter game this year. In this city there is little likelihood of there being an O.H.A. team and for the first time in many years it looks as if Peterborough would not be represented in that body. The City League will have to supply all the hockey this season. In other Ontario towns the same conditions apply. The mismanagement of the O. H. A. last year is responsible for the falling off in interest, and with Belleville, Woodstock, Guelph, Midland, Peterborough and other one time famous hockey centres out of the game it looks like a bad winter for the sport. The lack of interest is indicated by the fact that all the offices of the O.H.A. were filled by acclamation.

The Town Baseball League had a surplus this year of nearly $60. A meeting of the executive will be held to-night to decide how to spend it. The Baseball League certainly came out better than the Hockey League, which had a deficit. — Lindsay Post.

• • • •

The T.A.S. Hockey Club will meet this week for the purpose of organizing a City League team. The club has some good players in sight and should have a team that will be heard from in the League race this season.

• • • •

There is a clause on the constitution of the City hockey league which might well be revised, with profit. It is that which bars all Peterborough intermediate and senior players as far back as 1905 from participating in city league games. Why not make that rule to cover all senior and intermediate players, or is it the belief of the league management that Peterborough players are faster than any other seniors in the province and that therefore they must be barred out and the others admitted? Whether the rule as it stands now will have any effect upon local teams is not known yet, but it is a boon for Norwood at least who will it is said, have two members of the Midland Intermediate team, with which Fred Whitcroft played, on their line up this season.

All the reports of the Montreal race indicate that Tom Longboat was as nearly beaten on Saturday as he has ever been in his short but eventful career. He managed to win the race but he was hard pressed all the way and now states that he was very near dropping out at the tenth mile owing to an attack of rheumatism in his knees.

• • • •

The hockey organization meeting called for last Saturday evening did not materialise owing to the small attendance. This has been the case on several occasions, so probably Port Hope does not want a hockey team. The enthusiasts will be contented to sit about all winter and hear of the victories in other towns. A last effort to organize will be made on Friday evening and if you would like to see a little sport this winter attend the meeting in the Y. M. C. A. parlours. — Port Hope Guide.

• • • •

Basketball is again likely to boom in connection with the Y.M.C.A. this autumn and winter. Last night a number of the enthusiastic players assembled at the Y.M.C.A. to discuss the prospects. There will at least be three teams in the senior league, with a probability that others may enter later.

The Harriers, last year's champions, the Arrows and the Alerts will again be in the running, so that the game will be lively. Practice has already begun, as it is possible that the Central Y.M.C.A. of Toronto will send down a team in the near future. This has not been definitely decided upon, but the prospects point that way.

A meeting will be held on Friday night when captains of the teams will be appointed.

The members of the Peterborough Rugby Club and Mr. Ernest Wilson have been invited by the management of the Grand Opera House to occupy the box seats to-night when "East Lynne" will be presented.

ATHEISTS IN THE PARK.

Glimpses at Remarkable Phase of Life in Old London.

Under the heading, "Heirs of All the Ages," The London Morning Post has been publishing a series of letters dealing with life, and particularly with atheists and other orators in the London parks. Here is an extract from one of these letters: Now I had heard of the atheists in the park, but was hardly preparel for the shock of that sort of thing. I had imagined them stern and ruthless iconoclasts, paying to Christianity at least the outward respect of their own arid earnestness. But this wanton derision of words that, even if they were rejected by reason, should fall beautifully on any human ear, paralyzed me by its revelation of the heathenish possibilities of humanity. To the reasoned constructive agnosticism of philosophy, even the devout and orthodox pay respect; the flat negation of the blatant and aggressive atheist has become a tolerated commonplace; but the utter forlornness of the human mind that had not even earnestness to redeem it, but expressed its own emptiness in music hall japes and jeering cat calls, and that had not the intelligence even to understand its own unbelief, was to me, at any rate, a new horror. I looked round on the crowd of jeerers, and it was then that a feeling of the strangeness of my own kind came over me. I no longer thought of the harmony and unity of the human family. "Men" and "women" seemed meaningless terms to comprise beings so diverse as those about me and the normal men and women who were listening to the band a mile away; and humanity took on an aspect of something unfathomable and repulsive in its possibilities. Every face in the crowd was unlovely. Youths with caps, receding chins, and expressions of sheer vacuity, held cigarettes between diseased teeth, and leered stupidly; a few women, dressed in the meretricious finery which is made accessible to the masses, listened with mere open-mouthed unintelligence, content to find a sanction and an encouragement for their own amusement in the general guffaws of the crowd, but most of the jeerers were adult men of the indefinite working class type who may be found any Saturday night listening patiently and respectfully to a Cheap Jack in a market place. Here, deformed by their senseless laughter, malicious in their jeers, they excited in me a shrinking repugnance from my own kind. At best they would have made a Democrat despair. The pagan Greeks at least worshipped beauty, but these heirs of all the ages, in the foremost file of the Christian age, what did they worship? What gods or faith commanded their reverence? Non-Christian they were, but only because they were non-anything. They did not belong to the twentieth century or to any century, but appeared to me as a throw-back to raw, rudimentory Man—not, alas; in kinship with the stars; something lower than even the fallen angels; mere members, in fact, of an animal; species gifted with the power of speech. Some years ago an American professor took an iron cage into the gloom of an African forest, lived in it, and returned—so he said—with a complete vocabulary of the gorilla language. I can visualise his adventure more vividly now. There are moments when one stands outside one's self, marvelling vaguely, searching for a clue to one knows not what, and finding everything elusive. So, for a time, I seemed to stand outside common humanity and get to a fleeting glimpse of a conception of Man as something malicious and sinister, grotesque as a gargoyle, the imp and sport of some creative force, a demoniacal, irresponsible satire of man's own hopes.

PETERBOROUGH WOMAN SUDDENLY EXPIRES AMID FESTIVITIES WHILE IN CONVERSATION WITH HER FRIENDS

Mrs. Lillie Clark Rundle, a Visitor in Toronto Drops Dead At Annesley Hall — Attending An At Home

DIES OF HEART FAILURE

Examiner special.

Toronto, Nov. 14.—Whilst attending an at-home at Annesley Hall Mrs. Tilly Clark-Rundle, aged forty, fell down in what her friends believed to be a faint, but which Dr. Temple, who arrived not ten minutes later, declared to be a fatal seizure. Mrs. Rundle came to Toronto about a year and a half ago from Peterborough, and has since then been living with her intimate friend, Mrs. G A Galloway, at 165 Park Road. She had often complained of acute dyspepsia, but had not shown signs of any illness that would give her friends any serious uneasiness. She went to the at-home at Annesley Hall alone. While there she made no complaints o illness, and appeared perfectly well. She was talking to friends at about half-past 5, when she suddenly collapsed and died before medical assistance could be obtained. Mrs. Tilly Clark-Rundle was the widow of the late Mr. Arthur L. Rundle of Peterborough. A sister who lives on Jarvis street, city, survives her. The funeral service will be held on Friday night at 8 o'clock at 165 Park Road, and afterwards the remains will be conveyed to Peterborough for burial, arriving in Peterborough on the 11.14 O.P.R. train, and being conveyed from there to the Little Lake Cemetery.

Mrs. Clarke, mother of Mrs. Rundle [illegible] and her sister, Miss Rose [illegible] resided for several years in [illegible]rough, and it was here that [illegible]ndle was married. The de[illegible] lady will be remembered and [illegible]d by many of her former fr[illegible] in Peterborough.

ONE INSERTION GETS BACK THE PURSE

A lost purse in Peterborough and a lost ad. in the Examiner are two things quite naturally associated by most of those who have tried the experiment. A purse containing some money and a postoffice key sword lost on the street yesterday. An ad. ordered for three nights was inserted in the classified ad. columns of the Examiner, but it was cancelled this morning. The reason was that the lost property was restored to its owner, and all through the help of a little ad. in a small space in the Examiner.

TRENT CANAL CONTRACTOR HAS CONSTRUCTED AN £11,000,000 TUNNEL

Mr. Lewis P Nott, the contractor who has been awarded the contract for the construction of Section No. 1, of the Trent Canal, is well known to one Peterborough man, at least, Mr. Harry Dunford, of Perry street. Mr. Dunford states that the contractor is one of the best known in England, having built the great Severn Tunnel that lies beneath the Severn River and that connects England and Wales. This tunnel is almost 4 miles in length and is one of the most important in the old world.

Mr. Nott has, during his career completed an £11,000,000 contract on the continent in the construction of a tunnel. Mr. Dunford has often spoken on the same platform as Mr. Nott on temperance, religious and political questions in Bristol near where the contractor resides. He is considered one of the most influential men in Bristol, being the president of the Temperance Federation, and having been president of the Bristol Free Church Council and a member of the City Council. Mr. Nott resides at Stoke House, Stoke Bishop Palace, near Bristol.

FEMININE DEER NOT PLENTIFUL IN THE HALIBURTON DISTRICT

Messrs. J. S. Waldron, secretary-treasurer of the Big Dipper Mining Company, and Wesley and Henry Rose returned to the city last night after an enjoyable and highly successful hunting trip in Haliburton township. The three, with Messrs. Huff and Casey of Haliburton, formed a jolly party, who had great sport with the monarchs of the forest. The six succeeded in getting eleven fine deer, of which all but one were bucks. In fact Mr Waldron in talking of the trip with an Examiner reporter this morning, remarked that very few does were shot in that neighbourhood. Thirty-five deer were shipped from Gooderham station, and of this number only two were does, Mr Waldron's making one of the pair.

Mr. Waldron stated that the deer were very plentiful in Haliburton, this season. He obtained his legal complement during the first couple of days, and could have got many more, as the party was constantly sighting the deer in the forest. Mr. Wes. Rose shot two fine bucks, and his brother got another so that the party brought five big deer with them when they arrived in the city last night. Mr. Waldron had business in the neighbourhood, and only hunted during the first few days. The three Haliburton men got two deer apiece so that the six had about as much luck as any party heard from yet this season.

The weather was very bad all through the outing, in fact the party had only two or three fine days all the time that they were away, as during the greater part of the time it was either snowing or raining. There were two or three quite heavy falls of snow and the deer could very easily be tracked in the snow. Once the party found bear tracks in the snow, and it was seen that Mr. Bruin had come within 200 yards of the house in which the party was living. They tried to track him the next morning, but were unable to locate the bear.

Mr. Waldron's party was about on hundred miles north of Peterborough and hunted in the vicinity of Big Pine and Dark Lakes, although the house in which the party boarded was situated some miles in the interior.

MANY LOCAL BANDSMEN PLAYING IN THE ARMY BAND IN COBOURG

The trip of the Salvation Army Band to the lake shore towns last summer won many laurels for that organization and the results are still being experienced. Cobourg gave the band one of the most enthusiastic receptions on the whole route, and now that town is to have an Army band of its own, with several of the Peterborough musicians in its ranks. Among those who will have instruments in the new band, are Bandsmen W. H. Wilson, Horton, James Cown, Sutton and Darling, the last mentioned being leader. The men have secured employment in Cobourg and are now working there. They are all musicians, and help prominent parts in the local band, and will no doubt make a success of the Cobourg Salvation Army Band.

The departure of these players from the local band will have no material effect on it, as there have been more musicians with the local corps than could be used. Therefore, although Bandmaster Greene has lost some of his best men the band has lost none of its efficiency as the places were immediately refilled.

Mr. Will Ford is now Deputy Bandmaster of the local corps.

PARTIES HEMMED IN WITH ICE

Snowden and Rutherford Parties Unable To Return on Account of Freezing Of Cold Lake

The Snowden and Rutherford parties are very much disappointed at not being able to return home last evening as they had intended. It appears that during the cold snap Gold Lake has frozen up and the hunters were unable to cross in their canoes. The parties have secured long poles and are going to break a path in the ice to allow their canoes to go through. Mr. Snowden and his party have been back about two weeks and have had excellent luck. The party expect to get home some time to-day.

WARSAW PEOPLE FIGURE IN ANOTHER SERIOUS ACCIDENT

If the Nemesis which seems to be pursuing the people of Warsaw, in the shape of runaway accidents, does not soon stop, the greater part of the inhabitants of that township will soon in a short time be in the hospital. On Sunday Mr and Mrs. Miller were injured; on Monday Roland Dunford had his leg broken by being run over by a heavy wagon, and yesterday another serious accident occurred, in which the lives of three Dummer people were endangered, and which resulted in one of them being badly hurt.

It appears that Miss Maggie Middleton and Miss Laura Webster of Warsaw, and Mr. Geo. Crowe, who lives in Dummer, north of the village, were driving home from the city yesterday afternoon. Near Nichols oval their horse became frightened at a traction engine, and bolted, throwing its occupants into the road. Mr. Crowe managed to hold on to the reins and finally stopped the horse, not, however, before the vehicle was almost completly demolished. Miss Webster was found to be the most seriously hurt. Her knee was very badly wrenched and she sustained other less serious injuries. Dr Frederick was summoned and attended to her injuries, after which the unfortunate lady was removed to the Nicholls Hospital, where she is doing nicely to-day. Miss Middleton received some painful bruises and was badly shaken up but was not seriously injured. Mr. Crowe escaped with bruises on his face and head.

The party was fortunate in not being more seriously injured, as the accident was a bad one and for a time it looked as if someone would be killed.

CONSOLIDATION OF AGENCIES BY NEW UNITED AGENCY CO., LTD

A charter has been granted the United Agency Company, Limited, for the transacting of a very comprehensive agency business. This new company has a capital stock of $50,000 divided into 2,500 shares of $20 each. Four of the provisional directors are local gentlemen, while the others are out-of-town men. They are business and professional men, and many have had various connections with agency work.

The company is empowered to carry on as agents the business of real estate in all its branches, to collect and audit accounts and to act as financial agents for any persons or corporation. It also intends to do a general insurance business in all its branches. It will open a store for the sale of musical instruments and other articles. Its charter provides for the conducting of a typewriter and messenger service, etc.

As may be judged, the charter is a most extensive one and has been issued under the new Company's Act. The consolidation of these agencies is a new feature in local business. Further particulars will be given to the public in a short time.

WRIT ISSUED AGAINST A. J. SMALL

Peterborough Opera House on The Circuit—An Alleged Business Venture

Examiner Special.

A writ was issued yesterday against Mr. A. J. Small of Toronto, by Mr. B. C. Whitney of Detroit, in which the latter, as administrator of the estate of the late C. J. Whitney of Detroit, asks for an accounting of and a share of the profits accruing from an alleged business venture between deceased and Mr. Small.

The late Mr. Whitney and Mr. Small, it is alleged, conducted, under an agreement dated March 30, 1901, the Grand Opera House in Hamilton, the new Grand Opera House in London, the Russell Theatre in Ottawa, and certain theatres and theatrical enterprises in the cities of St. Thomas, St. Catharines, Chatham, Woodstock, Guelph, Galt, Stratford, Brantford, Peterborough, Belleville and elsewhere in the Province of Ontario.

The claim of the plaintiff is for one-half of the profits derived from the operation, control and management of these theatres, and any and all booking percentages connected therewith.

THE WEATHER.

Last night brought a foretaste of winter. In addition to an inch or so of snow, we find the lowest temperature of the season. Eight degrees above zero was the figure.

PETERBOROUGH WOMAN SUDDENLY EXPIRES AMID FESTIVITIES WHILE IN CONVERSATION WITH HER FRIENDS

Mrs. Lillie Clark Rundle, a Visitor In Toronto Drops Dead At Annesley Hall — Attending An At Home

DIES OF HEART FAILURE

Examiner special.

Toronto, Nov. 14.—Whilst attending an at-home at Annesley Hall Mrs. Tilly Clark-Rundle, aged forty, fell down in what her friends believed to be a faint, but which Dr. Temple, who arrived not ten minutes later, declared to be a fatal seizure. Mrs. Rundle came to Toronto about a year and a half ago from Peterborough, and has since than been living with her intimate friend, Mrs. G. A. Galloway, at 165 Park Road. She had often complained of acute dyspepsia, but had not shown signs of any illness that would give her friends any serious uneasiness. She went to the at-home at Annesley Hall alone. While there she made no complaints o illness, and appeared perfectly well. She was talking to friends at about half-past 5, when she suddenly collapsed and died before medical assistance could be obtained. Mrs. Tilly Clark-Rundle was the widow of the late Mr. Arthur L. Rundle of Peterborough. A sister who lives on Jarvis street, city, survives her. The funeral service will be held on Friday night at 8 o'clock at 165 Park Road, and afterwards the remains will be conveyed to Peterborough for butial, arriving in Peterborough on the 11.14 C.P.R. train, and being conveyed from there to the Little Lake Cemetery.

Mrs. Clarke, mother of Mrs. Rundle with her and her sister, Miss Rose Clarke, resided for several years in Peterborough, and it was here that Mrs. Rundle was married. The deceased lady will be remembered and mourned by many of her former friends in Peterborough.

TRENT CANAL CONTRACTOR HAS CONSTRUCTED AN £11,000,000 TUNNEL

Mr. Lewis P Nott, the contractor who has been awarded the contract for the construction of Section No. 1, of the Trent Canal, is well known to one Peterborough man, at least, Mr. Harry Dunford, of Perry street. Mr. Dunford states that the contractor is one of the best known in England, having built the great Severn Tunnel that lies beneath the Severn River and that connects England and Wales. This tunnel is almost 4 miles in length and is one of the most important in the old world.

Mr. Nott has, during his career completed an £11,000,000 contract on the continent in the construction of a tunnel. Mr. Dunford has often spoken on the same platform as Mr. Nott on temperance, religious and political questions in Bristol near where the contractor resides. He is considered one of the most influential men in Bristol, being the president of the Temperance Federation, and having been president of the Bristol Free Church Council and a member of the City Council. Mr. Nott resides at Stoke House, Stoke Bishop Palace, near Bristol.

ONE INSERTION GETS BACK THE PURSE

A lost purse in Peterborough and a lost ad. in the Examiner are two things quite naturally associated by most of those who have tried the experiment. A purse containing some money and a postoffice key were lost on the street yesterday. An ad. ordered for three nights was inserted in the classified ad. columns of the Examiner, but it was cancelled this morning. The reason was that the lost property was restored to its owner, and all through the help of a little ad. in a small space in the Examiner.

PARTIES HEMMED IN WITH ICE

Snowden and Rutherford Parties Unable To Return on Account of Freezing Of Gold Lake

The Snowden and Rutherford parties are very much disappointed at not being able to return home last evening as they had intended. It appears that during the cold snap Gold Lake has frozen up and the hunters were unable to cross in their canoes. The parties have secured long poles and are going to break a path in the ice to allow their canoes to go through. Mr. Snowden and his party have been back about two weeks and have had excellent luck. The party expect to get home some time to-day.

FEMININE DEER NOT PLENTIFUL IN THE HALIBURTON DISTRICT

Messrs. J. S. Waldron, secretary-treasurer of the Big Dipper Mining Company, and Wesley and Henry Rose returned to the city last night after an enjoyable and highly successful hunting trip in Haliburton township. The three, with Messrs. Huff and Casey of Haliburton, formed a jolly party, who had great sport with the monarchs of the forest. The six succeeded in getting eleven fine deer, of which all but one were bucks. In fact Mr. Waldron in talking of the trip with an Examiner reporter this morning, remarked that very few does were shot in that neighbourhood. Thirty-five deer were shipped from Gooderham station, and of this number only two were does, Mr. Waldron's making one of the pair.

Mr. Waldron stated that the deer were very plentiful in Haliburton, this season. He obtained his legal complement during the first couple of days, and could have got many more, as the party was constantly sighting the deer in the forest. Mr. Wes. Rose shot two fine bucks, and his brother got another so that the party brought five big deer with them when they arrived in the city last night. Mr. Waldron had business in the neighbourhood, and only hunted during the first few days. The three Haliburton men got two deer apiece so that the six had about as much luck as any party heard from yet this season.

The weather was very bad all through the outing, in fact the party had only two or three fine days all the time that they were away, as during the greater part of the time it was either snowing or raining. There were two or three quite heavy falls of snow and the deer could very easily be tracked in the snow. Once the party found bear tracks in the snow, and it was seen that Mr. Bruin had come within 200 yards of the house in which the party was living. They tried to track him the next morning, but were unable to locate the bear.

Mr. Waldron's party was about on hundred miles north of Peterborough and hunted in the vicinity of Big Pine and Dark Lakes, although the house in which the party boarded was situated some miles in the interior.

MANY LOCAL BANDSMEN PLAYING IN THE ARMY BAND IN COBOURG

The trip of the Salvation Army Band to the lake shore towns last summer won many laurels for that organization and the results are still being experienced. Cobourg gave the band one of the most enthusiastic receptions on the whole route, and now that town is to have an Army band of its own, with several of the Peterborough musicians in its ranks.

Among those who will have instruments in the new band, are Bandsmen W. H. Wilson, Horton, James Cown, Sutton and Darling, the last mentioned being leader. The men have secured employment in Cobourg and are now working there. They are all musicians, and held prominent parts in the local band, and will no doubt make a success of the Cobourg Salvation Army Band.

The departure of these players from the local band will have no material effect on it, as there have been more musicians with the local corps than could be used. Therefore, although Bandmaster Greene has lost some of his best men the band has lost none of its efficiency as the places were immediately refilled.

Mr. Will Ford is now Deputy Bandmaster of the local corps.

WARSAW PEOPLE FIGURE IN ANOTHER SERIOUS ACCIDENT

If the Nemesis which seems to be pursuing the people of Warsaw, in the shape of runaway accidents, does not soon stop, the greater part of the inhabitants of that township will soon in a short time be in the hospital. On Sunday Mr and Mrs. Miller were injured; on Monday Roland Dunford had his leg broken by being run over by a heavy waggon, and yesterday another serious accident occurred, in which the lives of three Dummer people were endangered, and which resulted in one of them being badly hurt.

It appears that Miss Maggie Middleton and Miss Laura Webster of Warsaw, and Mr. Geo. Crowe, who lives in Dummer, north of the village, were driving home from the city yesterday afternoon. Near Nichools oval their horse became frightened at a traction engine, and bolted, throwing its occupants into the road. Mr. Crowe managed to hold on to the reins and finally stopped the horse, not, however, before the vehicle was almost completly demolished. Miss Webster was found to be the most seriously hurt. Her knee was very badly wrenched and she sustained other less serious injuries. Dr Frederick was summoned and attended to her injuries, after which the unfortunate lady was removed to the Nicholls Hospital, where she is doing nicely to-day. Miss Middleton received some painful bruises and was badly shaken up but was not seriously injured. Mr. Crowe escaped with bruises on his face and head.

The party was fortunate in not being more seriously injured, as the accident was a bad one and for a time it looked as if someone would be killed.

TORONTO'S GREAT NEED

Toronto is a great city of which the whole Dominion has good reason to be proud, but it is always in trouble. It can't control itself. It is continually shaken with family jars. It always has a quiver full of grievances. It is perpetually hammering at the Street Railway Company, which may not be perfect, but it gives, under the circumstances, a reasonably good service. Toronto has an electric light service which seems to be capable of meeting the reasonable requirements of the city, but it is a perpetual bone of contention, and now it is proposed to spend something like five million dollars upon a system of electric energy distribution—with the idea of meeting a want which is, it seems, adequately met by an existing service. It strikes an unprejudiced observer that if Toronto has five million dollars to spend, or is willing to commit itself to an equivalent taxation, it can use it to better advantage than upon an electric distribution system. What Toronto needs more than anything else is pure water, not a decoction of dead cats and dogs, not diluted sewage. A proper sewage disposal plant, and the related problem of providing pure water would represent an expenditure that would keep the taxpayers paying quite as long and as largely as they would be willing to do. Such an expenditure—to provide a pressing need, to supply a demand made in the interests of the health and life of the citizens—is much more urgently indicated than the expenditure of four or five millions upon what is not so greatly required. If Toronto would prevent its harbour from being made a cess-pool, if it would provide a pure water supply, it would be doing something of far more benefit to the city than burying four or five millions in underground wire conduits. Toronto tries to do so much that it admirably succeeds in doing nothing. It has now on its hands its Esplanade problem, its street railway problem, its sewage disposal and water supply problem, and now it is piling Pelion upon Ossa in the form of an electric light and power problem, involving five millions of dollars. Many of its citizens may, according to present appearances, die from drinking dirty water before a solution of any of these problems is in sight, unless the water supply question is speedily disposed of. Toronto's great need is to find itself.

CANADIAN WHEAT SITUATION

The practical solution of the problem of getting Canadian wheat and other foodstuffs to the British markets, with the maximum of speed, and the minimum of cost, is becoming more pressing every day. Conditions in other parts of the world conduce to an increasing demand for Canadian wheat from the Mother Country. The United States wheat crop is about 16 per cent. below that of last year, and her total production of the standard cereals — wheat, corn, rye and barley — is about 800 millions less than last year. The reports from Russia indicate a large shortage of wheat, and a lessened production in proportion to population. From the fact that the native population of India is substituting wheat for rice, as an article of food, that country is exporting less wheat. Therefore, the wheat supply from Canada, possesses an exaggerated interest for the British people, and the latter are paying more for it than they did last year. To meet this situation, which will probably be repeated in effect, if not in form, in coming years, Canadians have a problem to solve. The railways must be induced to do their best in the way of transportation. The banks may and should, do something better, on the financial side, and the Government is called upon to do all it can to improve and extend our transportation facilities. It is recognised that the railways, with all that exist, as well as those in course of construction, are entirely inadequate to meet the traffic demands. With three lines in the Northwest moving grain to Fort William and Port Arthur, the most they will do will be to create congestion at this point; for, with only one railway running outward from that point, the disproportion of the spout to the hopper is emphasized. While navigation is open, a vessel haul to the Grand Trunk will enlist another railway in wheat carrying. The aid of the Welland Canal will, in the season of navigation, do much to relieve the situation. The completion of the Trent Canal, and of the Grand Trunk Pacific, with the suggested extension of the Intercolonial to Georgian Bay, will help. But even with all these in operation, transportation needs would not be met for any length of time. If, with only about one-tenth of the wheat producing capacity of the Northwest employed, all our transportation facilities promise to be unequal to meeting the transportation demands, what will, the position be, when the production of the Northwest shall be doubled, or trebled? With the future in view, the feasibility of the Hudson Bay route and the construction of the Georgian Bay Canal, seem to come within the scope of practical statesmanship.

RAILWAYS AND THEIR CRITICS

Montreal Gazette.

The railways are undergoing in somewhat aggravated form their annual condemnation because the temporary demand for cars is greater than their equipment enables them to meet. The situation is not new, nor is anything notably new being said about it. It extends to the United States and to the best equipped roads there as well as to roads in Canada. It was only a few days ago that lines between New York and Buffalo had to announce they could make no more contracts for the carriage of grain over their tracks till those they were engaged on had been fulfilled. In both countries there is, however, a disposition to take hold of minor incidents, to magnify them, to represent them as indicating the general situation, and to hold the railways up to condemnation as being inefficiently equipped and inefficiently managed by men who have no regard either for those who stand to the roads in the relation of customers or for the general interest of the country. To answer such extreme talk it should only be necessary to point to the work the railways have done and are doing, to the immense traffic they carry at about the lowest rates prevailing in the world and to their constant expenditures, not alone on new rolling stock, but on terminals, warehouses, and all that is requisite to the effective and cheap transport of passengers and freight. In the case of the two leading Canadian railways, the Grand Trunk and the Canadian Pacific, there was an addition to the rolling stock between July, 1906, and July, 1907, of 5,880 freight cars. This represented an increase in car equipment much beyond the increase in mileage of the roads. Most of it was designed to meet the requirements of the increasing traffic that was expected. The records show the roads are carrying more traffic than they ever did before, though their profit is not proportionately increasing. If in spite of this expenditure and this increased business there are at times and places delays in the supply of cars, it is for the well understood reason that it is not commercially practicable to keep a railway equipped with sufficient rolling stock to meet at once the maximum demand of the season of greatest traffic, particularly when, as often happens, the movement of the freight offered is largely in one direction. This is recognized by all who give study to the question, and by railway commissioners, amongst other, when they are composed of men of practical knowledge and with a sense of responsibility resting upon them. Railways may not be expected to perform either physical or commercial impossibilities. In this connection, also, it may be pointed out that while railways on this continent are being condemned for not providing greater means for doing their work, they are at the same time being hampered by legislation and legal orders, sometimes to the extent of reducing their credit. No one can or should condemn the law that requires railways to treat all who come to them with business on the same footing as regards rates, promptness and efficiency of service, etc. When, on the plea of serving the public, however, attempts are made to reduce their rates by law below a reasonably remunerative standard, harm is done, not only to those who have invested money in building railways, trusting in the public faith to be able to operate them under fair business conditions, but also to the communities which the railways serve. Railways can only raise money on their credit, and when their power of securing fair returns on their cost is taken away, either by unfair curtailment of their earning power or by undue taxation, their credit is also taken away or reduced, and they are rendered unable to secure on reasonable terms, or to secure at all, the money required to make improvements. In Canada there has been less of this dangerous legislation than in some parts of the United States. There are in Canada, however, those who assume to treat capital invested in railway property as the legitimate object of confiscatory measures, direct or indirect. They magnify whatever faults the railways have and ignore what is creditable to them, and so work to create a misinformed and prejudical public opinion which fair-minded men should combat.

Invalid Ladies
This Is For You.

There are thousands of females who suffer untold miseries common to their sex.
This is largely due to the peculiar habits of life and fashion, and the improper training of girlhood. Then, too, the physical changes that mark the three eras of womanhood (the maiden, the wife, and the mother) have much to do with her sufferings, most of which are endured in silence, unknown by even the family physician and most intimate friends.
To all such whose hollow cheeks, pale faces, sunken eyes and feeble footsteps, indicate nervousness, palpitation of the heart, weak, faint and dizzy spells, we would earnestly recommend a course of Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills.
Mrs. Jos. Sharp, Brighton, Ont., writes: "I was troubled with palpitation of the heart, weak spells and nervous trouble, and found no relief until advised to try Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills. I got one box and that helped me so much I sent and got five more. I am now cured completely."
Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are 50c. per box or three boxes for $1.25, at all dealers or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

PULPWOOD AND ITS PROBLEMS

The Toronto Globe is one of our greatest newspapers. It is, however, not content with being a mere purveyor of current news, but it practices an enterprising interest in promoting the moral and material welfare of the country. The Globe's special commissioners have become well known figures in journalism. This summer it sent out two members of its staff to investigate the conditions of the pulp wood industry, and the exploitation of our pulp wood resources. From time to time, during the summer, articles possessing great interest and embodying valuable information, were published in the Globe, and not only attracted public attention, but elicited much favourable comment from the contemporary press. These articles number 27. So great has been the interest aroused, that the Globe has felt warranted in republishing these articles and interviews in pamphlet form. These pamphlets contain 50 pages of matter, of vital concern to the whole of Canada, but especially this province, whose peculiar relations to pulp wood resources, make their wise exploitation and conservation, a matter of supreme moment. The Globe has done a great work, in not only directing attention to the subject, but in supplying information, which will doubtless conduce to the intelligent treatment of a subject which insistently demands practical legislation, as well as trade and popular attention. This valuable pamphlet, "Pulpwood, and its Problems," may be had of the Globe and of stationers. The information it contains is so great, and of such importance, that its existence in permanent form is a boon to the interests it represents.

Uses Herpicide Successfully in Treating Sycosis of the Beard

He says: "I recently treated a case of sycosis (similar to 'barber's itch') of the lower lip, with Newbro's Herpicide. HAPPY SPORTS RETURN FROM CRUISE

Buffalo Sportsmen Spent Week Up The Lakes

The party of Buffalo gentlemen which passed through the city over a week ago for a sporting outing up the lakes, returned to-day. The members of the party left Peterborough on the noon G.T.R. Port Hope train. There were fourteen in the party, among them being Dr. Clarke and Messrs. E Beck, J Dalbolat, F O Murray, J. Dietman, Wm. Landfelst, Jos. Miller, N Mook, Geo. Haffa and several others. They cruised around the lakes in Capt. Scollard's trim "Stoney Lake," and had a jolly time. They put in eight days, but did little shooting, although they were successful at fishing. They said farewell to Mr. D. Fraser of the Snowdon House this morning.

GAVE HIS LIFE TO SAVE OTHERS

Remarkable Instance of Heroism Of a Spaniard—Saves Village From Destruction

PERISHED IN EXPLOSION

It is always inspiring to read of acts of heroism when men in the discharge of their duty face and suffer certain death, sacrificing themselves that others may escape. The frequency with which such incidents are recorded in the ordinary news of the day, goes to show that men in the daily pursuits of life display courage and self-devotion as notable as ever distinguished soldiers on the field of battle. It would be impossible to imagine a more terrible incident than that of the locomotive engineer, a Spaniard by name, Jesus Garcia, who shouted to the train hands to jump for their lives and alone rushed his engine at top speed, so as to get the train, on fire, and loaded with explosives, beyond the village of Macomari, Arizona, before it would blow up. He succeeded in saving the village from destruction, and perished at his post. It was not his fault that a station house was wrecked and a number of lives lost. He did his best. He would have prevented the lesser catastrophe if he could. It was a race of death against time. As he sped along he knew that he was in the direst peril but he accepted his fate with a stoicism seemingly superhuman for the one object of saving others from the death he faced without flinching. Incidents like this raise our opinion of human nature.—Montreal Witness.

SIMPLEX PLAYER PIANO IN ACTION

A Wonderful Invention On Exhibition in G. M. Greene's Store

If one were not in the same room, watching the Simplex player piano, he could not distinguish the music played by this wonderful invention from that of a good musician. Mr. J. M. Greene, who has one of these pianos in his store, demonstrated its worth last night to a number of interested listeners. The device by which the music is played is simple, when once its arrangements have been explained, and almost anyone can manipulate it in the playing of the selections. The piano can also be played in the ordinary manner, the invention interfering in no way with its utility in this respect.

The player piano can produce any piece of music and all that has to be done is to manipulate a little stop that controls the tempo. This invention it is said, will revolutionize piano playing, but in spite of the accuracy of the device, this statement is not given much credit.

Pains and Aches Of The Aged

LARGELY DUE TO DERANGEMENTS OF THE LIVER, KIDNEYS AND BOWELS, WHICH ARE OVERCOME BY

DR. CHASE'S KIDNEY-LIVER PILLS

You do not feel so young as you used to. The joints are a bit stiff. And you have dull, heavy pains in the back and limbs, with attacks of rheumatism, it may be.

It is possible you have found out that the cause of trouble rests with the sluggish action of the kidneys, liver and bowels, but if you have not used Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills you have not tested the effective treatment for these conditions.

Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills are a comfort to the aged largely because of their unique combined action on the whole excretory system.

Constipation and biliousness can no longer exist when the liver is enlivened to action by the use of this great medicine.

Kidney derangements and backache likewise disappear when the kidneys are invigorated, and an occasional dose of these pills ensures the elimination of uric acid from the system.

Almost daily we hear of aged people whose pains and aches have been overcome and whose lives have been made more comfortable and more happy by the use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills.

Mr. James Simpson, Newcomb Mills, Northumberland County, Ont., writes: "This is to certify that I was sick in bed the most of the time for three years with kidney disease. I took several boxes of pills—different kinds—and a great many other kinds of patent medicines; besides that, I was under treatment by four different doctors during the time, and not able to work. I began to take Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, and since that time have been working every day, although a man nearly 70 years of age. Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills have cured me."

In every family there is need of just such a medicine as Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills to cure constipation, backache, biliousness, indigestion, and prevent dangerous and fatal diseases of the kidneys and bowels. One pill a dose, 25 cents a box, at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto.—2.

THE FASTEST SHIP THAT FLOATS

The New "Mauretania," The Largest Vessel Ever Seen—Carries 2500 Passengers

WONDER OF THE WATER

Tynesids rejoiced the other day when the "Mauretania" was towed down the river on her way to the Mersey. The Tynesiders did well to exult, for this newest wonder in shipbuilding is the largest vessel that the world has ever seen. In gross tonnage Brunel's "Great Eastern" is eclipsed by 7,640 tons, in length by 35 feet, in breadth by 5 feet, and in depth by several feet. The "Mauretania," too, is a few feet longer and a few feet deeper than the Lusitania," and has already something the best of it in speed trials. But best of all reasons to be proud is the fact that in the opinion of all experts more splendid workmanship has never been put into any building either on sea or land than that on the "Mauretania." As a reproof to those who deprecate the expenditure of public money to improve navigation, it is interesting to record that among those who watched this newest wonder of shipbuilding making for the sea were not a few who remembered the day when a man walked across the bar of the Tyne clinging to the stern of a rowing boat. That was the time when passenger boats from Newcastle to Shields used to take a fiddler on board to keep the company merry when the modest little vessel stuck on a sand-bar and had to wait for the rising tide. A dozen such occurrences used to happen in the course of as many miles—reminding one of Mark Twain's descriptions of boating on the Mississippi—and now to-day, because of the pluck and ability of the Tynesiders, a ship has passed out of the Tyne as big as a floating town, built to carry nearly twenty-five hundred passengers and a crew of nine hundred officers and men. No wonder exulting crowds—all Tyneside, in fact—occupied old outlast boats and new slipways, filled the decks of ships recently launched, and lined the walls of the earliest of the docks on the river, cheering, cheering, where Collingwood's monument looks out to sea from its environment of cannon from the "Royal Sovereign," which spoke with so compelling a voice at Trafalgar. The "special representative" of the "Westminster Gazette" describes the scene with greatest enthusiasm, and, as one reads, one envies him such a subject to write about. It is difficult to imagine any material achievement more inspiring.

MR. LEARY COMMENCES THRESHING

Claims He Has 3000 Bushels of Oats—Expect to Finish This Evening

Ald. R. H. Leary, of the firm of Storey and Leary, informed the Examiner to-day that he begun threshing on his farm, in Auburn, this morning. The products of the farm being threshed are clover and oats; the latter is selling at a very high price at present and Mr. Leary expects to thresh 3,000 bushels. Jack Elliott will have charge of the work, with ten men to assist him. Mr. William Reid's steamer has been engaged to supply power for the threshing machine. Mr. Leary is much pleased with the crops on his farm this season. He expects that the threshing will be completed this evening.

MERCURY CROSSES THE SUN'S DISC

Visible To Local Astronomers This Morning At Break of Day

There was an interesting, and comparatively rare, astronomical event, this morning, namely a transit of the planet Mercury across the disc of the sun. Usually the planet at the time of its conjunction passes north or south of the sun. This morning, however, it crossed the sun's face, being visible through a piece of smoked glass as a little black bead. The last transit visible in Canada, was in 1894; the next will be in 1914. Mercury is always so near the sun, that it is seldom seen with the naked eye. When the sun rose this morning the planet was visible on his face; but a quarter to ten the planet had disappeared from view.

MUCH CONCERN FELT

Ordinary Method of Treating Catarrh Proves Unsuccessful

Recent statistics showing an increase in catarrh have shaken the confidence of medical men in the usual prescriptions to safeguard human health from the ravages of this disease.

When stomach dosing proved ineffective, it was natural to look for some other treatment, and it is believed that in Hyomei an absolute cure for all catarrhal troubles has has at last been found. Breathed through a neat pocket, inhaler, its healing medication reaches every spot where there are catarrhal germs, destroys them, prevents their future growth, and soothes the irritated mucous membrane so that relief is felt almost instantly, while lasting cure is practically sure to follow.

The complete Hyomei outfit costs but $1.00, and is sold by Wm. Madill, under an absolute agreement to refund the money if it does not give satisfaction. It is the only cure for catarrh that has ever been sold under a guarantee to cost nothing unless it cures, but Mr. Madill has so much faith in its power to cure all catarrhal troubles that he is willing to take the risk, so if Hyomei does not help you, there will not be a penny's expense. Get an outfit at once on this liberal plan.

A GUN ACCIDENTALLY DISCHARGED

Party Were Examining It—Flesh Badly Torn

C. Howard, a young man residing near Cooksston, in Hastings County was accidentally shot in the leg while hunting near Millbridge. The unfortunate young man was in company with a party of deer hunters, who were examining their rifles before entering the woods, when in some unaccountable way one of the guns was discharged, the ball entering Mr. Howard's leg below the knee, shattering the bone and tearing the flesh terribly. He is in Belleville hospital, where it is feared it will be necessary to amputate the leg at the knee.

"I desire hereby to challenge any man who holds that tobacco users cannot enter the kingdom of Heaven, to a public discussion of the question at such time as may suit his convenience, it being understood that no time limit shall be imposed upon either and that the Bible shall be the source of all authority." This was the advertisement inserted in a Washington (Pa.,) newspaper Saturday by Rev. S. K. Riggs, who conducts a mission there and who claims to have Scriptural consent to the use of tobacco. Rev. Mr. Riggs engaged in a discussion of the question the Thursday night previously with Rev. Mr. Mosier and the debate broke up in a turmoil—ended in smoke.

EXPLANATION OF THE ORIGIN

Foundation Of Canadian Clubs in Hamilton, Says Rev. Dr. Talling

GUELPH NOT THE ORIGIN

In view of the recently formed Canadian Club in Peterborough, the foundation of such organizations provides an interesting subject, for those who are interested in the work here. Some time ago Dr. Talling contributed an article to the Examiner setting forth the aims and objects of the Canadian Club, in the course of which he mentioned that the origin of the Clubs was in Hamilton. On November 5th, the Examiner republished an article from a Guelph paper written by Mr .E. J .O'Brien, claiming the city of Guelph as the foundation.

The following is Dr. Talling's reply:

To the Editor of the Examiner,—

Dear Sir, — Your issue of Nov. 5th, reprinted a letter by Mr. E. J. O'Brien, claiming for Guelph the honour or organizing the first Canadian Club, and asserting that the Hamilton Club procured their by-laws from the Guelph Canadian Club.

Since Mr .O'Brien evidently writes in good faith, and desires only "honour to whom honour is due," he will welcome the correction of two errors under under which he is labouring.

First, that various patriotic clubs, similar to the Canadian Club, existed prior to 1892, is very well known. That Guelph had one of these is not doubted. But Mr. O'Brien, in stating that the Hamilton Club "procured their bylaws from the Guelph Canadian Club" is mistaken. As this is a subject on which only one in authority can speak, let me quote from a letter concerning this matter from Mr. Charles H. McCullough, who is so well known as the "Father of the Canadian Club movement." Referring to Mr. O'Brien's claim he writes, "I can only say that the Hamilton club is the outgrowth and visible sign of an idea which I conceived and presented to a little meeting of five men, in my office, 36 James street south, on the evening of December 6th, 1892. I was unaware then, and have been up to the reading of this paragraph, that there ever was a society known as the Canadian Club in Guelph, and need hardly add that I never saw a copy of its bylaws."

Second, It is well known that the Toronto Club is daughter of the Hamilton Club, whence arose the remarkable movement which to-day constitutes so important a factor in the making of Canada's future.

Other seed may have been sown, but the germ from which sprang THE Canadian Club, was the Hamilton organization, and it acknowledges Mr. McCullough as its originator.

Faithfully,
M. P. TALLING,
Peterborough, Nov. 14 ,1907.

THE HEARD PARTY GET BLACK BEAR

The Young's Point Men Meeting With Their Usual Success

The Heard hunting party which leaves Young's Point every November for deer hunting grounds near Apsley are meeting with the usual good success as in other years. On Saturday last Mr. Richard Heard returned to the Point with 5 beautiful trophies of the chase as well as a big black bear.

It is getting to be an annual occurrence of the Heard party to include a bear in the array of game they capture and this season was no exception to the rule. Mr. Heard left again this week for the camp and the whole party will be back tomorrow night.

The Young's Point party includes besides Richard Heard, his brother Ben, and Sam Dowall, making three of the best shots who hunt the woods for the fleetfooted denizens of the forest.

HEAVY GRAIN TRAFFIC ON THE G.T.R.

Midland Line Very Busy With Grain For Montreal

The G.T.R. business over the Midland line, passing through the city is very brisk at present. It is due to th eheavy consignments of grain that are being received at the inland ports to be conveyed to Montreal. The usual route is from Midland to Lindsay and from Lindsay to Belleville and thence to Montreal. Nearly all the trains are double headers and the empties returning are also hauled by two engines.

JAPANESE PAPER FOR HANDKERCHIEFS

An English Doctor Condemns The Linen Variety

Speaking at a public meeting at Cuckfield, Dr. Hugh Stott, medical officer of health for the combined districts of East Sussex, said: "The linen handkerchief is an abomination. It probably perpetuates phthisis. I believe that Japanese paper will become the material for handkerchiefs in the future."

Music and Drama

"EAST LYNNE"

The old favourite drama, "East Lynne," which never seems to grow old in the affection of theatregoers, was presented by the H. Wilmot Young Company at the Grand last night, and in its presentation the company retained its old friends and gained new ones. The members of the cast excelled themselves in the rendition of this great emotional play and held their audience from start to finish. Mr. Young was cast as Archibald Carlyle, and gave an excellent interpretation of the part, and Marjie Adams Young was a great success in the role of Lady Isabel. The veteran comedian, Harry Lindley, supplied the comedy as John Dill.

The specialties by the De Mateos, K. Chas. Morse, and the other talented vaudeville artists were much appreciated.

The Peterborough Rugby Club occupied box seats as guests of the management last night.

MARKS' BROS

"No company travelling to-day has a more enviable reputation than the well-known and popular company bearing the name of Marks Bros., who will appear at the Grand for four nights, commencing Monday, November 18. It is an organization which is accounted throughout the country as a standard of excellence, and the reputation it has acquired during the past few years of success will be more than sustained during the coming season. The company is a large and well-balanced one. It is perfectly equipped with special scenery and electrical effects necessary for a first-class performance, each play being presented with perfect scenery and beautiful costumes. The opening play will be "The Wages of Sin," a beautiful southern drama. Between the acts there will be some good specialties; also moving pictures and illustrated songs."

On Monday night two ladies or one lady and gentleman will be admitted for 30 cents.

Should Peterborough Have A Ladies' Musical Society?

Would Do Well to Emulate The Ladies Of Ottawa Who Have Done Good Work For The Culture of Music At The Capital

SPLENDID TALENT HERE

With such a fund of musical talent as Peterborough boasts of, it is a matter of general regret that a society has not been formed for the development and instruction of those who are musically inclined, and for the bringing together of the prominent musicians in the city. The subject has often been broached, and there is a general feeling that a society of this nature would be a success, but no one has ever been able to promote the scheme.

There are perhaps more ladies in the city who are deeply interested in music, than men, and last winter they held a series of meetings which aimed at a broader knowledge of music, and especially the works of the masters. In reference to this, an interesting article appears in the "Musical Canada" for November, giving an account of the Women's Morning Music Club of Ottawa, and the splendid results it has accomplished. The article is partially given herewith:

"In the summer of 1894 Miss L. Carling, a daughter of the Hon. John Carling, herself a thorough musician, and musical enthusiast, called a meeting of ladies whom she thought would be interested in the project, to discuss the formation of a Musical Society in Ottawa. Among those who attended were Mrs. F. M. S. Jenkins, Mrs. J. Harrison, Mrs. C. Beddoe, Mrs. E. Saunders, Mrs. Macdonnell, Miss Honor Clayton, Miss Berry, Miss Wise, Mrs. C. Saunders, the Misses Duhamel, Miss Bertha O'Reilly, and the Hon. Mrs. Lambart. The result of this meeting was the formation that winter of the Women's Morning Music Club (now the Morning Music Club), forming a link in the chain of clubs already established in London, Ont., and Toronto. The first officers elected were Her Excellency the wife of the Governor-General, ex-officio, patron; Miss L. Carling, president; Hon. Mrs. Lambart, secretary; Mrs. Pollard, treasurer. The objects of the club, the constitution states, are 'to promote in Ottawa the best class of music and to develop latent talent.' It need hardly be said that they have successfully accomplished their object."

The scheme mapped out for the first year's work was very comprehensive, and but a few of the meetings can be given here:

Nov. 22—Bach; Early German Music, paper, Miss Berry.

Dec. 6—Handel and the Oratorio, paper, Mrs. A. Macdonnell.

Dec. 13—English Music.

"Since its inception, during each successive season, the club has given a series of, at first weekly, but now, fortnightly morning concerts, which have increased in popularity until they have become an indispensable feature of Ottawa society. Besides affording an opportunity of hearing musical talent which might otherwise be latent, the concerts have also been the means from time to time of enabling its members to hear gifted musicians from other parts of the country who may be visiting Ottawa. Famous artists have frequently been brought to the city under the club's auspices. Last winter their list included Anton Hekking, the Dutch cellist, Frances Rogers, baritone, of New York, and the Kneisel Quartette. This year already the names of Katharine Goodson, pianiste, and Miss Clara Clemens, contralto, are mentioned. During its career, nearly all the prominent local musicians have been connected with the club, taking a deep interest in its welfare and progress. It has also given an incalculable amount of pleasure and instruction to the public, and has a membership list of three hundred and fifty."

The above emphasizes the success that the ladies of Ottawa have met with, and judging from the talent that this city boasts of, such a society should flourish in Peterborough.

Trades Labour Council Hears Report of Congress

Local Labour Body Discusses Important Business Last Night—Non-union Barbers Were Referred To

ADDED SOME NEW MEMBERS

The Peterborough Trades and Labour Council held its regular meeting last evening in the Labour Hall, with President Alexander in the chair and with a good attendance of delegates.

Secretary's Report

The meeting resolved itself into an open one in order to receive the secretary's report of the proceedings of the recent session of the Dominion Trades and Labour Congress held in Winnipeg. The report was a lengthy resume of the work of the convention and the secretary was tendered the thanks of the meeting at the close of the report.

Bros. Robertson, Driscoll and Moss, were welcomed as delegates from the recently organized Journeymen Stonecutters' Union, as was also Bro. Chas. Westbrook, of the Pattern Makers' League.

Canadian Labour Party

The question of the organization of a branch of the Canadian Labour Party was considered during the evening. The matter was discussed at considerable length, and it was decided to more thoroughly organize the labour forces in the city first, before instituting a branch of the new party.

Revival in Labour

The question of the thorough organization of the different trades in the city was also considered and it was decided to inaugurate an aggressive labour campaign in the city this winter. The question of inviting Mr. James Simpson, of Toronto, a brilliant labour union exponent to address a mass meeting in the city was favourably considered, and a committee was drafted to visit the different unions in the city and get their co-operation in the matter.

Non-union Barbers

During the evening the delegates were instructed to urge upon the members of their respective unions to patronize the union barbers of the city, as complaints had been made of carelessness in this matter.

Miscellaneous

Owing to the lateness of the hour several matters of local importance were not considered, such as the city assessment question, the non-enforcement of th Factories Act in Peterborough and other question of considerable import. These, together with other live questions will be considered at the December meeting.

WOMAN WITH RELATIVES HERE IS MARRIED ON HER DYING BED

With only one hour more to live, Lydia McLean, a patient of Grace Hospital, Toronto, wedded the man she loved yesterday. The bridegroom is William McArthur. The couple were to have been married some time ago, but in the meantime Miss McLean became seriously ill. Rev. C. Ensor Sharpe, of St. Thomas' church, was called in to perform the ceremony, and thus satisfy the dying girl's last wish that she should be united with her lover forever.

When told that she was dying she expressed a wish that she should be united to her lover. Conscious through the whole ceremony, the girl passed away only a few hours after her marriage. Before her illness Miss McLean was employed at the Keen Manufacturing Company, but her relatives are in Peterborough. Yesterday morning the remains were taken to St. Catharines, accompanied by the husband, and there were also present at the funeral service about two hundred girls from the Keen factory.

BRAMPTON DELEGATES REPORT

Interesting Meeting at Charlotte Street Last Night

At the regular prayer meeting in connection with the Charlotte street Methodist church last night the reports of the delegates, Mrs. H. P. Kennedy and Mrs. Samuel Carver, who attended the recent Brampton Convention were presented. They gave a thorough resume of the questions discussed in convention placing particular emphasis upon the importance of the senior Bible Class organization. The Home Department and Cradle Roll in connection with Sunday schools, neither of which the Charlotte street church has at present, were fully explained.

TWO ENGLISHMEN RIDE THE BUMPERS

Were Found in C.P.R. Box Car Supposed To be Sealed, Sent to Jail For 30 Days

Theere was a large crowd in the police court this morning but only two prisoners were in the box. Another prisoner appeared but the charge was laid over until Monday next.

The first case to be dealt with was Peter Leonard and Jos. Thomas, charged with stealing a ride in a C.P.R. box car. The men were found by a brakeman in a whukey car which was supposed to have been sealed, but when the men were discovered the seals were broken. They had previously been employed by the R. & O. Navigation Company as deck hands, but had been out of work in Montreal for three weeks, and had sent $50.00 home to their people in England. The magistrate told the men that this thing was getting a regular nuisance and sent both men to jail for 30 days with an option of a $50.00 fine.

The next charge was against a young woman of this town, charged with stealing a blue serge coat and vest, cash box containing $46.00, and a spirit level from Albert V. Jones, on Nov. 1st. The young lady appeared this morning with her mother and wanted to go on with the case. The magistrate laid the charge over till Monday next, and allowed the girl to go on her own bail of $100.00.

PROMPT DIURETIC ACTION

In the case of those suffering from all kidney, liver, bladder and urinary diseases there is no greater relief than that found in a simple home receipt in which a small quantity of Vimosa compound is used. The vimosa has a prompt diuretic action, getting to the seat of pain and relieving it instantly. The receipt is one ounce of compound Vimosa, one ounce sweet spirits of nitre, four ounces syrup of rhubarb. A few doses will relieve the most severe backache. Any druggist will supply the ingredients and you can mix them at home. Dose, one dessert spoonful in water after meals and at bedtime.

Tully's Hair Tonic

and DANDRUFF CURE makes the hair grow

July 24th, 1907

About the month of September, 1906, my hair began to come out in large spots, leaving the scalp perfectly bare on the right side of the head, also my beard on the left side. About the 15th of December I showed it to J. D. Tully, Druggist; he said that he had a preparation that would restore the hair. I could scarcely credit his statement, but decided to try it, and in three weeks using the hair commenced to grow. Since that time I have lost nearly all my old hair which has been entirely replaced with new hair, and the beard also. I consider this by all means the best hair grower on the market, as I had previously tried other preparations without any effect. Any one wishing to ask me about it will find me at my home, 265 McDonnel Street, Peterborough, or at R. R. Crossing, G.T.R., Charlotte St.

WEDDING BELLS

TINNEY-LONG

A very pretty wedding took place last night at the home of Mr. and Mrs. David Oliver, Wescott street. The contracting parties were Mr. Charles Tinney of Haliburton, and Miss Isabella Long, of Saskatchewan, Western Canada, the Rev. A. H. Brace, of the Park street Baptist church, performing the ceremony. Mrs James Tinney assisted the bride and Mr. Tinney, brother of the groom looked after his interests. The bridal part entered the drawing room to the strains of the wedding march played by Miss Mabel Oliver. The bride looked charming in a gown of cream cashmere, with silk yoke, all over lace and carried a bouquet of white chrysanthemums. Her attendant wore blue cashmere, with yoke of silk all over lace, and carried a bouquet of pink chrysanthemums.

The groom's present to the bride was a gold watch and chain, and to the bridesmaid a gold maple leaf brooch, and to the groomsman a gold scarf pin. The bridal party sat down to a sumptuous wedding feast.

Mr. and Mrs. Tinney will make their home in Cardiff, Haliburton.

PRESENTATION BY EKO CLUB

Mr. McCaughey Who Leaves To-morrow For Berlin Given Gold Locket

EMPLOYED BY THE C. P. R.

Last night the members of the Eko Club met in their club rooms to bid good-bye to one of their number, Mr. H. Lorne McCaughey, who leaves the city to-morrow night for Berlin, Ont., where he has accepted a position as up-town ticket agent for the C.P.R. An address was read to Mr. McCaughey, in the course of which he was presented with a handsome gold locket as a memento of his associations with the Eko Club.

The following address was read by Mr. J. M. Gemmell, the presentation being made by Mr. R. M. Glover:

Mr. H. Lorne McCaughey.

Dear Friend,—This, the eve of your departure from Peterborough, and of your retirement from the relations with the Eko Club which you have so creditably sustained, is greatly regretted by us, your companions, who have learned to respect your associations while you have been a member of our club. We esteem it a privilege, therefore, to bear testimony to the great interest you have always taken in the welfare of the club with a view towards the enjoyment of its members, and we deeply regret your departure.

Your relations with our club have always been zealous and energetic to promote its best interest and we feel that in your separation from Peterborough and in the severing of your connections with the Eko Club, we are losing a valuable member and citizen.

In your personal relations and in your activities towards things in general, you have proved yourself a public-spirited citizen as well as a loyal member of the Eko Club.

We, your associates, therefore greatly regret your departure from our club, and as a token of our sentiments we ask you to accept this locket as a souvenir of your relations with us, and we trust that in spirit, if not in body, we may always have your presence with us at all our meetings.

Signed on behalf of the club,

J. COMSTOCK, President.
T. H. GLOVER, Secretary.

Mr. McCaughey replied briefly thanking his associates for not only the present kindness, but for the many he had met with while a member of the club. He left the city partially with regret at losing the associations of so many good fellows he had met with in the Eko Club. Mr. McCaughey leaves to-morrow night for Berlin.

PETERBORO' HUNTERS' LONG WALK

Messrs. Storey and Elliott Carry Deer On Their Shoulders For Seven Miles

Mr. Storey, who left here a short time ago, with Mr. Elliott, tells a little story of a long tramp he had for a deer. The Sweeney party were all out shooting, and Mr. Elliott and Mr. Storey were together. The pair got on to the track of a deer, and followed it for seven miles before it dropped. During the chase, they fired at every opportunity, and, after the deer fell it was found that it had been hit seven times. It was pretty dark when they came up with the deer, but they hated to leave the fine beast in the forest all night, and decided to carry it to the camp. They arrived back at the camp very late in the evening with their prize, which they claim is the largest deer in the camp.

INSPECTION OF CADETS CORPS

Date Has Been Set For Next Tuesday—Inspecting Officer Not Known

It is probable that the Collegiate Institute Cadet Corps will be inspected on Tuesdya of next week, but as yet the inspecting officer has not been decided upon. Lieut. Hodgson, in command of the corps, wrote the officer commanding Eastern Ontario, some time ago, regarding the spection, and was informed that any date would be suitable. He has written again to Kingston, naming Tuesday as the day, so that in all probability, Col. Young, or some other officer, will be here on that date.

The Cadet Corps has been receiving instructions since the beginning of the term, and are well up in their drill.

The winners were each presented with a beautiful hat-pin. The roller rink will hold their weekly band concert of 20 selections on Friday night.

THE CITY RECEIVES IT'S CHECK

Share of The Licence Fees From Hotels Of Peterboro'

The City Treasurer has received a substantial increase to the city's finances in the shape of a cheque for $2,608.20, the city's share of the money received from the hotelkeepers of Peterborough for license fees. This is paid twice a year, and the amount collected is divided between the city and the Ontario Government, the latter receiving the larger share on account of the fact that the fines and charges for the transfer of licenses, etc., are all paid to the Government. The city's share for the first part of the year amounted to $2,594.25, so that altogether the corporation has received this year from the hotelmen $5,202.45.

ANNUAL CONVENTION OF S. S. A.

Two Peterboro' Men Attend—Mr. R. J. Devey of St. John's Church And J.J. Turner, Jr., of St. Luke's

MR. DEVEY GIVES ADDRESS

Mr. R. J. Devey, organist of St. John's church, Peterborough, returned last night, after attending the Sunday school convention in Toronto, held at Trinity Church. Mr. Devey stated to the Examiner that he had had a very enjoyable time. There were only two representatives from Peterborough, Mr. J. J. Turner, jr., and Mr. Devey.

The convention lasted from Monday morning at 11 o'clock, until Tuesday evening. Most of the addresses wre delivered by clergymen from the Diocese of Toronto, and discussion was open to all laymen present.

On Tuesday Canon delivered an address on "The City Sunday school, its Present Conditions and Possibilities." He thought that every child being part of Christ's body, has a duty towards other children, and the responsibility lay on the parent, and not on the Sunday school teacher. The child should be taught reverence for his church and Sunday school, and should be urged to read his Bible and pursue regular devotional habits. At the conclusion of Rev. Canon Dann's address Mr. Devey arose and pointed out to the assembly that the discussion was limited wholly to the clergy. "It appears to me," he said, "that the layman's side of this question is not as prominent as it should be. We should not leave the rector with his Sunday school very often manned by young teachers only, and while giving all prominence to a prayerful consideration of this subject I suggest, and urge, that the laymen get to work and rally around their Sunday school officials and adopt as their motto 'To labour is to pray.'"

A very helpful address was delivered by Rev. Principal Rexford, D. D., of the Montreal Theological College, on a "Church Sunday-school Model Lesson."

Mr. Devey hopes at some future time to be able to deliver the same address to the Sunday school teachers of this city and believes that it would help them very much in their work.

When Your Health Fails, What Then

Good health is the capital of persons who earn their livelihood with brains and muscle. Success is for the strong and alert—for those whose blood is rich and whose nerve cells are filled with vigour and energy. It is not pleasant to contemplate what might happen with failing health and for this reason it is well to heed the first symptoms of nervous exhaustion, and to keep health at high water mark by using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

HOME-MADE MEDICINE

Said to Relieve Kidney Trouble and Rheumatism

One ounce Fluid Extract Dandelion;

One ounce Compound Salatone;

Four ounces Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla;

Mixed and taken in teaspoonful doses after meals and at bedtime, is stated by a prominent physician to give most excellent results in kidney or urinary afflictions, and also in rheumatism and sciatica. The mixture opens the clogged pores of the kidneys, thus assisting them in their work of filtering all waste and poisonous matter from the blood, and expels these in the urine. To allow this poisonous matter to remain means that it will settle in the muscular tissues or joints, and cause the untold misery known as rheumatism.

The mixture is composed of harmless vegetable ingredients which can be purchased at any good drug store, and mixed at home.

Anyone suffering from any of these afflictions will no doubt be pleased to learn of so simple and highly recommended a remedy as this.

NOT JUST AS GOOD

Did you ever inquire at a store for certain articles and get for a reply "We have something just as good"? Did it ever occur to you that "Something just as good" is something the dealer has been able to buy much cheaper than the articles you inquire for? This is true in drugs, fabrics, groceries, hardware, and in fact every line, including silver-plated ware. If you inquire for 1847 Rogers Bros.' Knives, Forks or Spoons, don't accept any bogus Rogers' stamp because your dealer tells you it's just as good.

TRIAL WAS SAID TO BE UNFAIR

Justice Anglin Severely Censures Magistrate at Brampton.

STREETSVILLE MAN SET FREE

Conviction In Liquor Case Quashed —Judge Applies Strong Terms to Manner In Which Proceedings Were Conducted—"Contrary to Whole Spirit of Justice"—He Was Allowed No Defence.

Toronto, Nov. 14.—"I have rarely heard of magisterial authority being more unfairly and arbitrarily exercised than it appears to have been by the police magistrate in this case. His course was entirely contrary to the spirit which happily pervades the administration of justice in this country," says Justice Anglin yesterday in quashing the conviction by Magistrate Robert Crawford of Brampton of James Farrell of Streetsville, who had been charged with selling liquor without a license. Farrell had been sentenced to four months in jail.

Defendant alleged that no evidence had been submitted at the trial that his had been a second offence; and that the liquor sold was "local option" beer.

"But," says the judge, "perhaps the most serious complaint of the defendant, is that he was not allowed fair or reasonable opportunity to make his defence. The offer made by the magistrate to grant an adjournment on the payment of $10, even if not withdrawn, as the counsel swears it was, scarcely requires consideration. He was refused even an adjournment of a few hours and was compelled to proceed with his trial without witnesses, without opportunity to present a defence, apparently substantial and bona fide, and defended by a counsel chosen not by himself but by the magistrate who tried him."

FIVE MEN EXECUTED.

Shot by Order of Haytian President For Conspiracy.

New York, Nov. 14.—Private advices from responsible foreign sources in Hayti give details of the execution of five political prisoners recently reported in a despatch from Minister Furniss to the State Department.

According to these advices some few weeks ago several men were arrested and condemned to death on the charge of conspiracy against the Government. One of the men was condemned because he had made a military coat for another man, and another was condemned because he lived in a house between two others, and in each of the two a rifle had been found.

On Oct. 30 someone put a rifle cartridge on the train lines, and the first passing engine exploded it. The President at once had five of the condemned men taken to the burial ground and shot. The names of the five men were Helvetius Traversiers, Alexander Delaunay Moise, Nestor Dumay, Edouardne Edouard and Exime Jean.

TWO KILLED IN EXPLOSION.

Terrible Concussion Was Felt Sixty Miles Away.

Columbus, Ohio, Nov. 13.—Two men were killed and three or four other persons injured yesterday in an explosion in the Hercules nitro-glycerine factory at Bradner. The factory was demolished and a number of houses shattered in the town.

W. Cisco was blown to pieces, not even a shred of his body being found. John Washburn died a horrible death, lying screaming on the ground among the debris and burning to death.

The explosion was felt generally within 60 miles of Bradner.

Cheap Light For St. Kitt's.

St. Catharines Nov. 14.—From present indications St. Catharines will obtain street lighting for the next five years at a price below $38.50 per night. That was the price of the Stark agreement, but since the failure of that company to fulfill its contract. The Lincoln, a subsidiary of the Cataract Power Co., has been supplying light for $72.50.

Now the Falls Power Co., a subsidiary of the Ontario Power Co., is dickering with the fire and light committee, and is said to be willing to pay the Stark Co.'s debt and fulfill the contract at a better price to the city than $39.50.

2,000 Miners Idle.

Vancouver, B. C., Nov. 14.—Tuesday the Granby and Snowshoe mines at Phoenix, employing 500 men, closed down tight, said to due to the low price of copper.

The Mother Lode mine is reported to be doing likewise, and the three smelters of the district will be blown out and idle probably by to-day, making 2,000 men out of work.

I. C. R. Death Toll.

Bathurst, N. B., Nov. 14.—An unknown man, well dressed, about 30 years of age, was killed by an I. C. R. train yesterday morning. The body was terribly mangled.

Five persons have been killed by I. C. R. trains since Saturday last. Most of the victims were intoxicated.

Caledonia Station Destroyed.

Hamilton, Nov. 14.—There was a costly fire at Caledonia this morning when the G. T. R. station, a mammoth grain elevator, many thousand feet of lumber and a coal pile were consumed. The damage has been placed at $15,000, with insurance $5,000.

RECEPTION AT GUILD HALL

Emperor William Declares Cordial Understanding Between England and Germany is Necessary to Welfare of the Whole World—Presented With Address in Gold Casket—Jokes Though Ill.

London, Nov. 14.—Emperor William of Germany, the guest of King Edward, made a speech yesterday at the Guild Hall, where he was entertained by the City of London. He urged the strengthening of the Anglo-German relations and emphasized his unalterable desire to foster the peace of the world. The day passed off without the expected Socialist demonstration, much less any disorder or rioting.

The reception given Emperor William by the people of London has been respectful, but compared with that given some other royal visitors of recent years, it was in no sense enthusiastic. The atmosphere, which has prevailed during his appearance in public, has been tinged with decided coolness, and there is no doubt that the English officials are relieved that the passages of the German Emperor through the streets of this city took place yesterday without any disagreeable incidents.

The anti-German feeling among a large section of the English people, which just at present is particularly strong, derived fresh impetus from the antagonism which cropped out between the two nations on various lines during the recent Peace Conference at The Hague.

Emperor William evidently intends that his visit shall inspire better feelings, but the results of it remain to be seen. However cordial relations between the ruling houses of Great Britain and Germany may be, the British public does not share these sentiments. A large section, if not a majority of the English people, persists in believing Germany to be Great Britain's one enemy among the nations, and this enmity has been fanned recently by continuous warnings from some of the leading newspapers and relatives, as well as from military experts, that Germany's chief naval and military activity is directed toward schemes for the invasion of England—that Germany plans to surprise England some day when she is fully prepared to strike suddenly, just as Japan surprised Russia. "The German invasion" is becoming a hobby of the anti-Germans and a subject of ridicule for the pro-Germans; the idea has, however, unquestionably affected the mind of the public and it is tended to surround with suspicion Emperor William's professions of his desire for peace.

At Guild Hall an address of welcome was presented to the Emperor in a magnificent gold casket. In reply, His Majesty recalled his previous reception at the Guild Hall in 1891, and emphasized his unalterable desire to foster the peace of the world. His Majesty, during his remarks, said:

"I said then, on this spot, that my aim is above all the maintenance of peace. History, I venture to hope, will do me justice in that I have pursued this aim unswervingly ever since. The main prop and base for the peace of the world is the maintenance of the good relations between our two countries, and I will further strengthen them so far as lies in my power. The German nation's wishes coincide with mine. The future will then show a bright prospect, and commerce may develop among the nations who have learned to trust one another."

The Emperor and Empress after lunch returned to Paddington station on their way back to Windsor, by different route, and everywhere were greeted in the heartiest manner by the large crowds of people assembled. Emperor William appeared to be in splendid spirits throughout. He laughed and joked with his immediate neighbors, but he looked haggard. His face was pale, thin and drawn.

Novel Suit Against C. P. R.

Ottawa, Nov. 14.—Edwin Mostyn has filed a writ against the C. P. R., claiming $5,000 damages for injuries sustained in an expected collision which failed to occur.

While on the way to Kingston recently with the body of his wife, a conductor rushed into the car and told the passengers to jump for their lives as a collision was at hand. A wild scramble ensued, wherein Mostyn says he was trampled first in the car and afterwards when outside.

Child Accidentally Shot.

Picton, Ont., Nov. 14.—A sad accident occurred at Point Traverse, this county, yesterday. The two children of a Mr. Farrington, Viola, aged 16, and her younger brother, were alone in their home. Viola was in one room and her brother in another.

The brother states he heard a rifle shot and upon going into the room where his sister was found her dead with a rifle lying beside her.

She had, it is supposed, been playing with the gun which was loaded, and accidentally discharged it, killing herself instantly.

CHARGES OF BLACKMAIL

Jury Declare In Favor of Mothersill —Counsel For Defence Says Story Was Concocted by Plaintiff—Daughters Gave Corroborative Evident—Case Excites Widespread Interest in District.

Brampton, Ont., Nov. 14.—A case which created a great deal of attention in Peel and Halton Counties, was completed yesterday afternoon at the Peel fall Assizes. John Henry, a farmer of Chimquancansy Township, brought action against Joseph Mothersill, a neighbor farmer, claiming unstated damages for the alienation of his wife's affections.

The plaintiff charged that an unlawful intimacy existed between the two for some years, which ended in June last, when Henry, returning home unexpectedly discovered Mothersill in company with his wife. He at once attacked and abused him, forcing him to return home in the middle of the day minus his trousers. The plaintiff was subjected to a severe cross-examination by Mr. Robinette, but stuck to his storey.

The two daughters of the plaintiff, attractive, educated young women, with tears in their eyes and plainly manifesting the painfulness of the position in which they were placed, corroborated their father's story, while at the same time showing no malice against their mother. Mothersill testified in his own behalf, and denied everything. He said he was at Henry's house to see the plaintiff on business, that he was pounced upon by Henry and another man, who was masked, abused, stripped of his clothing, and sent out, the object being blackmail. That he had told his wife on the Monday following.

Mrs. Mothersill, their two sons, and a long list of witnesses were called to show that Mothersill was a good husband and citizen, and that the surrounding circumstances were against Henry's story. Mrs. McConnell, a sister of Mrs. Henry, swore that her sister had told her that it was all a put-up job. T. C. Robinette acted for the defendant, and H. Dewart for the plaintiff. The addresses of counsel and the charge of the judge occupied nearly the whole day.

The judge's charge was a most comprehensive review of every detail of the evidence and required nearly three hours in delivery.

During a very nice reference to his wife and daughters, by the judge, Henry cried till the tears ran down his cheeks. The jury did not regard the case as so difficult to decide, for after 20 minutes' deliberation they brought in a verdict for the defendant, Mothersill.

Madoc, June 3rd, 1907

W. H. HILL, Esq., Manager Central Ontario SUN LIFE OF CANADA, Peterborough, Ont.

Dear Sir,—I have much pleasure in acknowledging the receipt of the cheque for $1,344, being the amount paid me on the maturity of my endowment policy, 35,300, in your Company, which matured on the 1st inst.

I find I have received almost 6 per cent. compound interest on every dollar paid in to the Company, and in addition have had free insurance for the past fifteen years.

Such a result speaks volumes for the management of your Company, and far exceeds my expectations, and I would be ungrateful indeed were I not to acknowledge it.

I was also offered a paid-up policy of $2,079, or an annuity for life of $111.65, both of which I consider excellent.

I thank you very much indeed and wish your Company the continued success and confidence it so richly deserves.

Yours very truly,

(Signed) REV. H. C. GARBUTT

Intermediate O.H.A. Team For The City This Season

Enthusiasts Point Out That There Would Be No Difficulty in Securing a Strong Team—Support Would Be Forth Coming

THE PEOPLE WANT HOCKEY

A number of the hockey enthusiasts are already discussing the prospects for the season, and are advocating an intermediate O. H. A. team for Peterborough this season. There is no reason in the world why the city could not turn out an intermediate team that would be fast enough to give them all a good argument for the honours. All but one of last year's seniors are in the city, and although they state that they are out of the game for good, it would not be surprising to see them in harness again if a team was entered in the O.H.A. In addition to them there is plenty of material of intermediate calibre in the ranks of the City League teams. It would mean, of course, that some of the City League teams would have to make a sacrifice, but no doubt they would be found anxious to do that for the sake of the city as a whole. The people of Peterborough want hockey, and will support it; there is no doubt in the world of that. There has always been an O. H. A team in this city, and generally one that was knocking at the door all the time, and without doubt if a team was entered this season it would be in the running all the time. To drop out of hockey after the good record which has been made would be an everlasting disgrace, and would do so much harm in Peterborough that it would be almost impossible to get the game going at all in other years.

Lindsay and Port Hope will have intermediate teams this season, and it is likely that Cobourg will also fall in line, so that there would be no trouble in securing a compact and strong district, in which the old-time rivalry amongst the different towns would insure hockey of the hardest fought and most interesting kind.

By all means don't let hockey die out in Peterborough this season. It is about time for the annual meeting of the club, and it should be called at once and steps taken for the formation of an intermediate team. The citizens will hail with joy the idea of O.H.A. hockey again this year, and there would be no lack of support.

TAMMANYS WANTED A GAME HERE

Intermediate Champions Were Willing To Come Here Saturday

The Tammany Tigers of Toronto the intermediate champions of the O. R.F.U., have been trying to secure a game with Peterborough here on Saturday, but the negotiations have fallen through and there is no prospect of the senior and intermediate champions meeting. The Tammanys wanted a guarantee of $50 to come down, but the local management felt that after Saturday's gate they could not guarantee them anything. Peterborough offered to give the Toronto bunch the net gate after the expenses had been paid, but the Tammanys would not listen to that, and so the deal was off.

The Toronto bunch would give the locals a good game, but the management does not care to indulge in such expensive practice, as offering the visitors a guarantee of $50 would undoubtedly prove to be.

SPORTING NEWS AND VIEWS.....

Edmonton, Nov. 13.—Dick Wilson, the Kingston hockey player, arrived to-day from Houghton. He will play on the Edmonton professional team under Fred. Whitcroft, the former Peterborough player.

• • • •

Dave Hartley of Peterborough and Jimmy Reynolds of Port Hope will come to Toronto on Saturday to finish their training for their twelve-hour walking contest at the Mutual street rink on the 23rd inst.

The floor of the rink is admirably suited for the purpose and the walkers will find that it is pretty large enough for a race of the kind. Some years ago a six-day-go-as-you-please race was held there, and the contestants spoke highly of the course. It is an ideal spot for spectators, who can follow every inch of the journey.

The walk will be for 12 hours, commencing at 11 o'clock Saturday morning and finishing at 11 the same evening.—Toronto Star.

• • • •

The Peterborough rugby team intends to keep in shape for the proposed game for the Dominion championship, and on Saturday afternoon will play a practice game with the Karnots and Crescents and other junior players who would like to turn out for a game.

• • • •

The Karnot Athletic Club will meet in the Y.M.C.A. on Friday night at 8 o'clock for the purpose of organizing a hockey team for the winter. Every member is urged to be on hand.

• • • •

The Toronto Star of last night prints an excellent cut of Dave Hartley, Peterborough's famous walking wonder.

• • • •

Dave Hartley is in training for his big walking match in Toronto a week from Saturday, and will be in the best of shape by that time. He is not taking long walks, contenting himself with jaunts of a few miles, and feels no ill effects from his record-breaking tramp finished on Thanksgiving Day. There is likely to be a great deal of money wagered on the contest, and Peterborough people will back Hartley from the drop of the hat.

• • • •

Jack Caffery of Hamilton deserves the greatest of credit for the way he has come back into form. The former hero of the running world was, it was feared a short time ago, out of the game for ever. Yet he has come back in a surprising manner, finishing well up at Hamilton and Montreal. He will be a contestant in Sammy Mellor's 25-mile race at Yonkers on the American Thanksgiving Day, and announces that if he makes a good showing there he will go to England for the big Marathon race at the Olympic games next year, even if he has to pay his own expenses.

• • • •

The gigantic Stadium, which is in course of construction at Shepherd's Bush for next year's Olympic games, is being rapidly advanced. There is every prospect of the preparation work being completed before Christmas. The running track, which is three laps to the mile, is finished, and it is already in fair condition. It is 25 feet wide. The swimming bath and plunging pit have been finished. The bath is 330 feet long and 50 feet wide with cemented sides and bottom and the plunging or diving pit in the centre is the full width of the bath, a similar length and about 40 feet deep. The bath varies in depth from about 40 feet at each end to nearly 5 feet towards the centre. A small colony of workmen are engaged on the cement cycle track, which is two and three quarters laps to the mile. The turf oval is some 700 feet in length by 300 feet wide.

• • • •

Ottawa, Nov. 13.—It is reported here to-day that the Athletic Federation has carried out its threat and professionalized Tom Longboat, and all the runners who participated in the big road race at Montreal on Saturday. This action practically hits all the star distance runners in Canada and will doubtless prove a boomerang on the Federationists.

• • • •

Secretary J. B. Hay, of the O. R. F.U., has heard nothing about his challenge for the Canadian Rugby championship in the senior and intermediate series. He has Peterborough ready to meet the Inter-Collegiate winners. In the Junior O. R. F. U. series next Saturday, Hamilton plays at Berlin, Brockville and Parkdale will likely play at Gananoque, the winner to play off with Hamilton or Berlin. — Toronto Telegram.

• • • •

In the 15-mile race at Arena Rink last night at Winnipeg, between Alfred Shrubb, English professional, and John Marsh of Winnipeg, Alfred Shrubb won by two laps, running the 15 miles in 1 hour, 21 mins. and 43 secs., Marsh being two laps behind. The result would have been much closer had not the Manitoba farmer been obliged to stop and change his shoes during the race, thus losing nearly all distance which separated the runners at finish. Shrubb leaves almost immediately for the east to give exhibitions.

• • • •

The Lindsay hockey enthusiasts at a meeting on Tuesday night decided to enter a team in the intermediate series of the O.H.A., and the Post says that the prospects for the season are of the brightest. On the list of available players mentioned are the names of Jack Seymour and Byron Greene of Peterborough. Most of last year's Midgets are available for an intermediate team this year, and there are several other players as well, so that the Scugog team will be a strong one. Peterborough should by all means have a team in the O.H.A., if only to put Lindsay out of the running.

THE STREET NUMBERING SYSTEM

There Seems To Be a Mistaken Idea in This Regard

There seems to be some misunderstanding in regard to the manner in which the streets in the west end running north and south are to to be numbered under the new system which is being carried out just now. It should be understood that the houses are to be numbered according to the number of the houses parallel with them on George street. For instance, a house on Walton street, even if it were the first house on the street. This explanation has been given before and is repeated on account of the mistaken idea which some people seem to have of the numbering system.

SAY MARKET SCALES ARE TOO NARROW

Otonabee Farmer Greatly Inconvenienced To-day

An occurrence at the market scales to-day demonstrated that they are far too narrrow and as those who patronize them say, they should be enlarged. A farmer named Sidney Bennett from Otonabee brought in a load of hay. It weighed 3100 lbs. on the wagon. When he was driving off the scales his load was overturned and his rack was broken because of the narrowness of the scales. He had to pay a man one dollar to help him reload it, and the repairs to his rack cost another $2.

He asked Mr. T .A. S. Hay about the matter but that gentleman said he did not know who should be responsible. The farmers state that unless the scales are enlarged they will have their hay weighed elsewhere.

A COUGH COLD IS DANGEROUS.

There are different kinds of colds, and various ways in which they affect different people. Some constitutions will throw off a light cold, while to others it will stick tenaciously. There is one kind—the kind accompanied by a cough, the kind that turns to bronchitis, the kind that ends in consumption—that should never be neglected.

Many a life history would read different if, on the first appearance of a cough, it had been remedied with

Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup.

This syrup contains all the virtues of the "Norway Pine Tree," combined with Wild Cherry Bark, and the soothing, healing and expectorant properties of other excellent herbs and barks.

Mrs. E. S. Akerly, Akerly, N B., writes: "My little boy had such a bad cough he could not sleep at nights. I tried several remedies but nothing seemed to relieve him until I got Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup. From the first few doses he commenced to improve, and when he had taken one bottle he was completely cured."

Be careful in purchasing to see that you get the genuine Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup. It is put up in a yellow wrapper, three pine trees the trade mark. Price 35 cts.

PRE-SHRUNK GARMENTS

Those of us who have worn PRE-SHRUNK Suits or Overcoats made up to our own measure by a practical tailor, know what lasting satisfaction we get in Shape-holding, Style-permanence qualities.

The trouble with a lot of the patent branded clothing is: that after a good rain has taken a crack at them they become wrinkled, bagged and all puckered up.

We take the shrink out of the cloth before making up your garments.

"HE'S A CLEAN-CUT 'LOOKING FELLOW"

THIS remark is often made concerning the young man wearing one of our HANDSOME SUITS.

The young man of to-day demands the very newest fashion—the very latest innovations. No stubby Coats, no narrow lapels, no bag-hanging Garments for him this season. We select certain lines of Suits from Tailoring Houses that are specialists in Young Men's Clothes, whose styles are patterned after what one sees on the College campus—dashingly daring but not too extreme.

Suits at $12, $15 and $18

OUR OVERCOATS too, are extremely stylish and yet moderately priced. Don't fail to see what we can do for you. We have many new customers daily. Why? Because we have the Best Goods at the price.

THE OFFICERS ELECTED

There was a large attendance despite the stormy weather, at the meeting of the young ladies of George street church, which was held last evening. It was decided to organize a Girls' Guild to help in the work of the church and much enthusiasm was displayed when the plans of the society were discussed.

The pastor, Rev. E. A. Pearson, was in the chair and Miss Dobbin acted as secretary pro tem.

The following officers were elected:—

TERRIER FOUND THIS MORNING

Was Arrested By P. C. Newhall At Nixon's Hotel—Saves C.P.R. $40

P. C. Newhall made an arrest this morning, saving the C.P.R. $10, the amount of a claim made by a passenger for the loss of a dog.

The owner of the dog is Mrs. Fowlds, who had come to this country from Leister, England, and was en route to Toronto. Her dog was checked in the baggage car and escaped from his box at Peterborough.

The local police force has been looking for the dog since the information was received, and P. C. Newhall saw what he thought was the dog at Nixon's Hotel this morning. The officer had it arrested, and when brought before the magistrate it was decided to place the dog in the possession of Mr. Dodds, the local C.P.R. agent. This police officer has his eyes always open for criminals of every description.

WILL DEMATEO OPEN POLICE HANDCUFFS?

Claims He Can Open Any Handcuff in 50 Minutes

The great handcuff expert, De Mateos, at present performing at the Grand Opera House with the H. Wilmot Young Company, made a statement last night to the effect that he could free himself from any police handcuffs. Now, Mr. De Matros was in the police station last night in company with another gentleman, and was asked to put on the handcuffs of the local police. The handcuff expert said that he did not have time. The police authorities are very anxious to see Mr. De Mateos free himself from a pair of handcuffs which they have in their possession.

It is well also for the readers to know that Mr. De Mateos was locked in a cell at the police station last night by P. C. Adams. The officer went into the office to read a paper. He had just read a few lines when the mysterious handcuff expert tiptoed into the room to the surprise of the policeman, who thought that he had the performer fast.

Local Basketball Team In Inter-provincial League

Now Being Formed in Canada Among The Various Y. M. C. A. Organizations

PETERBORO' REPRESENTED

The formation of an inter-Provincial Basketball League in Ontario and Quebec is the newest proposition on foot. If such an organization is formed the Peterborough Y.M.C.A. will have a team in the League to compete for the Dominion honours and will have one which will be among the best.

The scheme is new, as far as basketball is concerned as there has never before been such a league in Canada. It was considered by the representatives of the various Harrier Clubs at the meet in Montreal last Saturday and the Y.M.C.A. men present decided on the venture.

The league will include Montreal, Kingston and Ottawa in the east and Peterborough, Toronto, Hamilton, London and other western cities and towns in the west.

The local Y.M.C.A. will have some good players this year and the team to represent Peterborough will be the best men chosen from the various teams. The inter-Provincial League will certainly prove a popular one when the organization gets running properly.

The Y.M.C.A. boys are holding a meeting to-night and will discuss the proposal of entering a team in the big league.

Big Athletic Meet To Be Held Here In Near Future

Y.M.C.A. Harriers Club are Making Arrangements for a Great Evening's Sport—Events Will Take Place in The Brock Street Rink

I.C.A.C. TEAM ARE COMING

The people of Peterborough will likely in the near future have an opportunity of seeing an athletic meet such as have caused so much interest and excitement in Toronto, and other Canadian cities, this summer. The Y.M.C.A. Harriers are making arrangements to hold such a meet, which will probably take place in the Brock street rink, which would prove to be a very suitable place for such an event.

There is no doubt in the world, that a meet along the lines proposed would be a gigantic success. The intention is to have a team from the Irish Canadians, including the famous Longboat, here for the occasion, and, if possible, Tom Coley, whom Ernie Wilson defeated in Toronto last Saturday. The visit of the famous Toronto runners would be enough to pack the rink, while events in which local men will take place would be no less interesting. With Fred Simpson, Ben Howard, Ernie Wilson, Ray Best, Moss and McBurney of Havelock, and other prominent local runners engaged, there is every indication of a great evening's sport.

While the programme has only been roughly mapped out, it is certain that a three mile invitation race will be among the features, and a great struggle should take place between the Irish Canadian cracks and the local runners who have shown this fall that they are as good as the best of them. It would not surprise local people very much to see some of the Harriers carry off the honours and, at any rate, a great race will be seen. Among the other features will be a mile run, and several sprints, the distance of which cannot be decided upon until the rink has been measured with a view of ascertaining the distances that will give the best results from the contestants' and, at the same time, the spectators' standpoint. Shot putting events and a high jump will also be included and the programme will be made as varied and as interesting as possible.

The different in-door meets in Toronto have drawn large crowds, and have proved highly successful, and there is no reason why a similar attraction here should not meet with equal favour. The committee who have the affair in charge are making energetic preparations and more definite announcements of the meet may be expected in a few days. The athletic part of the community will no doubt rejoice to hear of the affair and large fields will enter each event which will in all probability be open to everybody and not confined to members of the Harriers' club

PROPOSAL FOR ANOTHER SMALL PARK

On Triangular Piece of Land at Park And Donegal Intersection

A prominent citizen has a suggestion for another beauty park in Peterborough and one that it secured for that purpose will not be a very great expense upon the city council. The location for the park as suggested, is a triangular piece of land formed by the intersection of Donegal and Park streets north of Hunter street.

The corner is an acute angled triangle upon which no buildings could be erected of any size on account of the narrowness of the land for some distance north of Hunter street. The suggestion is that the city council purchase the piece of land and make another park similar to that at the corner of Park and Charlotte streets which has made that portion of the city beautiful.

OTHER TRAINS THROUGH PETERBOROUGH

Commencing November 25th a new train will leave Toronto at 10.45 p.m., and run through to Ottawa arriving there at 7 a.m., a train will will also leave Ottawa at 10.45, and run through to Toronto, arriving there at 7 a.m.

REEVES NECK ALMOST BROKEN

Crow With a Crow Bar While Moving a Stone

Mr. Christopher Wright, reeve of Madoc township, has much to be thankful for these days, as on Monday last he came within an ace of having his neck broken. He was assisting in taking out some stones on his farm and was operating a crow-bar in helping to pry out a large stone on which a team was hitched. The stone had been raised somewhat and Mr. Wright shoved his crow-bar under it, when suddenly the chain which held the large stone up, slipped and the stone, falling back into place, struck the crow-bar with great force, the end of which caught Mr. Wright under the chin. His jaws came together with such force that his tongue was caught between his teeth and almost half cut off. Mr. Wright claims that it was miraculous that his neck was not broken. He thinks that the jaw-bone is slightly fractured.

WRIT ISSUED AGAINST MAGISTRATE

Accused by Hastings County Man Of Malicious Slander

A notice of action has been filed at Osgoode Hall by Walter Lowery of Tudor township, Hastings county, against Alpheus Field Wood, police magistrate of Madoc. Lowery claims $100 damages for being "maliciously and without reasonable or probable cause," arrested and imprisoned by order of the magistrates, in Belleville jail for 53 days.

How can you Test the Blood

Paleness of the lips, gums and the insides of the eye-lids full of weak, watery blood, while other indications are languid, worn out and despondent feelings, headaches, nervous troubles and weakness of the bodily organs. To say that the blood is thin and weak is to say that it lacks iron and the other elements of which Dr. Chase's Nerve Food is composed. There is no greater blood builder.

Sick all the Time with Kidney Trouble

4 BOXES CURED HIM

Mr. Whellam was a mighty ill man this spring. He had been ailing for almost a year. Sharp pains in the back and through the hips. Dull headaches and dizzy spells. Appetite poor—nothing seemed to taste right.

Finally, an old friend told him about a friend who was in just that condition and who was cured by GIN PILLS.

Mr. Whellam tried them. And you would not know him for the same man now. That worried, strained look about the face is gone. His eyes are bright—his complexion rosy. He enjoys what he eats—has gained in weight—and sleeps like a top.

He had kidney trouble. GIN PILLS practically gave new kidneys—healed and strengthened these vital organs—soothed the bladder—and freed the system of uric acid that was poisoning him.

Broad Cove, C.B., July 6 1906.

I received a sample of your Gin Pills last fall. They did me a great deal of good. In fact, they are the best kidney medicine I know of. A neighbor of mine has tried them and they did him more good than all the Doctors' Medicine he took in three months. I will not forget during my lifetime the benefit your Gin Pills have been to me. JOHN WHELLAM.

Are your kidneys sick? Do you feel just as Mr. Whellam did? Then take GIN PILLS on our positive guarantee that they will cure you. To have you give them a fair trial, we send a free sample if you mention this paper. Write to-day to Bole Drug Co., Winnipeg. 84

GIN PILLS are sold by dealers everywhere at 50c a box—or 6 boxes for $2.50.

"I'm sure I shan't need any, but if I do I promise to remember your kindness and apply."

"It will be a pleasure for me to serve you. With whom shall you come? I should like to know the name in case I should miss you in the crowd."

"I expect to be with Captain Kempt of the United States navy."

"Ah!" said the lieutenant, with a note of disappointment in his voice which he had not the diplomacy to conceal. His hold of her hand relaxed, and she took the opportunity to withdraw it.

"What sort of a man is Captain Kempt? I shall be on the lookout for him, you know."

"I think he is the handsomest man I have ever seen, and I know he is the kindest and most courteous."

"Really? A young man, I take it?"

"There speaks the conceit of youth," said Dorothy, smiling. "Captain Kempt, U. S. N., retired. His youngest daughter is just two years older than myself."

"Oh, yes, Captain Kempt! I—I remember him now. He was at the dinner last night and sat beside our captain. What a splendid story teller he is!" cried the lieutenant, with honest enthusiasm.

"I shall tell him that and ask him how he liked your song. Goodby." And before the young man could collect his thoughts to make any reply she was gone.

Skimming lightly over the ground at first, she gradually slackened her pace and slowed down to a very sober walk until she came to a three storied so called "cottage" overlooking the bay. Then, with a sigh, she opened the gate and went into the house by the servants' entrance.

CHAPTER II.

THREE women occupied the sewing room with the splendid outlook, a mother and her two daughters. The mother sat in a low rocking chair, a picture of mournful helplessness, her hands listlessly resting on her lap, while tears had left their traces on her time worn face. The older daughter paced up and down the room as striking an example of energy and impatience as was the mother of despondency. Her comely brow was marred by an angry frown. The younger daughter stood by the long window, her forehead resting against the pane, while her fingers drummed idly on the window sill. Her gaze was fixed on the blue bay, where rested the huge British warship Consternation, surrounded by a section of the United States squadron, seated like white swans in the water. Sails of snow glistened here and there on the bosom of the bay, while motor boats and what not darted this way and that impudently among the stately ships of the fleet.

In one corner of the room stood a sewing machine, and on the long table were piles of flimsy stuff out of which feminine creations are constructed. There was no carpet on the floor and no ceiling overhead, merely the bare rafters and the boards that bore the pine shingles of the outer roof, yet this attic was notable for the glorious view to be seen from its window. It was an ideal workshop.

The elder girl was she walked to and fro spoke, with nervous irritation in her voice.

"There is absolutely no excuse, mamma, and it's weakness in you to pretend that there may be. The woman has been gone for hours. There's her lunch on the table, which has never been tasted, and this servant brought it up at 12."

She pointed to a tray on which were dishes whose cold contents bore out the truth of her remark.

"Perhaps she's gone on strike," said the younger daughter without removing her eyes from H. M. S. Consternation. "I shouldn't wonder if we went downstairs again we'll find the house picketed to keep away blacklegs."

"Oh, you can always be depended on to talk frivolous nonsense!" said her elder sister scornfully. "It's the silly sentimental fashion in which both you and father treat work people that makes them so difficult to deal with. If the working classes were taught their place"—

"Working classes! How you talk! Dorothy is as much a lady as we are, and sometimes I think rather more of a lady than either of us. She is the daughter of a clergyman."

"So she says," sniffed the elder girl.

"Well, she ought to know now," replied the younger indifferently.

"It's people like you who spoil dependents in her position, with your Dorothy this and Dorothy that. Her name is Amhurst."

"Christened Dorothy, as witness godfather and godmother," murmured the younger without turning her head.

"I think," protested their mother meekly as if to suggest a compromise and throw oil on the troubled waters, "that she is entitled to be called Miss Amhurst and treated with kindness, but with reserve."

"Tush!" exclaimed the elder indignantly, indicating her rejection of the compromise.

"I don't see," murmured the younger, "why you should storm, Sabina. You nagged and nagged at her until she'd finished your ball dress. It is mamma and I that have a right to complain. Our dresses are almost untouched, while you can sail grandly along the decks of the Consternation like a fully rigged yacht. There, I'm mixing my similes again, as papa always says. A yacht doesn't sail along the deck of a battleship, does it?"

"It's a cruiser," weakly corrected the mother, who knew something of naval affairs.

"Well, cruiser, then. Sabina is afraid that papa won't go unless we all have grand new dresses, but mother can put on her old black silk, and I am going if I have to wear a cotton gown."

"To think of that person accepting our money and absenting herself in this disgraceful way!"

"Accepting our money! That shows what it is to have an imagination. Why, I don't suppose Dorothy has had a penny for three months, and you know the dress material was bought on credit."

"You must remember," chided the mother mildly, "that your father is not rich."

"Oh, I am only pleading for a little humanity. The girl for some reason has gone out. She hasn't had a bite to eat since breakfast time, and I know there's not a silver piece in her pocket to buy a bun in a milk shop."

"She has no business to be absent without leave," said Sabina.

"How you talk! As if she were a sailor on a battleship—I mean a cruiser."

"Where can the girl have gone?" wailed the mother, almost wringing her hands, partially overcome by the crisis. "Did she say anything about going out to you, Katherine? She sometimes makes a confidant of you, doesn't she?"

"Confidant!" exclaimed Sabina wrathfully.

"I know where she has gone," said Katherine, with an innocent sigh.

"Then why didn't you tell us before?" exclaimed mother and daughter in almost identical terms.

"She has eloped with the captain of the Consternation," explained Katherine calmly, little guessing that her words contained a color of truth. "Papa sat next him at the dinner last night and says he is a jolly old salt and a bachelor. Papa was tremendously taken with him, and they discussed tactics together. Indeed, papa has quite a distinct English accent this morning and, I suspect, a little bit of a headache, which he tries to conceal with a wavering smile."

"You can't conceal a headache, because it's invisible," said the mother seriously. "I wish you wouldn't talk so carelessly, Katherine, and you mustn't speak like that of your father."

"Oh, papa and I understand one another," affirmed Katherine, with great confidence, and now for the first time during this conversation the young girl turned her face away from the window, for the door had opened to let in the culprit.

"Now, Amhurst, what is the meaning of this?" cried Sabina before her foot was fairly across the threshold.

All three women looked at the newcomer. Her beautiful face was aglow, probably through the exertion of coming up the stairs, and her eyes shone like those of the goddess of freedom as she returned steadfastly the supercilious stare with which the tall Sabina regarded her.

"I was detained," she said quietly.

"Why did you go away without permission?"

"Because I had business to do which could not be transacted in this room."

"That doesn't answer my question. Why did you not ask permission?"

The girl slowly raised her two hands and showed her shapely wrists close together and a bit of the forearm not covered by the sleeve of her black dress.

"Because," she said slowly, "the shackles have fallen from these wrists."

"I'm sure I don't know what you mean," said Sabina, apparently impressed in spite of herself, but the younger daughter clapped her hands rapturously.

"Splendid, splendid, Dorothy!" she cried. "I don't know what you mean either, but you look like Maxine Elliot in that play where she"—

"Will you keep quiet?" interrupted the elder sister over her shoulder.

"I mean that I intend to stay here no longer," proclaimed Dorothy.

"Oh, Miss Amhurst, Miss Amhurst," bemoaned the matron, "you will heartlessly leave us in this crisis when we are helpless, when there is not a sewing woman to be had in the place for love or money! Every one is working night and day to be ready for the ball on the 14th, and you—you whom we have nurtured"—

"I suppose she gets more money," sneered the elder daughter bitterly.

"Oh, Dorothy," said Katherine, coming a step forward and clasping her hands, "do you mean to say I must attend the ball in a calico dress, after all? But I'm going nevertheless, if I dance in a morning wrapper."

"Katherine," chided her mother, "don't talk like that!"

"Of course, where more money is in the question kindness does not count," snapped the elder daughter.

Dorothy Amhurst smiled when Sabina mentioned the word kindness.

"With me, of course, it's entirely a question of money," she admitted.

"Dorothy, I never thought it of you," said Katherine, with an exaggerated sigh. "I wish it were a fancy dress ball, then I'd borrow my brother Jack's uniform and go in that."

"Katherine, I'm shocked at you," complained the mother.

"I don't care. I'd make a stunning little naval cadet. But, Dorothy, you must be starved to death. You've never touched your lunch."

"You seem to have forgotten everything today," said Sabina severely. "Duty and everything else."

"You are quite right," murmured Dorothy.

"And did you elope with the captain of the Consternation, and were you married secretly, and was it before a justice of the peace? Do tell us all about it."

"What are you saying?" asked Dorothy, with a momentary alarm coming into her eyes.

"Oh, I was just telling mother and Sab that you had skipped by the light of the noon with the captain of the Consternation, who was a jolly old bachelor last night, but may be a married man today if my suspicions are correct. Oh, Dorothy, must I go to the ball in a dress of print?"

The sewing girl bent an affectionate look on the impulsive Katherine.

"Kate, dear," she said, "you shall wear the grandest ball dress that ever was seen in Bar Harbor."

"How dare you call my sister Kate and talk such nonsense?" demanded Sabina.

"I shall always call you Miss Kempt, and now, if I have your permission, I will sit down. I am tired."

"Yes, and hungry, too," cried Katherine. "What shall I get you, Dorothy? This is all cold."

"Thank you, I am not in the least hungry."

"Wouldn't you like a cup of tea?"

Dorothy laughed a little wearily.

"Yes, I would," she said, "and some bread and butter."

"And cake too," suggested Katherine.

"And cake, too, if you please."

Katherine skipped off downstairs.

"Well, I declare!" ejaculated Sabina, with a gasp, drawing herself together as if the bottom had fallen out of the social fabric.

Mrs. Captain Kempt folded her hands one over the other and put on a look of patient resignation, as one who finds all the old landmarks swept away from before her.

"Is there anything else we can get for you?" asked Sabina icily.

"Yes," replied Dorothy, with serene confidence; "I should be very much obliged if Captain Kempt would obtain for me a card of invitation to the ball on the Consternation."

"Really!" gasped Sabina. "And may not my mother supplement my father's efforts by providing you with a ball dress for the occasion?"

"I could not think of troubling her, Miss Kempt. Some of my customers have flattered me by saying that my taste in dress is artistic and that my designs, if better known, might almost set a fashion in a small way, so I shall look after my costume myself. But if Mrs. Captain Kempt were kind enough to allow me to attend the ball under her care I should be very grateful for it."

"How admirable! And is there nothing that I can do to forward your ambitions, Miss Amhurst?"

"I am going to the ball merely as a looker on, and perhaps you might smile at me as you pass by with your different partners, so that people would say I was an acquaintance of yours."

After this there was silence in the sewing room until Katherine, followed by a maid, entered with tea and cakes. Some dress materials that rested on a gypsy table were swept aside by the impulsive Katherine, and the table, with the tray upon it, was placed at the right hand of Dorothy Amhurst. When the servant left the room, Katherine sidled to the long sewing table, sprang lightly upon it and sat there swinging a dainty little foot. Sabina had seated herself in the third chair of the room, the frown still adding severity to an otherwise beautiful countenance. It was the younger daughter who spoke.

"Now, Dorothy, tell us all about the elopement."

"What elopement?"

"I soothed my mother's fears by telling her that you had eloped with the captain of the Consternation. I must have been wrong in that guess, because if the secret marriage I hoped had taken place you would have said to Sabina that the shackles were on your wrists instead of off. But something important has happened, and I want to know all about it."

Dorothy made no response to this appeal, and after a minute's silence Sabina said practically:

"All that has happened is that Miss Amhurst wishes father to present her with a ticket to the ball on the Consternation, and, taking that for granted, she requests mother to chaperon her and further expresses a desire that

Perfect Sleep

Women Who Are Free From Female Ills Sleep Soundly

Points to the Cause

How many women are troubled with insomnia! How few, alas, habitually sleep the night through and rise refreshed.

If you can't sleep it is because your nerves will not let your body rest. Women's nervous troubles come from female diseases. Their delicate organism is a network of intricate nerves. No woman can suffer from female irregularities without eventually ruining her nervous system. Get rid of female disease and the perfect sleep of childhood will return.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

cures all female troubles and restores nerve equilibrium and brings sound, restful, healthful, natural sleep. Thus does this wonderful remedy operate to bring health to suffering women.

Wakefulness and Nervousness Cured

Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—Owing to the general enfeebled condition of my system, combined with extreme nervousness, caused by female weakness, I was a great sufferer from sleeplessness, and I tried many medicines without receiving any benefit. A friend advised me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound as it had restored her to health. I did so, and in a week I was sleeping well at night, which I had not been able to do for six months previous. My appetite returned, my color improved, and I am as well as any one could wish to be after taking your Vegetable Compound only four weeks. I think your medicine is a wonder for women.

MRS. ETTTAM RENBUT, 58 Sparks St., Ottawa, Ont.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has cured more women of female diseases than any other medicine in the world. Mrs. Pinkham, daughter-in-law of Lydia E. Pinkham, advises sick women free. She will write you a personal letter if you tell her about your case. Address Mrs. Pinkham, Lynn, Mass.

A ROCK IN THE BALTIC

I shall be exceedingly polite to her while we are on board the cruiser."

"Oh," cried Katherine jauntily, "the last proviso is past praying for, but the other two are quite feasible. I'd be delighted to chaperon Dorothy myself, and as for politeness, good gracious, I'll be polite enough to make up for all the courteous deficiency of the rest of the family.

"For I hold that on the seas
The expression, if you please,
A particularly gentlemanly tone implants,
And so do his sisters and his cousins and his aunts.

Now, Dorothy, don't be bashful. Here's your sister and your cousin and your aunt waiting for the horrifying revelation. What has happened?"

"I'll tell you what is going to happen, Kate," said the girl, smiling at the way the other ran on. "Mrs. Captain Kempt will perhaps consent to take you and me to New York or Boston, where we will put up at the best hotel and trick ourselves out in ball costumes that will be the envy of Bar Harbor. I shall pay the expense of this trip as partial return for your father's kindness in getting me an invitation and your mother's kindness in allowing me to be one of your party."

"Oh, then it isn't an elopement, but a legacy. Has the wicked but wealthy relative died?"

"Yes," said Dorothy solemnly, her eyes on the floor.

"Oh, I am so sorry for what I have just said!"

"You always speak without thinking," chided her mother.

"Yes, don't I? But, you see, I thought somehow that Dorothy had no relatives, but if she had one who was wealthy and who allowed her to slave at sewing, then I say he was wicked, dead or alive, so there!"

"When work is paid for it is not slavery," commented Sabina with severity and justice.

The sewing girl looked up at her.

"My grandfather, in Virginia, owned slaves before the war, and I have often thought that any curse which may have been attached to slavery has at least partly been expiated by me, as foreshadowed in the Bible, where it says that the sins of the fathers shall affect the third or fourth generations. I was thinking of that when I spoke of the shackles falling from my wrists, for sometimes, Miss Kempt, you have made me doubt whether wages and slavery are as incompatible as you appear to imagine. My father, who was a clergyman, often spoke to me of his father's slaves, and, while he never defended the institution, I think the past in his mind was softened by a glamour that possibly obscured the defects of life on the plantation. But often in depression and loneliness I have thought I would rather have been one of my grandfather's slaves than endure the life I have been called upon to lead."

"Oh, Dorothy, don't talk like that, or you'll make me cry!" pleaded Kate. "Let us be cheerful, whatever happens. Tell us about the money. Begin 'Once upon a time,' and then everything will be all right. No matter how harrowing such a story begins, it always ends with Iasbin's and Iasbin's of money or else with a prince in a gorgeous uniform and gold lace and you get the half of his kingdom. Do go on."

Dorothy looked up at her impatient friend, and a radiant cheerfulness chased away the gathering shadows from her face.

"Well, once upon a time I lived very happily with my father in a little rectory in a little town near the Hudson river. His family had been ruined by the war, and when the plantation was sold or allowed to go derelict whatever money came from it went to his elder and only brother. My father was a dreamy scholar and not a business man, as his brother seems to have been. My mother had died when I was a child. I do not remember her. My father was the kindest and most patient of men, and all I know he taught me. We were very poor, and I undertook the duties of housekeeper, which I performed as well as I was able, constantly learning by my failures. But my father was so indifferent to material comforts that there were never any reproaches. He taught me all that I know in the way of what you might call accomplishments, and they were of a strangely varied order—a smattering of Latin and Greek, a good deal of French, history, literature and even dancing as well as music, for he was an excellent musician. Our meager income ceased with my father's life, and I had to choose what I should do to earn my board and keep, like Orphant Annie in Whitcomb Riley's poem. There appeared to be three avenues open to me. I could be a governess, domestic servant or dressmaker. I had already earned something at the latter occupation, and I thought if I could set up in business for myself there was a greater chance of gaining an independence along that line than either as a governess or servant. But to do this I needed at least a little capital.

"Although there had been no communication between the two brothers for many years, I had my uncle's address, and I wrote acquainting him with the fact of my father's death and asking for some assistance to set up in business for myself, promising to repay the amount advanced with interest as soon as I was able, for, although my father had never said anything against his elder brother, I somehow had divined rather than knew that he was a hard man, and his answering letter gave proof of that, for it contained no expression of regret for his brother's death.

"My uncle declined to make the advance I asked for, saying that many years before he had given my father $200 which had never been repaid. I was thus compelled, for the time at least, to give up my plan for opening a dressmaking establishment, even on the smallest scale, and was obliged to take a situation similar to that which I hold here. In three years I was able to save the $200, which I sent to my uncle and promised to remit the interest if he would tell me the age of the debt. He replied, giving the information and inclosing a receipt for the principal, with a very correct mathematical statement of the amount of interest if compounded annually, as was his legal right, but expressing his readiness to accept simple interest and give me a receipt in full."

"Fifteen million dollars!"

"The brute!" ejaculated Katherine, which remark brought upon her a mild rebuke from her mother on intemperance of language.

"Well, go on," said Katherine, unabashed.

"I merely mention this detail," continued Dorothy, "as an object lesson in honesty. Never before since the world began was there such a case of casting bread upon the waters as was my sending the $200. My uncle appears to have been a most methodical man. He filed away my letter which contained the money, also a typewritten copy of his reply, and when he died it was these documents which turned the attention of the legal firm who acted for him to myself, for my uncle had left no will. The Californian firm communicated with lawyers in New York, and they began a series of very cautious inquiries, which at last resulted, after I had furnished certain proofs asked for, in my being declared heiress to my uncle's estate."

"And how much did you get? How much did you get?" demanded Katherine.

"I asked the lawyers from New York to deposit $10,000 for me in the Sixth National bank of this town, and they did so. It was to draw a little check against that deposit and thus learn if it was real that I went out today."

"Ten thousand dollars," murmured Katherine in accents of deep disappointment. "Is that all?"

"Isn't that enough?" asked Dorothy, with a twinkle in her eyes.

"No; you deserve ten times as much, and I'm not going to New York or Boston at your expense to buy new dresses. Not likely! I will attend the ball in my calico."

Dorothy laughed quietly and drew from the little satchel she wore at her side a letter, which she handed to Katherine.

"It's private and confidential," she warned her friend.

"Oh, I won't tell any one," said Katherine, unfolding it. She read eagerly halfway down the page, then sprang to her feet on the top of the table, screaming:

"Fifteen million dollars! Fifteen million dollars!" And, swinging her arms back and forth like an athlete about to leap, she sprang to the floor, nearly upsetting the little table, tray and all, as she embraced Dorothy Amhurst.

"Fifteen millions! That's something like! Why, mother, do you realize that we have under our roof one of the richest young women in the world? Don't you see that the rest of this conference must take place in our drawing room under the most solemn auspices? The idea of our keeping such an heiress in the attic!"

"I believe," said Sabina slowly and coldly, "that Mr. Rockefeller's income is"—

"Oh, blow Mr. Rockefeller and his income!" cried the indignant younger sister.

"Katherine!" pleaded the mother tearfully.

CHAPTER III.

THROUGHOUT the long summer day a gentle excitement had fluttered the hearts of those ladies, young or not so young, who had received invitations to the ball on board the Consternation that night. The last touches were given to creations on which had been spent skill, taste and money. Our three young women, being most tastefully and fashionably attired, were in high spirits, which state of feeling was exhibited according to the nature of each—Sabina rather stately in her exaltation, Dorothy quiet and demure, while Katherine, despite her mother's supplications, would not be kept quiet, but swung her graceful gown this way and that, practicing the slide of a waltz and quoting W. S. Gilbert, as was her custom. She glided over the floor in rhythm with her chant:

"When I first put this uniform on
I said as I looked in the glass,
'It's one to a million
That any civilian
My figure and form will surpass.'"

Meanwhile in a room downstairs that good natured veteran Captain Kempt was telling the latest stories to his future son-in-law, a young officer of the American navy, who awaited with dutiful impatience the advent of the serene Sabina. When at last the ladies came down, the party set out through the gathering darkness of this heavenly summer night for the private pier from which they were privileged, because of Captain Kempt's official standing, to voyage to the cruiser on the revenue cutter Whippoorwill, which was later on to convey the secretary of the navy and his entourage across the same intervening waters. Just before they reached the pier their steps were arrested by the boom of a cannon, followed instantly by the sudden apparition of the Consternation picked out in electric light, masts, funnel and hull all outlined by incandescent stars.

"How beautiful!" cried Sabina, whose young man stood beside her. "It is as if a gigantic rocket, all of one color, had burst and hung suspended there like the planets of heaven."

"It reminds me," whispered Katherine to Dorothy, "of an overgrown popcorn ball," at which remark the two girls were frivolous enough to laugh.

"Crash!" sounded a cannon from an American ship, and then the white squadron became visible in a blaze of lightning. And now all the yachts and other craft on the waters flaunted their lines of fire, and the whole bay was illuminated like a lake in fairyland.

"Now," said Captain Kempt, with a chuckle, "watch the Britisher. I think she's going to show us some color." And as he spoke there appeared, spreading from mast to mast, a huge sheet of blue, with four great stars which pointed the corners of a parallelogram, and between the stars shone a huge white anchor. Cheers rang out from the crew of the Consternation, and the band on board played "The Star Spangled Banner."

"That," said Captain Kempt in explanation, "is the flag of the United States secretary of the navy, who will be with us tonight. The visitors have kept very quiet about this bit of illumination, but our lads got on to the secret about a week ago, and I'll be very much disappointed if they don't give 'em tit for tat."

When the band on the Consternation ceased playing all lights went out on the American squadron, and then on the flagship appeared from mast to mast a device with the union jack in the corner, a great red cross dividing the flag into three white squares. As this illumination flashed out the American band struck up the British national anthem, and the outline lights appeared again.

"That," said the captain, "is the British man-o'-war's flag."

The Whippoorwill speedily whisked the party and others across the sparkling waters to the foot of the grand stairway which had been specially constructed to conduct the elect from the tide to the deck. It was more than double as broad as the ordinary gangway, was carpeted from top to bottom, and on every step stood a bluejacket, each as steady as if cast in bronze, the line forming, as one might say, a living handrail rising toward the dark sky.

Captain Kempt and his wife went first, followed by Sabina and her young man, with the two girls in their wake.

"Aren't those men splendid?" whispered Katherine to her friend. "I wish each held an old fashioned torch. I do love a sailor."

"So do I," said Dorothy, then checked herself and laughed a little.

"I guess we all do," sighed Katherine.

On deck the bluff captain of the Consternation in resplendent uniform stood beside Lady Angela Burford of the British embassy at Washington to receive the guests of the cruiser. Behind these two was grouped an assemblage of officers and very fashionably dressed women, chatting vivaciously with each other. As Dorothy looked at the princess-like Lady Angela it seemed as if she knew her; as if here were one who had stepped out of an English romance. Her tall, proudly held figure made the stoutish captain seem shorter than he actually was. The natural haughtiness of those classic features was somewhat modified by a pro tem smile. Captain Kempt looked back over his shoulder and said in a low voice:

"Now, young ladies, best foot forward. The Du Maurier woman is to receive the Gibson girls."

"I know I shall laugh, and I fear I shall giggle," said Katherine, but she encountered a glance from her elder sister quite as haughty as any Lady Angela might have bestowed, and all thought of merriment fled for the moment. Thus the ordeal passed conventionally without Katherine either laughing or giggling.

Sabina and her young man faded away into the crowd. Captain Kempt was nodding to this one and that of his numerous acquaintances, and Katherine felt Dorothy shrink a little closer to her as a tall, unknown young man deftly threaded his way among the people, making directly for the captain, whom he seized by the hand in a grasp of the most cordial friendship.

"Captain Kempt, I am delighted to meet you again. My name is Drummond—Lieutenant Drummond—and I had the pleasure of being introduced to you at that dinner a week or two ago."

"The pleasure was mine, sir; the pleasure was mine," exclaimed the captain, with a cordiality equal to that with which he had been greeted. He had not at first the least recollection of the young man, but the captain was something of an amateur politician and possessed all a politician's expertness in facing the unknown and making the most of any situation in which he found himself.

"Oh, yes, lieutenant, I remember very well that excellent song you"—

"Isn't it a perfect night?" gasped the lieutenant. "I think we are to be congratulated on our weather."

He still clung to the captain's hand and shook it again so warmly that the captain said to himself:

"I must have made an impression on this young fellow," then aloud he replied jauntily:

"Oh, we always have good weather this time of year. You see, the United States government runs the weather. Didn't you know that? Yes, our weather bureau is considered the best in the world."

The lieutenant laughed heartily, although a hollow note intervened, for the young man had got to the end of his conversation, realised he could not shake hands for a third time, yet did not know what more to say. The suavity of the politician came to his rescue in just the form the lieutenant had hoped.

"Lieutenant Drummond, allow me to introduce my wife to you."

The lady bowed.

"And my daughter, Katherine, and Miss Amhurst, a friend of ours—Lieutenant Drummond of the Consternation."

"I wonder," said the lieutenant, as if the thought had just occurred to him, "if the young ladies would like to go to a point where they can have a comprehensive view of the decorations. I—I may not be the best guide, but I am rather well acquainted with the ship, you know."

"Don't ask me," said Captain Kempt. "Ask the girls. Everything I've had in life has come to me because I asked, and if I didn't get it the first time I asked again."

AN EATING ULCER.

Ulcers are a skin disease, and are more or less directly occasioned by a bad state of the blood, which produces acrid humors and corrupts the secretions.

No one can expect to have a skin free from disease when the blood is in a disordered condition and the stomach and bowels acting feebly in consequence.

Through its wonderful cleansing, purifying powers on the blood, and its renovating action on the entire system, Burdock Blood Bitters has made thousands of cures of different skin diseases during the past thirty years it has been on the market.

Mrs. Joseph Robinson, Halberton, Que., writes: "I had an eating ulcer on my ankle. I took two bottles of Burdock Blood Bitters and it worked like a charm, cleaning out all the impurities from my system and improving my appetite. While taking the B.B.B. internally I used it externally to cleanse the sore, and it helped me."

ONTARIO FRUIT GROWERS.

Annual Session at Toronto—Discussion on Apple Trade.

Toronto, Nov. 14—The Ontario Fruit Growers' Association opened their forty-eighth annual convention in Victoria Hall yesterday.

President Harold Jones of Maitland commented upon the satisfactory growth of fruit growers' associations during the past year and, in presenting the report on new fruits, Prof. Macoun of Ottawa held that the most successful apples were originated in the country. Over $1,000 had been wasted in Eastern Ontario in the endeavor to grow American and European varieties.

"The market is opening quickly in England," said Chief McNeil of the Dominion Department of Agriculture, at the afternoon meeting, "and we can grow apples here that can compete successfully with British growers." Especially down on the Lake Erie district would, the speaker recommended, the planting of fall apples and leave the winter varieties to more northern parts of Ontario.

J. A. Ruddick gave some interesting things about the old country markets for our apples. Tasmania was sending many apples to the English market, which were well received. "You ought to pay more attention to the dealers there," said the commissioner, "for the dealer will not handle the goods on which he can not readily make money."

Hon. Nelson Monteith occupied the chair.

EXPOSED BIG LOTTERY.

Promoters Said to Have Made Millions—Many Arrests Made.

Chicago, Ill., Nov. 14.—A morning paper yesterday says:

"The biggest lottery in operation in the United States, which has been running for more than twenty years with headquarters in Chicago, is claimed to have been exposed Tuesday night by arrests in this and other cities. The United States secret service men assert that the promoters of the scheme have made millions of dollars, and that there are big men behind it who will yet be reached.

Under the name of the Old Reliable Guarantee Loan & Trust Co., it is alleged the lottery maintained three luxuriously furnished offices and a large printing establishment here.

The secret service men from the records that they have obtained expect to make more than 200 arrests.

An attempt will also be made to involve express companies as agents or accomplices under the Federal act.

FATAL SHOOTING ACCIDENT.

Young Man Gets Mortal Wound While Out Duck Shooting.

Niagara Falls, Nov. 14.—Roswell Aughney was shot by a rifle in his own hands Tuesday. Aughney is 17 years old. He went down into the gorge with a 22-calibre rifle to shoot ducks. He killed a duck but could not reach it, and waited for it to drift ashore. When it came near, he took the rifle by the muzzle and reached out with the butt to draw the duck in. Just then the rifle discharged and the bullet pierced Aughney's abdomen. The young man did not realize the seriousness of the wound, and walked up a long hill before he collapsed. At the Memorial Hospital the surgeons hold out very little hope for his recovery.

Hearst Charged With Libel.

New York, Nov. 14.—Yesterday Judge Wyatt, in the Court of General Sessions, refused the motion to dismiss the complaint against William R. Hearst, who is charged by William Astor Chandler with criminal libel. The charges against Mr. Hearst grew out of the mention of Mr. Chandler's name in The Evening Journal relative to charges of misconduct with young girls against Raymond Hitchcock, the actor.

Two of Mr. Hitchcock's former servants were examined yesterday. Both testified that one evening two young girls went to Mr. Hitchcock's house at Great Neck, and Mr. Chandler came to the house and spent the evening with them and with Mr. Hitchcock. One of the servants, when asked to pick out Mr. Chandler in the audience, stopped in front of him, but would not say positively that he was the man she saw in the house, although she thought he was. The other woman, when asked to pick out Mr. Chandler, pointed confidently at Mr. Hearst, much to the amusement of lawyers and spectators.

Vautelet Has Large Bill.

Montreal, Nov. 14.—H. E. Vautelet has an action against the Dominion Government for $49,343, for plans prepared for a permanent wharf shed here. Hon. J. L. Tarte swore he had given the order, and the plans had been prepared by the Department of Public Works, of which Mr. Tarte was then head. The Cabinet, he says, discussed the matter. Defence, it is said, will be that the Government had never authorized the plans.

Brakeman Pendergast of Webbwood had both legs broken in the wreck.

Killed In Collision.

Montreal, Nov. 14.—As the result of a collision between two ballast trains on the G. T. R. at St. Polycarpe, Fireman A. E. Hope sustained such serious injuries that he died early yesterday morning.

DOES NOT RELISH JOB.

Radcliffe the Hangman Nervous Over Execution of Collins.

Moncton, N. B., Nov. 14.—Thomas Radcliffe of Toronto, professional hangman, passed through Moncton yesterday morning en route to Hopewell Cape to superintendent the preparations for the execution of Thomas Collins and to conduct the last act in the Albert County tragedy to-morrow morning. Radcliffe arrived on the maritime express and appeared to be in a nervous state. His hands trembled as he talked and he said he had never felt so badly about any previous execution as this one, since the evidence was so largely of a circumstantial nature and so strong a fight had been put up to save Collins from the gallows.

Speaking of the execution, Radcliffe said he did not approve of using the same gallows as was employed at Dorchester in the last execution there and said he thought a new one would be built. The professional hangman was the object of a great deal of interest here. As soon as his identity was learned scores of people crowded around the car in which he was seated.

JAP EMIGRATION PLANS.

Not Likely to Be Altered by Visit of Mr. Lemieux.

Tokio, Nov. 14.—Lemieux, Postmaster-General and Minister of Labor of Canada, arrived on the steamer Empress of China last evening. He was received at Yokohama by Count Toramima, representing the Japanese Department of Foreign Affairs.

A program for the entertainment of Minister Lemieux will not be arranged until his wishes in the matter are known. He will be received in audience by the Emperor on the latter's return from the army manoeuvres.

The Japanese Government understands that Minister Lemieux comes as a representative of the Canadian Government for the purpose of discussing and investigating immigration matters, and that he brings an indefinite plan for their settlement.

The Japanese Government considered that its present plans now in progress, looking toward the control of emigration, would be satisfactory to Canada, and it is not likely that the visit of the Minister will result in any material change.

MAY USE GOLD RESERVE.

Plans of Government to Aid Crop Movement a Secret.

Ottawa, Nov. 14.—Enquiry goes to show that the present gold reserve held by the Dominion Government in security for the bank note circulation, and totaling between forty-eight and fifty million dollars, is about one million dollars more than is actually required.

No doubt this will be set free so as to relieve the demands of the grain trade at the present juncture, but even this amount may not afford more than a temporary relief, as the elevator companies rely upon the banks for practically all that is required, not only to purchase the grain from the farmers, but to margin it until it has been actually sold and delivered abroad.

The banks chiefly interested in the grain business are said to be the Imperial, the Bank of Commerce, the Dominion, the Bank of Hamilton, and, to a lesser extent, the Union Bank.

A Dominion Department.

London, Nov. 14.—(C. A. P.)—Lord Elgin issues copies of a despatch sent to the Premiers of the self-governing colonies respecting the reorganization of the Colonial Office. It enlarges the scheme Elgin outlined in the House of Lords, dividing the office into three departments, one the Dominion's department, crown colonies department and the general department. The secretariat of the Imperial Commerce linked the Dominion's Department, without being entirely merged therein.

Lord Elgin says the reorganization is made in a strong desire to promote the interests of all parts of the Empire and produce efficient, sympathetic treatment on the manifold questions which arise. He asks for cordial co-operation.

Predicts Hot U. S. Campaign.

Des Moines, Ia., Nov. 14.—Congressman J. A. F. Hall, chairman of the house committee on military affairs, said yesterday, after returning from Washington, where he saw the President:

"Roosevelt will be forced to accept the nomination and be elected President for four years more. Bryan will be the nominee of the Democrats and the country will see the hottest campaign in history."

LIVED AMONG ESKIMO.

Explorer's Eighteen Months' Experience With Cleanly Arctic Race.

Mr. A. H. Harrison, an English explorer, who has just returned home after two and a half years' continuous work in the Arctic Ocean north of the American Continent, has given some interesting details of his prolonged sojourn among Eskimo.

"At the end of July, 1905," said Mr. Harrison, "I commenced my journey and proceeded down the Athabasca River, and crossed the lake of that name into the Slave River and Great Slave Lake until, on reaching the Arctic Red River some three months later, I was frozen in.

"After an ineffectual attempt to reach Herschell Island, I decided to go up into the Richardson Range Mountains on the west side of the Mackenzie River, and for two months lived there alone with the natives. This was one of the coldest winters known in the Arctic, and on one occasion the thermometer registered 63½ below zero.

"At Herschell Island I had arranged for a year's supply to be delivered to me, but the supply boat never arrived. I decided, therefore, to spend the winter with the Eskimo. I engaged two Eskimo families to work and hunt, and generally to look after me during the winter, during which period I determined to travel wherever I could find game.

"I first went across to Fort Macpherson, where I got some ammunition and a few supplies, and then, with three whale boats, went down the east branch of the Mackenzie River. Some sixty miles from the coast I left my boats, and from that point took dogs, sleds, ammunition, and provisions, and traveled east until we came to the north end of Eskimo Lake.

"The Eskimo with whom I lived were known as the Nooma Tama, or Mountain Eskimo. I found them very much more civilized than the ordinary Eskimo. Unlike their brethren in other parts of the Arctic, they are very clean, and wash every morning. Each individual carries his own washing-bowl, and I even knew one man who personally bathed his children every week. They are employed largely by the whalers as huntsmen and for steering purposes.

"They are very fine seamen. They are docile, they never quarrel or get excited, and are most humane people. I have never seen either an Eskimo man or woman raise hand or voice to a dog or to a child."

Primitive Grinding Stones.

The Elgin Historical Society have secured possession of a valuable historical relic in the shape of Col. Talbot's hand grinding stones. They consist of the mediaeval two large stones, one of which was set in a stump and the grain ground by turning round the top stone.

They have been in the possession of George McKay, who recently sold his farm on the Lake road, Southwold, and removed to Dutton, for over half a century. Mr. McKay sent the primeval grist mill to County Police Magistrate Tunt, to be placed in the museum at St. Thomas, Ont., which has been done.

A Philanthropist.

An earnest east side worker says that not long ago she was approached by an old gentleman who has the reputation of being something of a philanthropist with the request that he be permitted to accompany her on one of her rounds of visits. Much pleased, the worker consented. The destitute condition in which many families were found elicited expressions of deep sympathy from the old gentleman, but to his companion's surprise and regret nothing more material. Presently they came upon a small girl weeping bitterly.

"What is it, my dear?" the old gentleman inquired.

The child raised a tear stained face and pointed into a dark alleyway. "Me mudder sent me to buy some bread, an' I lost my dime in there, an' I'll git licked awful!" she sobbed.

"Poor dear!" he remarked in a tender voice, at the same time putting his hand into his vest pocket. "Don't cry. Here is a match. Perhaps you will be able to find it!"—Harper's.

Misled by Stationery.

"I wrote a note to my washerwoman about a week or two ago asking her please to bring my clothes home," said the woman. "I needed them. I happened to be in a religious concern at the time and used its paper to write the note on. Bertha came yesterday.

"'I've a great notion to discharge you, Bertha,' I told her. 'Why didn't you bring me my clothes? Must I get enough things to wear a year without having them washed on your account?'

"'To tell you the truth,' Bertha apologized meekly, 'you wrote on that theah religious paypah, and I didn't pay no 'tenshun to it. I jes' thought it was some o' them peepul writin' to ask me to come to prayah meetin'. I didn't know it was younh lettah, miss, till yesterday mawnin', when I got thahd of seein' it around and opened it, so that was why I didn't git heah no soonah with younh clo'es.'"

ANKLE REDUCING

("One of the 14")

A DOLLY VARDEN ANKLE

Some athletes have clumsy figures while others enjoy the graceful lines of a Sandow.

Some feminine ankles are swollen and bulky while others are as slender as a fawn's.

Whether clumsy or graceful, bulky or slender the method of shoe training is the cause.

The ankles are completely surrounded by muscles. If these muscles are constantly strained and stretched by the feet wabbling about on unskillfully built shoe foundations, bulky ankles cannot fail to ensue.

Dolly Vardens reduce bulky ankles and preserve slender ones. Why?

Because of their Free Flat Tread, which allows the feet to rest free and flat on the sole. This prevents bending and and bowing of the ankles and the consequent stretching of the ankle muscles.

Because of their newly devised steel arch support, which holds up the arch and relieves the vertical ankle muscles from the tension occasioned by falling arch.

Because of their Dead Level Ball and Heel Balance which throws the ankles into their natural vertical position.

Because they fit the foot and ankle firmly at every point.

The Dolly Varden Agent will be pleased to show you Ankle Reducing Dolly Vardens. In the States and Canada at the same price—$4.00 to $5.00. Every pair Goodyear welted.

HOW JAPS ARE BROUGHT.

Commissioner King Brings Some Curious Dealings to Light.

Vancouver, B. C., Nov. 15.—Fred Yosby, Japanese employment agent, who handles large numbers of his countrymen, surprised Immigration Commissioner King yesterday afternoon with the statement that thousands of Japanese come here in order to reach the United States.

"I have seen maps sold to my countrymen, on which were marked points at the boundary line around Blaine and Sumas, and other places, where Japanese could easy cross into the United States."

K. Ishikawa, president of the Vancouver Boarding Housekeepers' Union, said that Yosby's company imported laborers direct from Japan.

Yosby created a scene by making a dramatic denial, and Ishikawa retracted and modified several of his previous statements, although the commissioner warned him of the penalty of perjury.

The commissioner declared that Ishikawa was trying to conceal some feature of his dealings, and a full investigation into this phase of the matter will later be made.

The director of the Canada Kangho Co. said his concern made $100 per week profit in the employment business by the percentage on the wages of their men, but he was at great pains to deny that they assisted importation in any way.

BECK AT BRANTFORD.

Makes Important Statement in Regard to Cost of Power.

Brantford, Nov. 15.—Power at a rate considerably lower than the rate announced last January, and the statement that the Government would assume the liability for any cost to a municipality in excess of the price furnished by the Hydro-Electric Power Commission, were the important points made by Hon. Adam Beck at the meeting held here last night by the Board of Trade, the City Council and representatives of the township.

The council chamber was crowded, and the explanations of Mr. Beck and Engineer Richards were cordially received.

It was made clear that the Government contract with the Ontario Power Co. was not at a flat rate, as the commission was only liable for 75 per cent. of the power ordered. Mr. Beck showed how the Montreal Light & Power Co. bought 40,000 horse-power and actually sold 76,000 on account of the overlapping, of which the Toronto critics said nothing.

BLED TO DEATH.

Result of Shooting Accident—W. Knott Left Fiancee $25,000.

Huntsville, Ont., Nov. 15.—Wm. Knott, aged about 28 years, died at the home of his brother, near Dorset, Wednesday.

On Tuesday, in company with two companions, he went out for a hunt. While passing through a rough part of the thicket, one of his companions stumbled and fell. His rifle was accidentally discharged, and the ball entered Knott's knee.

Word was telephone to Huntsville and a physician left immediately for Dorset, but the young man died from loss of blood before medical aid arrived.

Knott came originally from New Liskeard. He is known throughout New Ontario as the discoverer of the first rich find at Larder Lake, and received $40,000 for his share of the claim.

He came to Dorset recently to marry a young lady, and the ceremony was to have been performed next week.

He left his fiancee $25,000 of his fortune.

Potteries Burned.

Toronto, Nov. 15.—A destructive fire occurred yesterday morning, which completely destroyed the Carlton West potteries. The fire is supposed to have been caused by a spark from a defective chimney just at the time that the furnace was being started up. The Junction firemen turned out, but, the works being beyond the town limits, nothing could be done. The building, which belonged to George Plant, was worth about $3,000 and was insured for $1,500. The plant and stock, owned by Wm. Stonehouse, who operated the works, are estimated at $2,500, and were uninsured. About ten people will be thrown out of employment as a result of the fire.

Found Body In Woods.

Pembroke, Nov. 15.—While some hunters were passing through a bush in the Township of Alice, about seven miles from here, they found the body of a boy about 15 years old, but unknown, who had been shot through the heart.

The body could not have been there more than a couple of hours, as it was still warm.

From indications, the shooting was accidental, as the country round is full of hunters.

Woodstock, Ont., Nov. 15.—A woman yesterday marched into the local customs office and told the customs officer that 30 years ago she smuggled some articles or other into this country, and as her conscience bothered her she wished to make restitution. Cheers For Canada.

At the luncheon, which took place at the Victoria rooms, Bristol, Mr. Sifton on rising to respond to the toast of "Ships, Colonies and Commerce," was received most enthusiastically. It was some moments before he obtained a hearing, the applause was so long continued. In concluding his remarks, Mr. Sifton referred to the all-red route, and pointed out, laying great stress on the fact, that as others had a fast service Canada and Great Britain should have equally as good a service. Sifton's remarks were received with much applause, and any reference to Canada enthusiastically so.

It became known within the last few days that Mr. Barney was in a state of physical and mental collapse.

Mr. Barney was 56 years old and a native of Cleveland, Ohio. In addition to his various other connections, he was a member of the house of Rogers and Gould, a New York Stock Exchange firm. He had made large investments in New York real estate. He was president of the Knickerbocker Trust Co., which closed its doors at the beginning of the recent financial crisis.

RARE COPPER CENTS.

Coin Collectors' Theory to Account For Their Scarcity.

That some of the rarest and most valuable of the United States cents, particularly those dated 1799 and 1804, owe their scarcity to the fact that Fulton built the steamboat Clermont in the theory held by some coin collectors. They believe that thousands of the old time large copper cents went toward making the copper boiler for the pioneer steamboat.

This theory would explain the mystery that has long puzzled coin collectors as to the reason for the almost total disappearance of the cents of the dates mentioned.

The first cents struck at the United States mints at Philadelphia were of large size. The copper blanks, or planchets, were imported from England, being sent over in kegs.

Copper at this period was a scarce article in this country. With the exception of the small quantity produced at the only copper mines then known in the United States, those at Granby, Conn., nearly all the metal used here came from England.

Builders of steam engines in those days were of the opinion that boilers constructed of iron were unsafe and impracticable, and as a consequence boilers were made of copper, all the boilers that came from England being, it is said, constructed of that metal. Fulton was likewise of the belief that copper was the only fit metal to be used in boilers.

It is therefore possible that, finding a scarcity of metal with which to construct the boiler of the Clermont, he finally resorted to the most convenient source of supply, which happened to be the large United States copper cents. Of course the cost of such a boiler would represent a large sum, but it is on the records that the steam frigate Fulton, launched in 1815, the year of the inventor's death, had a boiler entirely constructed of copper, which alone cost the large sum of $23,000.

That the supply of cents of this period was large enough to meet such a demand is also likely enough. From 1793 to and including 1795 1,006,033 cents were coined and in 1796 974,000 were struck.

DINING IN WALL STREET.

What Lunch Hour Means to New York's Financial District.

When one descends upon Wall street, either from the Broadway slope of Trinity church or from the Nassau street hill, at noontime any week day the air is fraught with many conflicting odors of the kitchen. From over the roars of the clamoring curb folk way down in the valley of Broad street there arises from a score of cookeries and "handouts" a decided smell of the stewpot blended with the ever glorious onion. From the eaves of the New York Stock Exchange come the more pretentious fragrance of spiced meats and strong coffee. From the basement and attic alike, from cloud tickler and antiquated frame house as well, come all sorts of fuming evidences that the men of affairs are eating. To realize what this luncheon hour means to Wall street one must stop to think of the thousands of persons who are in that small district of the city at this particular part of the day. Hundreds of restaurants meet the rush with their doors flung wide, and their keepers have grown rich upon nickels and dimes that fall into their tills like a mighty rataplan during those brief hours of midday. Men have grown rich and retired to palatial mansions in the suburbs selling cup custards and "sinkers" to millionaires, stenographers, clerks and bankers alike during the busy hour or two at noon. Thousands of pounds of meat, countless oysters and clams, barrels of gravy, unaccountable gallons of coffee and tea and tons of bread are consumed every day in a very brief period of time, and here, of all other places, the foreigner has found justification for his criticism of Americans for fast eating. —Pittsburg Dispatch.

TALES OF CITIES.

Atlanta is planning to issue bonds for a new courthouse and a city hall to cost $800,000.

Fifty per cent of Missouri's total revenue and 35 per cent of the taxes on property of various kinds are paid by the city of St. Louis.

Many persons in New York city evidently think that business done in their proper names is not so well, for there are in Broadway and Sixth avenue forty-seven signs that give fictitious names of proprietors of stores.

Electric clocks, regulated from a central station, are being installed in various prominent positions throughout Vienna. In most instances they are fixed on the tall electric light masts at the intersections of the principal streets. Each clock has four dials, which have no figures for the hours, but instead black squares for the III, VI, IX and XII and black strokes for the intermediate hours.

GLEANINGS.

In 300 balloon ascents there is on an average one fatal accident.

In some London hotels the waiters receive as much as $2,500 a year in tips.

A Muncie (Ind.) farmer, arrested on a charge of intoxication, was allowed by the magistrate to be his own judge. He fined himself $10 and paid it without taking an appeal.

In accordance with an ancient custom dating from the time of Frederick the Great any officer in the German army who falls from his horse at a review is bound to offer a banquet to his brother officers in the regiment.

Stops Itching, Heals the Skin

AND FOR THIS REASON THERE IS NO CURE FOR ECZEMA SO SATISFACTORY AS

Dr. Chase's Ointment

There is always a certain amount of mystery about all medicines that are taken internally, but not so when Dr. Chase's Ointment is applied to raw or inflamed skin, for the benefits are self-evident.

It is because Dr. Chase's Ointment possesses in a remarkable degree the ability to stop itching and heal raw skin that it has become known the world over as the most successful treatment for such disease of the skin as eczema, salt rheum and psoriasis.

By all means tone up the system by the use of such treatment as Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, but also cure the eczema by the local application of Dr. Chase's Ointment.

The wretched stinging, itching sensations will soon disappear under this treatment and gradually and naturally the raw sores will become smaller and smaller until they entirely disappear.

But there are scores of ways in which Dr. Chase's Ointment is useful in every home, and especially so where there are children who suffer from teething eczema, chafing, insect bites, hives, poisoned skin or any form of skin irritation or eruption.

Mr. C Wiley, who is employed as cooper by the Kennedy & Davis Milling Company, Lindsay, Ont., states: "I used Dr. Chase's Ointment for eczema on my little girl some few years ago, and soon brought about about a thorough and permanent cure. She had suffered for considerable time, and though we tried a great many remedies, Dr. Chase's Ointment was the only preparation to prove effective. I cannot speak too highly of Dr. Chase's Ointment, as it certainly effected a prompt and permanent cure in this case."

Test Dr. Chase's Ointment in any case of itching skin or on a sore that refuses to heal, and you will be surprised at the results.

Mothers use Dr. Chase's Ointment for the chafing and skin troubles of their babies in preference to unsanitary pore-clogging powders; 60 cents a box, at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto.

ON BEHALF OF TARIFF REFORM

Mr. Balfour Makes Definite Statement at Birmingham Meeting.

A CONSERVATIVE PLATFORM

Preference, Protection, and Broader Basis of Taxation—Duties Imposed Must Be Small — Working Class Burdens Not to Be Increased—Would Convoke Colonial Conference If Returned to Power.

London, Nov. 15.—(C. A. P.)—Balfour aroused tremendous enthusiasm at Birmingham by giving utterance to a speech wherein he disregarded the advice of The Times and the wishes of the Unionist Free Traders. He made a strong declaration on the fiscal question. After alluding to the absence of the immortal statesman, Chamberlain, and appealing for the unity of the Conservative party, which meant everything, he referred to tariff reform, and amid uproarious cheering he asked had the fiscal proposal lost force.

"No. Had it gained force? Yes. You have given me your answer; I agree with that answer. (Tumultuous cheering.) He admitted that originally he had fear whether the policy of promoting free trade within the Empire, which was the most important of our commercial interests and must appeal to every member of our world-wide Empire, could be carried out with many units interested, but after the last Imperial Conference no misgivings were possible. (Cheers.) If Conservatives were in power to-morrow their first duty would be the summoning of that conference, which was so rashly closed. (Great cheering.) He could not take a better text than Chaplin's resolution, carried in the afternoon, urging the broadening of the basis of taxation on the safeguarding of the productive industries, strengthening our position in the foreign markets and the colonial preference. To that he subscribed, but any duties imposed must be small, widespread and not touching raw material. It would not increase the burdens of the working classes.

London, Nov. 15.—(C. A. P.)—At a conference of Conservative associations Mr. Chaplin moved a resolution suggesting, as the basis of the party's constructive policy, the broadening of taxation, safeguarding productive industries from unfair competition, and preferential arrangement with the colonies. Mr. Chaplin said Mr. Balfour congratulated him on the terms of the resolution, which accurately summarized Mr. Balfour's views. He believed Mr. Balfour would give the party a lead on tariff reform.

Mr. Maxse warned the party that, if they did not take up tariff reform, Mr. Lloyd-George would steal their powder.

The resolution carried unanimously, and a vote of sympathy to Mr. Chamberlain occasioned a scene of extraordinary enthusiasm.

TH PREMIER HAD HEART ATTACK

British Premier Taken Seriously Ill at Bristol.

LONDON DOCTORS SUMMONED

Had Just Addressed Huge Political Meeting—All Engagements Cancelled—Mr. Birrell Will Speak For Him—For an Hour Physicians Attended Him Till Relief Came —Is Now Out of Danger.

Bristol, Eng., Nov. 15.—The Premier, Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman, after addressing a political meeting here, was seized with sudden illness, Wednesday night, at the residence here of William Howell Davis, Liberal member of Parliament for South Bristol.

Doctors attended the sufferer for over an hour, and although the sharpness of the attack has ceased, the Premier's condition is such that London doctors have been summoned. Heart trouble is believed to be the cause of the illness.

Sir Henry has planned to make several political speeches, but he has given up all his engagements and has requested Mr. Birrell, the Chief Secretary for Ireland, to take them up.

Later it was announced that the Premier's sudden illness was due to a severe spasm of the heart, which gradually was relieved by restoratives. He was progressing favorably yesterday afternoon.

Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman, Prime Minister and First Lord of the Treasury since 1905, was born on Sept. 7, 1836. He was the son of Sir James Campbell, but added the surname Bannerman under the will of a maternal uncle. He entered Parliament 39 years ago for Stirling borough. In 1892 he became Secretary of the Admiralty, and two years later Chief Secretary for Ireland. In 1892 he was made War Secretary, and seven years later, on the retirement of Sir William Harcourt, he was made leader of the Liberal party. After six years in Opposition his party was elected to power by a tremendous majority.

Took Curves at 90 Miles.

Clayton, N. J., Nov. 15.—What is said to be the fastest mile ever made by a steam locomotive on a track containing curves was covered yesterday by locomotive No. 606, which is being used in the special test being concluded here by the Pennsylvania Railroad. It traveled a mile at a speed of 91.6 miles per hour.

The object of the tests is to ascertain the speed that can be attained by a locomotive rounding curves. The specially built stretch of track over which the trials take place has two sharp curves.

The track is between this place and Franklinville. One of the new electric locomotives was also given a trial. Two trips were made—the first at the rate of 72 miles an hour, and the second at a speed of 79 miles an hour.

A portion of the specially-built track has been laid with steel ties, and after the locomotive tests have been completed an examination will be made to determine which kind of ties bore the tests to the best advantage.

Poisoned by Canned Salmon.

Hamilton, Nov. 15.—Another serious case of ptomine poisoning was reported last evening, the victim being Maud Barrett, 49 North West avenue, and Christina Dickie, 204 Gibson avenue, two girls employed at the Dominion Belting Co. They took their lunch at the factory. Amongst the things they ate were salmon sandwiches. In the afternoon they were seized with severe pains, and were removed to the City Hospital. Their condition is regarded as being very serious.

Evidence at Trial of Men For Caledon Curve Wreck.

ENGINE RAN ON ONE RAIL

Eye-Witnesses Tell of Excessive Going — Hinchcliffe of Bridge Gang Says Mile a Minute — Engineer Relates Experience In Previous Wreck—Lost Driving Wheels at Same Place—Breaks Down.

Brampton, Nov. 15.—Train hands and eyewitnesses of the Caledon wreck of September last gave evidence yesterday on the speed of the wrecked exhibition special which caused seven deaths.

The evidence varied somewhat, but in the main indicated that the train was going at excessive speed. One witness fixed the rate at 60 miles an hour. James Ferguson, who saw the smash, and assisted the injured, was overcome with emotion when the vision of the disaster was recalled.

Samuel Mossop, one of the witnesses, declared the engine traveled on her outer set of driving wheels instead of the inner set, which she would ordinarily run on in rounding the curve. The outer rail at the wreck scene is four and a half inches higher than the inner to keep trains on the track rounding the curve. The momentum lifted the engine off the inner rail, so that the inner drivers whirled in space, and she ran on the set of drivers six and a half inches above the inner rail.

Evidence of a sensational character, it is said, will be forthcoming to-day in the trial of Matthew Grimes and George Hodge, when William Stubbs, ex-M. P. of Caledon, will take the stand for the defence and tell the history of the famous horseshoe curve, where exhibition extra went in the ditch on Sept. 3, and also give important evidence as to the cause of the disaster.

There was a feeling last night that the defence will play a trump card. A new reason as to why engine 555 left the rails, is expected, and County Constable Thomas Smith of Caledon, it is stated, has the new story.

The defence will endeavor to prove that the flange of the engine driving wheel was worn and poor, and that a brake shoe was missing on engine No. 555. Other witnesses will swear that the speed of the train did not exceed 25 miles an hour.

Fifteen witnesses were examined for the crown at the Court House here yesterday, and so far not an item of evidence has been produced against Conductor Grimes and Engineer Hodge for negligence of duty.

John Colvin, for many years a C. P. R. engineer, familiar with the running of trains on the horseshoe curve, stated that before reaching the crest of the hill he would travel from 30 to 35 miles per hour. At that point he would apply the brakes and slow down to 20 miles. The curve was considered a dangerous piece of track, but special instructions, to his knowledge, had been issued to engine drivers.

"I took the curve very lively once," said the engineer. "I had no driving wheels when I got to the bottom."

Mr. Davidson read the evidence of Hodge and Grimes, given at the Toronto inquest. He also put in the answers to questions given by Hodge in his examination to qualify for an engineer.

Superintendent Arthur L. Smith of No. 3 division of the C. P. R., said that under the rules the conductor and engineer were equally responsible for the running of the train.

The distance from Caledon to Monoroad was 8.6 miles. This could be divided into 4.6 good running, 2 miles of less dangerous grades and 2 miles of special dangerous curves. The time allowed for the ill-fated extra to make the distance was 20 minutes.

Robert Preston, master mechanic of the C. P. R. for the Ontario division, gave the history of engine No. 555. The engine was taken off the Havelock division and put on the Owen Sound division during the week of exhibition, to meet the needs of traffic.

He asked Hodge if he had examined his engine at Orangeville. He said that he had gone over it carefully, found everything in place and properly secure. He had found all the brake shoes were in good shape.

Montreal, Nov. 15.—Four masked men Wednesday night held up the cashier of the Banque De St. Jean at Napierville. It is a private bank owned by Phillippe Roy, Speaking of the Legislative Assembly.

The cashier and wife live above the bank. Wednesday night the men entered and with revolvers forced him to go down to the bank and open the vault.

They secured $4,000. So far there is no clue.

Three of the men were masked, but one was not disguised. Mr. Brault, the cashier, was struck on the head with the butt of a revolver by one of the burglars and ordered to open the safe. He refused at first, but when they threatened to use nitroglycerine he unlocked the doors.

Bradley Murder Trial.

Washington, Nov. 15.—Substantial progress was made yesterday in the trial of Mrs. Annie Bradley, on the charge of murdering ex-Senator Arthur Brown of Utah. After completion of the jury, the case was opened for the Government by Assistant District Attorney Turner, and a number of witnesses were introduced by the prosecution. There were a dozen of these witnesses, including the manager and a number of employes of the hotel where the shooting occurred, and several members of the police force who were concerned in Mrs. Bradley's arrest.

CZAR OPENS DOUMA.

Great Display of Patriotic Enthusiasm by the Members.

St. Petersburg, Nov. 15.—The third Russian Parliament was opened in the Tauride Palace at 11 o'clock yesterday morning, in the presence of Premier Stolypin and the Cabinet, by A. Golubeff, vice-president of the Council of the Empire. The religious service preceding the opening was conducted by the Metropolitan automins and a large number of bishops and other high ecclesiastics and was made the occasion for a great display of patriotic enthusiasm on the part of the Conservative and Moderate members. The national hymn was repeatedly sung and the Emperor was vigorously cheered.

The city is quiet. A few hundred students gathered in the vicinty of the palace, but they did not attempt to make a demonstration.

M. Golubeff's speech in opening the Parliament follows:

"His Majesty, the Emperor, has charged me with the high duty to bid the members of the third Douma welcome in his name, and he implores God's blessing on the work before us, of establishing order and peace in our beloved fatherland, of promoting the enlightenment and well-being of the peoples, of consolidating the new state organization, and of strengthening the great and indivisible Russian empire."

The deceased, who was a brakeman on a construction train met his death in a collision at the point where the new road crosses the Canadian Northern.

The remains were accompanied by Malcolm Beaton, the brother of Norman, who is a conductor on the C. P. R. There were four brothers, natives of Bury, who took up railway work. They have all been killed since 1902, with the exception of Malcolm. Two were brakemen, one an engineer, and one a conductor.

A WELL KNOWN ORANGEMAN DROPS DEAD IN THE MIDST OF A CONVERSATION WITH FRIENDS

Mr. John A. McWilliams of East City Passed Away Suddenly Last Evening in Lakefield—Member Of Several Orange Lodges

ON HIS WAY TO THE CITY

Collapsing suddenly from the chair in which he was sitting conversing with his friends, Mr. John A. McWilliams, one of the best known and respected residents of Peterborough, and one of the most prominent Orangemen of the district, passed away with startling suddenness last evening at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Robert Carter, Lakefield. The deceased has been working at Lovesick Lock for the past six weeks, and was on his way home to Peterborough yesterday, arriving in Lakefield too late to catch the train for this city. He therefore decided to spend the night with his daughter in the village, and in company with his son-in-law, Mr. Carter, had gone out for a short walk. Returning shortly before 8.30 o'clock, he was apparently in his usual good health and spirits, and was conversing with his friends, when death's call came. Suddenly stricken with heart failure, he was dead almost as soon as his friends could reach his side.

The late John A. McWilliams had lived in Peterborough for 40 years, and has earned the respect and admiration of a very large proportion of the population of the city. He was born near Kingston, Ont., and 49 years ago was married, his wife surviving him. He was very prominent in Orange affairs, having filled all the offices in Diamond L.O.L. No 80, and was also a Preceptor of the Royal Black Knights of Ireland, and a Past Master of the Royal Scarlet Degree. The funeral will take place under Orange auspices.

The deceased is survived by a wife, who resides on Roger street, East City, and a family of four daughters and three sons. They are Mrs. Robert Carter of Lakefield, Mrs. Wm. Carter of Peterborough, Mrs. Constantine, Brooklyn, N.Y.; Miss Mary McWilliams at home, William H. of Winnipeg, Adam at Bridgenorth, and John of this city.

The late Mr. McWilliams was 72 years of age and was a Presbyterian in religion, being a member of St. Paul's church, and in politics was a staunch Conservative.

A strange coincidence is that Mrs. Morgan, a sister of Mrs. McWilliams, passed away a few years ago under circumstances almost identically the same.

SCARCITY IN COAL SUPPLY

No Increase in The Price of Hard Coal Expected in Montreal

REPORTS ARE MISLEADING

Examiner Special.

Montreal, Nov. 15.—A despatch from Halifax intimates that there is a decided scarcity of coal in Cape Breton. This is somewhat misleading, as while the supply of steam coal for manufacturing purposes is temporarily limited owing to the strike at the Springhill mines, and the recent trouble between the Dominion Coal Company and the Dominion Steel Company, still there is an adequate supply in sight of anthracite coal for household purposes, and the output of steam coal will soon be quite equal to the demand.

It is true that the Steel Company ordered 25,000 tons of steam coal from Philadelphia, but that was because it could take no chances of being short. The order was given when the Springhill strike was on, and when the law suit between the Steel and Coal companies was in progress, and was in the nature of a precaution.

The big companies in Montreal who deal practically exclusively in steam coal admit that they are far from being overstocked, but they claim that they will be able to fill all their contract orders, even if they cannot fill all the other orders. Some of them admit as well that they cannot fill any but their contract orders.

With regard to coal for household purposes the people of Montreal need not feel any apprehension that prices will take a jump. Inquiry at a number of firms this morning elicited the information that while stocks were not large, they were big enough to meet the normal demand. It was stated that there was little likelihood of the price being increased this winter as the indications were that a steady and sufficient supply would be forthcoming from the mines. The price of hard coal now is $7.25 a ton with 25 cents a ton off for cash. This is 25 cents a ton more than last year, the price having been raised on Sept. 1st.

HUNTER'S STORY ABOUT GOLD LAKE

Claims Deer Hunted by His Party Was Taken by Another Hunter

The hunters are now returning in large numbers with tales of things that happened in the woods the last few weeks. One tale that is told by a hunter who returned yesterday is likely to have a serious ending. It appears that a certain party was chasing a deer along Gold Lake, when the dogs came upon the beast and it made its way out into the water. Two of the younger members of the party who were half a mile away, dropped into a canoe and took after the deer. The barking of the dogs brought another sportsman to the opposite shore. The latter gentleman has the reputation of being the strongest paddler in the north country. He saw the object the two young men had in view, and also set out after the deer. The backwoodsman got there first, took the deer and conveyed it to his side of the lake. The young men and the party in general are indignant over this. An explanation is desired at once or there will be trouble.

PRICES GO UP

No More 5 Cent Whiskey In Local Hotels After To-day ---New Price Scale

WHOLESALE PRICES MOVE

Either Adulteration or Higher Prices And The Hotelmen Choose The Latter

To-day the hotelkeepers of the city chose what they considered to be the better of two alternatives and owning to the increased prices of wholesale goods, have raised the retail price. They were forced to either adulterate the liquors and ales or raise the prices, and they preferred to do the latter and sell only the best stock. The prices in this city are the prevailing prices throughout the province.

The distillers have forced the sellers to raise the price of whiskey $5 per barrel and the brewers have increased that of ale 10 cents per doz., and $1.50 per hogshead. There are therefore no more cheap drinks at least the people will not be able to secure their ambers at such low rates. However the fact that the drinks are not being adulterated is a little consolation and the ordinary glasses will contain no wood alcohol or other injurious adulterations.

GOLD LAKE HUNTING PARTY STRANDED ON A DESOLATE ISLAND FOR A WHOLE NIGHT

Compelled by Storm to Land—They Had To Sleep on The Bare Rocks—Party Had Poor Luck This Season Getting Only Two Deer

THE DOGS ARE BLAMED

The members of the Snowden-Rutherford hunting party, who returned last night from their annual outing at Gold Lake, brought with them a doleful tale of accidents by flood and field and also two deer. The party complain of the poorest luck that has ever attended them on their trip and are disgusted with the success of their pursuit of the antlered kings of the forest.

Various reasons are assigned by members of the party for their failure to secure more deer. Mr. Snowden, it is said, lays the blame upon the dogs; some of the hounds being too old and the remainder so young that they did not know anything about the work.

Another of the party believes that the fact that the buttermilk supply ran out had something to do with the poor luck but this scarcely seems reasonable, as it is stated that this did not happen until the last two days before the camp was broken up. At any rate the party only secured two deer in their two weeks' hunt. Arthur Wringer bringing down a large buck and Chief Rutherford bagging a fine doe. The party saw lots of deer but there was an epidemic of buck fever among the huntsmen, and one man it is stated had a narrow escape from being stepped on by two bucks. He had fired a dozen shots at the pair, but failed to hit anything but the tall trees. Then when the deer got close he found that his remaining cartridges would not fit his gun and he was compelled to take to his heels to keep from getting walked over by the deer.

If the party did not get many deer they at least had plenty of fun over their outing and two revenges on the finny tribe for their ill luck in the forest. Fishing was splendid and the party had no trouble in making big hauls. According to one of the hunters, ducks were plentiful, but as an afterthought he added, "They were flying high, however."

Coming out from their camp on Wednesday the party had an experience on Gull Lake that they will not soon forget, when they were isolated for the night on Hall's island, by the hurricane which was raging, and had to make an open air to sleep on the bare rocks. They lit a fire, and according to some of the party, their faces were burning and their feet freezing all through the night. Two of their canoes drifted out in the storm and were found the next morning high and dry on the shores of Gull Lake, fortunately uninjured.

Hunters need not fear to take dogs into the Gull Lake district for some time to come, inasmuch as the party wiped out of existence all the porcupines in the neighbourhood, and tell some thrilling stories of its chase of these pin-cushion-like animals.

The club was composed this year of the following: Messrs. Wm. Snowden, Thos. Rutherford, M. C. Tooley, A. Blade, A Wringer, Jas. Houlihan, Sam Wainwright, Jas. Haggart, H. Taylor, J. King and W. Shanwood of Peterborough, and W. T. Stewart of Toronto.

Domaine Street Sewer Found To Be In Bad Condition

As a Result The Board of Works Will Make an Investigation To See Who is to Blame in The Matter—Man Who Laid Pipes Is Discharged

WHO IS TO GET BLAME?

The Romaine street sewer is to the city authorities as Banquo was to McBeth, inasmuch as it "refused to stay buried." This sewer has caused more trouble than all the rest of the system put together, and the climax was reached yesterday when the Board of Works investigated the portion leading from Romaine street to the new school, and discovered that the sewer is in a very bad condition, indeed, so much so as to render necessary an investigation into its construction with a view of ascertaining upon whose shoulders the blame should be laid.

Yesterday when the sewer was opened in the presence of the members of the Board of Works, and of the City Engineer and Foreman White, it was found that the pipes were leaking badly due, it is said, to the faulty construction of the sewer. The trouble is due either to the fact that the pipes were not put close enough together, or else that they were not cemented all the way round. However, it is certain that the pipes on the Aylmer street section, at least, are leaking very badly, and the remainder of the sewer may be in the same condition.

On making this discovery the Board of Works at once decided to discharge Louis Anthony, the man who laid the pipes, and to hire another man to see that they are relaid in a proper manner. Street Commissioner Evans will be home to-morrow and he will be asked to make a full report on the matter, and the Board will wait until that is received before they come to any decision as to whether the City Engineer or Foreman White is responsible for the faulty sewer.

This sewer has caused trouble ever since it was built. It will be remembered that during its construction the work was tied up on account of quicksand filling up the sewer, and, after waiting, on the advice of the engineer until the dry weather came it was cleaned out, and it was thought it would give satisfactory service. Such proved to be far from the case, and although the sewer has been in use for over two months, it was found that the sewage was backing up into the manhole at the new school, and the Board determined that something was wrong. The extent of the trouble has surprised everybody, the engineer and foreman especially, as it was not thought that the sewer was in such a bad condition as the investigation yesterday has proved it to be. The public will await with interest the report of the street commissioner, and the subsequent action of the Council in the matter. One man has been discharged: what will be the course of the Board if it is found that Mr. Hay or Mr. White are responsible for the bad work and the corresponding waste of the people's money?

Mysterious Man Follows Citizens About The Streets

Port Hope Ladies Dread Meeting The Silent Pursuer—Hides In The Bushes

IS CAUSING SOME ALARM

Examiner Special

Port Hope, Nov. 15. — A mysterious man has several time lately closely followed residents of the town who happened to be out late, and although he has caused alarm, no violence has yet been attempted. Among those who have encountered the mysterious individual are several ladies.

On Sunday evening while walking on Pine street Mr. John A. Breen, who is engaged at Mr. Mitchell's drug store was very closely followed by a man whose movements gave rise to suspicions. When Mr. Breen was opposite the High School, he turned quickly. The man was close behind him. Mr. Breen asked him what he wanted. The man did not answer, but at once rushed behind the bushes and disappeared.

Recently Mr. Coral Ogden, who is employed by Mr. Frank Brown, was followed one Saturday night from Dr Perry's residence on Ward street to Barrett's mill. Here Mr. Ogden hid himself. The man walked into the mill yard, stood for a time and then turned and walked to Victoria street. Ogden followed him. As he passed under a light Mr. Ogden recognized him as a man who lives in Port Hope and whose reputation is none of the best.

No Hold-up

A report has been circulated that a well-known lady was held up by foot pads near her residence on Mill street on Saturday evening, and robbed of $20.00. Sympathetic ladies soon visited her, anxious to condole, and eager to hear how it happened. But there was nothing doing.

The lady said that there was nothing in the story. She had not even been out of the house on the Saturday evening and she had certainly lost no money. The following episode might have given rise to the story. Two men were returning home that evening and were talking over a little deal in which one owed the other a dollar. The pair sat down on the sidewalk in front of the lady's residence and tossed coins as to whether or not the dollar should be paid. Whatever the outcome one of the men grabbed the dollar bill and made off. That was the nearest thing to a hold up in the vicinity that evening.

EAGLE LAKE PARTY HAVE LUCK

The members of the Eagle Lake Hunt Club are expected to return to the city to-night and the Ketcheum Club will also be back this evening or to-morrow. Both parties have had good luck this season. The Eagle Lake hunters had eleven fine deer when the Snowden-Rutherford party broke up camp, and the members of the Ketcheum Lake had sixteen according to the last reports received from the north, and are likely to have added to the number since that time.

Both were killed. These five were on the eastbound passenger train. Engineer Hendrie and Fireman Nedeau of North Bay were on the light engine. Both were killed. The collision occurred about midnight, and it is understood that several are hurt. Up to 10 o'clock this morning details were meagre.

and the cause of the smash-up unknown.

Ottawa, Nov. 15.—Later.—Advices from Pembroke at 10 o'clock state that up to 9.30 o'clock this morning the mail clerk, thought to be an Ottawa man, was missing. Deer Are Plentiful in the Gull Lake Region

At noon to-day Messrs. Herb Kendry and Frank White arrived home from the hunt in the Muskoka district, where they had great fortune. Mr. Kendry says that the deer are very plentiful in Muskoka this year and that there was no difficulty in securing them.

They arrived two days before the opening of the hunt and erected a shack for their accommodation. Coming out from the camp they had to cross 20 miles of ice in the Gull Lake district.

Indians Are Prosperous.

The annual report of the Indian Department has been recently issued. It is for the nine months ending March 31. It says that for the fiscal period mentioned the Indians not only escaped abnormal hardship, but enjoyed no small measure of prosperity, as evidenced by the fact that their earnings for the nine months were nearly as great as for the full preceding year. There were 2,274 births and 2,105 deaths, leaving a net gain of 169. There was a gain in all the provinces except British Columbia and Alberta. The loss was 62 in British Columbia and five in Alberta.

The total Indian population on March 31 last was 110,345, compared with 109,304 on June 30, 1906, an increase of 951, when all the provinces showed increases except Nova Scotia, where there were 34 of a decrease. The earnings for the nine months from all sources, wages and industries were $2,500,000, or $1,239 less than for the previous twelve months.

TARRIFF TAXATION AND REVENUE

The record of the Laurier Government is such a consistent and steady story of successful administrative achievement that the Conservative Opposition is hard-pushed for arguments to justify criticism. It is a favourite plea that the government has crushed and is crushing the people with heavy taxation, and the overflowing revenue is cited as proof. But the fact is that the revenue comes from greatly lessened taxation aided by increased revenue from other sources. In a speech to South Brant Liberals, Hon. Wm. Paterson pricked the Conservative bubble of increased popular burdens under the Laurier Government, as indicated by increased revenue and expenditure. A few facts cited will show this:

As to the rate of customs duty; in 1896, an average of $18.28 in duties were paid on every $100 of goods entering the country, dutiable and free.

Last year only $15.73 was paid on an average on every $100 worth of goods entering the country, dutiable and free.

The reduction in practical duties on $100 was $2.55, or, as compared with the old rate of $18.28, a reduction of 14 per cent.

With the lowering of the rate of customs taxation there has been such an increase in the prosperity and purchasing power of the people that the increase of revenue was inevitable. It was the people and not the Government that increased the revenue. If they have been burdened with the payment of revenue they, themselves, have imposed the burden. They had more money to buy with, they bought more of dutiable goods, and are, therefore, to blame if they have contributed to a greatly increased revenue.

In the process they have done more correspondence, written more letters, as sown by the report of the Postmaster-General. In 1896 the postal revenues were $3,000,000, and last year, $6,000,000. As well contend that the $3,000,000 increase in postal receipts has been extorted from the people, as to say that a growth in customs revenue under a lower rate of duty is a heavier weight upon them. The domestic postage rate has been lowered from three to two cents, and the imperial rate from five to two cents. The postal revenue has doubled, while the cost of postage has been almost cut in half.

If the tariff compiled by a Liberal Government was excessive, why was it not opposed by the Conservative contingent in Parliament. They sat still while this outrage, according to the Conservative contention, was being perpetrated. Hon. Mr. Paterson pointed out the fact that the budget of last session embodying a completely new schedule of duties was adopted after a brief debate and virtually, without opposition. The critics of the Laurier Government, if they will stick to the truth, have quite up-hill work in making a case.

EDITORIAL NOTES

Toronto is always in hot water over something. No wonder, when Dr. Sheard, the Medical Health Officer, insists on boiled water as a beverage.

The German Kaiser who is now in England sampling King Edward's pantry, says he "longs for peace." This is like some our new arrivals who "long for work," but lose their appetite when they come in sight of it.

Mr. Whitney should give the vacant registrarship in Toronto to a "Grit." A "Grit" wouldn't be admitted to a knowledge of Conservative family secrets, and wouldn't blab embarrassing statements about "Rockefeller's Boy," etc.

Conservative journals are inclined to attribute the tightness of money in Canada to the Laurier Government. No doubt it was the Laurier Government which compelled the Bank of England to raise its rate of discount to seven per cent.

Dr. Beattie Nesbitt declares that the Toronto Registry Office, is a sinecure, which, being interpreted, means no work, and $9,000 a year salary. No wonder there is a scramble among the faithful in Toronto for the vacant soft spot.

Hon. Mr. Foster said to a gathering of Conservatives in Blenheim, "Canada's danger is unclean politics"—"politics is no game in which wrong methods may be used with impunity.' Such language coming from a man with Mr. Foster's record, makes Satan reproving sin gilt-edged impudently.

The Court of Revision of the Assessment should take into consideration the action of the city in affecting the value of property. If a man bought a property on a well-improved street, and the city permits the street to go bad, to degenerate into the condition of a neglected country side line, the depreciation in value of abutting property should be considered.

Statistics recently compiled by the Philadelphia Society for the Prevention of Tuberculosis, state that while the total loss from fires in that city amount to an average annually of $2,098,000, the average yearly loss from tuberculosis — the polite name for consumption — amounts to $7,943,000. The total deaths in Philadelphia in 1906, from consumption, were 3,627, the next two most fatal diseases being pneumonia, 2,699, and typhoid, 1,063. These facts, and the further fact that corresponding conditions in regard to the fatal prevalence and fatal results of tuberculosis, prevail in Ontario, give point to the appeal for funds for the Muskoka free hospital for consumptives. The National Sanatarium Association in their two institutions in Muskoka, the Muskoka Cottage Sanatarium and the Muskoka Free Hospital, have treated over 2500 patients, whom other hospitals refuse.

EAST NORTHUMBERLAND

Some of our Conservative contemporaries, notably the Mail and Empire and the Ottawa Citizen, show a disposition to return to the discussion of the issues upon which the recent bye-election in East Northumberland for the House of Commons was fought. They fail, of course, to point out that Mr. Owen, the Conservative candidate, secured his majority solely from the town of Campbellford and the adjoining township of Seymour. They do not tell the public that the front part of the county, which has given Conservative majorities for thirty years or more, and which consistently supported the late Mr. Cochrane, at the recent election gave majorities for Major Mulholland, the Liberal candidate. They prefer to base their criticisms upon charges of bribery and corruption, without having the slightest scintilla of proof that there was any bribery or any attempt at corruption. Perhaps, if they were to look closely into the conduct of the campaign on their own side, they might find some proof of the expenditure of money in the polling divisions which gave a Conservative majority. They will certainly find none on the Liberal side, for it can be safely asserted, upon the authority of independent men from the riding, that never before was so little money expended in an election campaign in the county as was spent by the Liberals in the recent election.

The chief weapon of the Conservative press against Major Mulholland—(and we must include the Toronto News among those which have used this weapon)—is the declaration that the Liberal candidate sought to "bribe the constituency by public works and public subsidies." Never was a political accusation more devoid of foundation.

It is true that Major Mulholland advocated the construction at Colborne of a Dominion Government wharf.

Was that a crime? If so, why was it not a crime for the late Mr. Cochrane to use the same plea? Anyone who knows the riding and its history is aware that for some years back the residents of the county have, without distinction of party, been urging the construction of such a wharf. It was in no sense a political issue; it was a work of public necessity; and it is as such that the people of East Northumberland have pressed it upon the Government of to-day.

What is the position? East Northumberland is one of the largest dairy sections in Eastern Ontario. It produces six million pounds of cheese on an average per year. It is also one of the most fruitful of our orchards, having in a good season anywhere from 900,000 to 1,000,000 barrels of apples to ship. How is this cheese and how are these apples to get to market? The railways, by their own admissions before the Railway Commission at Toronto last week, are unable to supply enough cars, or even half enough cars, to take care of this perishable freight. Is it to be left to go to waste on the hands of the producers? Are the apples to be fed to the pigs or left to rot on the trees? Or is the Government to provide a wharf at Colborne which will give that competition by water which will allow this cheese and these apples to be carried to Montreal for transport to the markets of Europe?

That is the issue in East Northumberland. It is purely and simply a business issue. There is no politics in it. The people of the front of the riding want the wharf, and they intend to have it. They supported Mr. Cochrane because he advocated its construction. They voted for Major Mulholland because he was in favour of their being given the transportation facilities which they demand. Many of them never cast a Liberal vote before, but they realized that this was an issue into which politics did not enter, and so supported the man who would use his influence to give them what they want. It so happened that the influence of Mr. Owen in the immediate vicinity of his home was able to overcome the wishes of the rest of the riding, but that does not make the advocacy of the wharf at Colborne a measure of political corruption or an attempt at the bribing of the constituency.

Moreover, the residents of the front part of the constituency challenge any one on the Opposition benches in the House of Commons or any Conservative newspaper to prove that Major Mulholland was guilty of using any sectional appeals such as his opponent, or that he advocated any policy save that of fair play for the riding in the matter of transportation for its perishable products. His platform was that of a public man who wants to see his home county prosper. On not a single occasion did he use any appeal to cupidity or any argument which was not justified by the actual conditions of the county. It would be well if the candidates of the Conservative party would be as free from reproach in this matter as is Major Mulholland for his campaign in East Northumberland. — Ottawa Free Press.

COSMOPOLITAN WINNIPEG.

Motley Crowd Throng Through the Gateway of the West.

Port Said, the gateway of the mysterious east, has long been rewarded as the most cosmopolitan city in the world. Its picturesque, but unwholesome thoroughfares are perpetually flooded with representatives of all the races. They seem as if some mighty hand had garnered so many hundreds from each of the peoples and set them to roam abroad to show how strange and multitudinous are the tongues and clothes of the tribes of man. But (says The Manitoba Free Press) Winnipeg, the gateway of the West, bids fair to rob the Egyptian port of her ancient position. It is doubtful whether even promiscuous Port Said can show a more motley mixture of nationalities than the Canadian Pacific depot after the arrival of one of the great immigrant trains. The call of the West for men has been heard in all the crowded corners of the earth, and they come to Winnipeg in a polyglot stream speaking half a hundred languages and habited as variously as though they were the children of different eras. A man shepherd in the sheepskin of his native desert, a Galician family genial and numerous with their goods and chattels packed in a dozen ungainly packages, a German respectably dressed and stern in expression, who has persistence writ large all over him, a Chinaman inscrutable of smile, the Briton in his many varied types, the statuesque Scandinavian, built like a hero, Hebrews from all lands and a comprehensive assortment of Americans—all can be seen any day in the spacious waiting hall of the C. P. R.

Unlike the throngs at Port Said, who pass to and fro, the human tide here flows ceaselessly one way. Oppression, overcrowding in the old lands sends these folk to the new. Some, even now, when they are breathing the free air of the prairie, still have the furtive looks that come of an ancestry of sufferers. They are probably the first of their family in all its long history who have been placed beyond the bounds of tyranny. Even the newcomers from happier lands know that here is a new start, a greater chance, a life less encumbered by artificial if immemorial conventions. The very way in which the sturdy artisans and laborers of Britain and of Germany throw out their chests, as they stride about the entrance to the promised land shows that they realize they are in Canada, where men are at least more equal, where character and not caste counts. The depot where the people, who are to form the new great nation, may be seen, with all the characteristics of their breed upon them, is profoundly engrossing, but perhaps the north end of Winnipeg, where many of the foreign people are to be observed in the process of assimilation by the Canadian nation is more interesting still. The rapidity with which most of the races acquire, at any rate, the outward characteristics of the Canadian, is astounding.

ROOTS IN MEDICINE

Every person who knows anything of materia medica is aware that from roots and herbs we get many of our most valuable medicines. The system which is fed on meats and fruits including bread, needs every once in a while a little toning up. This toning is found in roots, and one of the best recipes for a tonic, and which has proved valuable in urinary, kidney and liver troubles, is made up almost wholly of roots. Its ingredients are: Four ounces syrup of rhubarb, one ounce sweet spirits of nitre, and one ounce of compound vimosa, the latter being a compound of root extracts. Buy these at any drug store, mix at home and take a dessert-spoonful in water after meals and at bedtime. A few doses will tone the system and throw off any poisons that may affect the vital organs.—2.

CROP NOTES.

This year's peanut crop is valued at $15,000,000.

Noble county, Ind., has raised over half a million bushels of onions this year.

Adams county stands at the head of the counties of Pennsylvania in the growing of apples and has become famous all over the country for its product.

E. H. Edmonds, editor of the Manufacturers' Record, estimates that the cotton crop this year will bring $900,000,000 into the south, or about 12½ per cent more than any previous cotton crop has netted that section.

DEATH-DEALING CAR STOVE.

Approach of Winter Brings Near the Deadly Peril.

I understand that we are going to exterminate the mosquito next summer. Of course! We are going to do big things—next summer.

You remind me of a character who used to live not far from Rushdale Farm. In the winter time he sat round the cooking stove blowing about what he was going to do "next summer." He was the most fluent, if not eloquent and convincing, person I ever met. He had blue eyes like a china doll and a flow of language which when dammed up overflowed the surrounding territory. He would rather talk than eat. I've known him to sit talking violently to all hands while his potatoes and meat got cold and his tea was likewise, and he hadn't eaten a bite when us fellows got up from the table and went back to the barn.

He always hankered to be a preacher man, and never lost an opportunity to butt in at a funeral or where somebody was sick. He said grace once at a threshing bee on the next farm, and that was the last time he was ever asked to do it. He prayed for the Governor-General and both Houses of Parliament.

He prayed for the county councils and the school board and the township councils, the country road superintendent, the fenceviewers, the pathmasters, and the directors of the agricultural society. He prayed for the heathen in all lands—but our own. All this, mind you, before he got down to business and asked a blessing on the food which was evidently and obviously growing cold before our eyes, while our salivary glands were working overtime. It made us so blame mad that we in secret session decided that it was to the back pews for little Jamesy after this. He had other accomplishments. He could spit across the cooking stove and hit the wood-box with deadly accuracy and precision. He cut up all his food and ate it with his knife. It was an amazing—it was an awe-inspiring spectacle to see him in action. Talk about your sword swallowers—tut!

But that wasn't what I started out to say. In the winter he laid plans for summer, and vicey versay, as he would say himself. And he never accomplished anything.

Next summer we are going to exterminate the mosquito. Uh-huh! But before that a whole lot of the committee may be burned to death.

The mosquito can wait; the deadly car stove is right on deck. For seven months the death-dealing car stove will go racing up and down the land, imperilling the lives of millions. A body doesn't mind so much getting his bones broken or being all chawed up, but he draws the line at being roasted to death. He would like to leave behind him enough remains, so to speak, as would identify him, if it was only the cast in his eye. But in a railway wreck in winter if you enter not the portals of Death, you sink forever into the Lake of Oblivion. For long weary years your dear old mother, your poor little wife, or your orphaned children will watch and wait for you and wonder where you are. I could tell them where you are. You're in a sigar box buried in a little one-horse graveyard away up the line.

Let us all get after this car stove. It has no business there now, anyway. It's usefulness is gone. There is a better and safer way of heating the cars. None of us would travel with a Bengal tiger loose in the coach, but we will sit down beside the car stove, which has a Bengal tiger, or a rattlesnake, for the matter of that, or a grizzly bear, faded to a frazzle. Stir up the people! They are putting in the car stoves. Remember Burke's famous line—

"Early and provident fear is the mother of safety." The Khan.

Lucky Editors.

When the late N. Villemessant, the proprietor of the Paris Figaro, died he left the paper to the three men who had done the most to aid him. But there were many old contributors on the paper, men with well known names, who made an outcry at this division of property. They insisted that they ought to have been consulted, and they threatened to found an opposition paper to Figaro.

This alarmed the three principals, and they made a proposition to the effect that they themselves should take each £7,000 out of the concern yearly and that the other men should each have a salary of £1,500 for the work they were to do and at the end of the year draw a like sum out of the profits, thus insuring them £3,000 a year each. Yet these men did not write an average of more than half a column a day each—if, indeed, that much—so that they had a very easy time of it.

It was one of the conditions that when any one of them dies his share goes to the others, so that the last survivor will have an enormous income.—London Observer.

AN OUTSIDER'S VIEW.

More Bouquets for Canadians From the Pen of W. R. Givens.

"Graft and the Church in Canada" is the title of an article in a recent number of The Independent by W. R. Givens, the expatriated Canadian whose article in the same journal last May aroused much adverse comment. At that time Mr. Givens stated what he says he honestly conceived to be the defects and shortcomings of this young nation, viz.: the lack of opportunity for young men, the persistence in office of old men, a mistaken fiscal policy which seeks after markets three thousand miles away rather than one at very hand, a narrow and blindly partisan press, a military and Government set that lords it over the hoi-polloi, a deference to England and things that are English even to the sacrifice of Canadian rights and Canadian progress, a foolish though unvoiced antagonism to the United States, and a lack of what may be called a real Canadian spirit.

Mr. Givens in his article seeks to back up the statements made in the former one by quoting from the census reports to show that Eastern Canada has been practically at a standstill during the past three decades. He admits that the latest information he can get is that of the census of 1901, but is content to state that with the exception of the west, which shows some signs of growth, the situation is a pitiful and distressing one. No other country save Ireland shows so poorly in respect of stagnant population. The recent resolutions of the different church assemblies of Canada respecting the prevalence of graft in political life are quoted as a reason why the old men are so desirous of retaining office. They are evidently in politics for what they can get out of it. He is of the opinion, however, that the churchmen have confounded a phase with an all-prevailing condition, and have mistaken a symptom for a disease, and that the whole condemnation that has been passed on the honor of the men in public life is not warranted.

The statement of G. M. Macdonnell, K. C., of Kingston, at the recent Presbyterian General Assembly, to the effect that "graft, not intemperance, was the national curse of Canada," is quoted, as are also the resolutions passed by the Anglican Synod of Toronto at the instance of Hon. S. H. Blake, which says a great purification of politics, financial, social, and business methods in Canada, is imperatively demanded, the present state of affairs being deplorable. There is also an excerpt made from the pastoral charge of Bishop Worrell to the Anglican Synod of Nova Scotia, in which he calls for the eradication of the graft parasite from public life. Quotations are also made from some newspapers which would lead an outsider to the conviction that the political life of the country is unspeakably corrupt.

The resignation of Hon. A. G. Blair from the Laurier Cabinet because the negotiations for the construction of the Grand Trunk Pacific were "conducted over his head by an inner 'ring' in the Cabinet," the forced resignation of Lord Dundonald because "he had the hardihood to declare that the Canadian militia was being prostituted by the party and spoils system, and that appointments went by favor rather than merit," and the refusal of the Government to call for an investigation of the "wine, women, and graft" charges of G. W. Fowler, M. P., are commented upon as proving that there is indeed a deplorable state of affairs in Canadian public life. To these he adds election frauds, bogus ballot-boxes, school book scandals, nepotism, charges of gross personal immorality against Cabinet Ministers, insurance grafts, etc. He believes that the charges are altogether too sweeping, and that he is inclined to doubt that there is as much corruption and immorality as the churchmen seem to think. Mere incidents have been mistaken for an ever-present, ever-prevalent condition. There is plenty of room, however, for reform and admirable public service.

The article concludes with the following paragraph:

"It will be well when an awakened Canadian public conscience shall assert itself—not fitfully, but permanently and effectually. Perhaps when that awakening shall come—and a campaign of publicity will certainly not retard it—there may come a further awakening to the larger and clearer view of the manifest destiny of Canada — a Canada for Canadians who shall work for their own land and not for an Across-the-Sea Empire, that will never come."

Pertinent Question.

An English juror once asked the judge after the verdict was returned whether the fact that he differed from his eleven brethren justified their knocking him down with a chair.

Only Then.

"Does your husband snore in his sleep, madam?"

"Well, doctor, I have never noticed him snoring at any other time."—Baltimore American.

OBITUARY.

DAVID BROWN

One of the best known residents of this community died on Saturday, in the person of David Brown who had been in declining health for some time past. In early life Mr. Brown was engaged in farming in Percy township, but many years ago he moved to Campbellford and engaged in hotel business. A number of years ago he retired and since then he resided the most of his time in Campbellford. He was 68 years of age and was twice married. Of the first family six survive—three sons, Wallace, of Toronto; Garnet, of Seattle; and Norman, of North Dakota, and three daughters, Mrs. (Dr.) Ramsay, of Toronto; Mrs. Reynolds, of Spokane, and Mrs. Alfred Simpson, of Peterborough. Mrs. Simpson, and Mrs. Reynolds were home for the funeral, as was also Wallace the eldest son. Mr. W J Waters, of Hamilton, whose wife was a daughter of the deceased and who was recently bereft of her, sent a beautiful wreath in expression of his sympathy. A widow and several children survive. The funeral took place on Monday at 10 a.m.—Bellford Herald.

HE ATE POISON IVY

"An illustration of how Zam-Buk heals and closes poisoned wounds, is provided by Mr. G. W. Stimers, of Colborne. He says, 'Some time ago, in consequence of eating poisoned ivy I broke out in sores on my head and face. I went to a doctor who treated me and for a time the wounds healed but they broke out again as bad as before and all the remedies I tried failed to give me relief. A sample box of Zam-Buk which I obtained did me so much good that I purchased a proper supply. The result of the work has been a complete cure. The sores have healed without leaving any scars and indeed there is now no trace of them. The glands in my throat had become swollen and hard. These symptoms also have been cured by application of Zam-Buk.'"

Absolutely pure, Zam-Buk is nature's balm and for all skin diseases is without equal. Zam-Buk will also cure ulcers, festering sores, ringworms, cuts, bruises, chapped hands, boils, eczema, piles, etc., etc. Write Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, for a free trial box, sending one cent stamp. All stores and druggists sell at 50c. a box.

Many Social Gatherings Enjoyed in Havelock

Employees of The C.P.R. Station Were The Hosts of a Delightful At Home—Miss Warren Was Honored by Her Friends

Examiner Special.

Havelock, Nov. 13.—The "at home" under the auspices of the employees at the C.P.R. station on Wednesday evening, November 6, was in every way a decided success. About 35 couples were present. Dancing commenced at the usual hour of 9.30, music being supplied by the Campbellford orchestra. The young men proved themselves to be ideal hosts. Luncheon was served in the basement of the hall by the young men at 12 o'clock, after which a farewell waltz was rendered by the orchestra and one and all left for their homes impressed with the fact that a most enjoyable evening had been spent, but hoping that it would not be the last.

Mrs. Wm. Spurr of Madoc is the guest of her daughter, Mrs. C A Ghent.

Invitations have been received by the friends to the wedding of Miss Maude McKanna of Woodstock, and Dr. J M Hourigan of Smith's Falls, which will take place at St. Mary's church, Woodstock, on Tuesday of next week, November 12. Both parties are former residents of Havelock, Miss McKanna having taught school here for a couple of years. Dr. Hourigan assisted Dr. Crawford during one summer. The young couple made many friends in Havelock, who wish them every happiness and prosperity in their wedded life. A number of persons from Havelock will attend the wedding at Woodstock on Tuesday.

The Spinsters' Convention in the opera house on Friday evening, November 9, under the auspices of the young people of the Presbyterian church was a huge success. The opera house was crowded to its utmost capacity until there was not even standing room. The proceeds amounted to over $100.

Some person or persons seem to be revenging their spite on the poor dumb animals, as a number of good dogs have been poisoned this week. Three died from poison on Saturday.

An evening which will long be remembered was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Warren, "Maple Lodge," Preneveau, when a party was given their daughter, Rose, in honour of her twentieth birthday. A large number of persons was present from Havelock, Campbellford and Marmora. The house was prettily decorated with evergreens and flowers, the tables being adorned with bouquets of pink and white carnations, intermingled with smilax and ferns. Miss Hickey, cousin of Miss Warren, received. Luncheon was served at 8.30. Misses M. Kelly, L. Petrie, J. Hickey and A. Bryans, girl friends of Miss Warren, waited on table. Before leaving the table a toast for "Miss Rose Warren" was proposed by Mr. Rogers and was most ably responded to by Mr. T P Lancaster, after which they all adjourned to the drawing-room, where a presentation was made to Miss Warren by her Havelock friends. A most appropriate address was read by Miss Warren of Havelock, and the presentation of a most beautiful guinea gold bracelet set with four pearls each in a most exquisite jewel box, was made by Mr. B. Flynn. Miss Warren was completely taken by surprise, but in a few words thanked them for their unexpected gift. Mrs. Warren also in a few words extended her sincere thanks. The remainder of the evening was enjoyed in music and games. One of the most pleasing features of the evening were the pretty songs rendered by Miss Calwell of Marmora. During the evening a flash light picture was taken by Mr. Stewart, the photographer of Marmora. The singing of Auld Lang Syne brought to a close a most enjoyable evening which will long be remembered by those present.

Miss White of Norwood spent last week in town the guest of Mrs. Jno. Weir.

Mrs. Reynolds of Norwood is the guest of her daughter, Mrs. Rathwell.

Mr. and Mrs. Dave Foster of Norwood were in town Saturday.

Mr. Rollie Graham of the Sovereign Bank staff received word on Monday to go to Durham, and left for that place on Tuesday morning. Rollie has many friends in town, having for a number of years resided here, who will regret his departure, but wish him every success in his promotion. Mr. Smith of Durham will take his place here.

CAMPBELLFORD'S GOOD WORD

The Herald Booms The Trent Valley Canal

The Campbellford Herald says:—The Trent Canal, when completed, will be a much better waterway than the Erie Canal. The Erie Canal for 325 miles of its 500-mile course is actual canal, while the Trent route with the exception of perhaps 20 or 25 miles will be through beautiful lakes and rivers, along which powerful tugs drawing tows of barges can be operated at a high rate of speed. The time required to pass from one level to another by means of splendid hydraulic locks, already constructed at Peterborough and Kirkfield is from ten to twelve minutes, while under the old lockage system there would be a delay at these points of two and a half to three hours. These hydraulic locks are the best of their type in existence. There is already raised in the valley of the Trent a territory as large as the Provinces of New Brunswick, about 16,000,000 bushels of grain, besides large quantities of other produce. Taking grain alone, the freight from Campbellford to Montreal is now about six cents a bushel, which by way of the Trent Canal—on the basis of the rate now charged from Buffalo to New York via the Erie Canal, a distance of 500 miles—the rate will be only two cents a bushel. There will be, therefore, at the very lowest, a saving to the farmers as producers of grain in the Trent Valley district of four cents a bushel, or six hundred and forty thousand dollars each year, which amount will be kept in the farmers' pocket instead of being paid out to railways. This saving on the one item of grain illustrates the great advantage that will accrue from the construction of this splendid canal. It may be said that these 16,000,000 bushels of grain produces in the Trent Valley district will not all be shipped out of the country. This is quite true. The enhancement, however, in the value of the grain to the producers results just the same on account of the reduction in the cost of transportation to the railway markets of the world.

STOP THE STRENUOUS LIFE

Weakens The Tissues And Lessens The Organic Vitality

The stress and strain of the strenuous life in both city and country tends towards stomach troubles.

Five people suffer to-day where one did ten years ago with sick headache, dizziness, flatulence, distress after eating, specks before the eyes, bloating, nervousness, sleeplessness, and the many other symptoms of indigestion.

All who are suffering with stomach troubles, and that means at least two out of three in Peterborough, and other towns, should use Mi-o-na stomach tablets. Nothing else is as safe, yet effective; nothing else can be so thoroughly relied upon to relieve all troubles from indigestion as Mi-o-na.

It is not a mere digestive taken after the food is eaten, but a true tonic, stimulant and strengthener for the muscular walls of the stomach, increasing the flow of digestive fluids and putting the stomach into such condition, that it does the work nature expects of it.

So reliable is Mi-o-na in its curative action that Mr. Madill with each 50 cent box he sells gives a guarantee to refund the money unless the remedy does all that is claimed for it.

LIFT LOCK CLOSES FOR THE SEASON

More Lockage This Year Than Last—A Successful Season

The Peterborough lift lock was last night closed to navigation for the season of 1907, after a most successful year. The big pontoons have been laid on the blocks and no more boats pass up or down until the opening of navigation next year. Mr. Gillespie the manager of the lift lock states that the increase of lockages of this year over the number of last last will be a substantial one, although he has not yet figured out what the increase will be.

PLEA FOR PREVENTION OF SMOKING

Growing Use of Cigarettes by Small Boys Alarms Writer

To the Editor of the Examiner:

Dear Sir,—The question has frequently arisen in my mind of late whether the authorities have noticed the growing use of tobacco, especially cigarettes by juveniles. Every day I see smallboys of all ages puffing at the stubs of cigarettes and I have wondered whether others have noticed the growth of this dangerous practice.

The police, the truant inspector, the teachers and lastly, parents, must know of this for it is really a fact and it is surely time that something was done to prevent it. I do not intend to point out the danger of this practice, particularly in the case of small boys, but I would like to see it stopped if possible. Perhaps it is in keeping with the general laxity that is so prevalent in the morals of the small boys; their appetites know no curb which may account for the desire of the boys to use tobacco. If the parents do not realize it they should. The teachers should do all in their power to stop it. Every day I see boys going to school smoking—surely something is wrong. The truant officer knows that smoking and chewing go hand in hand and he too should be on the alert. The authorities themselves see the condition and surely there is some preventive. I do not wish to say that anyone has been lax for I do not think this matter comes directly under their supervision, but surely if everyone leagues together this pernicious practice may be checked to some extent at least. In the best interests of the youth of Peterborough.

Yours truly,
"OBSERVER."

PRINCE COMING TO CANADA

Will Represent King Edward at Tercentennial Celebration of Founding Of Quebec

AN IMPOSING SUITE

A report apears in the New York papers that Prince Arthur, only son of the Duke of Connaught, accompanied by an imposing suite, will represent the King at the celebration next year of the ter-centennial anniversary of the founding of Quebec in 1608 by Samuel de Champlain. If this report is true, and it is to be hoped it is more so than previous rumours, it puts an end to hopes that the King and Queen might possibly grace the occasion. There never was much likelihood tha Their Majesties would undertake the voyage. There is no man in all the empire whose time is more busily occupied than the King. Few people have an idea of the multiplicity of his duties, or of the punctilliousness with which he attends to them. At his time of life he must husband his strength, and, though the journey in these days is not as long or as dangerous as when he visited Canada forty-seven years ago, it can be easily understood that it is not the voyage, but his absence from where his presence is of the utmost importance, and constantly required, that makes the visit scarcely possible. Prince Arthur will be gladly, enthusiastically welcomed as the King's representative. He is popular with all classes in Great Britain, and, though young in years, is credited with having a genial disposition and a modest, unaffected manner. When called upon to accept his uncle's and his great-grandfather's throne of Saxe-Cobourg-Gotha he declined it, preferring to remain a British prince to becoming a German petty sovereign. His decision made him popular with the British people, and Canadians will welcome him for his own sake as well as for the great principles he will represent.

Detective Who Worked On Dummer Case Disappears

Ex-detective Wells Cannot be Found —Was Last Heard of in Vancouver in June Last—Well Known In Peterborough

HIS FRIENDS ARE ANXIOUS

Toronto, Nov. 15. — Ex-Provincial Detective Wm. J. Wells of 15 Leuty avenue, who attracted considerable notice through his efforts to find the perpetrator of the Barton township murder, has himself become the centre of a perplexing mystery, to which the aid of the authorities has been called.

Since his retirement from detective work Wells had been employed as a traveller for a Montreal dry goods firm. In June last while in Vancouver he left his hotel in order to post a letter and has not been seen or heard of since. His luggage and samples are still at the hotel and the letter has long since reached its destination, but no trace of the sender has been found.

Wells has a wife and three children at his home here in the city, and his friends fear that some harm has befallen him. It is believed that Wells had never given up the hope of trailing down the Barton murderer, and his friends at first accounted for his disappearance by saying that he had probably found a clue and dropped out of sight in order to follow it, but now that the weeks have lengthened into months and no word has come this theory does not seem tenable.

Ex-Detective Wells who is mentioned here, is well known in Peterborough, and was here for several weeks in connection with the famous Dummer manslaughter case in which little Tommy Hill was shot. Mr. Wells made many friends in the city during that time and has been here since, when travelling for a Montreal dry goods firm.

INTERESTING CASE FROM ENNISMORE

Man Claims he Closed Culvert to Protect his Property From Water

Before Magistrate Edmison in the County Police Court this morning, a case from Ennismore was heard, which attracted a large number of the farmers of that township on account of its local interest. The Reeve, Mr. Samuel Killen, preferred a charge against Mr. Cornelius O'Connor for having unlawfully damaged a culvert that crosses one of the highways. Magistrate Edmison reserved judgment for three weeks.

Mr. R. F. McWilliams appeared for the complainant, and Mr. W. H. Moore represented the defendant. Before the hearing was begun Mr. Moore produced a writ from the High Court of Justice against the township, and Mr. Bernard Flood asking for an injunction to restrain the council from placing the drain across the road where is was proposed.

It was explained in court that the previous drain was of 8-inch tile. Mr. O'Connor claims that the council, by laying this drain, is taking the surface water from Mr. Flood's farm and letting it run on to his. He therefore claims that his action towards the former drain was in self-defence.

"Musical Canada", Tribute To Old Peterborough Boy

The Well Known Musical Periodical Speaks in High Terms Of Praise Of Mr. H. C. Cox—A Baritone Singer of Great Ability

KNOWN AS A GOOD HOST

The current issue of "Musical Canada" contains the following reference to a gentleman who is an old Peterborough boy, and who is very well known in this city:

Mr. H. C. Cox, whose portrait appears on our front page, is the son of Hon. Geo. A. Cox, and is known in the financial and commercial world as the manager of the Canada Life Assurance Company where his keen business ability have made him a prominent and conspicuous figure.

Socially Mr. Cox is particularly popular with the musical element, his own home always being a welcome rendezvous for lovers of music. His fine baritone voice and ability to make a fluent impromptu speech combined with a most genial manner making him a desirable host or guest. Mr. Cox is one of the directors of the Toronto Conservatory of Music, a member of the executive committee of the Conservatory Symphony Orchestra and chairman of the "Guarantee Committee," and was largely responsible for raising the guarantee fund of five thousand dollars in connection with last season's orchestral work, thereby fulfilling Toronto's greatest ambition in making this orchestra a permanent organization. The churches have also felt the benefit of Mr. Cox's enthusiasm and love of music, he having been treasurer of Trinity Methodist choir for eight years, with Mr. R. S. Kirby, conductor, whom he assisted liberally in the financial part of his work, and he is at present a member of the Music Committee of the Metropolitan church, as well as a valued member of the choir.

REV. MR. MANNING AT MARK STREET

Delivered The Sermon at Evangelistic Meeting

Rev. H. M. Manning preached a strong sermon at the evangelistic services at the Mark street church last night. There was a good attendance and a deep interest was shown by all present. The sermon was from St. John xi, 28 "The Master is come and calleth for thee."

To-night Rev. A. H. Brace, of the Park street Baptist church, will give the address.

GROWTH OF SALVATION ARMY

Some Facts And Figures Given by The Great Leader

In an address in New York the other night General Booth said, speaking of the Salvation Army, that they started out with empty stomachs and empty pockets. Now they had 7,500 branches in 53 countries—nearly all of them self-supporting. They preach the gospel in thirty-two languages; they control between sixty and seventy publications and twenty-five newspapers in seventeen languages. The army officers, who devote their entire time to the cause, number 15,000; the local officers who earn their bread by the sweat of their brows, 50,000, and they have 20,000 bandsmen who do not receive a penny for their labour. The army feeds 200,000 hungry persons every week and gives shelter every night to 2,000 girls who otherwise would have no refuge but the street. The General declared that the Army had reclaimed 50,000 girls from the downward path.

A DEER SHOT BELOW BICE LAKE

Found Feeding in a Wheat Field—A License Procured

Mr. Ezra Houghtaling, of Alnwick, did not need to go to the unexplored wilds to get his venison for this season.

Mr. John Lamey had noticed a deer deer on his farm and on informing Mr. Houghtailing, that gentleman procured a license and at once went after his game which he found feeding on a field of fall wheat on Mr. Lamey's farm and bagged it at once. There is also supposed to be another deer in that locality. The deer must have swum across the lake or river to get to the place where it was seen, as it is not at all likely that it came up from the south. There will likely be some fall hunting up that way until the season closes.—Hastings Star.

CHEMONG LAKE SHEETED WITH ICE

Mr. Boyce of Selwyn Says Chemong Lake Was Frozen Over Yesterday

The lakes of the north are all beginning to feel the touch of winter and Jack Frost is rapidly congealing their silvery surfaces. Chemong Lake is one of the first of the larger bodies to be frozen over this year. Mr. W. A. Boyce of Selwyn, was in the city yesterday and states that the lake was covered by a fine sheet of ice yesterday morning. Most of the smaller enclosed bodies of water further north are in the same condition, as some of the hunters have discovered to their discomfiture.

BUSINESS MEETING AT PARK STREET

Good Progress Reported in Sunday School Work and Building Fund

The quarterly business meeting of the Park street Baptist church was held last night, the proceedings being most harmonious. There was an anxious spirit for more aggressive efforts and a yearning for a deeper spiritual life among the members was manifested. The most encouraging departments were the Sunday school and the Building Fund. There was an average attendance of 101 students and 15 teachers, the average offerings per Sunday being $2.75.

The Building Fund reported $1235.36 in hand in hard cash, four hundred of which came in at the last thanksoffering Sunday. Arrangements were made for the week of prayer in January, and a watch night service. Special services will also be held during the winter.

Much satisfaction was expressed at the wide substantial bridge and grading done by the city authorities, thus making it easy for the worshippers to approach the church.

The fixings to the plastering will be attended to by Mr. Jos Johnston, and this with the heavy banking outside will make the church warm and comfortable for the short time it will be needed.

Ring Sellers Were Arrested In Restaurant Last Night

P. C. Newhall Arrested Two Men While Enjoying Meal—Trying to Sell Rings For Money For Trip To Toronto

IN POLICE COURT TO-DAY

Last night about 5.30 a telephone message was sent in to the police station to the effect that two men were trying to dispose of jewellery in the vicinity of the Grand Opera House. The descriptions of the couple were that one wore a dark sweater and a Christy, and that his companion was much shorter and had a respectable appearance.

Upon receiving this information, the Chief and P. C. Newhall set out in search of the ring vendors. The men were not on the street, so the police looked in Nixon's for them, but the men had left there some time previously. The Chief returned to the office, while P. C. Newhall went to the C.P.R. station, as directed by a man in the hotel. On passing the window of the Canadian restaurant he looked in and saw two men answering to the descriptions, sitting at a table enjoying a meal. The gentleman who telephoned the police identified the men, and Newhall, with the aid of a citizen, went in to put the two individuals under arrest.

"Where are those rings?" was the first question asked by the officer.

"I don't know what you're talking about," replied the man addressed.

The policeman did not care for a wordy war, but took hold of the fellow's hand. Two rings that might have adorned the bottom of a popcorn bag graced the middle finger.

"You two men are under arrest for peddling jewellery without a license. Anything you say to me may be used in evidence against you," was the officer's remark.

A citizen who was standing by was called upon to take the other chap, who seemed quite innocent of anything pertaining to crime.

At the police station the men were searched. Dirty handkerchiefs, tobacco and railway timetables were found on their persons, also $1.10 in money between the two. Several questions were asked them at the station as to who they were, where they came from and how long they had been here.

They stated that their names are E. Kidd and Burt. McCaul of Bewdley, near Rice Lake. They had just arrived in the morning from Fraserville and intended leaving last night for Toronto. The money derived from the sale of the rings was to help to pay their way over the road. Burt. McCaul, the younger of the two, told the Examiner last night that he had left home when he was fourteen. His father was second engineer on board the steamer Chippewa, and had a respectable home on Manning avenue, Toronto, but that he could never get along with his parents. He is only 19 and has a respectable appearance. The other fellow stated that he has been in the "coop" before.

This morning the two appeared in the police court to answer a charge of peddling without a license.

McCaul was first on the stand, and told how he had been working for Kidd's brother in Bewdley. After the work was over, Kidd asked McCaul to come to Peterborough, which he did. Kidd bought two rings in a local jewellery store and told McCaul he gave a cheque for them. Another time he said that he gave $1.50, and another time 30 cents.

Eli Kidd told his story in a straightforward manner. He claims that he bought the rings for thirty cents and was trying to sell them for seventy-five cents to help him and his pal to get on to Toronto.

The magistrate after hearing the evidence told Kidd to get out of town before 12 o'clock or he would send him to the Central Prison for six months.

No charge was laid against McCaul, who appears to be an honest fellow, but has got into bad company. The authorities are trying to secure the boy a position in the city.

PETERBORO' PEOPLE WITH WEAK LUNGS NEED VINOL

Many people inherit weak lungs which are likely to be attacked by consumption. So also are lungs weakened by disease or by a stubborn lasting cough.

No matter what the cause, Vinol strengthens weak lungs and gives one the power to throw off wasting diseases.

The reason that Vinol has such power to heal and strengthen is because it contains in a highly concentrated form all of the curative, medicinal and strength-creating elements of cod liver oil actually taken from fresh cods' livers, with the useless, nauseating oil eliminated and tonic iron added.

So sure are we of what Vinol will do that we ask every person in Peterborough suffering from weak lungs, stubborn, hacking coughs, or any wasteful disease, to try Vinol on our offer to return money if it fails. McDermid & Jury, Druggists, Peterborough, Ont; also the Market Drug Store.

HORSE WHISPERERS.

Men Who Can Control the Most Vicious Animal by Voice.

The horse whisperer might be an unknown quantity in England and Ireland today, but there are not a few men who exercise a wonderful control with their voices over horses which when the dominating influence is absent are apt to literally kick over the traces. In the thoroughbred stables of England and Ireland today there are not a few stablemen and jockeys who succeed in holding in check the vice in horses which in demonstrative manner show that they cannot tolerate the presence of the grooms or attendants.

Nimrod claimed for Count Duval a power and influence of the human voice over the brute creation, but that power was backed up by a lecture to the horse with "his clinched fist in his face."

But the horse whisperer of today avoids all gesticulations and trusts entirely to a combination of sounds or words. There is no bullying done, and the whisperer can face a mad horse with his hands behind his back and apparently at the mercy of the beast that has to come under the charm. One means of keeping remount horses quiet in stations during the South African war was that employed by the yeomen, who sat in a ring of head to head horses singing as loudly as possible and riveting the ears and attention of the otherwise sprawling and hungry animals.

One of the first whisperers to acquire absolute control over fractious equines was Con Sullivan, who migrated in his youth from Kilmallick, where he could trace his genealogy through a long line of snafflers, and became almost exclusively employed by Lord Doneraile. The whisper of this man made an indelible impression upon any horse, bringing the pupil to a degree of docility unattainable in the ordinary course of discipline.

The race horse King Pepin, a famous racer, vicious and reputed to have killed two grooms at the Curragh, once came under his charge. He was wanted to win a race at Mallow, but when saddling time came it found him in one of his unmanageable moods. He reared, plunged and flung out fore and aft until he completely cowed groom and jockey. It was at this crisis that some one recommended that he should be "whispered." As it was the only chance left of taming him in time for the start, his owner gladly availed himself of it, though warned that horses were sometimes thrown into a state of stupor by the process.

Sullivan was soon found, and he was delighted at the opportunity of "fwhuisperin' before so much 'quolity' from all parts." "Show us the wild baste," he said, "and we'll soon tache him manners."

When he got within the circle—and a wide one it was—in which King Pepin was playing his antics he walked up to him, approaching the horse from behind. He mumbled some words as he walked which, though not quite inaudible, were as unintelligible as a sermon in the unknown tongue, but they had a most magical effect on the horse, for he stood stock still. Sullivan then patted him on the neck, while he whispered a word or two in his ear, whereupon King Pepin went on his knees and incontinently lay down.

The whisperer then stretched himself on him at full length, took out a pouch containing pipe and tobacco, flint and steel, struck a light and blew a cloud as he lounged on the stomach of this high mettled colt with as much composure as if he were seated on a bench in his favorite taproom. After two or three puffs he got up, beckoned the nag to his legs, saddled him and walked off to the starting post, the horse following and fawning upon him like a dog. He won the race in a canter.—London Live Stock Journal.

Great Falls of the Potomac.

The Great Falls of the Potomac are about fifteen miles above Washington, but the neighboring country has remained so wild and undeveloped that the falls have been difficult to reach. The famous Conduit or Aqueduct road, so called because it is built over the big conduit which brings the national capital its water supply, leads about up to the falls on the Maryland side and there stops. It is famous as one of the best roads in the country, and it is a favorite drive with Washington people and visitors. About halfway up this road crosses a deep gulch by means of the Cabin John bridge, a majestic stone arch built by the government and until recently the longest single masonry span in the world, about 220 feet. This bridge was begun just before the civil war, and a tablet was inserted in its side, giving the name of Jeff Davis as secretary of war. During the war his name was mutilated by soldiers, and now it is entirely cut off.—Pathfinder.

The Brute.

"Such an angel of a hat," chirped the vain woman as she twirled before the mirror. "Yellow and white. What does it remind you of, my dear?"

The big man in the embroidered slippers looked up from his paper.

"Yellow and white?" he repeated. "Well, now, on the level, it reminds me of a fried egg."

The Opinion Of The Public About O.H.A. Team Is Asked

The Examiner Will be Pleased To Publish Short Letters On The Subject In The Belief That The People Of Peterboro' Want a Team

HOCKEY SPORT'S VIEWS

The Examiner is of the opinion that the people of Peterborough want an O.H.A. hockey team in the city this year, and acting on this opinion, has decided to ask the enthusiasts to indicate their views by short letters addressed to the sporting editor of this journal. The idea was suggested by the receipt of the letter given below, which strongly supports an O.H.A. team. The reason given is a somewhat novel one, i.e., that Peterborough should enter a team in the O.H.A. and spite that body by winning the championship, which, the writer points out, is just what the O.H.A. does not want Peterborough to do. The Examiner will gladly publish letters on the subject in the belief that by doing so it will benefit the cause of hockey in this city.

The letter referred to is as follows:—

Peterborough, Nov. 14, 1907.

Dear Editor,—

Are we not going to have an O.H.A. team here this winter? Peterborough got dirt from the O.H.A. last season, but there is not use in getting sore about it. The O.H.A., as everybody knows, does not want Peterborough to win the championship, and that is all the more reason why it should have a team, and win in spite of it, and the boys can do it, too. Thanking you for this space, I remain,

Yours sincerely,
HOCKEY SPORT.

SPORTING NEWS AND VIEWS.....

Cleveland, Nov. 14. — H. R. Hoffman, of the Builders, of the Calumet Home League, last night established a world's bowling record that can be equalled but never broken, for he rolled 300, a perfect score. This mark has been reached many times in friendly matches and games, or practice affairs, but not until last night had it ever been made in a regularly scheduled league contest held according to the regulations of the according to the regulations of the American Bowling Congress.

To show that he was really in good form and that his 300 score was not entirely an accident, Hoffman came back in the second game with 200 and finished the third with 189, giving him an average of 229 2-3 for the series. Prior to last night he had an average of 197 for the season of 15 games, leading the league.

You'll find it upon life's massive chart—
The "star" and the 'dub" are but inches apart—
One smashes out hard but his drive never lands;
It travels direct to another man's hands.
The next fellow's effort is puny and tame
But it hits the right spot, and so gathers him fame.
It's the lure of the age from the centuries brought—
"The bunt may roll safe while the hard smash is caught."
You may strive twice as hard for the rich prize at stake—
It's a "pipe" that you'll lose if you don't get the "break."

The following letter appeared in last night's issue of the News:

Sporting Editor of News:—There is as you know, considerable discussion among football men as to what a goal kicked from the field should count. It is my opinion that the score should vary according to the distance of the ball from the goal when kicked. If a ball were dropped anywhere between the quarter way line and the goal, it should count in my opinion, two points. Between the quarter way and the fifty yard line, four points, and from beyond the fifty yard line six points. A rule, such as this, would I feel sure, encourage half backs to kick more.

Yours very truly,
J. K. FORSYTH.

In the event of a match being arranged between Mr. Hartley of Peterborough, and Mr. Reynolds of Port Hope, the athletic club of Dunsford would like to match Mr. John Everson of that place against the winner for any amount up to $5000 a side. Mr. Everson is now 62 years of age, widely known and prominent, owing to his many athletic achievements in the vicinity of Pleasant Point, Lindsay and Dunsford. Communications will be received by Mr. Andrew Robertson, Kent street, Lindsay, upon whose counsel Mr. Everson claims to have become a total abstainer some 20 years ago, and to this fact largely attributes the preservation of his present vigour. Mr. Robertson, who is familiar with the elastic tread and robust constitution, together with the recuperative powers and staying qualities of Mr. Everson, feels confident in his ability to materially lower the present record. — Lindsay Post.

Since Peterborough has won the O.R.F.U. senior championship, Ernie Wilson has beaten Tom Coley, and Dave Hartley has set the walking fans a-thinking, the canoe town is getting "cheaty." A report comes from Peterborough to the effect that Hartley is making special preparations to beat Jimmie Reynolds of Port Hope, when the veteran pair meet at the Mutual street rink a week from Saturday night. Port Hope has always stuck loyally to the walking barber, and his friends have won liberal wagers as a result of his walking prowess. In Peterborough Hartley is regarded as a "good thing" and there will be plenty of Peterborough greenbacks here to cover the Port Hope currency on the night of the race. It is the first occasion on which the two pedestrians have come together in an actual contest since the walking craze, revived by Jimmie Reynolds, took its present strong hold on the public.—Toronto Globe.

Were an all-Canadian team to become an actual reality and Ben Simpson to be a member of the team, the brilliant Tiger back would in all likelihood be played at right half instead of in his old place at left. Simpson possesses the usual accomplishment of being able to use either foot in booting and would suffer no inconvenience through being switched from left to right half, while, on the other hand it would give a right hand punter the indisputable advantage of being able to place his kicks into touch, an advantage he would not possess if playing the right side of the field.—Mail and Empire.

The annual meeting of the O.H.A. will be held in Toronto to-morrow and it looks as if Peterborough will not be represented. The executive of last year should make an application for membership and avoid difficulty later on.

Mr. Dick Baker, the trainer of the Y.M.C.A. Harriers, wishes to deny the report that he will have charge of Dave Hartley in his big walking match with Jimmy Reynolds a week from to-morrow. As far as Mr. Baker knows George Stevens will look after the veteran walker in that event.

CANADIANS TAKE CARE

Don't be Too Anxious to Get Rich This Year, Says Banker.

The departure from sound financial principles of some of the best companies and banks, and the control of some of these by speculative financiers, is the cause given by Mr. James Turnbull, general manager of the Bank of Hamilton, for the present situation in the money market.

"Unlike the States," says Mr. Turnbull, "no trust company in Canada does any commercial business, and the Canadian banks which are unquestionably well managed, confine themselves to their own proper business of advancing money for legitimate and financial purposes.

"Trade in Canada is prosperous and is likely to continue so, though, particularly at present, care should be taken by all parties to exercise prudence and to avoid all undue desire for wealth and extension. In spite of the smaller crops, the return to the country through higher prices will probably be larger than during our recent abundant years.

"Our own advices indicate better crops in the west than were expected and our people in Ontario know well that the farmers here are making money."

Adventures In Alaska.

Dr. George Byron Gordon, professor of anthropology in the university at Philadelphia, had exciting adventures in Alaska, to which place he went in April, leading an anthropogical expedition on the Koskokwin River.

The party sailed 1,500 miles down the river in a canoe and then the doctor and a companion endeavored to sail to Nome.

"We set sail on Sept. 19, and were just in time to strike the equinoxial gales," said Dr. Gordon. "The second day out the wind blew strongly and apparently from all directions. For 17 days the wind continued to blow, and we simply had to lie in the sea, our wonder being that our craft did not go to pieces.

"We stretched out our supply of water and made it last till we got to shore, but our provisions ran out and for the last three days of our trip we had nothing to eat.

"A little more and we would have drifted into the Arctic Ocean in the storm, but after the storm had calmed down, one dark night, and the fog had lifted, we saw that we were near to a low coast, which we recognized as that of Alaska.

"The first and second days without food are the worst, but after that, if you have plenty of water, you don't feel the hunger as badly as at first."

Then He Got Busy.

He—The doctors say that kissing is dangerous. Do you believe it?

She—It is at times; but—er—papa isn't at home to-night.

Fishes That Are Lost.

It is pretty well established that the common mackerel, for example, lays some 50,000 eggs and that out of the number not more than two come to the reproduction stage. Presumably the loss is equally great in the eggs of other fishes. The greater part of this loss occurs, of course, while the young are too small to look out for themselves. By hatching the eggs artificially and maintaining the young until they can shift for themselves it is claimed that in place of one in 25,000 one in a dozen may live to maturity.

TRAIN AND TRACK.

The value of the world's railways is put at $27,775,000,000.

Many trolley cars in Canada have entrances in the middle of the car only.

Of 493 accidents last year on the Washington traction lines 217 were the result of getting off moving cars backward, and 216 of the people thus injured were women.

A short stretch of railroad belonging to the Chicago and Northwestern Railroad company is being laid in southern Wisconsin on which various methods of preserving ties by chemical treatment will be put to the test of practical use, with the co-operation of the United States forest service.

A SEAT IN THE COMMONS.

Going to Parliament a Costly Honor For Englishmen.

Every Englishman who is not fortunate enough to be a peer wants to become an M. P. Every man who has succeeded in business or professional life feels that a coveted seat in the commons is necessary to round out his career. But many men of moderate means are deterred from pampering their ambitions by the big expense entailed. No salaries are paid, and, besides supporting himself, an M. P. is called upon to meet heavy drains upon his pocketbook during his entire term.

At the most moderate estimate the expenses of a campaign are $5,000. Once elected, the member must "nurse" his constituents. Clubs and charities are the greatest beneficiaries of this outlay, but many individuals come in for assistance also. Not less than $3,000 a year is required for this item, which for a term of five years represents an outlay of $15,000.

All told, then, a prospective member faces an outlay of $20,000 in addition to his living expenses, which in London are far from moderate when he maintains himself in keeping with the dignity of his position.

Many of the commoners of course spend far more than the above amount. And, in addition to the cash outlay, some of them find their lives embittered by the worries and exactions of their positions.

BALLOONING.

With an Experienced Pilot in Charge It is Not Dangerous.

The uninitiated are prone to look upon the balloon as a sort of country fair attraction, whose principal interest lies in the risk the aeronaut takes. This is a mistake.

Like the automobile, the balloon requires an experienced pilot, and when such a one is in charge serious or fatal accidents are never recorded. Most balloon clubs require all ascensions to be made under a regularly licensed pilot, who receives his certificate from the club only after having demonstrated his fitness. The pilot who is willing to go up only in favorable weather and to come down at the proper time need never endanger lives. He knows he has only to open the valve and he can descend. He has only to throw out a handful of sand, and he can prevent his balloon from coming down or can send it up. When he is ready to land he picks out a favorable spot ahead of him, lets his balloon come gradually down near the ground, cuts loose the anchor which stops his progress, then opens the valve again if necessary. When the car touches the ground he tears out the ripping strip, and the balloon stretches out on the ground, a flat and empty bag.—F. P. Lahm, U. S. A., in Outing Magazine.

The Love of Nature.

A Japanese friend of mine lived in Paris for a year. Waking on a winter's morning, he found that snow had fallen in the night. As a matter of course he took his way to the Bois de Boulogne to admire the beauty of the snow upon the trees. What was his astonishment when with his companion, a compatriot, he arrived in the Bois to find it entirely solitary and deserted. The two Japanese paid their vows to beauty in the whiteness and the stillness of the morning and at last beheld in the distance two other figures approaching. They were comforted. "We are not quite alone," they said to themselves. There were at least two other "just men" in that city of the indifferent and the blind. The figures drew nearer. They also were Japanese.—London Saturday Review.

The City of Roses.

Ispahan, Persia, is known as the "city of roses," but a traveler says that the streets "are only alleys between two high mud walls, without a single window or opening to be seen—merely here and there a low, narrow doorway, always impenetrably closed. The ground is thickly coated with dust, the streets are rarely straight, and never have they got any name. The sense of ruin is everywhere—here a wall is falling down, there a palace is in ruins, a little farther a deserted mosque in stirred. Such is Ispahan, which from having at one time a population of 1,000,000 is now reduced to barely 100,000 inhabitants."

The Slow Train.

A conductor on a certain train noted for its slowness asked a hoary headed, white bearded passenger for his ticket.

"I gave it to you," said the old man.

"I guess not," the conductor replied. "Where'd you get on?"

"At Burby's Crossing."

"Why," the conductor cried, "there wasn't anybody got on at Burby's Crossing except one little boy."

"I," said the aged one, "was that little boy."—Lippincott's.

Where Men Have Lost The Lives— The Railway Between Superior Junction and Winnipeg

(Winnipeg Free Press)

Dutton's Camp 1, McFarlane River, Nov. 16.—There is one word of advice coming to anyone who would attempt this trip — take a course of training first. Four or five miles on a city pavement is just a nice little stroll for exercise, four or five miles along the right-of-way is equivalent to a bad half day with the Alpine Club, rocks and muskeg, broken rock and more muskeg, a climb through heavy timber up a mountain side, a wade across a boggy creek and then more muskeg, a start in the cool of the morning, weighted down with clothing, and by noon the temperature of a Turkish bath supplemented by heavy exertion, that is what it means.

Breakfast before daylight, and a start just at sunrise was this morning's programme. With the favourable light a couple of photographs were secured of the work at Camp 5, and the long tramp was ahead. On the way a stop was made at the landing, where the Northern Navigation Company's boats land the supplies for this section of the work. At the landing is a small pier, an open covered shed for hay, oats and similar supplies, and a large closed building for provisions and perishables. As we arrived at the landing one of the company's steamers was bringing in a barge loaded with 95 tons of material for the camp. It made a pretty picture as it floated in, its bulk mirrored in the calm waters of the river, and the deep green of the forest behind making a most effective background.

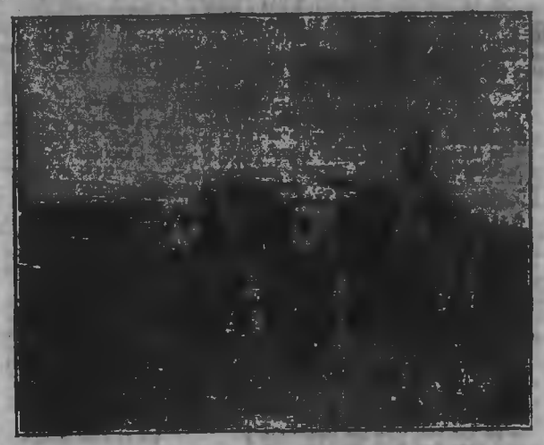
For the first half mile the dump is of sand, the material removed from the big cutting. At the end of the dump a timber trestle is built out across a muskeg, the loaded cars are run out on it and dumped. The first dump is a narrow one, but it will be widened to standard simply by shifting the track and dumping the cars over the side instead of at the end. From that point eastward the greater part of the work is through rock, but the heavy rains have hampered contractors considerably, and several sections have been abandoned temporarily till the ground has frozen up. Camp 4 along this section is only making fair progress, and but a couple of gangs were at work. The camp is not up to strength, but this will be remedied as soon as the cuttings can be re-opened to advantage. As the work is not heavy this will not mean any delay in the completion of the section, for it can be readily finished within a few months, or long before the heavier sections on either side of it can be made ready for the steel.

Stranded on Dry Land

About a mile out from this camp the McFarlane River cuts the right-of-way at right angles, opening out at either side in a lake-like expansion. At the narrows a floating bridge of logs has been constructed to facilitate crossing the river, and as there are two boats passing up and down the river every morning, it was our intention to arrive ahead of them in order to save the hard walk at the finish. Great was our chagrin to find on reaching the narrows that someone had released the bridge and that it had floated off up the river, and to add to it both boats were just disappearing round a point to the east. We hooted, yelled and waved our coats, but all to no purpose, and were perforce compelled to wait till one of the steamers returned, when the captain put us across in the tender. We finished the tramp just in time for dinner.

Camp 1 is a most important section. In addition to being the headquarters for a considerable section of extremely heavy work, it is also the forwarding point for men to points east, and a trans-shipping point for the navigation company. The camp is located in a heavy growth of mixed timber, on a side hill which slopes down to the river. About forty feet above it are the waters of Lake Ena which find an outlet through a short rapid stream with several falls. The outlet of the lake has been dammed so that the water level is raised five feet, making navigation possible on the upper waters for a distance of eleven miles along the railway line. The water supply for the camp is carried by gravity through a pipe line laid to the dam. The camp carried 140 men and a heavy office staff.

At the head of the lake the navigation company has built a tramway for handling goods over the portage, and warehouses have been put up at either end. Some four weeks ago a steamer, the Sport, was hauled over the portage, and with the assistance of several barges, is busily engaged in getting materials over the line east, for about twenty miles, handling approximately twenty tons a day.



At the dam two gasoline launches are kept by Dutton and McArthur, and these are used for visiting the various camps and sections of work along the lakes and rivers. This afternoon we took a flying trip up Lake Ena, stopping at several stations and cuttings. The shores of the lake are exceedingly rocky and irregular, deep bays cutting in and giving the shore line the resemblance to a many pointed star. The right of way plunges across these bays and through the rock of the points in a reckless manner, giving a great amount of very heavy rock cutting, but securing a magnificent line. There are practically no gradients and the curves are easy they will not militate against the handling of the longest and heaviest trains. Camps are scattered along the shore about every mile, and the many cuttings show a scene of the greatest animation.

Killed in an Explosion

The life and animation was gone from one of the gangs and a gloom had settled over the work due to the untimely death of one of the members of a station crew which had taken place the night before. At the point in question a station crew had taken a sub-contract for a "burrow pit," where a large amount of work is being being quarried out to make a fill across an arm of the lake. Three deep holes had been drilled, and Carl Swanson was engaged in charging one of them preparatory to blasting off a section of the cliff. Two of the holes had been loaded and the third was almost completed when to the surprise of all in some unaccountable way it was set off. Swanson was down from the cliff and fell to the roadbed beneath, a large section of rock falling on him. He lived several hours but could not recover from his frightful injuries.

The only explanation offered is that he had been opening a tin of powder with a pickaxe. In striking the tin a spark was caused which set off the powder. As there were grains of powder clinging to the sides of the hole the flames, it is thought, ran down, igniting the main charge. Despite a number of similar accidents it seems impossible to teach the men to be careful in the handling of high explosives, and the contractors express surprise that there are not more killed and injured. Proper methods are explained to the men but with familiarity they become reckless and many narrow escapes are chronicled.

The story is told of a man who lost the sight of an eye while dropping a detonator into a hole which he was springing. Some time after while firing a shot a piece of rock struck him on the arm, fracturing it so that the member had to be removed. Later still he was firing another shot and had built a hiding place behind a large rock. He went into the shelter to turn on the battery, but neglected to pull his legs in out of danger. A rock struck his left leg and that limb too has been removed. Giant powder in active operation is not a force to be neglected or made light of, but there are still some of the men who do not see fit to go under shelter when a charge is to be fired. Some of the men learn the lesson too late.

Work at the Tunnel

A short distance from camp 1 is situated what is known as McFarlane's Tunnel Camp. At this point a tunnel 25 feet 10 inches by 16 feet, by 600 feet, is being driven through a granite ledge. A considerable amount of work has been done on this tunnel and at the present time the heading has been driven for about 175 feet and 150 feet of the tunnel completed. At the west end the approach is 800 feet in length and another large gang of men is at work there. The crest of this granite ledge is smooth and rounded and shows evidence of glacial erosion. In walking over it the tap of the steam drills at work in the tunnel could be plainly heard as if a band of gnomes were busily engaged working at their secret tasks in some cavern of the earth. At a distance of several hundred feet from the drills it sounded as if the work were being carried on immediately underneath and at a point where the ledge runs under the camp stables, a half mile distant, the noise may still be heard, showing how the rock will carry sound.

From the tunnel west the rock work is heavy and the travelling difficult. There are several ravines with soft bottoms traversed by streams, but small culverts carry off the water and the heavy rock cuts through the earth to a solid foundation on the mother granite. From surface indications this section of the country is rather highly mineralized, several of the dykes and ledges cutting the granite showing gold value. At one point on the work some of the boys in the camp have located a find which promises well. A sample of the ore when worked out by hand gave a gold button of fair size, and it is their intention to further prospect the seam. It has been traced for a considerable distance and a party was being organized to go out with drills and dynamite to see what values were carried some distance down. If the showing is considered worth while a license will be secured and claims staked.

Farther to the east there is another seam which showed free gold in a formation similar to that found at the Lawrentian mine, while near at hand are several quartz seams of a striking character and appearance, though they show no trace of gold values. One seam of quartz, several inches in width, was semi-transparent, showing like clumps of glass crystals embedded between walls of pink granite. Patches of mica and rock showing iron stains are also found on the vicinity. These rocks are clearly seen in the railway cutting which at point is about 15 feet in depth.

Paymasters Expected

It is the intention to wait over till to-morrow as the paymaster is expected through and will make the trip with us to the east end of Ogoma Lake. He is one day late, due to one of the party having gone astray in the mails, but an attempt will be made to make up the time during the trip. It is a matter of pride on this 35 mile section that the men can figure to a half day on the arrival of their pay checks, even though the trip has to be made on foot over a rough stretch of country and in all sorts of weather. In sunshine or rain, through floods or dry weather, there has not been a skip since the work began.

There are other besides the whisky smugglers who know that there is a large amount of ready money along this line for the man with a glib tongue or with something to sell. This evening two men arrived from the east who had been selling real estate along the line. The property they have been disposing of is in the G.T.P. shops district and they report that they have been most successful. They had intended going through to Vermilion, but had sold out and were coming back for more agreements and cash with which to take up pay checks. They represented but one class of peddlers for in addition there are the vendors of cheap jewellry, clothing and a dozen other articles with which the workers may be separated from their money. One jewellry peddler boasted that he could easily sell $2,000 worth of watches in a fortnight. He did not say what his profits might be. In some of the camps these men are tolerated and in others not, but they must make a good thing of it or there would not be so many on the trail.

The crew of the Sport who returned from the upper end of Ogoma Lake report that there has been a heavy storm during the day. At times it was almost impossible to make headway. We leave over that route in the morning if everything is favourable, but the trip is not altogether a pleasant one to look forward to in rough weather.

Beef extracts contain only the flavor and stimulating elements of beef—the nutritive values are lost in the making. Baron Liebig, the inventor of beef extracts, admitted that. He said "It is but a condiment and stimulant, containing no matter capable of sustaining life."

PLAIN TALK FROM THE DOCTOR

A prominent physician, famous for his success in the treatment of kidney and bladder troubles, stated that to the following prescription is due a great deal of his success:

One ounce fluid extract dandelion;
One ounce compound saletose;
Four ounces compound syrup sarsaparilla.

Mix and take a teaspoonful after meals and at bedtime, drinking plenty of water.

This mixture will, he says, positively cure any diseases arising from weak, clogged or inactive kidneys, and will assist these organs to cleanse the blood of the poisonous waste matter and acids, which if allowed to remain, cause lumbago, lame back, rheumatism and sciatica, and at the same time will restore the kidneys to healthy normal action. The ingredients, which are purely vegetable and entirely harmless, can be procured from any good druggist and mixed at home at very little cost.

This advice will undoubtedly be much appreciated by many readers.

DO NOT TREAT SYMPTOMS, GET AT THE CAUSE.

Indigestion, dyspepsia, and biliousness surely indicate that there is something wrong with the liver, kidneys and bowels. So-called cures for indigestion do not go to the root of the matter. Remove the cause and the symptoms will disappear. King Palmetto Compound succeeds where everything else fails, because it acts directly on the kidneys, liver and nerves. You are not ask to take these statements on faith. Look at the formula, we print it on the wrapper, and explain it fully in our printed matter, which goes with every bottle. If you are not acquainted with the action of the drugs of which it is composed, ask your physician. He will tell you that Saw Palmetto has wonderful efficacy in regulating the kidneys and that Cascara Sagrada is the best tonic and stimulant for the bowels known to medical science. These are only two of the constituents of King Palmetto Compound, the rest have equal merit. It is not a cure-all, but it will prevent the development of incurable diseases. It will not only relieve, but permanently remove the cause of constipation, that foe of health which is responsible for more than half the diseases that afflict the human race. Is your digestion imperfect? Are your bowels irregular? Are you bilious? If so, now is the time to act. Send for a free sample bottle of King Palmetto Compound to-day. Address King Palmetto Company, Bridgeburg, Ontario. This medicine is made upon honor and sold upon merit. One dose a day will meet your needs.

A STORY OF LOVE AND ADVENTURE

BY BERTHA RUNKLE.

Copyright by The Century Co.

When I rose with it my quarry was swallowed up in the shadows. M. Etienne, whose light clothing made a distinguishable spot in the gloom, had driven his opponent, or his opponent had driven him, some rods up the lane the way we had come. I stood perplexed, not knowing where to busy myself. M. Etienne's side I could not reach past the two duels; and of the four men near me, I could by no means tell, as they circled about and about, which were my chosen allies. They were all sombrely clad, their faces blurred in the darkness. When one made a clever pass I knew not whether to rejoice or despair. But at length I picked out one who fenced, though valiantly enough, yet with greater effort than the rest; and I deemed that this had been the hardest pressed of all and must certainly be one of the attacked and the one most deserving of succor. He was plainly losing ground. I darted to his side just as his foe ran him through the arm.

The assailant pulled his blade free and darted back against the wall to face the two of us. But the sword of the wounded man fell from his loose fingers.

"I'm out of it," he cried to me; "I go for aid." And as his late combatant sprang forward to engage me I heard him running off, stumbling where I had.

There had been little light toward the last in the court of the house in the Rue Coupejarrets, and less under the windows of the Hotel de Lorraine; but here was none at all. I had to use my sword solely by the feel of his against it, and I underwent chilling qualms lest presently, without in the least knowing how it got there, I should find his point sticking out of my back. I could hardly believe he was not hitting me; I began to prickle in half a dozen places, and knew not whether the stings were real or imaginary. But one was not imaginary; my shoulder which Lucas had pinked and the doctor bandaged was throbbing painfully. I fancied that in my earlier combat the wound had opened again and that I was bleeding to death; and the fear shook me. I lunged wildly, and I had been sent to my account in short order had not at this moment one of the other pair near us, as it afterward appeared, driven his weapon square through his vis-a-vis's breast.

"I am done for. Run who can!" he cried as he fell. The sword snapped in two against the paving-stones; he rolled over and lay still, his face in the dirt.

My encounterer, with a shout to his single remaining comrade, made off down the lane. On my part, I was very willing to let him depart in peace.

The clash of swords up the lane had ceased at the stricken man's cry, and out of the gloom came the sound of footfalls fainter and fainter. I deemed that the battle was over.

The champion came toward me, three white patches visible for his face and hands; the rest of him but darkness moving in darkness. He held a sword rifled from the enemy, and advanced on me hesitatingly, not sure whether friend or foe remained to him. I felt that an explanation was due from me, but in my ignorance as to who he was and who his foes were, and why they had been fighting him and why we had been fighting them, I stood for a moment confused. It is hard to open conversation with a shadow.

He spoke first, in a voice husky from his exertion:

"Who are you?"

"A friend," I said. "My master and I saw two men fighting four—we came to help the weaker side. Your friend was hurt, but he got away safe to fetch aid."

The unknown made a rapid step toward me, crying, "What"——

But at the word M. Etienne emerged from the shadows.

"Who lives?" he called out. "You, Felix?"

"Not hurt, monsieur. And you?"

"Not a scratch. Nor did I scratch my man. Permit me to congratulate you, monsieur l'inconnu, on our coming up when we did."

The unknown said one word:

"Etienne?"

I sprang forward with the impulse to throw my arms about him, in the pure rapture of recognizing his voice. This struggler, who we had rushed in, blindfold, to save, was Monsieur! If we had been content to mind our own business, had sheered away like the deputy—it turned me faint to think how long we had delayed with old Moreau, we were so nearly too late. I wanted to seize Monsieur, to convince myself that he was all safe, to feel him quick and warm.

I made one pace and stopped; for I remembered what ghastly shape stood between me and Monsieur—that horrible lying story.

"Dieu!" gasped M. Etienne, "Monsieur!"

For a moment we all kept silence, motionless; then Monsieur flung his sword over the wall.

"Do your will, Etienne."

His son darted forward with a cry.

"Monsieur, Monsieur, I am not your assassin! I came to you; your said not dreaming who you were; but, had I known, I would have fought a hundred times the harder. I never plotted against you. On the honor of a St. Quentin I swear it."

Monsieur said naught, and we could not see his face; could not know whether he believed or rejected, softened or condemned.

M. Etienne, catching at his breath, went on:

"Monsieur, I know it is hard to credit. I have been a bad son to you, unloving, rebellious, insolent. We quarrelled; I spoke bitter words. But I am no ruffian. I am a St. Quentin. Had you had me whipped from the house, still would I never have raised hand against you. I knew nothing of the plot. Felix told you I was in it—small blame to him. But he was wrong. I knew naught of is."

Had he been content to rest his case here I think Monsieur could not but have believed his innocence on his bare word. The stones in the pavement must have known that he was uttering truth. But he in his eagerness paused for no answer, but went on to stun Monsieur with statements new and amazing to his ear.

"My cousin Grammont—who is dead—was in the plot, and his lackey Pontou and Martin the clerk; but the contriver was Lucas."

"Lucas?"

"Lucas," continued M. Etienne. "Or, to give him his true title, Paul de Lorraine, son of Henri de Guise."

"But that is impossible!" Monsieur cried, stupefied.

"It is impossible, but it is true. He is a Lorraine—Mayenne's nephew, and for years Mayenne's spy. He came to you to kill you—for that object pure and simple. Last spring, before he came to you, he was here in Paris with Mayenne, making terms for your murder. He is no Huguenot, no Kingsman. He is Mayenne's henchman, son of Guise himself."

"And how long have you known this?" said Monsieur.

"Since this morning." Then, as the import of the question struck him he fell back with a groan. "Ah, Monsieur, if you can ask that, I have no more to say. It is useless." He turned away into the darkness.

That they should part thus was too miserable to be endured. I was sure Monsieur's question was no accusation, but the groping of bewilderment.

"M. Etienne, stop!" I commanded. "Monsieur, it is the truth. Indeed it is the truth. He is innocent, and Lucas is a Guise. Monsieur, you must listen to me. M. Etienne, you must wait. I stirred up the whole trouble with my story to you, Monsieur, and I take it back. I believed I was telling the truth. I was wrong. When I left you I went straight back to the Rue Coupejarrets to kill your son—your murderer, I thought. And there I found Grammont and Lucas side by side. We thought them sworn foes; they were hand in glove. They came to me to end me because I had told, and M. Etienne saved me. Lucas mocked him to his face because he had been tricked; Lucas bragged that it was his own scheme—that M. Etienne was his dupe. Vigo will tell you. Vigo heard him. His scheme was to saddle M. Etienne with your murder. He was tricked. He believed what he told me—that the thing was a duel between Lucas and Grammont. You must believe it, Monsieur!"

M. Etienne, who had actually obeyed me—me, his lackey—turned to his father once again.

"Monsieur, if you cannot believe me, believe Felix. You believed him when he took away my good name. Believe him now when he restores it."

"Nay," Monsieur cried; "I believe thee, Etienne."

And he took his son in his arms.

CHAPTER XXII.

Already a wan light was revealing the round tops of the plum-trees in M. de Mirabeau's garden, the high gray wall and the narrow alleyway beneath it. And the two vague shapes by me were no longer vague shapes, but were turning moment by moment, as if coming out of an enchantment, into their true forms. It really was Monsieur in the flesh, with a wet glint in his eyes as he kissed his boy.

Neither thought of me, and it was none of my concern what they said to each other. I went a rod or two down the lane, round a curve in the wall and watched the bands of light streaking the eastern sky, in utter content. Never before had the world seemed to me so good a place. Since this misery had come right I knew all the rest would; I should yet dance at M. Etienne's wedding.

I leaned my head back against the wall, and had shut my eyes to consider the matter more quietly, when I heard my name.

"Felix! Felix! Where is the boy got to?"

The sun was clean up over the horizon, and as I blinked and wondered how he had contrived the feat so quickly my two messieurs came hand in hand round the corner to me, the level rays glittering on monsieur's burnished breastplate, on M. Etienne's bright head and on both their shining faces. Now that for the first time I saw them together I found them, despite the dark hair and the yellow, the brown eyes and the gray, wonderfully alike. There was the same carriage, the same cock of the head, the same smile. If I had not known before I knew now the instant I looked at them that the quarrel was over.

I sprang up, and monsieur, my duke, embraced me.

"Lucky we came up the lane when we did, eh, Felix?" M. Etienne said. "But, monsieur, I have not asked you yet what madness sent you traversing this back passage at two in the morning."

"I might ask you that, Etienne."

The young man hesitated a bare moment before he answered:

"I am just come from serenading Mlle. de Montue."

A shade fell over monsieur's radiance. At his look M. Etienne cried out:

"I've told you I'm no Leaguer! Mayenne offered me mademoiselle if I would come over. I refused. Last night he sent me word that he would kill me as a common nuisance if I sought to see her. That was why I tried."

"Monsieur," I cried, curiosity mastering me, "was she in the window?"

He shook his head, his eyes on his father's face.

"Etienne," monsieur said slowly, "can't you see that Mlle. de Montluc is not for you?"

"I shall never see it, monsieur. The first article in my creed says she is for me. And I'll have her yet, for all Mayenne."

"Then, mordieu, we'll steal her together!"

"You! You'll help me?"

"Why, dear son," monsieur explained, "it broke my heart to think of you in the League. I could not bear that my son should help a Spaniard to the throne of France, or a Lorrainer either. But if it is a question of stealing the lady—well, I never prosed about prudence yet, thank God!"

M. Etienne, wet-eyed, laughing, hugged monsieur.

"By St. Quentin, we'll get you your lady. I hated the marriage while I thought it would make you a Leaguer. I could not see you sacrifice your honor to a girl's bright eyes. But your life—that is different."

"My life is a little thing."

"No," monsieur said; "It is a good deal—one's life. But one is not to guard one's life at the cost of all that makes life sweet."

"Ah, you know how I love her!"

"They call me a fool," monsieur went on musingly, "because I risk my life in wild errands. But, mordieu! I am the wise man. For they who think ever of safety and crouch and scheme and shuffle to procure it, why, look you, they destroy their own ends. For when all is done they have never really lived. And that is why they hate death so, these worthies. While I, who have never cringed to fear, I live like a king. I go my ways without any man's leave; and if death comes to me a little sooner for that I am a poor creature if I do not meet him smiling. If I may live as I please I am content to die when I must."

"Aye," said M. Etienne, "and if we live as we do not please, still we must die presently. Therefore do I purpose never to give over striving after my lady."

"Oh, we'll win her by noon. But first we'll sleep. There's Felix yawning his head off. Come, come."

We set off along the alley, the St. Quentins arm in arm, I at their heels. Monsieur looked over his shoulder with a sudden anxiety.

"Felix, you said Huguet had run for aid?"

"Yes, monsieur; Vigo should have been here before now," I answered, remembering Vigo's promptitude yesterday.

"Every one was asleep; he has been hammering this half hour to get in," M. Etienne said easily.

But monsieur asked of me:

"Was he much hurt, Felix?"

"No, I am sure not, monsieur. He was run through the arm; I am sure he was not hurt otherwise."

We came to where the two slain men lay across the way. M. Etienne exclaimed:

"If you do not hold your life dear you sell it dear, monsieur! How many of the rascales were there?"

"It was hard to tell in the dark. Five, I think."

"Now, monsieur, how came you to be in this place in the dark?"

"Why, what to do, Etienne? I came in at the gate just after midnight I could not leave St. Denis earlier, and night is my time to enter Paris. The inns were shut"——

"But some friend near the gate? Tarigny would have sheltered you."

"Aye, and got into trouble for it had it leaked out to the Sixteen."

"Tarigny is no craven."

"But neither am I," said monsieur. "Oh, I give you up! Go your ways. But I will not come to save you next time."

"No, lad, you will be at my side hereafter."

M. Etienne laughed and said no more.

"But in truth," monsieur added, "I did not expect waylaying. If these fellows watched by the gate they hid cleverly. I never saw a finger-tip of them till they sprang upon me by the corner here, when we were almost home."

M. Etienne bent over and turned face up the man whom monsieur had run through the heart. He was an ugly enough fellow, one eye entirely closed by a great scar that ran from his forehead nearly to his grizzled mustache.

"I know him," said M. Etienne. "Have you encountered him before, monsieur? He was a soldier under Guise once, they say, but he has done naught but hang about Paris taverns this many a year. We used to wonder how he lived; we knew he did somebody's dirty work. Clisson employed him once, so I know something of him. With his one eye he could fence better than most folks with two. My congratulations to you, monsieur."

But monsieur, not heeding, was bending over the other man.

"Your acquaintance is wider than mine. Do you know this one?"

M. Etienne shook his head over the other man, who lay face up, staring with wide dark eyes into the sky. His hair curled in little rings about his forehead and his cheeks were smooth; he looked no older than I.

"He dashed at me the first of all," monsieur said in a low voice. "I ran him through before the others came up. Mordieu! I am glad it was dark. A boy like that!"

"He had good mettle to run up first," M. Etienne said. "And it is no disgrace to fall to your sword, monsieur. Come, let us go."

But monsieur looked back again at the dead lad and then at his son and at me, and came with us heavy of countenance.

On the stones before us lay a trail of blood drops.

"Now, that is where Huguet ran with his wounded arm," I said to M. Etienne.

"Aye, and if we did not know the way home we could find it by this red track."

But the trail did not reach the door, for when we turned into the little street where the arch is, where I had waited for Martin, as we turned the familiar corner under the walls of the house itself, we came suddenly on the body of a man. Monsieur ran forward with a cry, for it was the squire Huguet.

He wore a leather jerkin lined with steel rings, mail as stout as any forged. Some one had stabbed once and again at the coat without avail, and had then torn it open and stabbed his defenseless breast. Though we had killed 4wo of their men they had rained blows enough on this man of ours to kill twenty.

Monsieur knelt on the ground beside him, but he was quite cold.

"The man who fled when we charged them must have lurked about," I said. "Huguet's sword arm was useless; he could not defend himself."

"Or else he fainted from his wound, he bled so," M. Etienne answered. "And one of those who fled last came upon him helpless and did this."

"Why didn't I follow him instead of sitting down, a John o' Dreams?" I cried. "But I was thinking of you and monsieur; I forgot Huguet."

"I forgot him too," monsieur sorrowed. "Shame to me; he would not have forgotten me."

"Monsieur," his son said, "it was no negligence of yours. You could have saved him only by following when he ran. And that was impossible."

"In sight of the door," monsieur said sadly. "In sight of his own door."

We held silent. Monsieur got soberly to his feet.

"I never lost a better man."

"Monsieur," I cried, "he asks no better epitaph. If you will say that of me when I die I shall not have lived in vain."

He smiled at the outburst, but I did not care; if he would only smile I was content it should be at me.

"Nay, Felix," he said. "I hope it will not be I who compose your epitaph. Come, we must get to the house and send after poor Huguet."

"Felix and I will carry him," M. Etienne said, and we lifted him between us—no easy task, for he was a heavy fellow. But it was little enough to do for him.

We bore him along slowly, monsieur striding ahead. But of a sudden he turned back to us, laying quick fingers on the poor torn breast.

"What is it, monsieur?" cried his son.

"My papers."

We set him down, and the three of us examined him from top to toe, stripping off his steel coat, pulling apart his blood-clotted linen, prying into his very boots. But no papers revealed themselves.

"What were they, monsieur?"

A drawn look had come over monsieur's face.

"Papers which the king gave me, and which I, fool and traitor, have lost."

I ran back to the spot where we had found Huguet; there was his hat on the ground, but no papers. I followed up the red trail to its beginning, looking behind every stone, every bunch of grass, but no papers. In my desperation I even pulled about the dead men lest the packet had been covered falling from Huguet in the fray. The two gentlemen joined me in the search and we went over every inch of the ground, but to no purpose.

"I thought them safer with Huguet than with me," monsieur groaned. "I knew we ran the risk of ambush. Myself would be the object of attack; I bade Huguet, were we waylaid, to run with the papers."

"And of course he would not."

"He should; it was my command. He stayed and saved my life, perhaps, and lost me what is dearer than life—my honor."

"He could not leave you to be killed, monsieur; that were asking the impossible."

"Aye, but I am saved at the ruin of a hundred others!" monsieur cried. "The papers contained certain lists of names of Mayenne's officers pledged to support the king if he turn Catholic. I had them for Lemaitre. But at this date, in Mayenne's hands, they spell the men's destruction. Huguet should have known that if I told him to desert me I meant it."

M. Etienne ventured no word, understanding well enough that in such bitter moments no consolation consoles. M. le Duc added after a moment:

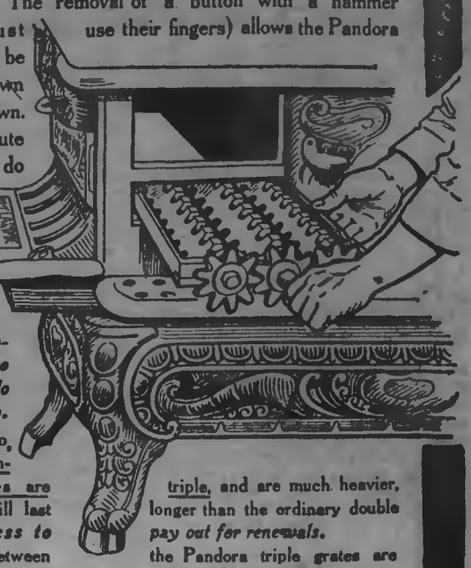
PANDORA RANGE

Just a Minute or Two to Remove Grates

When the Pandora grates require removing don't send for the plumber. His kit of tools are not needed to take the stove to pieces in order to get out the grates, as was the case with your former ranges.

The Pandora is not constructed in the usual manner. The removal of a button with a hammer (many just use their fingers) allows the Pandora grates to be easily drawn out, as shown. Just a minute or two to do the trick.



No plumber's mess to clean up. No bill to pay.

Notice, too, that the Pandora grates are triple, and are much heavier, stronger, will last longer than the ordinary double grates. Less to pay out for renewals.

Spaces between the Pandora triple grates are narrower than between ordinary double grates, which prevents good fuel slipping down with the ashes. Sifting Pandora ashes is wasted effort.

And that simple gearing arrangement on the Pandora makes the "rocking down" of the ashes just play compared to the heavy "shaking" necessary with ordinary ranges.

If your local dealer does not sell the Pandora write direct to us for free booklet.

A Singular Duel.

[Original.]

Some years ago when I was in New Orleans in order to kill time I dropped into a fencing academy opposite the hotel where I stopped. I am fond of all the arts of self defense and would sit by the hour during the afternoon and evening watching the fencing master give instruction. At the end of each lesson he would send his pupil's foil spinning high in the air, thus intimating that the lesson was finished.

One evening, while in his academy, as I was about leaving he asked me if I would like to see a spirited contest with the foils between two experts. When I said I would he told me to be on hand at 7 in the morning, giving as a reason for the early hour that the contestants did not care to fence before a crowd. When I entered the hall a little before the hour appointed I saw the principals emerge from a dressing room attired in fencing costume and each wearing a wire mask. The fencing master turned to me and said:

"In contests between strong men sometimes the button will be broken off one of the foils. I wish you to look at these weapons that you may be a witness that they are in good condition at the start."

I examined the foils and found them perfect. He handed them to the principals, and the contest began. I confess I was disappointed. Neither seemed to take much interest in the struggle, and it was an indifferent performance. I wondered why I had been invited to witness it. Meanwhile the fencing master went to another part of the room, where suddenly he dropped something which made a clatter, and I turned my eyes in his direction. When I turned them back to the fencers I saw that they had suspended the contest. One of them was standing in position; the other was just stepping into position. Somehow I got the idea that they had both stepped away from their places.

When the fencing recommenced each man threw himself into his work as if his life depended upon his efforts. Each was supremely careful of his guard and each watchful for some opening through which he might pierce his adversary. It was not long before I saw blood oozing from the sword arm of one of the fencers. I looked at the fencing master, supposing he would call a halt. Certainly, as he had feared, a button had been broken off a foil. He could not but see the blood, but he paid no attention to it. Presently more blood spurted, this time from the shoulder of the other fencer, and the two were bleeding profusely.

Whatever had been the intent at the beginning, I was sure that now the men were fighting for their lives. They were both skilled with the foil, and the exhibition, as promised, had become one of great brilliancy. Presently he who was wounded in the shoulder received another wound in the side. This time the fencing master started to interfere, but the wounded man waved him away, and the fighting went on.

I concentrated my vision to discover the condition of the foils. Had both buttons been broken? Impossible! There was some trickery, some method of making the weapons effective. Then I remembered the noise made by the fencing master just before the change had come in the character of the contest, and it suddenly dawned upon me that that movement was a device to draw my attention while the foils were changed. While they were crossed and for a moment at rest I could see that there was no button on either, but a sharp point. It looked as if the affair were a veritable duel.

I now began to notice the personnel of the contestants. They both appeared to be gentlemen. One was tall and slender, with fair hair and eyes; the other short and thick and very dark, the latter evidently ten years older than the former. But the short man was the better fencer, besides being wiry, and he was evidently tiring the other out. I was looking for him at any moment to finish his adversary when suddenly the door flew open and a young woman, evidently a lady of high degree, rushed in and up to the fencers, where she stood glaring at the short brunette, then turning a reproachful glance on his younger adversary.

"Paul," she gasped, "you're a fool! And as for you, Mr. Le Gro, there is no reason whatever for you to have any contest with any man about me. You thought you had outwitted me and the police in bringing your victim to a fencing academy. M. Renard," to the fencing master, "I am astonished that under cover of teaching your art you should permit your place to be used for murder! Yes, murder! This man Le Gro, I am told, was formerly one of the best fencers in Paris. Should I reveal this outrage you would be obliged to leave the city. Gentlemen, give me your weapons."

They were handed to her. She examined their points and threw them on the floor. Then, putting her arm through his whom she called Paul, she walked away with him.

I tried hard to elicit an explanation, but signally failed. The affair never leaked out.

My own inference was that an unsuccessful rival desired to take revenge upon a successful one. He had planned the affair to take place in a fencing academy partly to escape the police, but rather to make the affair appear as an ordinary trial of skill. Perhaps after he had killed his rival the story was to have been given out that the button on his foil had been broken off and an accident had resulted. I was to be called in to be a witness that they fenced with foils.

THE PENGUIN.

Comically Serious in Mating—Its Wicked Flippers.

It is probable that penguins pair for life, although nothing definite is known on the subject. When mates are chosen the process is as interesting as it is striking. As is the case with so many creatures, the males fight with each other for the females, might being right in the penguin code. The birds have regular fighting places, and one such battleground was found under an overhanging ledge. The results of innumerable encounters were present in the shape of great quantities of loose feathers surrounding the little fighting ring, which itself was clear of all debris. Although the beak of a penguin is so formidable a weapon when used on thin skinned enemies, yet their own skin and blubber are so resistant that they can inflict no injury by this means. The customary mode of fighting is really a kind of boxing, or "flippering," it might be called. The two combatants proceed to the fighting place and then walk cautiously about each other, jockeying for an opening and ready to take instant advantage of a false step or move on the part of the opponent. All, however, is solemn and decorous, consistent with the rest of the life of these strange little beings.

When at last each secures a good grip on the neck or body of the opponent the real fighting begins. As nine-tenths of the life of penguins is spent on the open sea, where they pursue and capture fish, swimming with great swiftness by strokes of the flipperlike wings, it can well be imagined that the strength of their wings is very great, and when the two fighters begin to belabor each other with rapidly vibrating flipper strokes each resounding whack must make a considerable impression even on the protecting coat of blubber fat. No one has ever recorded the finish of such an encounter, but it is not probable that they result fatally. The weaker of the two must soon succumb under such severe punishment and yield the field and the fair penguin mate to his stronger rival. The strength of the wing strokes can be tested by allowing a penguin to take hold of one's coat sleeves or, better, the back of the hand. The third or fourth stroke will draw blood, and one is soon fully satisfied as to the penguin's ability in this respect. The tough skin and the loose, rolling blubber beneath, besides breaking a fall and protecting the bird from the icy waters in which it lives, sometimes subserve another most important purpose.

THE WEST POINT CHAIN.

It Was Nearly a Mile in Length and Weighed Almost 200 Tons.

From an ironmaker's point of view the greatest achievement during the Revolutionary period was the making of the great West Point chain. This massive chain, which has probably never had an equal since the first hammer struck upon the first anvil, was stretched across the Hudson river at West Point to prevent the British fleet from making a second attack upon Kingston and Albany. It was nearly a mile in length and weighed almost 200 tons, many single links being as heavy as an ordinary sized man. To complete it in six weeks sixty men hammered day and night at seventeen forges, and the cost of it was placed at $400,000. "The great chain is buoyed up," writes Dr. Tacher, "by very large logs, pointed at the ends to lessen their opposition to the force of the current. The logs are placed at short distances from each other, the chain carried over them and made fast to each by staples. There are also a number of anchors dropped at proper distances, with cables made fast to the chain, to give it greater stability." No British ship passed this iron barrier. With its aid West Point became the strongest military post in America—so strong that treachery was tried where force of arms had failed. When Benedict Arnold was plotting the surrender of West Point he wrote Andre and said, "I have ordered that a link be removed from the great chain and taken to the smith for repair." The chain, however, remained in place till the end of the war, and links of it are still to be seen in the museums of Albany, West Point, Newburg and New York.—Exchange.

A Drop in the Ocean.

Talking of forgeries, in the days long ago, Mr. Henry Labouchere, M. P., although born of financial stock, managed his banking affairs on peculiar principles. In the first place he never kept any record of what balance he had at the bank, and in the second, he invariably refused to use official check forms; "thereby," he pointed out, "practicing strict economy. If my creditor wants his money, let him put a penny stamp on my piece of paper; if he doesn't, let him put it in the fire."

Well, one day it was discovered that forged checks purporting to be signed by "Labby" had been honored by the bank to the tune of over $100,000. At first the bank tried to make out that their customer was liable because their authorised check forms had not been used, but this theory the member for Northampton laughed to scorn. However, at the earnest request of the manager, he agreed to look again very carefully through the pile of forged documents. At the conclusion of the inspection the manager asked anxiously: "Are you certain that you did not sign any of those checks?"

"No," replied Labby, "I could not take my oath on that point with regard to all."

The manager's face brightened. Thousands of pounds were at stake; many of the forgeries were for large amounts.

"Which," he asked, "are you uncertain about?"

Labby paused for a moment, and then abstracting two checks, one for $10 and the other for $7.50, he added calmly:

"I should not like to swear that these were not my signatures." The manager nearly fainted.

Pacific Coast Expansion.

Evidences are not lacking that in the near future and probably before anyone will be fully aware of it, there will be a great expansive movement on the Pacific Coast, says Westward Ho! magazine. Men are too busy making money and attending to their business obligations, to take note of what is passing, or at any rate to tabulate it, but everything is moving faster than is realized. Population is increasing rapidly in every Coast city. Seattle claims 250,000, Vancouver 65,000, whilst Victoria assuredly does not realize that at the present moment she has within her borders not less than 30,000, and probably nearer to 35,000 people. Almost every convenience is proving inadequate for its purpose. Hotels, theatres and public buildings are all overcrowded. The attendance at public functions is far in excess of the provision. In other words no one seems to be prepared to meet the public demand or to have kept pace with its growing requirements. The reason of this is not far to seek. Great enterprises are heading for the Coast. Enormous capital has commenced to flow in, many millions have already been mortgaged to complete the purchase and development of timber and mineral claims, as well as to carry out industrial enterprise. The Grand Trunk Pacific Co. is really commencing to build, stimulated thereto by the necessity for doing something before the next Federal election, and by the silent but significant movement of the Canadian Northern. Add to this the activity of the C. P. R. on Vancouver Island and the rapid approach of the Great Northern from the East, and it will be seen that there is ample ground for belief that the awakening of the Coast has begun in earnest, and will proceed at a pace which will surprise the most optimistic. All this takes no account of the astonishing increase in the Oriental and Northern trade which has already necessitated the addition of several large steamers to the Pacific fleet, and will require before long vessels at least on a par with those on the Atlantic. There is foundation beneath all this movement and it is solid. A great speaker has said that while the nineteenth century was for the United States, the twentieth will be for Canada. One may fairly go a step further and say that the crown of Canada's prosperity will be found in its Pacific province.

AN INTERNATIONAL PROBLEM.

Once there lived in a Jim Crow Town a glowing Intellect who was Posted on all the Issues of the Day.

Some one had to keep Cases on the Government and prevent the whole Outfit from getting out of Kelter, and so the Job fell to Mordecai F. Quinsy. Mr. Quinsy found that he could give his Time to regulating the Washington Game because his Wife did Sewing and his Daughter was an Expert Stenographer. Between them they kept him supplied with good 5-cent Cigars and relieved his Mind of all Business Cares.

He had nothing to worry him except Affairs of State.

When he tackled a large International Problem he could do so with a keen, active Brain that had not been fagged out by any cheap Exertion, such as trying to locate the Winter's Supply of Coal.

Mr. Quinsy had the solemn Phiz of a professional Pall-Bearer, and much meditation had corrugated the Front of the Dome. Those who merely caught one Flash of him and never looked up his Record and checked off his Pedigree thought he was about due to break into the Senate. To tell the cold and icy Truth, Mordecai could not have been elected Constable, but just the same he knew all about John Hay's next Move, and sometimes he fretted a good deal for Fear that John would make a Miscue.

Mr. Quinsy could sit on a Kit of Mackerel, with a Bunch of Keys, a Barlow Knife, a Plug of good eating Tobacco, and about 35 cents in Currency secreted in his Jeans, and he could tell the Treasury Department just how to manage the next $100,000,000 Issue of Bonds.

One thing that worried Mr. Quinsy a lot was the possibility that Teddy would make some serious Mistake. He felt more or less responsible for Teddy, inasmuch as he had formally nominated him in front of Pilkins's Hardware Store as far back as 1899. If he could have been at Teddy's Elbow all the time to whisper Advice there would have been no Chance for the Administration to get balled up. But the Trouble was that Mr. Quinsy was out at Pewee Junction and Teddy was up at Washington, and they could not get together to frame up a Policy.

Mr. Quinsy was a man of Regular Habits and very Methodical. He had so much to do every Day that he had to work on a close Schedule.

NUMBER SIX.

In the Morning, after his Wife had arisen and started the Fire and put on the Griddle, Mr. Mordecai F. Quinsy would arise and take a few Observations of the Weather. He was a very able Prognosticator, and one of his favorite Stunts was to get up in the Morning and do a little Forecasting for the benefit of his Wife and Daughter.

After Breakfast he put on his Overcoat and wrapped himself up in a Comforter so as not to catch Cold and lose the Use of his Voice. If Mordecai F. Quinsy had lost the use of his Voice this Country would have been in a Bad Way.

Mr. Quinsy knew a Druggist who took a Daily Paper, and so, the first thing every Morning, he went to the Drug Store to find out what Fool Break had been made by Congress. After reading the Paper he sat by the Stove and laid out some Work for the Ways and Means Committee.

After which he went down to the Station to see Number Six go through.

After which he went up to the Post Office to wait until the Mail had been distributed. One day Mordecai Quinsy received a Seed Catalogue, and after that he was encouraged. While waiting for his Mail Mr. Quinsy said a few plain Words about the Kaiser and stood up for the Monroe Doctrine.

About 11 o'clock every day Mr. Quinsy acted as Referee in a Pool Game, and then went over to the Barber Shop to look at the Illustrated Papers containing the Pictures of Footlight Favorites and Noted Criminals. Mr. Quinsy, being possessed of an Analytical Mind, was deeply interested in all Murder Mysteries, and for every Case he had a few Theories of his own that would have been a great help to the Police.

Just at 12 o'clock Mr. Quinsy went home and ate a hearty Dinner, after which he returned to Main Street smoking a Farm-Hand Regalia and gazing thoughtfully at the Ground, trying to straighten out the Panama Canal Business.

In the Afternoon he hung around the Court-House more or less because he played a good Game of Checkers, and, besides, he liked to be on hand in case the State needed the Services of an unprejudiced Juror.

Mr. Quinsy had a Weak Back, which prevented him from splitting Wood, but he loved some kinds of Work, and the Honest Toil that suited him best was to sit on a Jury in a Case involving Assault and Battery.

If there was nothing doing at the Court-House, Mr. Quinsy usually went to a Real-Estate Office and grappled with the Trust Problem. He had given much Thought to the Matter of legislating against infamous Combines, and he was one of the first to discover that the Trusts were trying to whip-saw the Working Classes. About the time that he had solved the Trust Problem he had to go over and see the Afternoon Train go through and wait for his Mail once more.

SUFFERING.

Late in the Day he usually dropped in at an Undertaker's Shop where a Veterinary Surgeon and a retired Truck Farmer were collaborating on a Foreign Policy for the State Department. Mr. Quinsy was always able to slip in a few Suggestions. He was dead set against the Anglo-Saxon Alliance, and believed in the Annexation of Canada, even if it involved War.

At 5:30 he would purchase a Pound of Oyster Crackers and have them charged. Then he would go home to Tea, and tell Mrs. Quinsy and Daughter to fix up the Sofa for him as he was suffering from a Headache and wanted to Rest for a little while.

MORAL: What we need in America is the Gospel of Relaxation.

THE RATTLESNAKE.

Removing Its Poison Fangs Does Not Render It Harmless.

A common misconception which is apt to lead to serious accidents is the belief that a rattler is rendered perfectly harmless, so that it can be handled with impunity, by the removal of its poison fangs. These fangs, two in number, are situated on the upper jaw and lie flat except when the serpent strikes, when they become erect and the closing of the jaws compresses the poison glands and injects the venom through minute openings in them. In striking its prey (for whatever charm the serpent may employ to get its victim within easy reach it relies upon the venom to give the coup de grace) these fangs may often be broken, and nature has provided a full supply of reserve weapons which lie dormant in the gums and which within two weeks will develop and replace the injured fang.

An acquaintance who returned from a hunting trip with twenty-five full grown rattlers in a box kept them in his office for two months confined behind a coarse meshed wire screen. He handled them most carelessly, as he had extracted the poison fangs, but when shown that each of them had developed a perfect pair of new ones there was a sudden rise in the local snake mortality. One was preserved and sent to the Bronx zoo, where it a short time afterward produced a large litter of young ones, which could have easily crawled through the screen behind which the mother had been kept. As each of them possessed the poison apparatus in full commission and was without the power to rattle, they would have been even more dangerous than adult snakes.

Professional snake handlers are often ignorant of this power to quickly replace fangs possessed by rattlers, and this ignorance led to a serious accident to one of them. He was badly bitten and narrowly escaped death, his recovery being attributed to the generous amount of whisky which was immediately administered to him, which illustrates another mistaken idea. It is a pity to shatter a pleasant illusion, but alcohol, except in very small doses, is harmful rather than beneficial as an antidote to snake bite poison.

"Its Only a Cold, A Trifling Cough."

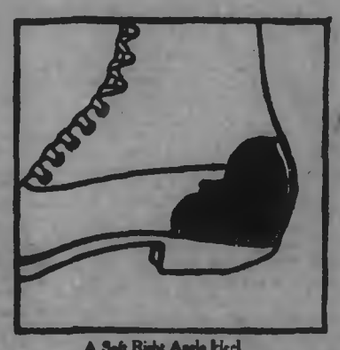
Thousands have said this when they caught cold. Thousands have neglected to cure the cold. Thousands have filled a Consumptives grave through neglect. Never neglect a cough or cold. It can have but one result. It leaves the throat or lungs, or both, affected. Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup is the medicine you need. It strikes at the very foundation of all throat or lung complaints, relieving or curing Coughs, Colds, Bronchitis, Asthma, Croup, Sore Throat, and preventing Pneumonia and Consumption.

It has stood the test for many years, and is now more generally used than ever. It contains all the lung healing virtues of the pine tree combined with Wild Cherry Bark and other pectoral remedies. It stimulates the weakened bronchial organs, allays irritation and subdues inflammation, soothes and heals the irritated parts, loosens the phlegm and mucous, and aids nature to easily dislodge the morbid accumulations. Don't be humbugged into accepting an imitation of Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup. It is put up in a yellow wrapper, three pine trees the trade mark, and price 25 cents.

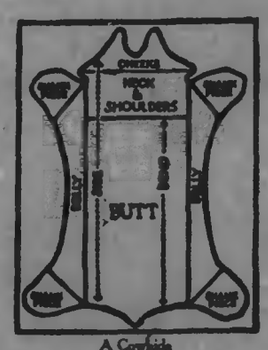
Mrs. C. E. Bisnette, Lombardy, Ont., writes: "I have been troubled with a hard dry cough for a long time, especially in the mornings, but after having used Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup, for a few weeks, I find my cough has left me. I can positively say that this remedy is well worth a trial."

Has Tough Heels

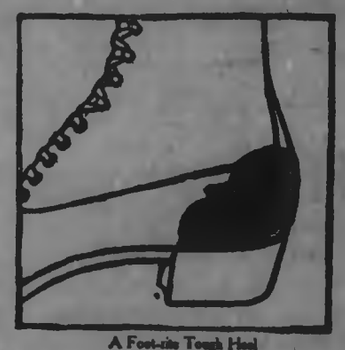
Improvement Number Five



A Soft Right Angle Heel



A Cowhide



A Foot-rite Tough Heel

There's always some part of everything that's neglected. In a shoe it's the heel. Any old stuff for the heel is the policy of most shoe makers. Wood, paper, leather shoddy, scrap leather—every sort of shoe factory junk is put into the heel. It's the most adulterated part of a shoe. And this junk is nailed on with cheap wrought iron nails, which crumble on hard pavements like chalk.

Well, what of it? Just about this much. A heel made of shoe junk commences to slough off at the back at the first wearing, and after ten days that heel looks like a right angle with the long flat side up, and the hypothenuse on the bottom. At the right angle point this right angle heel has jammed up into the arch of the shoe, destroying its form and giving the feet a slouchy, slovenly, kidney shape. (See illustration above).

We can't make a heel that'll last always. Might as well say we could make a shoe that would last forever. But we can make, and do make, a heel that will last a mighty long time, and this is how:

Every Foot-rite heel layer is solid leather. Every layer of leather is selected "butt" stock. Don't know what "butt" stock is, do you? The picture of a cowhide above will explain. The "butt" is the thickest, finest fibered, most unwearoutable part of the hide. This "butt" skin is treated with oak bark tannic acid by a new and secret process exclusively Foot-rite, which renders it as flexible as whalebone and as hard as a hoof. These layers are attached with wide, thick brass nails, driven in near the heel's circumference. We've tested all nails and brass is the toughest. Then the heel's bottom edges are cleverly beveled, which throws all wear on the nails.

Foot-rite tough heels save expensive repairs, save shape, save shoe looks, give comfort.

Anywhere in America, Canada or Great Britain—$4.00, $5.00 to $6.00. Goodyear Welt machinery makes them worth more.

As a matter of fact, although the symptoms of rattlesnake poisoning are most painful and alarming, an adult rarely dies from the bite of the variety common in the north. The diamond backs of the south attain a much larger size and consequently inject more venom, and their bite is proportionately more dangerous.—Francis Metcalfe in Outing Magazine.

He Won the Breeches.

There is a proverbial phrase signifying that the wife is master in the household, by which it is intimated that "she wears the breeches." The phrase is both odd and common and is only half understood by modern explanations, but in mediaeval story we learn how "she" first put in her claim to wear this particular article of dress.

A French writer of the thirteenth century (Hugues Plaucelles) relates some of the adventures of a couple whose household was not entirely harmonious. Sire Haines was the husband; Dame Anieuse, the wife. After a quarrel one evening Sire Hains said, "Early in the morning I will take off my breeches and lay them down in the middle of the court, and the one who can win them will be acknowledged the master or mistress of the house."

Dame Anieuse accepted the challenge. The battle was fought the next morning. It was a long battle, and it was bloody. At the end Sire Hains bore off the breeches, but the good dame had convinced the world that she was entitled to wear them in her own house.

The World's Gypsies.

The gypsies have passed under a variety of names, arising either from their supposed original country or the callings and characteristics of the race. The old English Egyptian, the Spanish Gitana and the Magyar Pharaonepek (Pharaoh's people) all point to an Egyptian origin. The Scandinavian Tatare identifies them with the Mongolian hordes which terrorized early Europe, while the French Bohemian suggests yet another country as their cradle.

As to the names bestowed by their supposed character, the Arab boldly calls them harami (a villain), the Dutchman heydens, or heathens, and the Persian takes his name from their complexion and dubs them karachi, or swarthy. A charter of William the Lion, as early as the twelfth century, mentions their Scotch name of tinklers, which is commonly supposed to be a corruption of tinker, although possibly the substitution of "t" for "s" has produced this form of the Italian Zingaro, one of the most widespread of gypsy appellations.—London Chronicle.

BEER* IS GOOD FOR MOST FOLKS
(HARDLY ANOTHER BEVERAGE FEEDS SO WELL)

BEER really excels milk as a food-drink for most grown people. And many, many people cannot digest milk easily, because it is so lacking in solid food-contents. Moreover, milk is so liable to contagion that it is seldom pure when we get it in the cities. But Ontario-brewed beer is really pure,—brewed in cleanliness, of sound materials, in a sanitary way, and brought to the user in the same fit-to-drink state.

Beer Is No Stimulant

Drink beer with meals and at bedtime, as an item of diet that will help the stomach do its work better, and will feed the body besides. Don't choose beer as a stimulant, though,—it does not contain enough alcohol for that. Use it as a food-drink that induces lazy stomachs to do their work well, and so helps them get more good out of all food.

Beer Makes Better Nerves

Ontario beer is not only deliciously appetising and refreshing, because brewed of pure malt and hops only; but, besides, all the power that hops possess to repair nerve wastes is kept in these brews. That is what makes beer so particularly good for women to drink regularly. Ask your own doctor what he thinks of beer for your household.

* BEER is a term which covers lager, ales, porter and stout; and, in the practise of Ontario brewers, implies beverages made under most hygienic conditions from Ontario barley (the best in the world) malt, hops and pure water. 301

ENGLAND

The emigration department of the Salvation Army in London has grown so enormously during the last couple of years that it has outgrown the building with which it has been long associated. The department was accordingly transferred recently to new premises, where there is ample accommodation for the ever-increasing work of the department. Last year 12,780 people were sent to Canada and about 1,000 to other countries. This year it is proposed to send at least 15,000, and arrangements have been made for ten special sailings to Canada, eight from Liverpool and two from Glasgow. On these sailings the Salvation Army flag is flown, no drink is sold, and no gambling allowed on board, while a labour bureau is fixed on the boat, at which everybody who is desirous of work is placed in a situation before he reaches Canada. Last year there were 42,000 applications, and 100,000 letters were received.

One of the best known and most popular Atlantic seafarers, Captain August Richter, who for more than twenty years has ploughed the ocean in the service of the North German Lloyd, has astonished all his friends by resigning the command of the Kronprinz Wilhelm, because, as he alleges, he has received divine warning to quit the sea forever. The message reached him as he paced his cabin after his ship had collided with an iceberg and narrowly escaped disaster. Returning to Germany after the mishap, he sent word to the directors that he wished to relinquish his command. His wish has now been reluctantly granted. In thus behaving, he is following the example of his brother who, twenty years ago, retired from the sea in precisely similar fashion, after the vessel he was commanding collided with an iceberg in a fog on the Grand Banks.

A man whose name is famous in the history of photography has just died at Eastbourne, Sussex, in the person of William Hardy Kent. He was regarded as the oldest photographer in the world, and was 58 years of age. Mr. Kent, who was as well known in the United States as in Britain, spent his early years in New Bedford, Mass., which was then the headquarters of the whaling industry. A few years after Daguerre's invention, he learned the art of photography, and in 1848 he opened his first studio in New York. So great was his success that after realising a small fortune he came to Britain in 1854 and opened three London studios. At the time of his death he was also interested in businesses at Brighton, Eastbourne, Hastings, Newcastle and Harrogate.

An interesting visitor to London is "The Apostle of Sunshine." His real name is Herr Kurzrook. He is of German nationality, but one would never guess that from his attire. His flowing, silky brown hair is neatly brushed like a girl's, and a fillet about his forehead keeps his locks from blowing about. A long linen robe is open at the neck, and over it is worn a stiff gown fastened down the side. Sandals make a fitting addition to his costume. Years ago he was a consumptive, and adopted the simple life—with additions of his own—so that now he is completely cured. He believes in a vegetable diet, one cold bath a day, military gymnastic exercise without apparatus, and plenty of fresh air. He does not believe in coffee and tea, alcohol and tobacco.

A remarkable feat in telephonic engineering was accomplished by the National Telephone Company at its Gerrard street, London, exchange recently. In the space of nine minutes the 12,000 wires communicating with the exchange, including those which connect it with all the other exchanges in the metropolitan area, were transferred to a new building. A few figures indicate what the change meant. One hundred girls began work on the new switchboard; 12,000 circuits were broken and connected; 6,000 subscribers were affected; 20,000 telephones of subscribers were out of gear for nine minutes; 18,000 wedges were knocked out to make the connections; 100 men were engaged on the 18,000 wedges.

A certain number of influential ladies of Liverpool have established a home for cats in the city. At the opening ceremony the chairman explained that the home was established for lost, starving or sick cats, and to take in and board cats while their owners were away from home. They had made efficient arrangements for caring for the health of the inmates and for the painless destruction of the unhealthy or otherwise undesirable. It is the first home of its kind in Liverpool. The home is very cleverly arranged for the comfort of the pussies. There are already handsome valuable and cat boarders, and a number of pretty creatures in want of a home.

SCOTLAND

Miss Steuart, a member of the ancient family of Steuart of Dalguise, Perthshire, who suffered imprisonment and fines for their adherence to the cause of the Stuarts, passed away recently at her home at Slinfold, Sussex, in the 96th year of her age. She was the only living person who could say that her father had fought and served under three of our greatest naval captains. A post-captain at the early age of 26, he first went to sea, as midshipman, on board the flagship of his father's cousin, Lord Keith. He served on board the Bedford, 74, Captain Sir John Thomas Byam Martn. At the glorious victory of Camperdown, and was promoted into the Venerable, Lord Duncan's flagship, after the battle. The Bedford, which received a terrible mauling, caused the Dutch Admiral De Reuter's flagship and two frigates to strike to her. De Reuter told Sir Thomas after the battle that the Bedford had done him more harm than any other ship in the British fleet. Miss Steuart's father also served under Nelson, in the Mediterranean, and took an active part in the blockade of Boulonge, and the Walcheren expedition. Her grandfather, Mr. David Steuart, Lord Provost, in 1781, introduced and was the first man to carry an umbrella in Edinburgh. Her great grandfather, Mr. John Steuart, of Dalguise, took up arms on behalf of the man he believed to be the rightful Stuart king and, commanded a troop of cavalry at the battle of Prestonpans, in 1751. Miss Steuart claimed descent from Robert II., first Stuart King of Scotland, her father being fifteenth in direct lineal male line from John Steuart of Cardneys, youngest son of King Robert. Sir John married Jane, daughter of Sir John Drummond of Stobhall, and sister of Annabella, Queen of Robert III. Miss Steuart lived in five reigns, and witnessed the coronation of the sailor king William IV., who had shown great kindness to her father.

America is on the eve of losing her one and only peer. She has hitherto been able to claim as a full-fledged citizen of the United States a nobleman holding a title acknowledged by the House of Lords. But that honour is about to pass from her for Lord Fairfax of Cameron is taking out naturalization papers in Britain which will entitle him, should his Scottish brethren wish it to sit in the Upper Chambers at Westminster. Lord Fairfax has been contemplating applying for naturalisation papers in England for some time. A few days ago all the necessary papers were received at the Home Office. The particulars supplied have been declared satisfactory, and the final certificate has been sent to Lord Fairfax for signature. On this certificate being returned his name will be officially gazetted as a British subject.

A remarkable result of pedestrianism on the part of a crab has just come to light. In his quarterly report the fishery officer for the north-eastern district states that he has recovered a marked crab from Boddin, close to Montrose, Forfarshire. It travelled from four miles north of Scarborough Castle, a distance of about 155 miles, in 689 days.

Lord Roseberry recently unveiled a statue of Queen Victoria at Leith in the presence of many thousands of people. The statue, which is of bronze on a tall pedestal of granite and freestone represented the late Queen as she appeared in middle life, standing erect, crowned and in the robes of state. It is the work of Mr. J. S. Rhind.

IRELAND

The Irish distillers have followed the lead of those in Scotland. At a special meeting held recently in Belfast it was decided to increase the bulk price of whisky by three-pence a gallon. The step has been taken as a result of the increased prices of grain, coal ad other materials. The retail trade has been notified, but it is not thought that the ordinary customer will be affected by the change.

An extraordinary scene occurred at Boyle, County Roscommon, while His Honour Judge Wakely was revising the voters' list. Mr. George Tully, brother of Mr. Jasper Tully, ex-M.P., for South Leitrim, was resuming his seat on the benches after giving evidence in support of his claim, when an altercation occurred between him and Mr. Alfred O'Connor, who was opposed to him. O'Connor, it is alleged, received two severe blows in the face, and in an instant the supporters of the two men were engaged in a fierce fight. The judge, after vainly endeavouring to make himself heard, left the bench and threw himself between the combatants. After some time order was to some extent restored. George Tully, who was bleeding from a severe cut over the eye, and Alfred O'Connor were thereupon sentenced to a week's imprisonment, but before the Court adjourned His Honour altered the sentence in both cases to a fine of £2.

A man named Meneely, of Holywood, near Belfast, has had a remarkable fight with an enormous rodent. He was shooting seafowl on the strand when a strange creature, nearly three feet long, attacked him. Meneely met the animal with a well-directed kick, but it dashed at him again, and this time bit through his sea boots and held on like a terrier. It was five minutes before Meneely killed the animal, which has been pronounced a coypu, a large rodent frequenting the River Plate, whence it probably came in a trading vessel.

For several nights the inhabitants of Quilty, County Clare, had been considerably alarmed in consequence of unearthly howls heard from the direction of the French ship, Leon XIII., which went on the rocks on October 2. At last a fisherman named Michael O'Dowd determined to find the cause of the disturbance, and launching his coracle headed for the wreck. When he drew near the vessel he observed what he thought was a man making frantic efforts to leave the ship. The fisherman drew his boat alongside, and then, to his amazement, he discovered that the figure was that of a large baboon. With instinct almost human the animal immediately jumped into the canoe. It was taken ashore, and is now being well cared for.

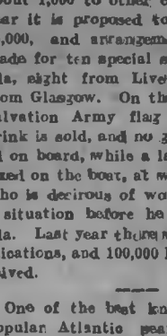
An alarming accident occurred at Castle Blayney, County Monaghan, while a hearse conveying a corpse was proceeding down a steep hill. The brakes failed to act, and the hearse and horses ran into a bog 5 feet below the road level. The driver and another man sustained broken legs and other injuries, while both horses were badly injured and the hearse was smashed to pieces. The coffin was recovered by the mourners, and carried to the cemetery.

The Accommodating Spanish Cow.

It was the first cow we had seen in Spain, and she had every right to be the haughty creature that she was. A girl led her about the plaza at dusk, milking a thimbleful of the rare beverage at the houses of the customers, and it is hard to say which of the three concerned was the most proud—the one sold, the one who bought or the one who gave the milk. She of the bovine race was decorated with an old chenille fringed curtain and, as though that was not enough to boast of, pulled along the streets a very unruly but bouncing daughter. The calf was tied to the tail of the cow by a rope and had already learned the ineffable joy of hanging limp and being dragged by her fond parent. Fortunately the rope was not too long for disciplinary purposes, and when exasperated beyond all polite admonition the cloven hoof of the mother set daughter upon her feet once more.—Louise Closser Hale in Harper's.

Smallest Deer in the World.

The "mousedeer" is the chevrotain, one of the smallest of hoofed animals. It stands less than twelve inches in height at the shoulder. The prevailing color of the fur is brown, finely speckled with yellow. The spots are large and sometimes run into each other and form stripes. The underparts of the body are white. It possesses the peculiar habit of walking on the tips of its hoofs. This lends a stiffness to the legs, which has gained for the chevrotain the reputation of having no knee joints. It has no horns or antlers. But, as in the case of the musk deer, the male is provided with large canine teeth or tusks in the upper jaw. It is of exceedingly timid disposition and lies hidden in the jungle throughout the day and only ventures to feed in the early morning and after dusk in the evening. In captivity this tiny native of India is gentle, quite tame, but always shy.



Art in Pianos

Appearance should not be THE essential of a piano. It should be AN essential.

The New Scale Williams are masterpieces of architectural beauty. They are ornaments to every home. They lend an elegance, a refinement, that nothing else can fill. They are made in all woods and colors to harmonize with the drawing-room, parlor, den and hall.

The veneers for the New Scale Williams Pianos are of every fine kind of wood—principally MAHOGANY from Spain, Brazil and the West Indies—WALNUT, from France and the Circassus—QUARTERED OAK AND SATINWOODS from the southlands.

There are four veneers on the case—two inside and two outside. They are cross banded—that is, the grain of each veneer runs in a different direction from the one next to it—thus adding strength.

The case of the

is made of five thicknesses of hardwood. All woods used in the New Scale Williams—in case as well as action—are seasoned for three years after reaching Oshawa. Then they are perfectly dry—can never swell or shrink—and wear like iron.

Every New Scale Williams receives seven coats of varnish. Each is allowed to sink in the wood and dry, before the next is put on. This gives the brilliant, lasting finish that is so admired. The sympathetic touch—the magnificent tone—the sweetness and volume of the New Scale Williams are fully in keeping with its exquisite appearance.

These features and many others are illustrated and described in our Booklets. May we send the three? FREE, of course. We will tell you about our Easy Payment Plan, too.

Dear Sir,—I have much pleasure in acknowledging the receipt of the cheque for $1,244, being the amount paid me on the maturity of my endowment policy, 35,390, in your Company, which matured on the 1st inst.

Such a result speaks volumes for the management of your Company, and far exceeds my expectations, and I would be ungrateful indeed were I not to acknowledge it.

I was also offered a paid-up policy of $2,079, or an annuity for life of $111.55, both of which I consider excellent.

I thank you very much indeed and wish your Company the continued success and confidence it so richly deserves.

TALES OF CANNIBALISM

BROUGHT DOWN FROM CANADA'S NORTHEASTERN TERRITORY.

Last Winter's Famine—Indians Driven to Kill and Eat Their Fellows—Deadly Feuds Among Natives—One Woman Devoured Her Two Children — Village Wiped Out by Snowstorm.

Tales of cannibalism, wholesale murder, awful privation and famine and deadly feuds among the natives of northeastern Canada, between the eastern shore of James' Bay and Labrador, have been brought back by J. A. Osborne, editor of The Fort Francis Times, who has recently completed a trip of exploration in that desolate, uninviting country.

While at Moose Factory, Mr. Osborne met a young man who fled there in terror of his uncle, who, he said, had killed and eaten eight human beings. There, too, he saw a woman who killed and ate her two children, last winter, so great was the famine. This lack of food primarily was brought about by the fact that the woods seemed almost entirely without the usual number of deer and rabbits, upon which animals the natives ordinarily subsist.

As these occurrences did not seem to have caused any great stir in the region. Mr. Osborne has come to the conclusion that cannibalism is practiced openly on many occasions among the Indians and half-breeds.

One Cree village on Main River was practically wiped out because of the remarkably great snowfall last winter. It snowed incessantly for many days and the cold was excessive, even for that country. Day after day the hunters fared badly, and finally game became so scarce that a small rabbit was considered a big find.

Having no provisions stored up, and with streams frozen solid, the Indians starved to death, with the exception of a party of young men and women, who decided to try to make Hudson Bay Fort, 150 miles down the stream. After a journey marked by untold privation they reached the fort more dead than alive.

A relief expedition sent back to the village found nothing except thirteen bodies in the rude huts.

A feud between two half-breed families resulted from the killing by two brothers of a hunter who was disguised as a bear. Relatives of the dead man went to the home village of the hunters and killed five members of the family while the two brothers were away. Friends of the brothers thereupon took up the fight and wiped out the family of the murderers, so that in all thirteen persons lost their lives as the result of the accident.

Mr. Osborne says the Indian and Eskimo population of the region is diminishing rapidly, due partly to emigration to the coast of Labrador and partly to the prevalence of disease and frequent scarcity of food. He says many of the natives are falling prey to tuberculosis.

Iron ore, according to the explorer, abounds in almost inexhaustible quantities in the district east of Hudson Bay, but seems without value now, because of the lack of transportation.

LAW MAKES CRIMINALS

PRISON AS A PLACE FOR PUTTING FIRST OFFENDERS.

Chaplain Scores New System of Dealing With Youths—Are Being Spoiled For Steady Work—More Comfortable In Jail Than When Free—Like High-Class College—Prisons Are Crowded.

The new prison rules, under which first offenders, when sent to jail are kept apart from ordinary prisoners, are regarded as an excellent innovation. To herd boys and girls convicted of trivial wrongdoing with hardened jailbirds could have no other result save the corruption of the youngsters. The new idea is to reform young offenders rather than to punish. The manner, however, in which the idea is being worked is not generally known to the public. The care seems to be a little worse than the disease according to the statement of a prison chaplain, who, knowing the ins and outs of prison life has favored the press with his views. The chaplain thinks boys are being spoiled. Instead of being taught to work and inured to roughing it, they are pampered and petted in a way to excite the envy of a college boy. The chaplain based his remarks upon the speech made by Mr. Wallace, K. C., chairman of the Clerkenwell Sessions, from the bench this week about the reduction of crime last year and the sweeping changes for the better which were expected from the new experiment about to be made of putting "first offenders" upon a sort of "probation" and under the surveillance of "probation officers." "I am afraid," he said, "that unless there is a great and most unusual falling off during the winter, Mr. Wallace will find that the returns for this year will be much less hopeful than he anticipates. The bad weather we have had this summer has kept the prisons full throughout the season. In my own prison, we have had to turn out the storerooms and utilize them as cells. Still, that is but accidental, due to the cold weather. There is a much more serious circumstance, and unfortunately it affects just that class which we all of us are most eager to save — the lads, the 'juvenile adults' as we call them. This is the new class established a few months ago. When it was commenced, the average number of youths in prison relatively to grown-ups was about 8 per cent.; now it is already over 20 per cent. Nor is that the worst. At the beginning, the first-timers among these boys amounted to only about 5 per cent. of the total number of lads; but now they are nearly 25 per cent. Whether this class will be a success in any desirable way it is too early yet to judge. But it is undoubtedly proving popular, and it will, I fear, turn out to be a curse rather than a blessing. These boy-offenders are now being petted and coddled-up in prison in a way which none of them has ever known outside in his life. Sentenced to hard labor, they spend much time daily in gymnastics, in lessons in singing and other subjects, and the work, required of them as their hard labor task, would not keep the very youngest of them in his cigarettes outside the prison, so slight is it. They are also allowed spring mattresses instead of boards to sleep on, carpets for their cell floors, looking-glasses (which, by the way, are never allowed to the women) and tooth-brushes, of course. And their total "gratuity," or money they can earn in prison, is $10 against $2.50, which is the most that an adult can obtain. The result of this is that the prisons are filling, and these poor unfortunate lads are being absolutely converted into permanent criminals. They are not being rescued but degraded; their taste for work, never perhaps very strong, is being utterly destroyed, and, their characters undermined, they become loafers and cannot live except by crime." The chaplain's suggestion was that work should be found for the boys of a kind which would teach them to earn their bread. Gymnastics and singing are not marketable commodities. It is for the Home Secretary to see that his excellent schemes of reform are not turned to the disadvantage of those whom they are framed to serve and reform.

The Arctic Blueberry.

In August, when blue and salmon berries ripen in the reindeer moss, Esquimos are everywhere with seal-skin leather pails, their gay-colored parkas, the hood with wolverine fur border, adding a picturesque color note to the chiaroscuro. The Arctic blueberry is richer, more delicious than its kindred of Canada, while the salmon berry is an aesthetic delight as it lifts its royal yellow fruition from a bed of autumnal tinted leaves of waxlike texture. American housewives combine the blue and salmon berry into a delicious preserve. The natives bury them in the ground, marking the place with a cover of willows. There they freeze and are taken out as need and eaten with seal oil.

Curran's Comment.

At a dinner table in London the conversation turned on public speaking. Curran stated that he could never address an audience for a quarter of an hour without moistening his lips.

"I have the advantage of you there, Curran," said Sir Thomas Turton, a prompous and pretentious member of Parliament. "I spoke the other night in the House of Commons for five hours on the nabob of Onde and never felt in the least thirsty."

"That is very remarkable indeed," replied Curran, "for every one agrees it was the driest speech of the session."

Queer.

That the average poet thirsts for fame,
And fame alone, seems funny,
For you'll find in all his mass of verse
He's not averse to money.

Maybe It Didn't.

Tommy—I did wash my face. Mother—How dare you tell me that? Why, it's just as dirty as ever. Tommy—Well, I washed it, but maybe it didn't take. You know my vaccination didn't the first time.

A SINGULAR DUEL.

How the Death Penalty Was Administered to Two Indians.

The following story illustrates very well one of the characteristics of the Indian, as it shows that Indians, as a rule, did not mind dying so much as they were particular about the method. It was a good many years ago at Pine Ridge, when there was trouble with the Cheyennes. Major Cooper was there as agent, and there were two young Cheyennes who were badly wanted for murder. They had waylaid and killed a prospector. They were not caught, and the chances were that they would not be unless the soldiers were called in. If this were done it was likely to precipitate trouble with the whole tribe, and Major Cooper laid the case before the headmen. They were told that if the soldiers were sent for there would surely be trouble and were requested politely to ask the two erring bucks to come in and be hanged.

Word was sent to the two young Indians, Head Chief and Young Mule, who were out in the hills. They sent word back that they had no objection to dying if it would keep the rest of the tribe out of trouble, but that if they had to die they preferred to die fighting, and they wanted it distinctly understood that they would not be hanged. It was entirely against the customs of the government, but rules did not go for much in those days. Results were the chief things, and Major Cooper sent word to them that if they wanted a fight he would risk accommodating them. A date was set and early in the morning they rode toward the agency, fully armed. Major Cooper was out to meet them, and the rest of the tribe, the potential hostiles, were gathered on the hills to see fair play. The agent rode out into the open and slipped off his horse, using it for cover and shooting across the saddle.

The two young Indians galloped up to within shooting distance and commenced circling, hanging on the off side of their ponies and shooting under their necks and across their heads. The tacit understanding was that if they were killed it was all right, but if they got the agent they would pull out into the hills and wait for some other challenger. The fight did not last long. Cooper had a heavy buffalo gun and killed one Indian, shooting him through the body of his horse. The other kept on circling, and several shots were exchanged till the Indian was shot through the body. He knew it would be all up with him in a few minutes and charged, shooting as he came. But the agent's luck held good, and he was dropped within fifty yards. The law was satisfied, and the agent was able to report officially to Washington that the Indians had been executed.

What Is a Midshipman?

By luck I for the first time in my life have found a plausible derivation for midshipman. It would appear that in the days immediately after the flood the vessels were very high at the ends, between which there was a deep "waist," giving no ready means of passing from one to the other. To meet this difficulty there were employed a class of men, usually young and alert, who from their station were called midship men, to carry messages which were not subject for the trumpet shout. If this explanation holds water, it, like forecastle and afterguard and knightheads, gives another instance of survival of nomenclature from conditions which have long since ceased.

Whatever the origin of his title, it well expressed the anomalous and undefined position of the midshipman. He belonged, so to say, to both ends of the ship as well as to the middle, and his duties and privileges alike fell within the broad saying that what was nobody's business was a midshipman's. When appointed as such in later days he came in "with the hayseed in his hair" and went out fit for a lieutenant's charge, but from first to last, whatever his personal progress, he continued as a midshipman, a handy-billy.—Captain A. T. Mahan in Harper's.

A Case of Disbelief.

Bill—You look bad, Jim. Been laid up? Jim—Today's the first time out of doors for three months. Bill—What was the matter with you? Jim—Nothin', but the magistrate would not believe it.—London Telegraph.

The Easy Part.

THIS CANADA OF MINE.

They sing of lands more beautiful,
Away across the sea,
Where the poets of the olden time
Wooed at the Muse's knee,
When they sang of gods and maidens
In Parnassus' sunny clime,
But they never knew the beauty
In this Canada of mine.

They never saw the mountains
That the clouds of Heaven kissed,
Above the dreamy forests
In the Autumn's purple mist,
Where the red man's shortened Summer
Now is cradled most sublime,
On the arms of Mother Nature,
In this Canada of mine.

Where the hills are shadow laden!
And the winds are flecked with gold;
While they whisper dreams of beauty
That to us are never old,
For we hear the lutes of Heaven
Softly trill about the pine;
When the Autumn leaves are falling
In this Canada of mine.

Golden red, and yellow laden;
Rich the Autumn's purple sheen,
With a tint of Heaven's halo,
When the woods begin to preen,
And the wild sweet dream is painted
With the Hand we deem Divine,
For it bears the brand of Heaven
In this Canada of mine.

When the smoky distant sunset
Lifts the forest trees ablaze,
Over crystal streams a-winding
Through a sort of leafy maze;
Then I dream of Heaven's purple
And the lands beyond the Rhine,
But the gods have left Parnassus
For this Canada of mine!

Every shrub we have about us
Bears a rainbow in its leaves,
And the envied coat of Joseph
Seems to hang upon the trees.
While the rose may bloom in Britain,
With her ships upon the Tyne,
Here we grow the rose of Sharon
In this Canada of mine.

Wild and wayward is the beauty
In the land we love so well,
And it covers hill and mountain,
Every hidden nook and dell.
Still they tell us of the heather!
And they sing of Auld Lang Syne!
But the tree of life is blooming
In this Canada of mine.

—William Leonhard.

He Wanted a Job.

The London Spectator gives the following copy of a letter from a Bengali Baboo out of employment, sent to an officer in civil employ in Burma: Honored Sir—Last evening while perigrinating through the city, I am hearing from friend who was likewise enjoying evening zephyrs that vacancy took place in your Highness office by death of Babu—poor man I am greatly sorrowful for his demise, he has left gigantic family, who will feed their mouths the devil knows. Your honor will see from my ludicrous and weak hearted tone of voice that I am well meaning, hard working, extra energetic devil may care sort, requiring abundant field for displaying copious brain power hitherto limited by blackguard schoolmaster. For my qualifications please note that I have passed middle English and also appeared for F. A., but was plucked through ignorance of examiners. I am damnably well up in precise writing, drafting, docking and office routine work, and in private life I can be addicted to swearing English Oath and other ramifications too numerous to mention, and can also drink one damn strong whisky peg. I am no orthodox believing all other superstitions of an ancient forefathers, but I am an iconoclast destroying idols and such like to great detriment of hypocritial and scoundrel. It is with fervance that solicit your Majesty's hand and heart in moving this my petition to your own favorable condition my wife's heartfelt gratitude who will pray on bended knee for long and continued prosperity of your Majesty's Honor and all your posthumious children to follow up. YOU CAN EASILY OPERATE THIS TYPEWRITER YOURSELF

Don't worry you or respondent.

Don't write him anything by hand that takes him time to make out—that may leave him in doubt, that he can't easily read.

And don't fill out legal papers or card memos—or make out accounts or hotel means in your own handwriting, on hand writing.

It looks bad, reflects on your standing, makes people think you can't afford a stenographer, and is sometimes ambiguous.

You can write out your letters—make out an abstract—fill in an insurance policy—enter your card menu—make out your accounts, or hotel menus—or do any kind of writing you need, on any kind, size or thickness of paper, and space any way you want to

The OLIVER Typewriter

The Standard Visible Writer

You can write any of these things yourself if you do not happen to be a stenographer.

For you can easily learn with a little practice to write just as rapidly, and as perfectly as a expert operator on the Oliver "because the Oliver is the simplified typewriter. And you can see every word you write. About 80% more durable than any other typewriter, of course it has about 80% less wearing points than most other typewriters.

80% easier to write with than those other complicated, intricate machines, requiring "memorizing" of obscure knowledge—long practice and special skill to operate.

Than machine which cannot be adjusted to any special purpose—with which it is impossible to write abstracts, insurance policies, or delicate documents except you buy expensive special attachments requiring expert to operate.

You can adjust the Oliver to any reasonable manner—you can write on any reasonable size and thickness of paper, right out to the very edge, without the aid of any expensive attachment or special skill, and your work will be neat appearing, legible and clear.

For the Oliver is the typewriter for the doctor the lawyer the insurance agent, the merchant the hotel proprietor—or any man that does his own writing.

WORKING IN A "TUBE"

Remarkable Experience In a Lock In Compressed Air.

AT FORTY POUNDS PRESSURE

The Way It Feels When the Valve is First Opened and the Chamber Fills With the Inrushing Air and Fog. Why You Don't Collapse or Explode.

As the lockkeeper turns the valve, writes A. W. Rolker in Appleton's Magazine, there is a scalp raising screech as if your ear were next the safety valve of a locomotive blowing steam, and as the inrushing air expands it fills the tiny chamber with fog so dense that you cannot see your hand before your eyes. Wider and wider the valve is opened, the fog becoming even denser and the racket increasing until the air fairly drones and your eyes and eardrums and your very scalp tremble with the air that is vibrating about you. For the first time in your life you realise that sound may inflict physical pain and that there is a possibility that it may kill.

No sooner is the big valve opened than you feel the pressure against your eardrums. A big wad of cotton seems thrust into each ear, and two big fingers seem to push the wads more and more firmly until each time when you swallow or blow into your nose the sensation disappears only to begin anew. Should you purposely delay swallowing, within twenty seconds the pain becomes intense and finally excruciating, as if a pair of knitting needles were being pushed deep into your ears.

Nothing short of the faith that others successfully withstand these sensations prevents you from becoming unduly excited, for actually you are in the throes of about as disagreeable a situation as you care to meet. For the eternity of half a minute the racket and fog and ear pains continue. Then the noise ceases as suddenly as it began. Out of the fog comes the voice of your guide:

"Feeling all right? Ears all right? No trouble to breathe? Oh, you'll be all right!" Again the valve screeches and the air drones, the top of your head throbs, and you are shaken within and without.

Gradually, after the lapse of ten minutes, when the pressures in the heading and the lock become more equalized, the din begins to slacken; then it falls more and more and fades to nothing, after which the lockman opens the heading door and you gaze upon another length of "tube" like that you left behind.

How does it feel to be under forty pounds pressure? There is no sensation to it—none whatever—which is the trouble, for in case your heart is going to give out there is no warning symptom until too late. Against every square foot of the surface of your body is a pressure of 5,760 pounds, and the only thing that prevents you from being squashed is the 5,760 pounds per square foot pressure inside of you, yet you do not feel this.

The pressure from without is so great that were it not for the pressure within you would be smashed flat as a toad run over by a steam roller, and the pressure within you is so great that were it not counterbalanced by the pressure from without you would explode to atoms like the shell of a dynamite cartridge.

Yet you have no means of realizing this. You feel perfectly natural. You breathe normally and without effort. You move about without being conscious of exertion. Only a feeling as of water left in the ears after bathing remains.

The noise of rumbling cars and scraping shovels from ahead sounds natural. So does the voice of your guide. Only your own voice seems strange in your own ears—far deeper in pitch than you ever have heard it and far off, not as if it came from your own mouth, but as if from ten feet behind; also, and this strikes you queerly until you have found the cause, all sounds are chopped off short, for in this heavy atmosphere there is little echo and carrying power. Even the explosion of a dynamite cartridge makes no more noise than a shotgun fired above in daylight.

In this dense atmosphere were you to try to whistle with your lips or to blow a cornet or a fife you might blow your lungs out without producing a sound, for the pressure would resist any sound waves of which your lungs were capable. Owing to the excessive supply of oxygen, were you to light a match it would burn with the rapidity of tinder, amid volumes of smoke.

For the same reason an oil lamp or a lantern would burn itself out within a few minutes, emitting volumes of soot that would completely hide the flames. And for the same reason a lighted pipe or cigar will burn of itself without suction, and a single mouthful of smoke is all you would be able to get out of a cigarette. Were you to bring an empty corked bottle into this pressure from the outside, the pressure against the cork, unbalanced by pressure from within, would be so great that you would be unable to pull the stopper. These are a few instances of what you find when under forty pounds of pressure.

Free Lunch For a Lion.

He was selling suspenders on the street, but he declared that in his palmy days he had been Professor Piccolomini, the lion tamer.

"What made you give it up?" he was asked.

"Well, you see it was this way. Once I was engaged to tame a lion called Frederick Barbarossa, who was certainly a wild proposition.

"But I was equal to the task. By slow and gradual steps I taught Frederick good manners. I used to walk into his cage, snap a whip, make him do stunts and all that sort of thing. Everything went along beautifully. But I got into trouble when I tried to teach Frederick to eat out of my hand."

"How?"

"Why, he ate three fingers out of my hand, confound him! Have a pair of suspenders? They work without hitching. Twenty-five cents."

A Boomerang.

A very rich, very economical and very parsimonious young squire was making preparations for a tenants' ball some years ago and at his wine merchant's discovered a cheap brand of champagne. "This," he said, "is a good brand of champagne. It is quite good enough for those people who will come to my tenants' ball. They couldn't tell the difference, anyway." Accordingly he ordered a dozen cases of the cheap wine. A day or two before the event, picking up his newspaper, he noticed that his wine merchant had a half page advertisement. He ran his eye over it and saw in big black letters the paragraph, "Try our celebrated champagne at 38 shillings a dozen, as ordered by Gobsa Gold, Esq., for his forthcoming tenants' ball."

Regular Caller.

Pearl—What ever became of that young man you used to like so much, the one you called "plain, everyday Mr. Brown?"

Ruby—Oh, he is "plain, every night Mr. Brown" now.

Pearl—Indeed! How is that?

Ruby—Why, we are engaged.—Chicago News.

LONDON PICKPOCKETS

Tricky or Brutal and Vicious, According to Their Class.

METHODS OF THE "GUN MOB"

The False Arm Game and the Use of the Pocketless Overcoat—The Pipe and Red Pepper Trick—How a Gang Will Pluck a Victim in a Crowd.

"Gun mob" is simply English thieves' slang for a pickpocket and his gang of confederates—"gentlemen" who reap an annual harvest of anything they can lay their hands upon in a crowd. Summer time, when race courses, athletic grounds and seaside places are crowded, is the pickpocket's favorite and most profitable season, and when an event occurs like a royal garden party at Windsor the light fingered gentry positively chuckle.

Twenty plain clothes detectives attended the last garden party to protect his majesty's guests from the tricks of the pickpockets, but the latter left Windsor richer by hundreds of pounds in spite of Scotland Yard and carried away with them the gold hunter watches of several of the titled guests.

At one time the modern detective was apt to despise the pickpocket somewhat, characterizing him as a low and not particularly clever thief. His ingenuity, daring and coolness today, however, "compel our admiration," to quote one of the cleverest detectives, "and we feel pleased when we lay one of them by the heels."

The British pickpocket's tricks are many and various, and he is adding to their number every day. The false arm game is one of the cleverest and is calculated to deceive a detective, even although he may have his eyes on the operator. A coat is thrown loosely over a false arm, which is held naturally. Apparently both of the pickpocket's hands are in view, while in reality the skillful fingers of one hand are going through the pockets of the man beside him.

The use of the pocketless overcoat, or the cape coat, which makes an entire cover for the hands, is an old dodge, which nevertheless is still popular with the pickpocket. He often prefers, however, to use a novel invention known as the sash method. The sash consists of a piece of black silk or alpaca two yards long and three-quarters wide. It is folded the same as a neck scarf and crossed centrally beneath the coat and vest, both ends being brought under the arms and placed in the hip pockets of the trousers. When ready for action the "tool," as the man is called who actually picks the pocket, places his hands behind the folds of this device, and it enables him to conceal his purpose as he "fronts" a man to rob him of his watch or money if the latter is in his trousers pocket.

A "tool," however, has other means of covering his hands without resorting to the aid of coat or sash. A newspaper or theater programme is often used. Beware of looking over a stranger's shoulder to glance at a newspaper or programme—a little action we are often guilty of when it only necessitates a turn of the head. You may be risking nothing, but, on the other hand, you may be seated or standing by the side of a professional pickpocket, who has only to hold the paper at a certain angle while you are engrossed in some item to cover his movements as he relieves you of your valuables.

The black silk handkerchief and hat are employed in the same manner as the paper, only the former is sometimes used in the "sling method" to carry a supposedly crippled arm. The manner in which that arm would rest against your face, as if raised to avoid some one striking it, while the other hand took your scarfpin and watch would excite compassion from the victim himself.

The pickpocket's most dasterdly trick—but one, be it noted, which is only used by the man who is too clumsy to perform that sleight of hand upon which the clever thief prides himself—is that of blinding the victim with pepper blown through a pipe. The bowl of the latter is filled with a false bottom and second tube, the cavity below the false bottom being filled with cayenne pepper, while tobacco is placed above it. Approaching a gentleman in an ill lighted street, the thief asks for a light for his pipe, and while the victim feels for his matches he is suddenly blinded by a discharge of cayenne pepper, which the scoundrel blows through the hole in the bottom of the pipe into his eyes. Maddened with the terrible pain, the victim presses his hands to his eyes, and the robber snatches his watch and chain and decamps, to repeat his exploit on some other unsuspecting pedestrian.

It is not very often, however, that the pickpocket works alone, although women who belong to the light fingered fraternity—and who, by the way, are often more successful than men—usually prefer to do so. Men thieves like to work in "mobs," for the simple reason that they can transfer the "booty" from one to the other in a crowd. Consequently if recognized by a detective and arrested on suspicion there is nothing in their possession on which they can be convicted.

Besides, confederates—or "stalls," as they are called in the vernacular of the "profession"—are necessary to do that little bit of bustling which makes the "tool's" task so much easier and lessens the risk of detection.

Many are doubtless aware that train termini in busy thoroughfares are places where the pickpocket is always looking for plunder, and a "mob" of four will often work together in such a crowd. A prosperous looking victim is selected, and as he attempts to board the car the four quickly surround him, with the "artist" behind.

The confederate in front uses every subterfuge to block the progress of the victim until the coup has been brought off, and while the men on each side hem him in and distract his attention with their hustling the man behind helps himself from his pockets. It is a trick which rarely fails with cool, expert thieves, although amateurs at the game are often caught through lack of nerve and quickness.

The "stall" or confederate will not allow any one who has been chosen for a victim to change his position until a peculiar cluck tells him the trick has been accomplished or unless there has been an alarm from an outside source. When more than one "stall" is used the other men devote part of their attention to watching any of the passengers who may be inclined to suspect mischief, and with their boot toe in close proximity to that of the "tool" they can convey a danger signal without fear of attracting the least attention. When such a signal reaches the "tool" he will desist in his attempt at plunder, and, though he has never turned his head to see who prevented larceny, he will completely lull the suspicions of the same individual by his manner thereafter.

Generally speaking, the profits of pickpocketing are not worth the risk. Occasionally thieves make a good haul, as in the case of the king's garden party already alluded to, but often great risk is run to secure a man's pocketbook, for instance, only to find that it is simply filled with cards and memoranda.

Hard cash is what the pickpocket likes to secure. For jewelry he can only get about one-half of what it is worth from the fence, while for watches he rarely gets more than one-fourth. Consequently the professional pickpocket must be industrious to earn a livelihood.

Quinsy Sore Throat.

The following mixture will generally quickly bring relief in case of a quinsy sore throat: Thirty grains of chloride of potash, three drams of tincture chloride of iron, four drams of glycerin and enough distilled water to make four ounces. The dose for an adult is one teaspoonful every hour until relieved. To avoid the constipating effect of the iron a good dose of some saline laxative should be taken.

Method.

"He occasionally says things that are wonderfully apropos," said one statesman.

"Yes," answered the other; "he's like our parrot at home. It doesn't know much, but what it does know it keeps repeating until some circumstance arises that makes the remark seem marvelously apt."

Classical Music.

"What is your idea of classical music?"

"Well," answered Mr. Cumrox, "as I understand it a classical piece is something that is very hard to play written by somebody whose name is very hard to pronounce."
